Nine games is the longest winning streak enjoyed by any American League pitcher last year. Joe Bush of the Yankees and Eddie Rommell of the Athletics shared the honors. During the 1921 season no American League pitcher won more than nine straight.

Manager Pat Moran of the Cincinnati Reds, while attending the world series, laid stress on the fact that Cincinnati had a great chance ta stage the event in 1923. Moran who made a sensational finish with the Reds, taking second place on the last day of the season by winning a double header from Pittsburgh, is confident his club will make things merry for the Giants.

FOOTBALL

The C.P.C. Juniors will meet the much improved C.G.E. Juniors in the Junior League Yeotes Cup game on Saturday at the King Edward Park. Kick-off at 1.30.

The C.P.C. team will be selected from the following: Killenbeck, Curtis, Downer, F. Ball, T. Ball, M. Shadgett, Edwards, Chambers, Haw, Anderson, Mitchell. Davidson, Bradley, Lynch.

The DeLaval will meet the Comrades Junior in a Yeotes Cup game at the Oval on Saturday. Kick-off at 1:30. S. Calladine will referee. Both these teams are well in the running, and are expected to extend themselves to gain the much coveted points.

Canadian Woollens will meet the C.G.E. in the Senior League at the King Edward Park on Saturday. Kick-off at 3 o'clock.

In the C.G.E.-Woolens game the former occupy first and the later the second place in the League standing and a victory for the Woollens will reverse the order. This would indicate that the game will be one of the fastest and the best seen this year.

At a special meeting of the Ontario Football Association held in Toronto on Saturday last, it was decided not to put the Plenty Cup up for competition this year.

Ed. Walsh, in his day one of the greatest pitchers the game ever produced, will not be a member of the American League staff of umpires next year. Walsh was forced out of the game late in the season because of illness and has decided to give up the national pastime. He is acting as a deputy sheriff at Meriden, Conn., his home.

LUCAN HAS A MIGHTY SOUTHPAW TWIRLER

Weir, Who Will Take the Mound For the Visitors Saturday, Uses An Anvil As An Exerciser — Other Odds and Ends of Sport News From a Fan.

Canadian Generals will face southpaw pitching when the Lucan Irishmen come here at the week end. The game with St. Aidan's should prove beneficial for the locals. Weir who does his exercising before a blacksmith's anvil but he will need more than horseshoes to carry him over the battle with the Generals. But make no mistake. Weir is a high-class twirler.

The local Collegiates will stack up against Lindsay in round one of the Interscholastic rugby series, the group having been divided by putting Oshawa and Belleville in one section and Lindsay and Peterboro in another section. There should be some keen contests before group honors are decided.

"Nip" Dwan, pilot of the Hillcrests has gone to Guelph to be with Fred Goyer—and others who may follow.

Jack Williams is to take up permanent residence at Belleville—hardly a just sentence for a championship twirler. Now, if he was going to Lindsay or Port Hope, the penalty might not look too bad—but it would hurt more.

Maple Leafs will be out hollering for company, when Canadian Generals meet Lucan on Saturday. The Midget champs have some good friends among the Electricians and their supporters, and if good wishes help some, Canadian Generals will carry off the honors of the series and enter the select circle with the youngsters.

Picton sends along congratulations following the victory over St. Aidan's and adds the wish that the Intermediate championship may become the property of the team that put the twice-champions out of the hunt.

The local Intermediate finalists did not lose a game in the city series, and they have captured six out of eight games played against the O.B.A.A. opposition, Tweed and Picton registering wins at home.

If inclement weather intervenes to put an untimely end to the game Saturday it will be played on Monday. The game is called for 2.15.

Manager Solomon of the Peterboro Ball Club has sent the following telegram to the Belleville Grand Trunks:

"Heartiest congragulations from the Petes. Do it again Saturday."

COBB IMPROVING ON HIS BAT WORK

After Eighteen Years as a Master of the Game Mighty Ty Still Studies to Improve.

By BILLY EVANS.

No matter how great one may be in any line of sport it is always possible to improve one's game. In golf Walter Hagen typifies all that is worth while. He looks the part of a champion and plays it. Yet Hagen is never satisfied, he is always trying to add something new to his repetoire of shots.

In baseball Ty Cobb stands out as the gerates player of all time. Taking into consideration all departments of the game he is the ideal player.

There have been few greater base runnners than Cobb. While now he lack some of his old-time speed, he still is figuring what is best to do when he reaches first base.

In the batting end of the sport, Cobb always has been pre-eminent. Since he entered the American League this prowess always has been a source of trouble to the pitchers. Constantly feared by them, he has been called on constantly to face the best pitching that could be offered. This has meant a series of duels of wits between Cobb and the pitchers, in which Cobb always has had the edge In a measure psychology has triumphed, for Cobb has always feared the pitchers less than they did him.

Most players with Cobb's ability at bat would have been content to rest on their laurels, but not Cobb.

This spring I noted that he was using a different style. I couldn't figure out the change, but realized that he was hitting at the ball in a different manner. I asked him about it.

"Yes, I have changed my style slightly," he replied. "A low ball always has been hardest for me to hit. For the last two or three years that style of delivery has troubled me more than ever.

"Although I have been hitting at low balls for 17 years in the majors I decided to see if I couldn't devise some way of making it easier.

"After much experiment I discovered that a crouched position in which I bent my knees considerably, enabled me to hit these balls with better success. In reality I made the low ball higher simply by bending the knees when I assumed my position at bat."

The fact that Cibb hit better than .400 in his eighteenth year in the American League makes it seem as if his new style had helped some.

George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns who gave Cobb a great run for American League batting honors, is the greates all-round player that has entered the American League since Cobb's arrival.

Sisler is a modest chap who wears his honors in a quiet way. Recently I read a most interesting statement credited to him, in which he said:

"Cobb is my model. Except when I cut loose at the ball and slug I always like to try to place my hits as Cobb does. I can't claim to have mastered place hitting as he has, but I am learning and believe I am making progress. To my mind place hitting is the secret of batting."

Suc a statement will merely add to the great popularity Sisler now enjoys, because he is a real sportsman.

OFFER FROM WASHINGTON.

MIDDY STAR WILL WORRY WEST POINT.

Vincent Conroy.

The big game of the year for the United States Naval Academy is the clash with West Point. In recent years the Middies have shown the way to the Army. Coach Bob Folwell is pinning his hopes on captain and quarterback Vincent Conroy to lead Annapolis to another victory. Conroy's play featured the work of the Middies last year.

SCOTTISH CURLERS COMING.

The big event in curling circles this year is the visit of the Scottish curlers to Canada. They are to spend sixteen days in Ontario, five of which will be in Toronto. At the forty-ninth annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association held at the Victoria Club, it was pointed out that every club in Ontario would be given an opportunity of putting at least one rink against the visitors.

NAVY COACH HAS CRACK BACK FIELD.

W. H. Mamilton.

The United States Naval Academy has visions of another big year in football in 1922. The only reverse suffered by the Navy last year was in the gabe with the strong Penn State elevn, which was lost by the score of 13 to 7. Coach Bob Folwell, who has the faculty of turning out crack back fields, is figuring on W. H. Hamilton to come through for a big year.

RUGBY TEAM WILL PLAY IN KINGSTON

Local Gridiron Warriors Will Meet the Limestones in Kingston on October 28

Negotiations are under way for the local rugby team to meet the Limestones of Kingston on October 28 with a return game in Peterboro on Thanksgiving day. The first game is expected to be a big attraction in Kingston as the Limestones have recently added several strong players to the squad and the Kingstonians are anxious to see them in action.

The Peterboro club is working up a good strong aggregation which with the efficient management and capable coaching it has received should give the Limestones something to do right on their home gridiron.

This will be the first game for the locals in the O.R.F.U. series.

FOWL SUPPER GREAT SUCCESS

A Jolly Evening Spent By Congregation of Methodist Church, Stanwood--Campbellford News.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 20.—The fowl supper and entertainment held on Tuesday evening at the Methodist Church, Stanwood, was an unqualified success from every standpoint. The culinary skill of the ladies was clearly in evidence in the tables which fairly groaned beneath their loads of good things. Supper was served from 6 to 8.30 p.m. Following the supper an excellent programme was rendered in the auditorium with the pastor, Rev. P. E. Glover, occupying the chair. The devotional exercises was led by Rev. E. O. Seymour of Havelock, after which Rev. Mr. Glover voiced the appreciation of the congregation for the large crowd present. Solos, which were heartily appreciated and encored were rendered by Mr. John Storie of town, Rev. Robt. Fry of Burnbrae, Miss Haig of Havelock, W. Henson of town. A vocal duet by Mrs. (Rev.) J. E. Glover and Miss Emma Meiklejohn and a quartette by Mrs. Glover, Miss Meiklejohn Messrs W. and Edwin Henson were thoroughly enjoyed. Mrs. G. A. Kingston gave a reading which merited hearty applause. Addresses by Rev. C. F. McIntosh of town and Rev. E. O. Seymour of Havelock were both permeated with their sense of humor. Miss Hawley and Mrs. John Storie very capably acted as accompanists for the evening.

The proceeds amounting to $160 was surely most gratifying to pastor and congregation.

SIKI AND BECKETT BOUT SCHEDULED FOR DECEMBER 7

Conqueror of Carpentier Will Meet Becket in 20-Round Battle For the European Title.

FIGHT IN LONDON.

PARIS, Oct. 20. — (Canadian Press)—The fight between Battling Siki, the Senegalese conqueror of Georges Carpentier, and Joe Beckett the English heavyweight, will take place in London on December 7, it was officially announced last evening by the International Boxing Union, under whose auspices the battle will be held. The bout was at first announced to take place on November 23.

The articles, which have been ratified by the International Boxing Union, call for a 20-round encounter and will be for the official heavyweight title of Europe, as neither Beckett nor Siki are able to make the light heavyweight limit. The Senegalese will fight around 185 pounds, which is ten pounds heavier than the weight he made in the Carpentier struggle.

The fight will be staged at the Olympia.

The original agreement, which was made last Sunday, called for the fight to take place November 23, but Major Arnold J. Wilsons, Beckett's manager, asked that it be postponed to a later date. Both fighters have made the deposits required by the rules of the International Boxing Union. The amounts guaranteed to the fighters were not made public, but the Associated Press understands from a most reliable authority that Siki will receive £7,000, win, lose or draw.

Following are the draws for next Tuesday night: At 7 o'clock Capt. King vs. Capt. Cairns; at 8 o'clock Captain Curvin vs. Captain R. Ross; at 9 o'clock Captain Gillespie vs. Captain Gilliam.

Many Amateur Boxers Turning Professional

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(Canadian Press)— Amateur boxers are being graduated in ever increasing numbers to the professional ranks. This is particularly true of the Metropolitan District, which, in recent years, has contributed several amateur glove knights who have established a prominent footing in the ranks of the purse-chasers. With the rapidly increasing popularity of boxing among the leading athletic clubs of this district it is expected that during the next few season there will be further and more impressive additions to the ranks of the professionals.

Indications point to the most active winter in the history of amateur boxing, both in this city and throughout the United States, and the support that the sport receives from the general public is such that more pretentious tournaments are constantly being arranged. Early season contests are being fairly flooded with entrants and there appears to be an unending supply of ring talent some of which gives promise of exceptional ability.

It is from this portion of the amateur contestants that the material for a professional ring career is secured. The managers of the principal boxing stables are constantly on the alert for men in all weight-classes who are showing promising qualifications and are willing to begin at the bottom of the ladder which leads to the money ring.

Those amateurs who decided to follow the boxing game into its higher flights usually prove apt pupils and easy to handle from a business standpoint. No less a promoter than Tex Rickard has stated that he likes to talk terms with ex-amateur boxers and that there is seldom any difficulty in arranging the financial side of bouts in which they are to engage.

That those who graduate from the amateur to the professional ring ranks have the necessary training, skill and intelligence to succeed is proved by the mention of only a few who have made boxing history in recent years. Harry Greb, Joe Lynch, Dave Rosenberg, Augie Ratner, Pete Zivic, Nat Pincus, Sam Mossberg, Willie Sieger and other well-known boxers received the groundwork of their ring education in amateur bouts. From the rapidly growing ranks of the amateur ranks other additions may be expected.

Umpire's Decision Is Costliest in History

A lot of major league magnates will be saying unkind things about the world series umpires during the winter.

One decision by the arbitrators burnt up $120,000 that would have gone to the major league club owners.

The calling of the second game of the series on account of darkness with the score a tie at 3 to 3 turned out to be the costliest ruling in baseball.

When Snodgrass missed a fly ball in the 1912 series between Boston and New York he deprived the Giants of the series and the New York players of about $30,000. That was the difference between the winning and losing end of the receipts.

That error on the part of Snodgrass was a knockout to the athletes, but it in no way compared to the jolt handed the magnates by the darkness decision reached by Umpires Hildebrand and Klem.

The actions of the crowd in the near-mobbing of Judge Landis caused the high commissioner and the magnates to become panic-stricken. Some of the ever-suspicious fans said the umpires called the game at the request of the judge, that there was collusion between the magnates and the umpires.

In order tto allay the suspicions of fandom in general the two New York clubs donated the entire receipts of the second game to charity.

For years world series umpires have been trying to get a slight raise in salary with only fair success. One decision now costs the magnates over $100,000.

BRINTON CARPET FIVE PIN LEAGUE.

The Brinton Carpet will start their Inter-shop Five Pin League next Tuesday night, starting at 7 o'clock with four teams, at the Solomon alleys.

DAMAGED POLICE CELL WITH HIS BIG FEET.

CALGARY, Alta., October 19 (Canadian Press). — Seven feet four inches in his stockinged feet, and well built in proportion, Cowboy Slim Griffin, arrested here for an automobile theft, provided a problem for the Calgary police yesterday.

Slim unthinkingly lay down in his cell after being searched, and his number twelve shoes knocked six steel slats out of the cell wall.

Coach Smith is Pleased With Material

(By Billy Evans.)

What about California?

Football enthusiasts in the east are already asking that question.

California's sudden rise to fame in the football world has caused Coach Andy Smith's eleven to be a much-talked about agregation.

Last year California was known as the "Wonder team." At present that title will hardly apply, as a number of stars have been lost through graduation, and the ability of their successors is still uncertain.

Coach is Optimistic.

Coach Andy Smith, never inclined to be boastful, says California will again demonstrate its superiority by winning another western championship.

At this writing it looks very much as if California's most dangerous foe will be University of Washington. Coach Smith frankly admits that the Washington game is certain to be troublesome.

A majority of the stars in the Washington line-up this year are players who attended the same high school and have been playing football together for the past six years. This is sure to be a distinct advantage to the coach in developing team play so essential to success.

University of Southern California is not saying a great deal, although it has high hopes for a most successful season. The material is good.

Stanford will largely be made up of green material. A trio of last year stars remain: Wilcox, Ludeke and Captain De Groot.

California will again present a wonderful back field. The line is rather uncertain. It may develop into one of the best California has ever had. Several of the forwards have great promise but have yet to prove their worth under fire.

"Brick" Muller Is Back.

The famous "Brick" Muller is still on the job. Nisbet, whose remarkable punting featured the work of California last season, is back. In addition Coach Smith has Berkley, Nichols, Erb, Morrison and Clarke.

Of the new performers the most promising are Spaulding, a halfback; Perry, fullback; Gallagher, centre; Beam and Witter at tackle.

Coach Andy Smith is decidedly optimistic. He feels that with six members of last year's wonder team in the line-up, he should be able to develop another eleven that will win the Pacific Coast Conference championship.

CONNACHER AT BAT.

The following verses were received from an unknown source. The reference to the Belleville-Hillcrest game in Peterboro on Friday, October 13 is obvious. Apologies are extended to the mighty "Casey."

The outlook was as brilliant for the Hillcrest Nine that day;
The score stood four to four with but one inning more to play.
And then when Samuels died at first, and Walker did the same,
A sickly silence fell upon the patrons of the game.

A straggling few got up to go in deep despair. The rest
Clung to the hope which springs eternal in the human breast;
They thought if only Connacher could get a whack at that—
They'd put up even money now with Connie at the bat.

But Scott preceded Connie as did also Jimmie Blake,
And the former was a lulu and the latter was a cake;
So upon that stricken multitude grim melancholy sat,
For there seemed but little chance of Connie's getting to the bat.

But Scott let drive a single, to the wonderment of all,
And Jimmie, the much depised, tore the cover off the ball.
And when the dust had lifted, and the men saw what occurred,
There was Jimmie safe at second, and Scott a-hugging third.

Then from 5,000 throats and more there rose a lusty yell;
It rumbled through the valley; it rattled in the dell;
It knocked upon the mountains and recoiled upon the flat.
For Mighty Lionel Connacher was advancing to the bat.

There was ease in Connie's manner as he stepped into his place;
There was pride in Connie's bearing and a smile on Connie's face.
And when responding to the cheers he lightly doffed his hat,
No stranger in that crowd could doubt 'twas Connacher at the bat.

Ten thousand eyes were on him as he rubbed his hands with dirt;
Five thousand tongues applauded when he wiped them on his shirt
While the pitcher, big chief Williams ground the ball into his hip,
Defiance gleamed in Connie's eye, a sneer curled Connie's lip.

And now the leather-covered sphere came hurtling through the air,
And Connie stood a-watching it in haughty grandeur there.
Close by the sturdy batsman the ball unheeded sped—
"That ain't my style," said Connie. "Strike one," the umpire said.

From the benches black with people there went up a muffled roar,
Like the beating of the storm-waves on a stern and distant shore.
"Kill him, kill the umpire" shouted some one in the stand;
And it's likely they'd have killed him had not Connie raised his hand.

With a smile of Christian charity great Connie's visage shone;
He stilled the rising tumult; he bade the game go on;
He signalled to the pitcher and once more the spheroid flew;
But Connacher still ignored it and the umpire said, "Strike two."

"Fraud" cried the maddened thousands, and the echo answered "fraud."
But one scornful look from Connie and the audience was awed.
They saw his face grow stern and cold they saw his muscles strain
And they knew that Connie wouldn't let that ball go by again.

The sneer is gone from Connie's lip his teeth are clinched in hate;
He pounds with cruel violence his bat upon the plate.
And now the pitcher holds the ball, and now he lets it go.
And now the air is shattered by the force of Connie's blow.

On shores of Bay of Quinte the sun is shining bright,
In Belleville bands are playing, in Belleville hearts are light,
In Belleville men are laughing, in Belleville children shout,
But there is no joy in Toronto, mighty Connacher struck out.

RADIO NEWS

PIEDMONT, Cal.—Pupils in the 25 class-rooms in Piedmont High School here may now hear a radio broadcast program at the same time.

This has been made possible by the installation of a system of loud speakers in each of the 25 class-rooms, under the control of a central or master station in the main office of the building.

A motor generator and battery in a steel cabinet in the basement furnish the power for the reception of the messages, either from the central control station or for the reception of radio messages from outside. The master station is operated like an ordinary telephone switchboard.

Coming from the transmitting instrument at the central station, the speech is amplified in any or all of the class-rooms as desired. It comes into the receiving apparatus in sufficient tones to be heard all over the room.

This is the first application of this system to school use, say the school authorities. Similar installations, however, have been made in hotels, railroad stations and other public places.

What makes the school system even more modern is its adaptability to the reception of broadcast programs by radio. Pupils will be able to remain in the class-rooms to hear lectures and concerts from afar.

If you want to send a bouquet to a friend in Europe, send it by radio.

That is the suggestion made by a London firm of florists. It is based on actual orders for flowers by means of radio telegraphy. When the radio telephone is perfected so that transoceanic talk will be possible, orders may be given directly for the kind of flowers wanted.

According to members of this firm 2,300 agents deliver flowers for them in the United States and Canada. They, in turn, get similar orders from these agents. Heretofore they have been coming by cable.

Now it has become another use for radio.

No town is big enough for a reckless drivers' convention.

Flexible cuff links have been invented that enable a man to pull his shirt sleeves above his elbows without unbuttoning the cuffs.

One of the largest telescopes in the world, constructed in Cleveland, Ohio, will soon be shipped to Cordoba, Argentina. The telescope has a 60-inch reflector. When set up it resembles a gigantic Howitzer gun.

STRONG APPEAL FOR NORTHERN SUFFERERS.

Dr. Hodgetts reports that relief arrangements have been well systematized in the north. Peterborough is expected to give her share in contributing to the relief fund. SHORT NEW COAT

Among the many new models of fall coats and wraps the short jacket seems to have an enviable popularity.
It is bloused and has a wide band around the hips which fastens sungly. A high collar usually accompanies it.
The coat iself is frequently made of caracul cloth with collar and cuffs of fur. Often, too, it is made of heavy coating with fur collar and cuffs.
Though it is popular as a suit it has been just as frequently as a separate wrap. The sleeves are either tight or loose as one prefers.

ALL POLITICAL PARTIES WELCOME PROSPECTS GENERAL ELECTIONS

Conservatives Feel That Appeal to Country Will Greatly Strengthen Their Administration--Formation New Ministry Now Would Entail 15 Bye-Elections.

EXPECTATION FOR POLLING ON NOV. 18

LONDON, October 21 (Canadian Press). — All political parties welcome the prospect of an immediate general election, which it is recognised could not have long been delayed in any case.

Conservatives especially feel that it would greatly strengthen their administration if they were able to get a definite mandate from the country.

Moreover, the formation of a new Ministry now would entail about fifteen bye-elections, involving much loss of time, with the possible prospect of a general election in the near future confronting them.

The Irish Question.

Expectation continues general that polling will take place on 18th November, and it is believed a reconstituted Parliament can meet by 28th November.

As the ratification of the Irish Treaty is no longer a contentious matter, it is believed it can be disposed of within the specified time, and Parliament is likely to rise for its Christmas recess early in December.

PARTY STRIFE.

LEEDS, Eng., Oct. 21.—(Associated Press.)—Former Prime Minister Lloyd George, speaking at a great meeting of Coalition Liberals here this afternoon, declared "the banner of party strife" had been hoisted at the recent meeting of Conservatives at the Carlton Club, which voted against continuing coalition.

"It is for the people of this country," he exclaimed, "to decide whether party comes first or the nation first. I stand for the people." Mr. Lloyd George asserted that the combination which had achieved victory in the late war had been brought to an end not because it had ceased to serve the nation, but because a party was not getting enough out of it. He then launched into a vigorous defence of his administration in his usual picturesque language.

Why Does Bread Cost More Here Than in Toronto

Although Toronto housewives and Toronto families are procuring bread just now at a low cost of 7c a small loaf, and down in Oshawa, they are buying it for 8 cents a small loaf, Peterboro is still paying 10 cents, as a general rule, with only two or three dealers retailing the staff of life at 9 cents for a half a loaf.

C. G. E. TEAM AHEAD IN THE OPENING HALF

Lively Struggle Witnessed By Large Crowd of Fans at Riverside Park This Afternoon.

THE C. G. E. WON

RIVERSIDE PARK, October 21. — The Lucan Irish nine, Western Ontario Intermediate champions, and the Canadian General Electric team of Peterborough, winners of the East, met this afternoon in the first of home and home games to decide the Intermediate O.B.A.A. championship.

The weather conditions were surprisingly good, a warm sun beating down upon the field.

Weir, a husky left-handed pitcher, warmed up for Lucan, while Frost was slated to do the heaving for the C. G. E.

The umpires were Barnes of Cobourg and Butler of Lindsay.

The line-up:

Lucan—George, ss; Langford, 2b; O'Neill, 3b; Crawley, c; Hindmarsh, rf; Gibson, m; Weir, p; Barnes, lf; D. Ross, 1b.

C. G. E.—Jackson, 2b; McCarney, m; Helson, 3b; Rose, ss; Primeau, rf; Frost, p; R. Ross, c; Corrin, 1b; Legon, lf.

First Innings—

Lucan—George beat out a bunt. Langford sacrificed Frost to Corrin. O'Neill hit to Frost, who got the runner at first and Corrin's quick throw to Helson doubled George at third. No runs, one hit, no errors.

C. G. E.—Jackson walked. McCarney sacrificed, Weir to Ross. Helson grounded to Weir. Rose walked. Primeau rolled to Weir. No runs, hits or errors.

Second Innings—

EYEWITNESSES NAME SLAYERS IN HALL CASE

Authorities Are Closing In--The Grand Jury May Take Action Next Week.

ATTORNEY MUM

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J., Oct. 21. —(United Press).—Two eye-witnesses who saw the murder of the Rev. Edw. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills have been discoverd and have made statements to the prosecutors, it was reported here to-day, as Crown Attorney Stricker summoned five persons to the court-house for questioning.

Stricker, however, refused to confirm the report of two eye-witnesses having been found.

One of those to be questioned today is said to be Ralph V. M. Gorsline, a vestryman of the Church of St. John the Evangelist, whose automobile was mysteriously burned a few days after the tragedy. Another is Barbara Tough, an upstairs maid in the Hall home.

The grand jury has adjourned until Monday, so no indictments are to be returned before next week.

An eye-witness to the Hall-Mills murder has named the slayers of the rector and the choir singer, it was persistently reported here to-day, as every indication gave the evidence a startling climax is rapidly approaching in the case. Persistent reports that a prominent woman of New Brunswick had made an affidavit to Prosecutor Beekman that she saw the slayings and recognized the slayers, had resulted in no denial from Beekman's office early to-day.

Simultaneously, it was reported from apparently reliable sources that Beekman will again place the case before the Somerset County grand jury to-day with a view of obtaining the indictment of a man and a woman by the first part of next week.

RELIEF IN SHAPE CONDENSED MILK

Farmers Supply Milk and Local Creamery Condense It.

In discussing the situation of the fire sufferers in Northern Ontario, some of the farmers and Mr. G. A. Gillespie, of the Peterborough Milk Products, have suggested that if those farmers who deliver milk to the Peterborough Creamery will agree to give one day's supply of milk, the Creamery will condense, pack and forward it to the fire zone, free of charge. Several of the farmers have already agreed to this, and if all would do so, it would mean a big contribution to a worthy cause.

JUDGMENT RESERVED IN CURTIS BROS. VS. HAYES

Action to Recover $3,600 for Brick Sold For Red Arrow Tire Building.

Judgment was reserved by Mr. Justice Middleton last night on the claim of Curtis Brothers, brickmakers, for the sum of $3,609.01, against John E. Hayes, who was the contractor of the Red Arrow Tires Factory, for bricks supplied in the construction of the building. Mr. Hays denied liability for the bricks, stating that when the plans of the building were changed by the directors of the company he was to receive the original $120,500 contract price, plus $3,500, and the tire company was to furnish the bricks. Defendant denied the contention of Mr. Charles Curtis to the effect that Mr. Hayes had called up and ordered the bricks. His explanation was that Mr. Walters, or some other official of the Red Arrow Company, must have given the order.

Mr. F. D. Kerr, K.C., was solicitor for plaintiffs, and Mr. Gordon for defendants.

COPPING CASE POSTPONED JUDGE TO ARRANGE DATE

Solicitor For Defendant N. Miller Was Ready to Proceed--Mr. R. V. Copping is in Florida--Plaintiff Must Produce Mrs. Copping for Examination

With the consent of Mr. Justice Middleton the case of Mrs. Hattie Iona Copping against Norman Miller of Toronto and Russell V. Copping, her husband, was set over for trial at a date to be arranged by His Lordship, and plaintiff's counsel must produce Mrs. Copping for examination in Toronto or here.

Mr. Erichson Brown of Toronto, solicitor for Mr. Miller, stated that he was ready to go on with the trial, but it was stated that Mr. Copping the co-defendant was in Florida, and Mr. Brown remarked that there was unfriendly relations between Mr. and Mrs. Copping.

Mr. Gordon said he understood that relations were quite friendly Mrs. Copping claims $4,000 which she says she loaned the company known as Motor Car Distributors Limited which she alleges was promoted by Mr. Miller and in which her husband invested $32,000.

STORY OF THE "WIDOW'S MITE" BRINGS OUT FEW MORE SHEKELS

In the Meantime the Fire Sufferers of the Northland Huddle Together in Tents and Shacks and Wait For Prosperous Cities Like Feterboro to Send Relief--Less Than Three Eundred Dollars Raised Here by Public Subscription.

A letter was received by the Examiner yesterday enclosing "One dollar from a friend" for relief of the fire sufferers in Northern Ontario. 'Twas only a dollar, and yet this contribution was one of the biggest gifts yet received in the interests of this cause, for it was given by a mother who could ill-afford to part with even that amount. Would it not pay many of us to turn back in the Good Book and read the story of the "widow's mite" and having read to give, even though we can't afford it, to those whose need is greater than ours? If all in Peterborough would only give as well and as freely as this mother it would not take long to raise a sum that would be of material aid to the sufferers in the northern part of our Province.

Haileybury lies in ashes, and the same fire which destroyed the homes of her citizens showed the wonderful fighting spirit of the true Canadian which is the birthright of these people, and at the same time served to show how, with a few exceptions, the people of Peterborough can look with indifference on the sufferings of their fellow-men.

Huddled in their makeshift huts and flimsy tents, these people of Haileybury have already felt the first touch of the biting winds from the north. So far they have held their own, and while waiting for aid to come from their fellow-Canadians, have struggled against terrific odds to reconstruct at least a small portion of their homes. But if they are to meet with any degree of success, they must have help from us, and have it quickly.

The cash contributions received by the Examiner yesterday reached a higher figure than any day since the catastrophy was first reported and were sufficient to bring the total to $245.52. It is much better than the amount that was reported for the previous day, but it is nevertheless a miserably poor offering from a city like Peterborough.

Contributions of both cash and clothing will be gladly received by the Examiner, the Fire Department, the Red Cross and similar organizations, and will be forwarded immediately for distribution among the fire victims. Those who have clothing or blankets to give and who cannot deliver them personally need only to notify any of the organizations by 'phone and a messenger will be sent. Money to help rebuild the homes and clothing and blankets to combat the rigors of winter are urgently needed.

Lindsay Offers Object Lesson To Peterborough

LINDSAY, Oct. 21. — Cambridge Street Methodist Church responded nobly to the unexpected call for subscriptions to help the fire sufferers in Northern Ontario. The call for help was sent out by the General Conference on Saturday night, one thousand dollars was raised in a few hours on Sunday and the cheque for this amount was despatched Monday morning. Additional subscriptions to the amount of $380 have gone forward since, thus making the total amount $1,380.00.

It was a generous response, and so far as known has not been equalled by any church in the Bay of Quinte Conference.

ARMISTICE DAY ON SATURDAY, NOV. 11

Ottawa Decides to Celebrate on a Very Large Scale.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 21.—(Canadian Press.)—It was decided at a meeting of representatives of civic organizations and the Canadian Militia here, that Armistice Day would be celebrated locally on Saturday, November 11 and not on the national proclaimed Thanksgiving Day. Armistice Day is to be celebrated on a large scale in the capital.

THREE-YEAR SENTENCE.

EDMONTON, October 21 (Canadian Press). — William N. Shandro, former postmaster at Shandro, Alta., a village thirty miles north-west of Lamont, was yesterday sentenced by Chief Justice Harvey, to three years' imprisonment, for the theft of a registered letter containing three dollars in currency.

PROPERTY DEAL WAS DISSOLVED BY AGREEMENT

Non-Jury Action on Assize List Was Settled Out of Court—Involved Otonabee Farm.

SETTLEMENT TERMS.

The non-jury case of Stewart vs. Starke was settled out of court yesterday afternoon and judgment entered according to the terms of the agreement.

In this action Mrs. Edith Stewart of Otonabee bought a farm with stock and implements, from Cecil W. Starke, of the same township, for $11,500. She alleged certain misrepresentations of the property and a loss of $2000 in selling her own place to take possession of the Starke farm. She paid $2500 on the purchase and gave a chattel mortgage for the balance. In her suit she asked that the mortgage be annulled, also for the repayment of the $2500 and in addition for $3000 and costs.

The minutes of the settlement are as follows:

All allegations of fraud, misrepresentation or evil practice of any kind by plaintiff against defendant, are withdrawn.

The contract of sale and chattel mortgage between the parties are set aside and cancelled.

The plaintiff shall within 30 days re-deliver to the defendant possession of the land and the goods and chattels sold or given to the plaintiff at the time of and under the sale in as good condition as when she got possession of the same except ordinary wear and tear from use, plowing possession to be given defendant at once.

The plaintiff shall pay to the defendant such a sum as shall be found by the Local Master of this Court at Peterborough for compensation for the use of or damages to the property received by the plaintiff from the defendant for the time the plaintiff is in possession of the same.

Reference to the Local Master to fix such compensation.

Defendant to repay to plaintiff all moneys received from plaintiff on purchase money with interest at 6%, lass such compensation as shall be found due to the defendant.

Each party to pay their own costs of action and reference except that plaintiff shall be allowed for costs $100.

Gordon & O'Brien for plaintiffs; Basil D. Hall and E. Gus. Porter for defendants.

Another Case

Eighteen months ago a resident of this city, who had been ailing for some time, had three X-ray examinations made and was told that his Gall Bladder should be drained and his Appendix removed. He had had a severe attack of Gall Stones, requiring a hypodermic, and his heart was so weak he would frequently fall upon attempting to rise after lying down.

Instead of the operation, which would have cost him between two and three hundred dollars, as well as much suffering and loss of time, he took a three months' treatment of Gallagher's Blood Purifier and the Kidney Remedy; has had no return of the trouble, has been working steadily and has remarked to the writer that he has not felt better in ten years. This man's name and address will be furnished anyone interested.

A three months' treatment for Rheumatism, Gall Stones or Gravel costs only seven and one-half dollars. Is vegetable in composition and is beneficial to the whole system. The Gallagher Remedy Co., Limited, Peterborough.

Wallace Reid is On Casualty List

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 21.—(Canadian Press.) — Wallace Reid, motion picture actor, was reported by relatives to be seriously ill to-day, suffering a "complete nervous breakdown." Dorothy Davenport, his wife, is with Reid in their home here. Reid's illness is an ocular one, according to representatives of his employers and is similar to snow blindness, it is said.

Madame Fahey to Sing Here Sunday

It was announced last night at the Fahey recital that Madame Lugrin Fahey has graciously consented to remain over the week-end in the city, and will sing at both services to-morrow in George Street Church. It is understood that she plans to sing some old favorites, and her music will undoubtedly add greatly to the inspiration of the services. The choir, directed by Mr. Renwick, will, of course, render its usual programme of fine devotional music.

In the morning Rev. A. H. McConnachie, pastor of the South Monaghan Presbyterian Church, will preach, and in the evening Mr. Young will continue the present series of sermons, discussing to-morrow night the old question, "What lies beyond the grave?" While no complete picture is given us, yet the Bible affords us many suggestions concerning what is beyond, and these are being made the basis of the present series of Sunday evening addresses.

ABUNDANCE OF PRODUCE TODAY LOCAL MARKET

Eggs Scarce at Fifty Cents a Dozen--Potatoes Away Down in Price and Plentiful.

BUYING BRISK

The farmers' market was a busy centre this morning, with plenty of buyers and plenty of produce, both above and below stairs. Potatoes, apples, all sorts of garden stuff piled up the carts backed against the curbs. Potatoes were selling anywhere from 75 cents to $1 per bag, turnips at 60 cents a bag, onions, red and white, at 40 cents per peck, carrots and beets at $1 per bag, and one dealer had an entire load of cabbages, which he was disposing of at 60 cents a dozen.

Apples were plentiful, Wealthies at 30 cents a peck, Greenings (handpicked) at $1.25 for a bushel box, and Ontarios $3.75 for a barrel. Baxters were $1.50 a bag. Pears were 40 cents a peck, and grapes 20 cents a measure.

For Hallowe'en, there were pumpkins, large and small, and popping corn at 10 cents a dozen ears. Hubbard squash in colors were selling at 10 and 15 cents apiece. Dried herbs were on view in several carts. The fish man had a huge sea salmon, which he was cutting up with great abandon. Honey in different qualities of clover and buckwheat was selling at 15 and 17 cents a pound for the former, 10 and 12½ for the dark. Pork in a couple of conveyances was asking 18 and 20 cents a pound.

Pink Porkers.

Live offerings on the open market this morning included several crates of pink porkers at $13 and $14 a pair; Plymouth Rock hens at $1.50 each; a pair of thoroughbred fox hounds, "full brothers," long-eared and big-eyed, going to different purchasers at $15 apiece; a lone collie pup with inquisitive gaze that was offered for $1.50, and three light-brown doggies, "a cross between a collie and a hound," at 50 cents each.

One lady had grey wool socks on view, $1 a pair, and the auctioneer was offering these aids to cold-weather comfort also in lots at 40 cents a pair. A native of the Hiawatha reserve was selling home-made axe handles.

Wood on the open market this morning was selling at varied prices, $7 for a light mixed load, $8 for hemlock, and the same price for a large load of mixed elm and cedar, in stove lengths. A load of hay was selling at $13.

Plenty of Fowl.

Upstairs, there was plenty of fowl on every table, and much butter. Eggs were a scarce commodity, fifty cents a dozen the general price, with one woman asking 45 cents. Butter ranged from 40 to 35 cents per pound, and chicken anywhere from 20 cents a pound, by a lady who "wanted to get off the market," to 35 cents. Hens were going at 20 to 25 cents a pound, ducks at 30 and 35 cents, and goose from 25 to 30 cents. Honey here was selling at 35 cents for a pint sealer of the clover brand, and 40 cents for a quart of the dark variety. One woman had feathers for pillows at 65 cents a pound, the prospective purchaser being confronted with the necessity of buying them in the tight receptacle in which they were contained in several pound lots, or of sorting out enough of the wayward commodity to make the desired pound, a thankless and unprofitable undertaking where feathers are concerned.

The fire in the large stove in the basket section has brought out the advance guard of the season's back warmers in full force. Several were present this morning, constant attendants, who monopolized the heated area, and discussed questions of moment to the "farmers' senate" with grave faces.

BARTHOU ADVANCES SCHEME TO CONTROL GERMANY'S FINANCES

Plan of French Government May Place Germany in a Position to Meet Her Reparations Payments.

DIFFERS FROM THE BRITISH.

PARIS, October 21 (Canadian Press). — Complete and rigid control of all German finances, power to veto expenditures and regulate taxation, and authority to dictate the arrangement of the budgets of the various German states are among the chief proposals contained in the plan of the French Government for a solution of Germany's financial difficulties and for placing that country in a position to meet her reparations payments.

The plan was submitted to the Reparations Commission last night by Louis Barthou, the French representative on the Commission, and discussion of the project will begin to-day.

Although not mentioned in the official summary, M. Barthou's plan contemplates a meeting of leading business men of the world to determine Germany's capacity to pay and to consider the question of Inter-Allied debts.

The plan, in effect, is a reply to the British reparations project recently placed before the Commission by Sir John Bradbury. It differs radically from the British point of view. M. Barthou urges the calling of a Brussels conference to deal with a broad reparations settlement and Allied debts and the question of German payments in 1923 and 1924. France would limit the powers of the Reparation Commission to application of new guarantees and reform for Germany, leaving the more comprehensive issues to an international meeting.

The proposition would gradually put Germany on a gold basis, beginning with an issue of gold treasury securities. M. Barthou would have Germany pay her outstanding obligations in paper currency, and he calculates that then Germany's paper circulation would be 510,000,000,000 marks, which at the present rate of exchange are worth less than the Reichsbank gold reserve.

The moment has come, according to M. Barthou, when the Allies must take energetic steps or else be faced by a Germany proclaimed before the world as a ruined nation, despite the fact that her actual capital is intact.

Germany Can Pay.

"We don't accept the contention that Germany is totally incapable of paying," says M. Barthou in his pl .. "Despite Germany's enormous budget difficulties, she retains tremendous riches and has great strength to continue production and maintain her national vitality."

The French plan would so interpret the theory of prohibition of interference in Germany's internal affairs as to permit this radical control of German finances. The budgets of the war Germany states would be supervised thoroughly to prevent extravagances, regulate expenditures, and make arrangements for indemnity payments. A committee would be permanently established in Berlin and would have charge of the carrying out of all new reforms. In case Germany should refuse immediately to observe the new demands, she would be declared in voluntary default by the Commission under the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles.

A minimum of receipts would be fixed and a maximum of expenditures for Germany would be set, and Germany would be required to float international loans at an opportune moment. Neither the Government nor the States would float loans without Allied authority. M. Barthou's memorandum concludes with seven proposals, as follows:

The Proposals.

First—To immediately place German public finances under control of Germany's creditors, as previously outlined.

Second—To take all measures necessary to balance the budget and keep it balanced, meanwhile progressively including it in reparations payments not otherwise provided for and the interest on loans floated for reparations payments.

Third—To forbid the German Treasury to discount any bonds of any sort with the Reichsbank, and to require submission of all issues of Treasury obligations, either of short or long term, to the Allied control authorities.

Fourth—To place the Reichsbank under Inter-Allied supervision in order to see that it observes all the Allied requirements affecting it.

Fifth—To strengthen to whatever degree the Allied supervisory authorities deem necessary, dispositions taken to prevent the export of capital and the hoarding of foreign exchange.

Sixth—As soon as circumstances permit, to permit the issuance of gold treasury securities, the flotation of which is to be facilitated by certain fiscal advantages, the receipts from these issues to be devoted exclusively to the strengthening of the Reichsbank metal reserve, as far as necessary, so as to ensure success of currency reform and also to payment reparations not covered in the budget.

Seventh—The German Government would continue to collect in gold or in foreign exchange at least 25 per cent. on the value of exports. The receipts from these collections, as well as customs duties on exports and imports, woud be paid into a specia Reichsbank account in the name of the Committee on Guarantees, and under the committee's contro the German Government would dispose of this money as long as the Reparations Commission found the German Government fulfilled obligations which had been, or would be, imposed by the Commission.

"If at any time the Commission finds otherwise," says the memorandum, "then the Committee of Guarantees will take possession of the sums to its credit in this account, and the collections made thereafter, which it will see are regularly paid into this account."

BLUENOSE AGROUND BUT UNINJURED FOR TITLE RACE TODAY

Exceptionally Low Tide Caused Canadian Cup Defender to Run Aground at Her Wharf.

FLOAT AT HIGH TIDE.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 21.—(Canadian Press.)—On the eve of the first deep sea sailing contests between the racing schooners Bluenose of Canada and Henry Ford, representative of the United States fleets, the former was grounded on a mud flat at her wharf and the latter was having her sails re-cut to meet the requirements of the competition.

It was expected that both would be ready to race as planned to-morrow morning, but the night was one of watchful activity.

The Bluenose was stranded with two feet showing below her water line with a low set of tide, which also caught the Mayflower, Boston's crack fishing schooner that came down to meet the winner of the international championship series. The Mayflower at low tide was hard and fast on a ledge, but over a bed of mud, a biscuit toss from the Bluenose.

Like the Canadian craft, her position eased with the rising waters and high tide of the early morning was expected to float both without injury.

Although a smaller vessel than the Bluenose and with a smaller sail spread, official measurers reported to the International Sailing Committee that they found the Hendry Ford had 437 square feet more sail surface in proportion to her water line length than is allowed under conditions of the contest.

HASTINGS, Oct. 21.—The gypsy carnival was repeated in the town hall on Wednesday night to a fair-sized audience. The costumes were very pretty and varied and presented a charming picture on the stage, while the individual numbers were well rendered. The May queen and May pole dance by the little tots showed careful training. Altogether the concert was a success and Mr. and Mrs. Cowell are deserving of considerable credit for their careful training.

DR. NORMAN ALLEN'S DEATH DUE TO CATGUT USED IN WOUND NOT BEING STERILE

Such Was Verdict of Coroner's Jury Last Night After Hearing Evidence of Seven Physicians — St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, Courts an Open Wide Enquiry.

TORONTO, Oct. 21.—(Special.)—"We find that Dr. Norman Allen came to his death in St. Michael's Hospital on October 4 as the result of tetanus, following an operation for gallstones. We also believe that the tetanus was caused by the catgut used in sewing up the wound not being sterile."

Such was the verdict rendered by Coroner J. H. McConnell's jury last night after hearing the evidence of seven physicians, including experts for the Crown.

Major Eric Armour, Crown Attorney, conducted the enquiry, and G. T. Walsh represented Mrs. Allen.

Court's Wide Enquiry.

Dr. Gideon Silverthorne, an expert witness, stated that St. Michael's Hospital courted an open enquiry in view of a "unique outbreak" from coast to coast.

"The situation has genuinely alarmed us," he said. Since Dr. Allen's death anti-tetanic serum had been administered in all cases at St. Michael's.

Examination of cultures from swabs submitted to the Crown experts disclosed no tetanus bacilli, but spore-bearing organisms had been found in the cultures and the catgut. It was explained that tetanus bacilli might have existed in only one strand of catgut, but of 38 tubes of catgut submitted for examination 22 were not sterile.

Prepared by Staff.

Dr. George Wilson, F.R.C.S., Eng., of the General Hospital staff, who performed the operation on September 17, stated that he had nothing to do with the technique of the operating room, the patient, instruments and dressing were prepared by St. Michael's staff. Witness took all the necessary precautions before performing the operation, which he described in detail.

Wonderful Recovery.

"Was there anything unusual in the recovery of the patient?" He had a splendid recovery— much better than one would have anticipated from that type of case.

He had reached the stage where he was giving me no concern whatever. In fact, he wanted to go home.

Witness first knew that something was wrong when he received a telephone message on the night of Monday, October 2nd. On reaching the hospital he found Dr. Allen sitting up in bed. He said: "It's a shame to have you come here; they got excited, there's nothing wrong with me." He told me he had a little stiffness in the neck and fear had been expressed that he might have tetanus. I examined him. He showed me how he could open his mouth and swallow a glass of water and how he could move his neck about. He was quite annoyed because I had been called. He wanted to go home, but I had promised Mrs. Allen I would not let him go. I could not satisfy myself that anything was wrong.

"Apparently he was quite satisfied." "Yes ,at least I was, and he acted so too—at least he said so to me."

ELECTION IN ENGLAND IN THE NEAR FUTURE

Election and Safeguarding of the Irish Constitution Are Only Two Definite Facts in Political Situation—Lloyd George Left For Leeds "With His Sword in His Hand."

LONDON, October 21 (Canadian Press). — In the still highly speculative political situation last night, only two facts stood out as definite —that there will be almost immediately a general election, and that Parliamentary ratification of the Irish Constitution is safely assured.

Andrew Bonar Law, who is to lead the new Government which will take the place of that of David Lloyd-George, in a message to an evening newspaper, confirmed his intention to advise King George to immediately dissolve Parliament, and added that this fact would give ample time to deal with the Irish legislation. He did not indicate, however, whether the present Parliament would re-assemble according to schedule on 14th November, to deal with the Irish question, or whether general elections would be held immediately and the Irish legislation left to the new Parliament.

Either plan would be practicable, the only point being that ratification of the Irish Treaty must be effected before 6th December. Whichever course is adopted, Irish legislation is quite safe from any attempt to frustrate an Irish settlement.

Mr. Lloyd-George, in a message sent to William Cosgrave, President of the Dail Eireann, has removed any fear of opposition from him in his new position as leader of the Opposition in Parliament.

The Marquis of Salisbury, on behalf of the "Die-Hards," has made a similar promise, so there is no party in the House of Commons that is likely to offer any hindrance to the carrying of the Irish Treaty into effect.

Sword in Hand.

The retiring Premier left yesterday for Leeds with his sword in his hand, as he asserted in a short address at the St. Pancras Station prior to his departure. Although he delivered five addresses from the rear of his car on the way to Leeds, he has left until to-day's speech in Leeds any revelation of what his tactics will be.

There is intense curiosity everywhere as to what line his speech will take—whether he has any new domestic reforms or legislative plans to propose as a new election battle cry. There have been rumours that he has some new plan for unemployment insurance, with a view to detaching the Labour vote from the Labour Party and bringing it into the fold of his proposed new Centre Party.

The rebel Cosservatives, who are headed by Bonar Law, Sir George Younger, and Stanley Baldwin, who brought about the fall of Lloyd-George, have contended that they were trying to get back to the old party system.

Only the result of general elections will show how far they have succeeded in this intention. Up to the present the only consequence of their tactics has been the adding of still another group to the existing party groups, thereby bringing the British Parliament still nearer to the prompt systems of the European Parliaments.

Split the Party.

Lloyd-George, who during the war split the Liberal Party into two sections, has now done the same thing by the Unionist Party. Thus instead of the two original parties, there are now four, with the Labour Party making the fifth. There will no longer be an Irish Party, which for so many years during the great Home Rule agitation was able to dominate the Westminster Parliament by throwing its seventy members to whichever side it chose.

With the five separate parties, it is clear that no single party can form a big enough bloc to carry on a Government not aided by further alliances. It has to be remembered that the whole of the election machinery and the funds of the Conservative Party belong to the rebellious Younger section of that group.

Mr. Lloyd-George is credited with intentions to create a Centre Party. This would necessitate the creation also of new party machinery and party funds, for the former Premier has no such funds or machinery at present at his disposal.

JURY RETURNED VERDICT OF NOT GUILTY IN EVANS CASE

Were Out Two Hours and a Half Friday Afternoon —Judge Said They Were Lenient and Hoped Trial Would Have Salutary Effect.

MR. GORDON'S APPEAL

George Evans was acquitted of manslaughter yesterday afternoon, and discharged. The jury in the Supreme Court before Mr. Justice Middleton brought in a verdict of not guilty after two hours and a half of deliberation and, as required, in such cases, were unanimous.

By their finding the jury declared that the death of Orman Boyler, who was struck and killed by Mr. Evans' automobile on the night of July 19th, on the road east of the Locks Bridge, was not caused by criminal negligence on the part of Mr. Evans.

Upon Mr. Gordon's formal application for the discharge of his client, Mr. Justive Middleton said: "I think the jury has been very lenient, and you have every reason to congratulate yourself on your escape. I trust that what has taken place, and the fact that the jury has been out a considerable time, will impress you, and others, with the necessity of exercising great care in operating automobiles on the highways. I have no doubt of your grief for the mother and that for many days you will have a heavy and sore heart."

Mr. Gordon's Plea.

Addressing the jury at noon yesterday Mr. Gordon said George Evans would be the last man in the city to take a human life, either carelessly or any other way. With four little children of his own expecting him home, he would be the last to cause pain and distress to the mother of Orman Boyler.

"He did just exactly what I would do. If I were driving along the highway and saw a cow loom up I'd turn out to avoid it. That is what he d' l, and in so doing he struck this bo, whom he didn't see until the car was right on top of him, because his attention had been diverted by the cow."

Mr. Gordon contended that if there was any doubt about the speed of that car the doubt should be given to the accused. He minimized the importance of the children's stories, and cited certain statements of their's which he said were fantastic and imaginary. Of the girls, one was flippant and the other impudent. Grace Turner, he continued, told of having performed the most daring act heard in this part of the province for a long time. She said one of her companions was petrified on the road, and she rushed out and pulled her to safety just as the car brushed the Turner girl's dress. That never happened. She told that to get some cheap applause, to see her name in the paper. She makes herself out a heroine, but no one else does. That story was the purest buncombe heard in this court for years.

Any evidence regarding the speed of the car is pure guess, Mr. Gordon continued. If you find that it was an accident, that Evans happened to see the cow on one side and turned the car to the left, and while his eyes were attracted to the cow, and just then the boy was struck, he is not guilty of criminal negligence. He did an instinctive and natural thing in turning out out to avoid the cow."

Mr. Gordon said that it took a detective to find out that the Otonabee road east of the Locks bridge was in the city.

"There are not 30 men in the city I venture to say who thought that the city extended beyond the bridge. There are no indications at all except but that it is in Otonabee. You will be told that the limit was 20 miles an hour under Motor Vehicle Act. If any of you men drive into that speed trap you are liable to be fined because that stretch of road is in the city."

Mr. Gordon stressed the fact that Evans' skill had been recognized by many men in Peterboro who engaged him as chauffeur for their families placing that responsibility upon him.

Reasonable Care.

Mr. Justice Middleton told the jury their duty was to determine whether the accused had exercised reasonable and proper care in the operation of his automobile. The statute says that every man who undertakes to drive an automobile must be careful. If he isn't he is criminally liable, unless there is lawful excuse.

"You have only to read of the almost innumerable deaths resulting from automobiles to realize that the automobile is exceedingly dangerous, and calls for great care in handling it."

His Lordship said he could not tell the jury what was reasonable and proper care. Finally, he said, that if they had no doubt however unpleasant their task might be they should not evade it. If they agreed that the accused was not guilty their task was pleasant indeed. but if they had a doubt that justified an acquittal, it must be a real and honest doubt, not one they might conjure up to escape their duty.

RACE BY RADIO.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.— (Canadian Press.)—A continuous description of the International Fishermen's Race off Gloucester, starting to-day, will be transmitted by radiophone from the shifting scene by the U. S. S. Brooks, which has been designated and will be available to receiving stations within a radius of 100 miles, the United States Navy Department announced yesterday.

When you require a roof, the measurement will be in squares (100 square feet). A basis for analysis of the costs of Brantford Asphalt Slates is given below:

1—INITIAL COSTS OF MATERIALS—Brantford Asphalt Slates are sometimes higher in initial cost for the material.

2—NAILS REQUIRED—Brantford Asphalt Slates require ONLY 684 nails to lay a square. Brantford Asphalt Slab Slates require ONLY 450 nails.

3—COST OF LAYING—Brantford Asphalt Slab Slates are four on one strip—require only one operation in handling, one operation in spacing—Individual slates are 8 x 12½ inches—Cut easily, fit easily, fit on angles and bend over round surfaces. You save 30 to 50 per cent. in laying.

4—NO PAINT OR STAIN REQUIRED—The surface of Brantford Asphalt Slates is in nature's permanent colors, green and red, unfadeable, always attractive,—requiring no stain to produce artistic effects, no liquid coats to make them fire-resistant.

5—SAVING OF INSURANCE—Brantford Asphalt Slates are classed as non-combustible by fire insurance Companies—a direct saving of from 10 to 20 per cent. on premiums is effected. In certain localities fire regulations demand asbestos paper under some roof materials, but Brantford Asphalt Slates are fire-resistant and are immune from special regulations.

6—COST OF REPAIRS—From the day they are laid Brantford Asphalt Slate roofs show almost 100 per cent. of the original roof untouched. Brantford Asphalt Slates do not curl, split, crack or rot. Complete protection and permanent protection are built into Brantford Asphalt Slate Roofs.

Compare these roof costs with those of any other roofing material; it is your money you are spending and you want value for it—then buy

LLOYD GEORGE'S DOWNFALL.

To attempt to diagnose the British political situation or to make prophecies as to what the next few months will bring forth at this distance when the shrewdest observers closely in touch with the situation are themselves perplexed, would be a waste of time.

One correspondent cables that Britain for many years has not known such political confusion and uncertainty.

Lloyd George has been wrecked against the Gibraltar of the opposition of the Unionist die-hards.

Temporarily, at least, his political sun has set.

But for how long?

No one expects the little Welshman to accept the rebuff and calmly consent to exile.

Above all things, he is a fighter, and sooner or later will strike back.

In the meantime his enemies rejoice. French journalists like Stephen Lausanne wish him a long good night and hope France will never see him again.

Hostile English papers hurl their bolts at him.

But, for, ting his weaknesses and possible mistakes, it will be fancied that throughout the Empire the people will remember how Lloyd George held the helm of the ship of state during the greatest crisis in the history of Great Britain and will give thanks that when he was needed he was in the forefront of the Empire's endeavour, supplying the leadership that the peril of the situation demanded.

NOT A PLEASANT REPORT.

There should be some serious food for thought for the County Council in the presentment of the Grand Jury at the local Assizes in so far as it concerns the County House of Refuge.

The section of the report dealing with that institution does not make pleasant reading.

People like to think of those who are driven by circumstances to end their days in public institutions of this kind as at least living under comfortable conditions, well fed and housed.

The Grand Jury's report seems to show that these conditions do not apply to the House of Refuge.

It declares that the inmates were found to be suffering from the cold, especially in the women's wards.

The plumbing of the building, it asserts, should be placed in a sanitary condition.

Ventilation facilities, too, are bad, and in the interests of the health of the inmates should be remedied.

The presentment also adds that clean clothing should be furnished the male inmates.

The report is a serious enough indictment of the management of the Refuge to warrant an immediate inquiry on the part of the County Council.

Lack of heat, dirty clothing, bad plumbing and poor venilation are things that should be eliminated from such institutions, and the Grand Jury deserves the thanks of the community for throwing light upon the conditions.

Too often such juries regard their duties as mere formality and their presentments are of little value.

The present Grand Jury has recognized its responsibility to its fellow-citizens.

DESERTED WIVES.

By a joint agreement between the United States and Canada wife desertion has been made an extraditable offence in so far as the two countries are concerned.

It remains to be seen whether this action will result in a falling off in the number of such cases.

Rev. Dr. Pidgeon, head of the Ontario Social Service Council, informed the Peterborough Rotary Club the other day that wife desertion was increasing to a considerable extent in Canada. That the offence is now made extraditable should have some effect upon the situation.

The woman who is deserted by her husband is in much worse plight than the woman who loses her spouse through death, in Ontario at least.

In this Province the widow with two or more children comes under the jurisdiction of the Mothers' Allowance Commission and receives a maximum allowance of $55 a month if living in a city, or $45 if residing in a town or village or in the country, with an additional increase of $5 a month for each additional child in families of over five children.

The deserted wife with a family of children is in a quite different category.

There are no mothers' allowances for her, and the whole burden of caring for her family, educating them and giving them a fair chance in life falls upon her shoulders.

A report of the Mothers' Allowance Commission says: "The commission does not pretend to deal with cases of family desertion. This appalling problem must be met by the Government in a more fundamental way."

How it is to be met should furnish Social Service Councils and other bodies with a topic for interesting and profitable debate.

BRITISH TRADE UNIONS.

The event of the week in England has been the holding of the Trade Union Congress—the annual powwow of the strongest labor organization in the world.

This Congress has met every year since 1868, and usually its discussions are not of national importance; but this year there has been an element of sudden and surprising conservatism that has attracted general notice.

The great Labor Congress was a smaller, sadder and wiser body of delegates this year. There were only 70 delegates, as against 810 in 1921; and there are 1,290,602 fewer members.

The total number of members now claimed is only 5,127,308. Two years ago there were over 8,000,000 members. The fact is that there are not probably more than 4,000,000 members at present, and a large number of them are being supported by the Unions.

Trade Unionism in the last two years has been bankrupted and broken down to half its strength, by its policy of strikes and Sovietism.

The revenue of all British Trade Unions was about $75,000,000 last year; and $40,000,000 of this was spent in supporting strikers and unemployed members.

Trade Unionism had its chance in 1920, but it sold its British birthright for a mess of Russian pottage. It let facts go and held fast to theories; and now it is wondering how it can recover the prestige and the prosperity that it has lost.

"It was wrecked by the "Reds"—by the extremists who piled strike on strike; and now as a result, the "Reds" are being thrown out. At last, the "Whites" have plucked up courage and dared to resume their leadership.

One of the "White" leaders—Mr. Thomas, has recently been awarded $10,000 damages in a suit which he brought against a London Socialist who had slandered him.

This has helped to tone down the exuberant scurrility of the Socialists: but a still more effective influence has been the news of the Bolshevistic atrocities in Russia.

Now that the Bolshevists have renounced their own principles, they have lost their control of their fellow-theorists in England. All the glamor of Sovietism has gone.

The first act of the Labor Congress was to buy control of the Labor paper—the Daily Herald. The former editor—Lansbury, who is a "Red" was persuaded to resign; and a well-known journalist named Hamilton Fyfe has taken his place.

The Herald has now changed its tune, and in its last number the editor says that "there can be no need for violence when the mass of the workers are agreed as to what they want. They can get it by constitutional means."

The Congress renounced Lenine and all his works. It abjured its heresy of "Direct Action." Actually, it announced that "we are a lawful body seeking lawful ends by lawful and constitutional means alone." And in the newly elected Grand Council of 32, there are only two who could fairly be called "Reds."

Twice before, in its history, British Trade Unions have renounced Socialism — in 1842 and 1890. Most unions are strongly opposed to Marxism and many are even opposed to political action.

But in 1918 a handful of Socialists captured the mass meetings of the workers. They talked more and promised more. They planned for a quick coup d'etat and a Labor Government.

At one time, during the coal strike, there were 350 small Soviets in England; and hundreds of foreign-born revolutionists did their utmost to create a revolution.

Even in 1920, the Labor Party planned a general strike to help Ireland and Russia. But it all came to nothing. All the Soviets are disbanded and forgotten.

The great unwritten law of Trade Unionism is solidarity, and it is now seen that the "Reds" destroyed this solidarity and filled the whole Labor movement with suspicion and intrigue.

There will probably now be a reconstruction of the Labor Congress itself. Its membership will very likely be restricted to actual wage-workers.

At present, there are two great Labor organizations in England the Congress and the Labor Party. Both work closely together and have a joint staff of 70.

The Labor Party was born in 1900 and has elected 59 members of Parliament. In 1918, it polled 2,375,202 votes, or about 25 per cent. of the voters.

It is composed of 123 Trade Unions, 209 Trade Councils and 3 Socialist Societies.

There are only 47,000 Socialists, but being all talkers and extremists, they have in the past dominated the party. In number, they are only 2 per cent.; but in influence, they have been in control for the past 10 years.

In the centre of the Labor Party is the famous Fabian Society, which has done more than any other influence to make Socialism respectable and articulate.

The Fabian Society has only 1,770 members, but they are university graduates for the most part—artistic and literary men who are irresponsible in matters of industry and finance.

The Labor Party has an income of $300,000 from dues, and only $2,500 of this comes from the Socialists. Yet, until recently, the little handful of Socialists dominated both the Labor Party and the Congress. The tail—a very short, stubby tail, wagged the dog.

In short, while there are over 5,000 Labor leaders in Britain, not more than 150 are "Red." The others have no desire to reconstruct the universe. They want fair pay and steady work and good conditions for their workers; and they care no more for the red flag than they do for the tomb of Mahomet.

Incidentally, a bill is now on its way through Parliament, to prevent a Trade Union from being pushed into politics by a minority of its members. It provides that at least 30 per cent. of the members must be in favor of a scheme, before it is adopted.

This will put an end to the stampeding of unions into wold policies by a 3 per cent. faction of extremists. —Herbert N. Casson in Barron's.

QIVE QUICKLY AND THUS GIVE TWICE.

In deciding to pass a grant of $500 for the Northern Ontario fire sufferers the City Council has acted the part of a good neighbor, and the Examiner is sure that the action of the city fathers will be heartily approved by the majority of citizens.

The grant, however, should not be taken as discharging the full measure of Peterborough's responsibility towards those who are in such great need.

It is merely a lead intended to stimulate the generosity of the people of this city.

Much smaller communities than Peterborough have already raised greater sums than the $500 voted by the local Council.

It is hoped that the citizens of Peterborough will augment the grant by contributing as generously as possible towards the relief fund.

Imagine living in a tent with a scarcity of heavy underwear and warm bedding under the present weather conditions.

Many a family in the north has been doing it since the great fire swept over their homes.

Others are not much better off in makeshift shacks.

Money to relieve these conditions is urgently needed. An energetic and capable committee is superintending the relief work and there is every assurance that cash donations will be economically and effectively spent.

Peterborough's total would long ago have run into four figures if the urgency of the call had been appreciated.

Cash subscriptions will be gladly received, acknowledged and forwarded by the Examiner.

THE MYSTERY MIND

Arthur B. Reeve and John W. Grey

All at once he realized that he still possessed the power to outwit his enemies. He remembered his demonstrations before the assembled physicians in the Philadelphia hospital. While he had never hypnotized himself, he had no fear but that he could influence his own nervous system enough to counteract the shock of this torture. There remained the effort to strengthen the skin and flesh upon his forehead by an exercise of will. Such a thing had never been done, but conceivably it was as possible as controlling the blood supply and nerve force in an unfamiliar subject.

The sun struck low, then set, and the damp of night rose from the lake and enveloped him as he fought to neutralize the effects of the tantalizingly slow drops of water. Toward dawn he felt himself weakening, yet he persevered. They never had beaten him. They never would.

Just for one brief moment his self-control deserted him. He became delirious, calling, framing audibly the name of the girl he loved.

"Violet Violet"

Then his mind cleared and an amazing phenomenon followed. He heard her answer, clear, unmistakable, not to be confused with the figment of his delirium.

"Yes, Robert I'm coming"

His keen ears caught the fall of her bare feet on the sand, the gentle splash as she hurried through the shallow water toward the delta. She had seen him by now. She would rescue him. They would be together again after the terrible weeks of their separation. But suddenly the sounds of her coming ceased. There was an instant of vibrant silence. Following was her voice again, this time raised in terror.

"Robert Robert I'm sinking I'm in quicksands"

XXXIX

A FIRE IN THE NIGHT

With full realization of the peril to Violet, Dupont strained and struggled until the bonds at his wrists wore through his skin and into the flesh, until the band over his face seemed to swell and hold him even more firmly to the ground.

Another drop of water upon his forehead caused him to quiver and vibrate with pain. Now that he knew the girl—within hearing, but out of sight, within reach, but beyond help—was sinking into the treacherous quicksands, his concern for himself was forgotten. The iron grip upon his own nerves was relaxed. The strength and power of his mind was no longer bent toward resistance to the torture. He lay helpless, frightened. His fear was not for himself, but now that he was afraid he suffered as the savage designers of the ordeal desired their victims to suffer. A second drop of water sent a thrill of agony through every nerve fibre in his body. The tips of his fingers, even the ends of his toes, burned as though touched with liquid fire.

"Robert Robert" Her cry now had mounted to a scream.

In this moment the voice of a third person, in reassuring tones, told of their rescue.

"All right" It was Randolph, calm as always. "I'm coming"

He caught the hand of the girl then he cut the hypnotist loose.

Dupont found himself tremendously weakened by his night spent lashed to the sand. Violet's strength had long been a thing of the past. But both were so determined to pursue their enemies, to recover the portrait, to punish Evil Eye and his associated, that the counsel and advice of Randolph to hurry toward the coast was utterly disregarded.

They learned that their predicament was worse than they anticipated. The adventurer explained, with a rather rueful expression, that he had smashed the airplane hopelessly the night before. The ground of the clearing was unusually rough, its greatest length just barely sufficient for a rise, while the wind at the time of his ascent attempt to was blowing across instead of down the narrow space, and so of no use to him. But he had salvaged the few supplies. They had food for perhaps three days. There were two revolvers, with plenty of ammunition.

New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

DISSECTING the KISS

The "Kiss Meter" Is So Sensitive an Instrument That It Will Measure the Minimum Impulse Required to Produce a Sensation. Individuals on Either Side of the Instrument Record a Dual Impulse.

WHAT is a kiss? Why is it given sometimes on the lips, the cheeks or on the hands? If you were to ask a lover what a kiss is you would probably be informed that it is a most pleasant form of greeting that "sends forth ethereal and hypnotic waves, traveling with great velocity, electrifying and rejuvenating every cell structure of the body so that next to love itself it becomes the most potent agency for courage, optimism, hope, health and longevity."

For some time scientists have been making their own investigations regarding the kiss. The latest instance is that of Dr. Simon Louis Katzoff, A. M., M. D., physician and psychologist, who in a lecture before the Philosophical Society of Bridgeport, Ct., exploded a few thumping gas bombs which carried dismay into the ranks of those who do not believe in kissing.

Of course, there is an infinite variety of kisses, but in the near future you may see scales graduated in dollars and cents, so that at fairs, where kisses are being sold, the purchaser of these delectable vintages of youth will pay for what he gets.

Lovers have always felt that nothing which is so good as kissing could possibly be injurious, since nature always adjusts her instincts to health. This is borne out, too, by Dr. Katzoff, who says that "some bacteriologists would have us carry around a jugful of carbolic acid or other germicide to wash our lips before kissing. They forget that heat is the greatest antiseptic known, and that the heat generated by a kiss destroys the supposed germ."

HOW Science's "KISS METER" Measures the SENSATIONS of OSCULATION

Below—Actual Record of a Kiss as Indicated by the "Kiss Meter." The Blood Pressure Readings Are Also Given. The Upper Records on Either Side Are Recordings of the Normal Pulse Beats.

Lovers, therefore, can be assured upon the very highest authority that when the meeting of lips is accompanied by sufficient warmth the microbes are all killed.

Long looked upon as cold and heartless, science is, nevertheless, not without sentiment. Dr. Katzoff declares that "we are suffering from lovelessitis. The lack of love paves the way for carelessness, grouchiness and sickness. A great deal of hatred, envy, poverty, war, disease and the like are also due to lack of love."

Throughout the ages the kiss has stood as a sign of love and affection, yet today there are countries where a kiss is entirely unknown, where the union of two lips with its simultaneous myriads of sentiments and sensations of love, desire, fear, respect and abandonment is not in vogue.

Physiologically the kiss is the first manifestation of love. A handshake is full of reserve, or for that matter full of hope. The kiss is another and perhaps more exquisite manifestation of the sense of touch similar to the handshake, and analyzing it further, scientists know that from the sense of touch most of the other senses are derived. Ordinarily, the kiss is disagreeable when the lips are cold.

It has been found that the minimum pressure needed to excite a sensation equivalent to that upon the lips, differs considerably when impressed upon the various parts of the body. Thus a kiss impressed with the force of two milligrams on either the forehead, temple, nose or cheeks, three milligrams on the palm of the hand, five milligrams on the eyelids, and fifteen milligrams on the palm of the index finger, is equivalent to a kiss upon the lips. This latter would have to be impressed with a pressure of five milligrams, in order to incite any sensation.

An instrument used for determining the pressures exerted by the lips is described in Science and Invention by Joseph H. Kraus. This "kiss meter," as it has been called, consists of a small tambour about 1½ inches in diameter and only ¼-inch thick. This is covered on both sides with a rubber diaphragm. It is filled with water, which connects by means of a flexible rubber tube to a U tube also so filled. In the further end of the U tube is a float communicating in turn with the lever of a scale, which is graduated in milligrams. Before the record is taken, the lips of the two individuals are permitted to come barely in contact with the opposite thin walls of the tambours. The scale is then set at zero after which any record may be made, as desired. Various styles of tambours are used where different results are to be obtained.

"Today, when one judges a person's degree of culture by his or her kissing," says Mr. Kraus, "and osculation has become the mirror of society—after its ultimate analysis, it remains plain, barbarous and brutal. At fairs and other social gatherings, kisses are often sold—sometimes for ten cents and sometimes to the highest bidder.

"Yet what is the value of such a kiss? Perhaps very shortly, these kisses will be weighed and measured, and prices equivalent to their actual worth will be offered for them, because such a kiss has had all sentiment removed therefrom, and becomes purely a business proposition; as such, it should be weighed and measured.

"An ordinary manometer makes an exceptionally good kiss meter, because during stages of real excitation, where the impulse is actually felt, not only does the heart beat quicken, but the blood pressure also increases. The blood pressure in women is much more uniform than in men and ranges from 85 to 155 millimeters, whereas among men it ranges from 90 to 175 millimeters of a mercury column. Fifty per cent. of the readings in 10,000 cases among women fell between 105 and 119 millimeters, whereas 50 per cent. of the men's readings fell between 115 and 137 millimeters."

Mr. Kraus has observed in tests the effect of a kiss on the sphygmomanometer. This instrument primarily was designed for reading blood pressures. It consists of a compression bag which encircles the arm, a small air pump and a scale graduated to register in millimeters. Air is pumped into the compression bag placed around the arm, until the pulse beat is obliterated. In placing the sphygmograph upon the same wrist it is possible to determine this point of obliteration, at the same time securing a record thereof.

The sphygmograph is a small clockwork device, in which a tiny knob presses upon the artery. This knob rising and falling with every beat, amplifies the record through a system of levers, and actuates a needle which visibly records the beat on a blackened paper tape. This tape, previous to the operation, is covered with soot.

Mr. Kraus says that some very interesting results were obtained. Thus the instruments strapped to a man, gave a normal blood pressure of 130 millimeters. One long inspiring kiss and the pulse quickened perceptibly, as was shown in the record. The blood pressure rose to 160, before evidence of the pulse beat at the wrist was obliterated. This is determined, of course, by pumping air into the compression sleeve of the sphygmomanometer and taking the reading on the dial or mercuric column. There was no doubt that the kiss was real, the meters indicating that this was so.

"The same instrument was attached to one of the fairer sex," says Mr. Kraus, "but it did not verify Kipling's line to the effect that 'the female of the species is more deadly than the male.' Here the sphygmomanometer indicated a normal blood pressure of 100 millimeters. The kiss was not a half of one per cent. kind, as the blood pressure rose to 122, and the pulse beat likewise quickened."

How It FEELS to Be 100 YEARS OLD

DR. ARTHUR MacDONALD, writing in the Medical Times, gives the following description of man's physical condition and outlook on life when he has reached the century mark:

So long as functions work easily the centenarian desires to live, but when weariness and lassitude come and communication with others is ceasing, he may be content to quit life; and when the body is full of pain and distress which rarely happens, he may be even anxious to die. Though capacity for work may be passing away, the centenarian may reflect with contentment upon the past with sereneness and with leniency toward the faults of others.

In the great majority of centenarians, there is no evidence of rheumatic or gouty affection in the joints of the fingers, a condition often regarded as a sign of coming old age.

Centenarians have very few teeth as a rule. The majority have good sight; many use glasses. The average pulse is 70 and average respiration is 22. Average duration of sleep is nine hours, which tends to delay the downward course of the body. Troubles of the centenarians consist mainly in weakness. Mental or bodily effort of any kind soon causes fatigue, sometimes resulting in tremor of the limbs; in case of the upper limbs there is difficulty in making a straight line, which causes the smallness of handwriting in some old people. Brain weakness results in bad memory, slow apprehension, and little power of concentration, so that there is disposition to wander from one subject to another. The brain in some, however, holds out better than the other organs. The failing of strength is generally about equal in all organs. Bronchitic and pneumonic troubles appear no more frequent than in those less advanced in years. The heart is regular in action, pulse small and no evidence of arterial degeneration; they seem to outlive prostatic and other urinary troubles.

In the United States in 1910, the ratio of the sexes under one year was 1000 females to 1026 males. There were living 3555 centenarians, of whom only 1380 were men and 2175 women; it must be noted also that in the whole population there were 2,692,288 more males than females. The experience of insurance companies show highly vitality also for women. It would seem that women are much freer from the many bad habits of men, especially in the use of alcohol and tobacco. It appears to be shown that tobacco affects the heart and vascular system and shortens life. The fact that a few drunkards and habitual smokers live to an advanced age are the exceptions which prove the rule.

The HOOKWORM as a HELP to Health

OF the estimated seventeen hundred million people inhabiting the globe, something more than nine hundred million live in countries where hookworm infection is a serious menace to health and working efficiency. With increasing pressure for the development of tropical and subtropical lands the control of this disease—as of malaria and sleeping sickness—becomes a matter of serious international concern. Hookworm disease, according to a bulletin issued by the information service of the Rockefeller Foundation, has been selected by the board for special consideration, however, not primarily because of its relative importance as a disabling disease, great as that is, but rather because it lends itself readily to purposes of demonstration in disease control. It serves at once as an end in itself and as a convenient means to a larger end. The work, while bringing immediate relief to hundreds of thousands of suffering people, is at the same time serving the more useful purpose of creating a popular sentiment in support of permanent agencies for the promotion of the public health.

During the year the board contributed toward demonstrations in hookworm control in thirty-three states and countries throughout the infected zone; completed infection and sanitary surveys in the state of Alagoas, Brazil, in Paraguay, in Papua, in New Guinea, in the British Solomon Islands, in Tasmania, and in Victoria; began surveys which are still in progress in the state of Florida, in Espirito Santo, Brazil, in New South Wales, in Western Australia, and in Northern Territory, Australia. Arrangements were entered into with Government for a series of demonstrations in Mauritius and Honduras. Re-infection surveys to determine results of previous work and to serve as a stimulus to further effort were carried out on a country-wide scale in forty-three counties in the Southern United States and in a number of smaller areas in Trinidad, Jamaica and Brazil.

The character of the work and the policy underlying its administration are well illustrated in the first field demonstration.

The first systematic effort to control hookworm disease in the United States was undertaken in 1910 in Richmond county, Virginia. It was under the direction of the Virginia State Board of Health with the Rockefeller Sanitary Commission supplying the funds. An infection survey made in April of that year showed an average infection of 82.6 per cent. among the school children. In one large section of the country the infection was found to involve practically the entire population and to be extremely severe. There followed an intensive effort to examine all the people; to treat those who were found infected; and by house-to-house visits to give them a definite understanding of the importance and the means of preventing soil pollution. Sanitary leagues were organized in local communities. Latrines were installed at all the schools and by persistent effort were gradually brought into use at nearly all the homes.

A second survey made in the summer of the following year showed that the infection among the school children had dropped from 82.6 to 35.2 per cent.

When Engagement RINGS Were as LARGE as TURNIPS

ROMANCE was the last thing to be associated with the first engagement rings, among which were formidable and cumbersome affairs of iron. According to an ancient chronicle the engagement ring was originated as a "safety first" institution to hold fickle and forgetful man to his bargain from the time he made his first avowal of love until the wedding ceremony took place. An ancient document says this:

"There are many men who, forgetful of their plighted faith, defer the fulfilment of their nuptial contracts. Therefore there shall be a solemn declaration before witnesses and a betrothal ring given and accepted."

The wedding ring was adopted among Anglo-Saxons about 860 A. D. During the generations since then it has been alternately highly elaborate and severely plain. The reason why English women wore them on their thumbs during the reign of George I. was because they were too large to wear on any other finger.

The old Hebrew betrothal rings were almost as large as turnips, including in their superstructure reproductions of Solomon's temple or some other sacred building.

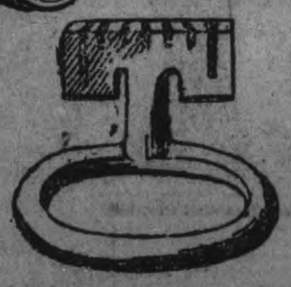
It was during the second century B. C., that woman first began to flash an engagement ring on the fourth finger of her left hand as a symbol of her betrothal. She chose to display it on that particular finger, because of the fancy then prevalent that a special vein ran from that finger to the heart. Later on, when science scouted that theory other fingers became the fashion.

In Russia the ring was worn on the forefinger. French women wore it on the middle finger despite the old Hindu superstition that any one wearing a ring on this finger would have bad luck. During the seventeenth century England chose to have the engagement ring adorn the thumb.

Though authorities on the history of the ring deny that it originally signified that the man had paid a sum of money for his bride there is an old German formula which reads as follows:

"I give you this ring as a sign of the marriage which has been promised between us, provided your father gives with you a marriage portion of a thousand reichtalers."

The Jewish Wedding Ring of Centuries Ago Was a Towering Affair of Intricate Workmanship. Right—An Ancient Iron Ring as Large as a Turnip and Worn on the Thumb.



The Wedding Ring of Medieval Days Was Equipped with a Key.

At one time the engagement ring consisted of three hoops looped together into what was known as a gimmel or puzzle ring. When the wedding took place one of these hoops was kept by the bride, one given to the groom, and the third bestowed on an intimate friend who acted as witness to the ceremony.

Frequently the rings were inscribed in a puzzling fashion by interlocking the names of the bride and groom. One bears the inscription, "gAeIoHrPgOeS," which reads George to the left and Sophia to the right. Then again, stones were used to spell out the name. "Sophia" would be represented by a sapphire, opal, peridot, hyalite, iolite and amethyst, the first letter of each stone spelling out the name.

The woman of mediaeval days was so proud of her rings that she could not bear to hide them with gloves. When she went out to functions that required the wearing of gloves she wore a variety that had the lower part of the fingers slit so that the gold and precious stones could peep through.

For a number of centuries the engagement ring was also obliged to do duty as the wedding ring after the ceremony. The wedding ring, like its prenuptial partner, was not given from sentimental motives, but was at the start almost as practical an article as a frying-pan. The wife was equipped with a plain gold band with a key attached so that she, and she only, could have access to household valuables.

The old custom of husband and wife exchanging rings when married originated in Russia. The bride was given a silver ring to signify that she was "the less honorable vessel," while the bridegroom drew a gold one to show his "superiority."

BAMBOO Is a SOURCE of PAPER

ONE of the most interesting questions in the pulp industry today is the future source of its raw materials," writes Clarence J. West in the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry. "The forests are rapidly disappearing and only a few of the more enterprising mills are taking any precautionary measures with regard to reforestation. It is true that paper can be made from practically any fibrous material known, but it is also true that, in the majority of such raw materials, the process is far from being satisfactory, as far as the yield of pulp is concerned. It is not possible, in the United States at least, to prepare pulp from annual plants and similar materials, under conditions that make the process economically feasible.

"The most promising raw materials, other than wood, thus far studied are bamboo and cotton linters. The early difficulties encountered in the treatment of bamboo have now been overcome and one or two methods are known to be quite successful.

"India appears to offer an inexhaustible supply. According to Raitt, India, with its supply of bamboo, and the Savannah grasses, can produce pulp for the whole world. Raitt further estimates that the cost of production of bamboo pulp would not exceed half that of the manufacture of wood pulp. Many years ago the Department of Agriculture tried to cultivate bamboo in the Southern states, but their experiments were not very successful. It still remains to determine whether bamboo can be grown in this country. If so, this would offer one solution of the problem of raw materials.

"Cotton linter pulp has attracted much attention since the war. The great demand for cotton during the war period made it necessary that the cotton attached to the seed after the usual ginning process (about 200 pounds to the ton of seed) be removed as far as possible. At the conclusion of the war the demand for this material dropped practically to zero, and successful efforts were made to convert this into pulp for paper. The manufacturers claim that this pulp may be used to advantage in place of old rags, and also in certain proportions in place of new rags. Because it is a new cotton fibre which has not been worked or processed, it gives somewhat greater bulk to paper for the same unit of weight.

Why Girls Can't Throw Straight

TWO reasons account for the fact that a girl cannot throw straight. One, purely physical, anatomists explain, has to do with the difference in the bodies of the sexes, the girl's clavicle or collar-bone being shorter, so giving her a smaller play of forearm than her brother. In addition, direction in overhand throwing depends chiefly upon the shoulders and chest being carried forward with the swing of the arm.

With a boy this is the heaviest part of his body, but a girl is heaviest at the hips. Consequently, instead of the girl's body swinging straight forward, it frequently turns round at the waist, so completely spoiling the aim.

The second reason is that since the earliest days of human evolution, man has been practicing throwing, in war, in self-defence, in the hunt and in a hundred other ways. Thousands of years of such practice has resulted in straight throwing becoming a hereditary masculine habit, almost an instinct.

How Long Can a Man Live Without Sleep

THE longest period of complete and continuous insomnia authentically recorded terminated on the ninth day with the death of the victim, after great suffering.

Such cases are, however, extremely rare, and can only be due to peculiar diseases. In the ordinary way even the strongest man could not be kept continuously and completely awake for more than 90 hours without great danger to his actual life, and even in this period of time very remarkable changes would occur.

Some actual experiments have been undertaken by scientific observers, and hallucinations, abnormal increase of weight, extraordinary decrease in strength, and almost complete loss of memory and concentration occurred.

It is to be remembered that the above applied to complete and continuous insomnia, and that even a few minutes' sleep would have refreshed the subjects. The ordinary person who says he hasn't slept for three nights is speaking loosely. After a real insomnia for that length of time he wouldn't be able to speak at all!

RUSSIAN COPPER MAY PREVENT A U.S. MONOPOLY.

While World Is Running Short of This Metal the Reserves of Russia Are Very Large.

LONDON, Oct. 21. — (Associated Press).—That the recent agreement between the Soviet Government and the Russo-Asiatic Consolidated Company, which will permit the handling of the inexhaustible copper, lead and zinc resources of Russia, is the most important event to British industry since the armistice, is the opinion of Sir Edward Edgar, Bart, the merchant banker.

Sir Edward, in an interview, has declared that while the world at the present time is running short of these metals and the present source of supply is being rapidly depleted, the reserves of Russia, which are practically virgin, will be laid open, averting any possibility of an acute shortage. There are vast acres in Russia containing these metals which have never been touched for commercial purposes according to his statement.

"It is quite possible," Sir Edward said, "that without this new Russian source the supply of copper, lead and zinc in the world would be exhausted within the next twenty years. Russia is our only hope of lessening this catastrophe, for the resources of the United States, which represent about forty per cent of the total, are rapidly dwindling.

For the next decade I can see America lording it over the world of industry through her control of these metals but I also see her squandering her heritage with recklessness, and I further see how it may easily happen that Great Britain, through her development in Russia, will assume a position in the metal industry that will displace America.

"That is where the Russo-Asiatic Consolidated Company and the Soviet Government come in. If allowed to develop to the full extent of its capacity this company may easily become the greatest producer and purveyor of copper, lead and zinc in the world. It will free British industry from servitude to these essential trans-Atlantic raw materials, and it will secure for us a supply of these metals that will be felt in every department of British commerce and manufacture. I believe the coming period of leanness and scarcity will be followed by long years of plenty that will more than re-establish us in our old prosperity."

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, this mixture saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out, and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

ANNUAL MEETING DIRECTORS PETERBORO PROTESTANT HOME

Year Has Been Uneventful With But Few Changes—Officers Elected For the Current Year — Reports Submitted.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Protestant Home took place with the directors and various church representatives present and Mrs. R. Neill in the chair.

Rev. J. R. Webb opened the meeting with prayer, and after hearing the reports of Secretary and Treasurer, seconded same with complimentary remarks, in which he said that no one could come periodically here, as he had done, and fail to notice the atmosphere of home which prevailed and the evidences that each individual was treated with kindness and consideration. He congratulated the Board of Managers of the establishment.

Mrs. Neill regretted the absence through illness of the President. Mrs. Roger, and expressed thanks to those interested in the Home.

Miss A. Lancaster gave a verbal report, stating that the year had been uneventful, with few changes, the ordinary routine going on from day to day. She had been very successful with her flowers, and this had proved a source of pleasure and interest to the old people.

Secretary's Report.

Secretary Amy Halliday submitted the following:

The year 1921-22 which has closed Sept. 30 has been a quiet and peaceful one for the Home. Everything possible has been done to make the old people comfortable and happy. There are 33 inmates in the Home, 17 men and 16 women, with a total number of 10,897 days.

The total number of inmates for the year was 44.

The number discharged for various reasons was 16.

Deaths in the home, 2.

The average number of days per inmate was 253.

The board has held 20 regular meetings, 2 special meetings. Average attendance was 7.

The building is in first-class condition. The interior has been thoroughly cleaned, and most of the rooms calsomined and put in order. A great deal of cleaning and renovating has been done in the men's side especially. The roof of the verandah has been repaired and is now much enjoyed by the old people. A new rug has been purchased for the Superintendent's room.

The members of the board deeply regret that their beloved President, Mrs. Roger, is not able to be present on all occasions, but are very thankful that she has been so far restored to health as to help with her good judgment and unfailing interest in all things concerning the Home. The board owes much to her faithful and wise counsel.

It was with keen regret that the board accepted the resignation of their Secretary, Miss Flora Davidson. Miss Davidson has been most faithful and efficient in carrying out the duties of Secretary of this Home, and the members of the board felt with her her grief in the loss of her father, and her subsequent removal from the city was a personal loss to each one. She was presented with a purse of money by the board on the occasion of her departure in February as a very slight token of their appreciation of the work she had so cheerfully done.

The members of the board wish to express their appreciation of Miss Lancaster's untiring efforts to make the Home a place worthy the name, and they feel that she has performed her work faithfully and well.

For some years it has been felt that a practical nurse was a necessity for the care and comfort of the old people, and the board has been most fortunate in being able to engage Mrs. Hurry for this position. The kindsess and care she has bestowed on lonely old people has meant very much to them.

Mr. Hamilton, by unceasing effort, has improved the land to a very great extent. The lower section has been levelled, the stones taken off, and good drainage put in. The garden has been most productive. A sufficient supply of vegetables, except a few potatoes last year, has been secured, and feed for the horse and cow. In the matter of seeds alone he has done wonders, nearly all the plants and vegetables being grown from his own seed.

The outlay was 60c. as compared with $18.20 and $33 of other years.

His treatment of the old men who are under his care, and who are not easy at times to manage, has been excellent.

The plan of building a cottage for the overseer is still a dream of the future, but another year may see this building, so long needed, a part.

A linen and am shower was held of the equipment in November, and was a great success, many donations being received. This was the only occasion on which the public was asked to help, and the citizens are reminded that this is an opportunity to show their interest and sympathy in the work, and visitors at this or any other time are most welcome.

The usual Christmas festivities were held on Friday, Dec. 23, and were very much enjoyed by all present. The management was exceedingly grateful for the donations received. The Rev. Mr. Mackenzie of Knox Church kindly acted as chairman and addressed the old people in his usual cheerful manner, and delighted the audience with his songs. Much gratitude was expressed to the others who helped with this entertainment.

The board also wishes to thank the Rotary Club, who took the old people for a drive in June; the Royal Arthur Lodge, for their excursion and dinner at South Beach in July; the Melody Concert Band, which gave beautiful concerts at the Home on Jan. 2, May 14 and Oct. 1; the Park Street Baptist Young People's Association, the George St. Adult Bible Class, the members of St. Andrew's choir and the Mizpah Class of St. Paul's Church, who all gave splendid concerts and refreshments to the old people who are never tired of speaking of the pleasure these events gave them.

The thanks of the board are extended to the doctors of the city, who have so willingly given their services; also to the clergymen for their kindness to the inmates. Regular services throughout the year have been held and are greatly appreciated by those unable to attend any other service.

In presenting this, my first annual report of the Peterborough Protestant Home, I am very glad to be able to report a year of activity, progress and success. There is such an atmosphere of kindness and sympathy in the Home that there can be no doubt of the good work the Superintendent, Mrs. Hurry, and Mr. Hamilton are accomplishing.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

USEFUL "DONT'S" TO REMEMBER

Don't fail to insulate the antenna.

Don't place the lightning switch indoors.

Don't listen in during a thunder storm.

Don't cause interference with other stations.

Don't try to use a loud speaker with a crystal set.

Don't run wires parallel in making up receiving sets.

Don't neglect to read everything available on radio.

Don't attach ends of antenna to power or telephone poles.

Don't connect a radio set direct to the electric light circuit.

Don't forget that tickler coils are not used with crystal detector sets

Don't expect to get loud signals with a crystal detector set while using an indoor antenna.

Don't always blame the broadcasting stations. It is usually the fault of your own apparatus.

Success consists of having others wish they were you.

PANGS OF NEURALGIA

This Painful Trouble is Due to Poverty of the Blood.

Neuralgia is one of the most painful maladies that afflicts humanity. The trouble is usually seated in the face or head, following the course of some nerve in face or head but it attacks other parts of the body as well. It is also characterized by acute pains, sometimes steady, at others spasmodic and darting. But whatever course it takes the pain is agonizing and almost unbearable. Medical authorities agree that neuralgia is due to poverty of the blood—that the nerves are actually being starved. It is further agreed that if the blood is purified and enriched the trouble will disappear. It is for this reason that Dr. Williams Pink Pills have been so successful in treating neuralgia. They enrich the blood which feeds the starved, aching nerves and thus bring relief to the sufferer, whose general health is also improved. Proof of the value of these pills in cases of this kind is given by Mrs. M. Brown, R.R. No. 1, Warsaw Ont., who says: "I have taken Dr. Williams Pink Pills and can recommend them as being the best medicine I know of for neuralgia. Two years ago I had an attack of this trouble in the neck and shoulder. The repeated attacks of the pain were of such frightful intensity that my life was almost unbearable. I consulted two doctors and took their medicine, but without relief. I had taken Dr. Williams Pink Pills years ago, when they helped me wonderfully, and I decide to try them again. Before I had taken more than a half dozen boxes the pain has disappeared, and I have since enjoyed the best of health, thanks to Dr. Williams Pink Pills.

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A JEWELLER SETS WATCHES BY RADIO.

NEW YORK.—Get the correct time by radio.

If you have no receiving set, to tune in on Arlington, go to a jeweler's. More likely he will have a set alongside his worktable.

For this is the latest adaptation made to the watchmaker's art. He no longer depends on telegraphic notice of the accurate time. The radia is even more accurate.

Heretofore the great electrical clock at Washington has been sending its clicks off to the rest of the country by telegraph. Telegraph still keeps most jewelers' clocks in conformity with the master clock in Washington. But radio is beginning to supplant it.

Broadcasting.

Already some half dozen jewelery firms have received licenses to conduct broadcasting stations. An important part of the broadcasting is the dissemination of the accurate time after its reception by radio from the naval station at Arlington.

Other jewelers have had radio sets installed in their shops. Twice a day they receive official time signals from Arlington, and they set their clocks and watches by these signals.

In Germany, radio in connection with this business has gone even farther. One of its firms has applied for a patent on a clock which can be corrected, set and wound by radio. Once the clock is started and it is "tuned in" by radio, there is no more bother or worry for the owner.

Alarm Clock.

A Frenchman, who is both radio enthusiast and watchmaker, has succeeded in constructing a radio alarm clock. According to the report from France, he uses a receiving apparatus tuned to respond only to a call consisting of certain letters sent at a certain speed.

When the proper combination of dots and dashes is received, the last signal operates a relay that closes a circuit and rings the alarm.

CLOSED CARS IN GREAT FAVOR.

Reo Agents Look For Continued Demand of This Type of Car.

Messrs Moore & Brewer, Reo dealers, discuss the importance of the closed car in the following article.

"It was but a few years ago that the closed car was merely an adjunct to the regular line of types produced by automobile manufacturers and the demand for this type was nothing to be compared with the unprecedented demand that exists to-day," says Mr. Brewer.

"As one looks back at the progress made in automobile body construction during recent years, one fact is pre-eminently evident and that is the freakish type of body has lost favor with the public. Today the closed car conforms with the standard practices of the car makers. Body designers are guided by the desire of the public and dignity in design is the vogue.

"With the advent of the motor car, it was believed that the last word in transportation had been found because of its independence of such things as schedules, time tables, etc., to which the average man had been heretofore bound. The automobile opened up new avenues of transportation. New roads were built. Progress has advanced with the advent of the motor car and to-day its importance is felt throughout the world.

"The new Reo closed car models represent the last word in closed cars. Mechanical reliability that is institutionally Reo is built into the double-framed chassis, with the power units suspended in an inner frame, which, in turn, is cradled with the outer one.

"Fifty horse-power is developed in the six ground cyclinder which travel the aluminum-alloy pistons. And quietly carried to the drive wheels through a 3-bearing crankshaft, a 13-plate clutch, an amidship-mounted transmission and smoothly operating universal joints.

"Both new Reo closed models attracted unusual attention at the Closed Car Exhibition in New York and those who have seen these closed cars agree that never before has mechanical goodness so effectively joined forces with beauty and utility as in the new 'Reo All-Steel Paneled Coupe and Sedan."

WINNIPEG CATTLE.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 21.—(Canadian Press.) — Receipts 2,300 cattle and calves; 180 hogs, 160 sheep and lambs.

The offering on the cattle market lacked quality and trading as a result was slow and inactive.

The hog market continued steady at 9.00 for selects.

The limited offerings on the sheep and lamb market were absorbed at firm prices. Top lambs sold at 10.50 and heavy mutton sheep at 5.00 to 6.00.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.— (Canadian Press.)—Wheat averaged higher in price yesterday, helped by indications of good export and milling demand, a circumstance which more than counter-balanced the unsettling effect of much undoing of spreads between December delivery and May. The close was nervous, varying from 5-8c. off to 3-4c. net gain, with December $1.12 3-8 to $1.12 1-2 and May $1.12 5-8 to $1.12 3-4. Corn finished at 1-8 and 1-4 to 3-4c. advance; oats unchanged to 1-2c. higher, and provisions unchanged to 15c. down.

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Oct. 21.— (Canadian Press.)—A feature of the local cash grain trade was the increased demand from domestic and export buyers for Canadian western oats for future shipment from Fort William. On spot oats were scarce and prices firmly maintained.

The market for spring wheat flour was active with prices unchanged.

Demand from all sources for mill feed was good. There were no new developments in baled hay. A firm feeling prevails in the egg market. There was no change in the potato situation. Trade in buttter was quiet and a firm feeling continues in cheese.

How Will Your Widow Speak

If you should die today, would your widow be able to say, as these widows have said?

No. 1—"I feel that the whole amount will be required for expenses and educating my two little girls."
Mrs. E. A. Brown.

No. 2—"I shall be able to keep my home together, for which I am truly grateful."
Jean King.

No. 3—"The Insurance will be a reminder of his love."
Mrs. R. Wilson.

THESE are actual quotations from a few of the many letters received from beneficiaries of North American Life policies.

If your death came shortly, would your widow be able to speak like these widows do? Would she look back and bless you for the kindly care you had given her during your life, and the foresight you had taken for her future?

We want to give you further information as to how you can best "protect her future." The attached coupon will bring you this information without obligation.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Oddfellows Had a Pleasant Evening--Aid for the Fire Sufferers -- Rural Dean Appointed -- Personals.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 21.—The I.O.O.F. No. 308, held their regular meeting on Tuesday evening, October 17th., two car-loads of members from the Lindsay Lodge being present, including the Grand Warden of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, Bro. E. Anderson, County Crown Attorney, of the firm of McLaughlin Fulton, Stinson, and Anderson, the District Deputy Grand Master Bro. H. A. Fisher of the Lindsay district, and Brothers Langdon, Owen Carlyle, Bryson, Kelcher Stevens and Adams. The guest of the evening yas Bro. Delbert Adams of Lindsay, who has been a member of the Order for more than twenty-five years and who was presented with his Veteran's Jewel, the Grand Warden making the presentation and including in his brief remarks some reference to legislation passed by the Grand Lodge during its recent sessions at Owen Sound, and also to the fact that $1000 had been promptly sent to the relief of the fire sufferers in Northern Ontario. Bro. Adams should have received his jewel last spring when a number of others were presented in the Lodge here to those who had then passed the quarter century mark of I.O.O.F. membership but as he was unable at that time, the matter has been held over until now. A very enjoyable banquet was afterwards served by the "Golden Sheaf" Rebekah Lodge following which addresses were delivered by the visiting brethren, and also by Bro. W. S. Given of the local fraternity. The Grand Warden's address on "Universal Brotherhood" was considered one of the finest, in choice of subject, material and style of delivery, which those who heard it had ever been privileged to listen to

Hold a Festival

The pupils of the Continuation School are holding a "Hallowe'en Festival')' in the school building on Friday, October 27th., which is open to the public, the object being to raise additional funds towards the purchase of a piano for the school Some attractive posters which are the work of the pupils themselves, have been placed in the store window, announcing the affair; fancy articles will be on sale, lunch served. Altogether a most enjoyable evening is assured.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church have sent away six boxes of clothing, bedding, etc., for the relief of the fire sufferers in Northern Ontario, and will pack again on Tuesday of next week. The Women's Institute are also collecting for this worthy cause, donations being left at Mrs. H. J. Armstrong's, Union street, the Institute are using the proceeds from their sale of homemade baking last Saturday for relief work at Haileybury, instead of for the purchase of bulbs as was originally intended.

New Rural Dean

Rev. Canon Allen was in Lindsay on Wednesday attending a special meeting called for the purpose of appointing a rural dean for the newly-arranged Deanery of Victoria, to which the parish of Millbrook and Cavan now belongs. Rev. E. R. James, of Christ church, Omemee, is the Rural Dean chosen, and Rev. A. T. Weir of St. Paul's church, Bethany is secretary. Rev. Canon Allen preached the sermon for the occasion at St. Paul's church, Lindsay, on Wednesday morning.

The annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of Durham Deanery will be held in St. John's church, Port Hope, on Wednesday, October 25th., the first service being at 10.30 a.m., followed by the celebration of the Holy Communion. In the afternoon at 1.30 another session will be held which is open to the public, at which Miss Summerhayes of Toronto, the dioceson corresponding secretary, will deliver an address It is expected that there will be a large number of delegates in attendance.

Give an Address

Mrs. Daniels of Toronto, the diocesan secretary for the Junior W..A. work, will give an address, illustrated with lantern slides, at Trinity church at Trinity church, Cavan, (the Marsh), on Thursday, October 26th under the auspices of the local Junior W.A.

Mr. H. Elson will give "Travel Talk" on his recent trip to England Scotland and France, in the Epworth League at the Methodist church, on Monday, October 23rd, at 7.45 p.m. The meeting is under the auspices of the Tuxis Boys, Mr. A. Raper, convener.

A public meeting will be held in the Town Hall, Millbrook, on Tuesday, October 25th., Mr. M. J. O'Brien of Ottawa, being the speaker of the evening. Mr. O'Brien's well known ability in presenting the cause of Protestantism will doubt less attract a large audience to hear him. He is making his annual tour of the counties of Eastern Ontario, and it is expected that the clergy and other prominent local men will be on the platform with him.

Personal Mention

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harkness, of Bowmanville, (nee Florence Clarke), spent the week end with friends here and in Cavan.

A series of Sunday school Institutes for the Peterboro district will be held at Bethany, Bailieboro and Lakefield on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, October 24th, 25th, and 26th, beginning at 2 p.m. An excellent programme has been prepared the speakers including Rev. A. J. Langford of Trinity church, Peterboro, and the local Sunday schools are urged to send a large delegation to the Institute in their vicinity. Sunday School leaders and those training for leadership, find these annual Institutes of more practical help along certain lines than even the S. S. convention, good as the latter invariably is.

Rev. William Buchanan, who has been visiting his sister-in-law, Mrs. W. Archer, and other friends in town, for the past two weeks, left this week for North Bay en route to his home in Lethbridge, Alta., where this eldest son, Mr. W. Buchanan, is editor and proprietor of the Leth bridge Herald.

Mrs. Dudley Missell, of Toronto, who has been visiting Miss Essie Hutchison, 7th Line, Cavan, for the past month, returned home on Friday. Mrs. Bissell's solos on two Sundays during her visit, at St. John's Church, Ida, and St. Thomas' Church, Millbrook, were much enjoyed by the congregations.

Miss Mary Pitt, the popular clerk in Burnham Bros.' store, is enjoying her annual two weeks' holidays at present.

Mr. Edgar Burnham, of Peterborough was the guest of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Burnham, on Friday.

Mrs. L. H. Winslow, of Ida, has been visiting her parents, Canon and Mrs. Allen, at the rectory here for the past few weeks.

CAMPBELLFORD HEARS APPEAL OF THE NORTH

One Thousand Dollars Cash and 100 Pairs of Boots From a Town of 2,800 Population-Campbellford News.

CAMPBELLFORD, October 21. --The citizens of Campbellford responded freely to the call for help in connection with the relief fund for Northern Ontario fire sufferers, the total collections to date will easily run over one thousand dollars. The Weston Shoe Company also donated one hundred pairs of boots, assorted sizes, and the collection of clothing is well under way. Great credit is due to the canvassers representing the different wards, who carried out the work in a systematic and business like manner.

Benefit Concert.

The benefit concert given on Thursday night by the Northumberland Regiment Band, in aid of the fire sufferers of Northern Ontario, was a grand success. The following artists also assisted with the programme and their numbers were well received and heartily encored: Mrs. F. de F. Free, Misses . Atkinson, E. Meiklejohn, and Miss, Brunelle, and Messrs. E. and V. Brunelle, and Mr. George Salter. Mr. J. R. Battisby's reading was well received. The numbers by the band were exceptionally well rendered, reflecting great credit not only upon themselves but upon their capable conductor, Mr. R. T. Cowell, A.R.C.O., who gives so unstintingly of his time and talent to the various activities of the town. The proceeds of the concert puts Campbellford's contribution to the sufferers of the northern fire area well over one thousand dollars.

Missionary Banquet.

A most successful missionary banquet was held last evening in the school room of the Methodist church when about 95 delegates from throughout the district were present, Havelock, Norwood, Hastings, Warkworth and Stirling being represented. Rev. E. O. Seymour, District Missionary Secretary, acted as the chairman and to his untiring efforts a large part of the success of the evening depended. The Ladies' Aid who had charge of the supper, provided good things in abundance to which all present did ample justice. Musical numbers which were thoroughly enjoyed, were rendered by the following :Cornet solo, Mr. Huycke, Hastings, vocal solo, Rev. Rev. W. R. Archer, Stirling, and male quartette, composed of Messrs. R. T. Cowell, George Lucy, Walter Lowe and Dr. Richardson of town. Rev. Dr. W. J. Smith. B.A., of Toronto, gave a very stirring missionary address, which was based on first hand knowledge of the need of missions to-day. Excellent addresses which revealed the enthusiasm of the speakers themselves, in the great cause of Missions, were delivered by Mr. Alex. Winters, of town, Mr. A. C. Denike of Havelock, and others. It was decided by those who attended that the amount for missions should be increased, and with this end in view a house to house canvass of the members of the Methodist church should be made in each town or circuit with this end in view. Very hearty votes of thanks were tendered Dr. Smith for his excellent address. Rev. Mr. Seymour for his efforts in connection with the banquet, and to the Ladies Aid for their generous hospitality in catering so ably to the needs of the inner man. The meeting closed with the doxology.

Rev. M. L. and Mrs. Hinton and Miss Doxsee and Miss Ellis, of Hastings, attended the missionary banquet in the Methodist church last evening. Rev. W. R. Archer, B.A., and Rev. Batsone of Stirling, attended the banquet last evening.

Mrs. Joseph Johnston.

There passed away in St. Catharines on Thursday, October 19th, Mrs. Joseph Johnston. The deceased, who had not been in good health for some time, left Campbellford last spring to reside in St. Catharines. The deceased, who was a faithful member of the Standard Church, is survived by her husband, two daughters and two sons, all at home. The funeral took place today from her late residence. Much sympathy is extended to the family.

Rev. W. R. Archer, B.A., of Stirling, will occupy the pulpit of the Methodist Church on Sunday morning and evening, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. H. B. Kenny, who will conduct anniversary services in Stirling Methodist Church.

Condition Improved.

Mr. Fred W. Wood arrived home from Toronto, on Friday evening, where he had called on Mr. Thomas McMannus (who was injured at the Willard plant last week) at the Royal Cecil Apartments, on James street, and states that Mr. McMannus is making a wonderful recovery and that it is quite possible that the doctors will permit him to walk around on Monday next. This will be good news to the people of Campbellford, where "Tom" has many friends.

MME. WINIFRED LUGRIN-FAHEY RECITAL

(By Jeannette)

Mme. Winifred Lugrin-Fahey who gave such a successful concert at George street Methodist church in the spring of the year, repeated her triumph last night to a crowded edifice, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of the church. Her magnetic personality, splendid soprano voice, and powers of dramatic interpretation make her singing beautiful and satisfying, and she was most generous in response to the applause which greeted her efforts.

With a varied programme that ranged from sonorous operatic selections, sung in Italian, to the bright marching cadences of the 'Hundred Pipers", in selections that brought out all the richness and melody of her powerful, rounded voice, perhaps her most appealing number was "Annie Laurie", sung as a second encore number. here was absolute silence throughout the church as the lovely old song rang out, with a simple effectiveness and artistry of execution that held her hearers until the last sweet note. the group preceding this had several loudly-encored numbers, proving the persistent popularity of the standard favorites of many years, the "Kerry Dance" with its merry introduction and its plaintive interludes; the charm of "Mary of Argyle", and the skirl of the pipes and the broad Scotch of the martial "Hundred Pipers", followed by "Comin' thru the Rye".

Madame Fahey's programme opened with an air from one of Handel's oratorios, "Care Selve", sung with reverent, restrained feeling, followed by the gay, staccato trills of the dainty "Down Vauxhall Way". The singer's outstanding powers of dramatic interpretation in music were evidenced in the heavy arias, "Ritorna Vincitor" from "Aida", and "Suicidio", from La Gioconda, powerful, sombre numbers both, rendered with intense feeling, the first portraying in the artist's flexible voice the tears of the sorrowful maiden that merge later into a supplication for mercy and help, the last, in low, deep tones, the plea of the girl who contemplates suicide, and asks for rest and peace in death.

Little, charming, fantasti bits of difficult vocalization are evidently a favorite with this singer, whose fine powers of control and articulation combine with her melodious range to make them effective. Grieg's "With a Waterlily" was one dainty, rippling selection, beautifully sung; the Black bird's Song", was a lovely bit of vocal arpeggio work, with a rippling accompaniment, and there was a pretty descriptive number in "The Bagpipe Man". Madame's swelling, rounded upper register, with a certain covered quality in the rich lower tones, and the little rolling finale that one hears occasionally, are distinctive attributes of this sweet singer. The sweet-poignancy of "Homing", Teressa del Riego's lovely song, was another lovely encore.

Little Billy Young, in spotless suit of white, presented Mme. Fahey with a large bouquet of roses last evening, and Rev. Mr. Young announced that she would sing twice at both services at George street to-morrow.

Accompaniments which added to the charm and effectiveness of the vocal numbers were again the work of Miss Ruby Ramsay at the piano.

DATE SET FOR "THE MESSAGE OF THE BLUEBIRD"

Nov. 1st at Grand Opera House One Night Only

By popular demand a repeat performance of Mr. Asa Huycke's charming three act operatta, will be given November 1st, with an all-star local cast supported by a superb chorus of between 50 and 60 people.

Director J. H. Renwick has scoured the city in an endeavor to secure the best possible singers, and feels highly satisfied that every possible weakness of the initial performances has been eliminated.

Tickets are being sold at a tremendous rate by the principals and members of the chorus and they feel highly elated that in addition to the great number of new ticket buyers that practically all of the original subscribers are repeating their orders for tickets, among them a large number of out of town orders from Toronto, Lindsay, Belleville, etc.

The very fact that a local musician is responsible for the music, lyrics and libretto is undoubtedly very interesting to Peterboro people and the overwhelming success of the previous performances; despite the handicap of the late season, practically guarantee Mr. Renwick and his company a packed house.

This will likely be the last time that a Peterboro cast will perform this offering. A number of critics and producers have signified their intention of being here for the occasion, and if you want to be sure of good seats for this attraction be sure to secure them early. Below is the list of artists in the order they apepar:

Cleo, Dorothy Allan Park.
Aunt Jane, Ida G. Sanderson.
Prof. Wren, Arnold S. Everett.
Count De Falcon, "Kit Picard."
Marion, Mrs. A. A. Perrin.

Marie, Greta Lebarr.
Captain, Robert A. Brown.

F. SHERWOOD HAD A HILARIOUS TIME

Was Escorted Home at a Late Hour Last Evening Following a Pre-nuptial Party.

In honor of his marriage on Monday, Oct. 23, Mr. Frank Sherwood, telegraph operator at the local office of the Canadian National Telegraphs was last evening made the recipient of a reading lamp from the staffs of the telegraph and ticket offices. The presentation was made at the home of Mr. A. H. Boomes, during a gathering which met for the purpose of congratulating Mr. Sherwood. Interruptions occurred twice during the evening by the arrival of telegrams supposed to be from the head office of the company in Toronto, one of which offered Mr. Sherwood a highly paid position of great responsibility at Omemee. Upon investigation, however, the message was found to be a fake and an effort to depress the spirits of the sender will be made if he is discovered. After congratultaing Mr. Sherwood as much as was considered advisable owing to the lateness of the hour, the company finally consented to escort the prospective groom to his place of abode which was safely accomplished some time during the night.

STRONG APPEAL FOR NORTHERN SUFFERERS.

That unless a continuous supply of money and supplies was forthcoming keen hardships would be endured by the people who lost everything in the Northern Ontario fire zone, is the report brought back by Dr. C. A. Hodgetts, honorary secretary of the Northern Ontario Relief Committee who went up to investigate and make a report. Dr. Hodgetts reports that relief arrangements have been well systematized in the north. Peterborough is expected to give her share in contributing to the relief fund. By Stuart P. West.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—In to-day's two hour stock market prices went to the same peculiar mixture of advances and declines that has marked every session for the last week.

There were points of conspicuous strength and there were just as many points of conspicuous weakness to-day, but again these moves, whether up or down, were wholly preferable to special causes and had little bearing upon the financial situation in general.

German marks sold down to 2 1-4 one hundredths of a cent and French exchange was very weak, also at a new low.

The precise explanation for the persistent selling of francs has not yet appeared. It is a matter of much difference of opinion. But there seems to be no doubt that it had a good deal to do with the recent expansion in French note circulation.

Mexican petroleum's new high was accompanied by a reiteration of the now familiar report of an extra dividend on the Pan-Americans and a new offer to the minority holders of Mexican petroleum to exchange on a basis of 2 to one. But even in the oil group the movements were very conflicting. While the Mexican Oils and Cosden were going up, Pacific Oil and Maryland were breaking sharply.

Motor stocks were again under pressure for the reason that this is not the time of the year when important interests in these companies consider the setting right for active market operations.

A sudden drop in Great Northern ore certificates in view of improvement in the Steel trade was explained by the fact that for five years surplus has been drawn up to make up dividend requirements and it is therefore quite possible that the next semi-annual declaration may be lower.

MARKET ACTIVE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Strength in high-priced issues was a feature of the first hour. Stocks in position to make capital distribution were selected to lead market. New highs on move resulted in Con. Gas at 145 and Mexican soared to 234¼, highest since 1919. In connection with strength of Mexican and Pan-American issues it is rumored that following declaration of stock dividend and increase in cash dividend rate by Pan-American, there will be an offer of one share of Mexican and two and a half for Pan-American "B" stock. It is said interests identified with U.S. Steel have been among largest buyers of Steel Common; there have been reports of stock dividends but no one familiar with management believes there will be an increase in Common; however, an extra dividend on Common is likely if earnings reach a high figure.

STOCK MARKET NEWS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Secretary Mellon says no special 25 per cent. tax will be levied against 400 per cent. Standard Oil New Jersey dividend, being satisfied that the surplus from which the dividends was declared was not excessive.

The Association of Railway Executives appoints a committee to attend rail securities hearing before I. C. C. on October 26.

Harvard Committee on Economics sees no drop in prices to pre-war level luring next ten years.

U. S. Chamber of Commerce, in awarding $2,500,000 contract for its Washington headquarters, specifies "open shop" plan of employing labor must prevail.

Mercantile trade agencies report increasing trade activity during the week, although with less enthusiasm than recorded the previous week.

Expected Studebaker figures for third quarter will be in line with forecast and that the company will produce 20,000 cars in the fourth quarter.

Bradstreets reports 368 failures in U. S. this week, against 366 in the previous week and 385 last year. Dun's report 442, against 390 and 408 respectively.

Average price of 20 industrials 102.01, up 0.75; average price of 20 rails 93.28, up 0.69.

At the Assizes

This Assize was a very successful one for Mr. G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P. In the four jury cases Mr. Gordon was engaged in he obtained favorable verdicts. In the non-jury case of Stewart and Starke settlement was arrived at by which Gordon & O'Brien were paid $100 costs, and allowed recision of the agreement, and the purchase money back with interest at 6%, and a reference ordered to ascertain the amount of occupation rent which should be paid.

In the case of Curtis Brothers v. Hayes, Mr. Justice Middleton intimated that the parties should make some settlement and suggested that Mr. Gordon should consent to Curtis Bros. being allowed to participate in the proceeds of the Mechanics Lien action against the Red Arrow Tire Property, and receive a proportionate share of the proceeds of the sale of the property, with Hayes & Sons, the contractors. Judgment was reserved until the parties could discuss the matter to see what conclusion could be reached. In the case of Bigelow and the W. C. Austen estate the moneys paid by the City of Peterborough as settlement of the damages caused by the Hunter Street bridge, were garnisheed by Mr. Bigelow, who was a judgment creditor, but the property was mortgaged to Mr. Gilbert Thompson, who also claimed the moneys, and Mr. Justice Middleton intimated that he would order that the court pay the moneys to the mortgagee unless the other parties desired to have their solicitors put in arguments to show that this should not be done.

DOCTORS AMAZED AT WONDERS DONE BY NEW MEDICINE

Worth Millions to Suffering Humanity—Works Wonder on Headaches, Indigestion, Constipation, Rheumatism, Kidney Pains, etc.

Your complexion is not clear, you have pains between the shoulder blades, yo uare constipated, have no energy, no appetite, headaches, rheumatism, indigestion, etc. These are all the well-known signs that your liver is out of order and is not excreting bile into the bowels, thereby causing all these pains and aches.

Doctors will tell you that 90 per cent. of the people who come to them for treatment have trouble due directly to the Liver. It is simple when you stop to think about it. When your Liver becomes inactive and fails to pour Bile into the intestines, your system is unable to excrete the waste, then the blood begins to distribute this waste throughout the whole system, striking at the weakest organ. Until this Liver trouble is overcome, you cannot expect to have perfect health, and life to you will be a drudgery.

Doctors recommend that you take one Tanol Calomel about fifteen minutes before each meal, and you will wake up the next morning feeling tip-top. No seidlitz, salts or castor oil are necessary to eliminate the Calomel, as it is self-eliminating.

Tanol Calomel is quickly assimilated by the system, and begins to act soon after taking. It has no bad effects, as nausea, sick headaches, griping, etc., but acts very mild and smoothly, causing a natural elimination of the waste poison, making you look and feel bright, alert, vigorous, and vivacious again.

Tanol Calomel is sold by F. C. Weber, Charlotte Street.

There still is some export movement and it is anticipated that the quantity moving export this fall will exceed the figures for last year. United States markets are described as being weak and unchanged and it would seem as if a material drop in prices in the United States is needed to bring about a better feeling.

LOCAL DENTAL SOCIETY MEETS

Instructive Talk on Prevention of Diseases — Illustrations Used.

At the first meeting of the season held by the local Dental Society, Thursday evening, they were favoured by an address from Dr. Wallace Seccomb. Dr. Seccomb is the Superintendent of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario, in Toronto. A large number of dentists present, he recognized as old college chums, referring to them as the "Old Boys." His addresse took the shape of an illustrated talk on "Some Phrases of Prevention of Dental Diseases" and was more than appreciated by the large number of dentists present.

Dr. Seccomb explained how the structure of the bones and teeth were controlled by health, and health controlled by diet. That is, the quality of the teeth is controlled by the food one eats. By many experiments doctors have came to the conclusion that if the diet of an expectant mother had sufficient calcium and phosphorus in it, the bone structure of the child would be firmer and the teeth, likewise better developed.

The casual sequence in Dental caries was fully explained in Miller's Theory, which states that the mouth is an ideal incubator and has bacteria always present; thus the carbohydrate is fermented. The acid by product decalcifies the area of the tooth affected.

Dr. Seccomb went fully into the different causes of diseases, giving illustrated diagrams showing how the development of the teeth is greater when the diet is balanced.

The great cause of indigestion, the speaker said, is due to bolting of the food, over-digestion, or lack of dietic balance. This necessitates an irritation and increase of the flow of mucus.

Dr. Seccomb, in conclusion, pointed out how teeth, health and life has been saved by dentists in the last fifty years. Furthermore he stated that dentists who are studying the causes of dental diseases have a decided advantage over the general medical practitioner; and he encouraged local dentists to study the causes of such diseases as well as how to correct their effects.

ELECT NEW LEADERS

THIS IS AIM OF FRENCH PEASANTS

MME. TOUTAND AND HER HUSBAND, M. TOUTANT (ABOVE); LOUIS JACOPIN (LOWER RIGHT

ELECT NEW LEADERS

What is the feeling of the true rulers of France, the peasants? France is a pivotal nation, and upon it largely depends war or peace in Europe. That is why the Examiner sent Milton Bronner, representative of the NEA Service, to go out upon the highways and into the French peasants and to ask them, "What if war comes?" This is the last of a series of four articles telling what he found there.—THE EDITOR.

BY MILTON BRONNER

LOCHES, France, Sept. 12.—The French peasants, at least the ones I talked to in Touraine, are more interested in wheat and wine and peaches than they are in big armies, more wars and higher taxes. No, I take that back. They are tremendously interested in taxes. They hate the necessity of taxation, and want no more wars because of it.

Let's interview some French peasants just as we happen to run into them in their villages or in the fields. For instance, here is Mauvieres, a little place about two miles down the sandy road from the medieval city of Loches. On the brow of the hill stands an ancient tower which has seen tall fighting in its day. As in so many localities in Touraine, the peasants have hewn chambers in the limestone face of the hill, put a door in front and, voila—a fine big bar which never needs repair. I chatted with one of the housewives who was feeding her chickens. At the sound of our voices five farmers came from the neighboring stone cottages and joined in the talk. At first it was the usual farmer talk—too much rain for the vines and not enough for certain other crops. Then came the ever-present question of taxation and the government was roundly condemned. I broached the subject of the big French army They didn't believe this meant danger of another war. The government couldn't contemplate it.

"You mean they couldn't mobilize the country again?" I asked.

Would Refuse

"Well," replied one of them, "we peasants are scattered and it is hard to present united resistance, but the men in the towns would, no doubt, refuse. They all say they would. But no use talking about that. There is going to be on war. At the next election these fellows who believe in big armies will be smashed and then we will have a government which will cut the army and let the people work and be happy."

Four of the men left, saying they were going to Loches to enjoy a little holiday. The other farmer invited me inside his home with its beamed and rafted ceiling, its stone walls, its tile floor, its huge kitchen stove on one side of the room and its capacious bed on the other. Then there was repeated what so often happened in talks with the natives. They told me of the happy days before the war. The man sketched the miseries the war brought—he in the trenches, his wife in the fields. The only time he came home was when he was recovering from grievous wounds. Like all the peasants with whom I talked, he was loud in praise of his wife. With pride he said:

Women did Heavy Work

"You must not forget, monsieur, that here in Touraine our women never before worked in the fields as they did in so many other parts of France. When the war broke out they did superbly. They plowed, dug in the vineyards, reaped, did all the heavy work. The old men showed them how and the little children did their best to help. We are trying to forget those bad days. We want no more of it. We want to work and be left alone.

Here at Gervaise, some miles from Amboise, we run into Louis Jacopin and his son, Marcel. They have been working in the vineyards. Louis is getting old and his temper is testy. I try him out with the usual questions about big srmies.

He replies: "—They say. Who say? I don't believe. They are lunatics. France with an army of 800,600 men and the danger of another war? I don't believe it. No, no. I don't believe."

"What don't you believe?"

The old man, peevishly: "I don't believe, I say!" Marcel Jacopin was wounded at Ypres, but went back afterward and served throughout the war. Says he:

Wants No More

"I have been through one war and I don't want any more of it. All those who have seen what it really is want no more of it. Talk about la gloire—glory! I'en me fiche. Let them have their glory. You look at my sour mug and tell yourself I am a man who likes fighting. Well, you are mistaken, that's all. Me—I want to stay here at Gervaise and tend the vineyard."

And here comes a typical French couple, Marcel Toutant and his old wife—both in the seventies. They, too, have been working in the vineyards and are just on their way home to supper at eight in the evening. They had one son in the war. He was wounded, but survived. Each of their daughters, however, lost their eldest son. The worthy couple didn't know France was supposed to have such a big army. They were more interested in grapes. But they had positive opinions about

Le pere Toutant—"War? The government wouldn't think of it. Nobody wants it. Nobody would stand for it."

La Mere Toutant (with a positive shake of her head)—"I don't believe the Germans want a new war any more than we."

Eat and Get Thin

This is turning an old phase face about but modern methods of reducing fat have made the revision possible.

If you are overfat and also averse to physical exertion; if you are likewise fond of the table, and still want to reduce your excess flesh several pounds, do this: Go to your druggist (or write the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward ave., Detroit, Mich.) and give him (or send them) one dollar. For this modest amount of money the druggist will put you in the way of satisfying your ambition for a nice, trim, slim figure. He will hand you a case of Marmola Prescription Tablets (compounded in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription) one of which you must take after each meal and at bedtime until you begin to lose your fat steadily and easily. Then continue the treatment until your weight is what you desire. Marmola Prescription Tablets are not harmless but really beneficial to the general health. You don't need starvation diet or weakening exercises. Just go on eating what you like, leave exercising to the athletes, but take your little tablets faithfully, and without a doubt that flabby flesh will quickly take unto itself wings, leaving behind it your natural self, neatly clothed in firm flesh and trim muscles.

WASH THE KIDNEYS IF THEY BOTHER YOU

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

Flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much meat and rich food may form uric acid, which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids, in urine so it no longer irritates, thus often ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot in jure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink.

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit. Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Special Train For Hunters.

The open season for hunting deer and moose in Northern Ontario is rapidly approaching. South of the French and Mattawa Rivers Nov. 5th to Nov. 20th inclusive: north and west of these rivers, Oct. 25th to Nov. 30th inclusive. North of the Transcontinental Railway line the season is from Sept. 15th to Nov. 15th inclusive.

The Canadian National Railways traverse the finest hunting territory in this country. This fact with their special and regular train service makes "The National Way", the premier line for the hunter. The hunting grounds are so vast there is game for everyone.

The selection of grounds is a most important matter and one which requires careful study. The territory reached by the Canadian National lines north of Parry Sound is already a favorite one, but the new country east and west of Capreol is as yet comparatively little known to the hunter and should, therefore, be highly attractive to the follower of the deer and moose.

The Canadian National Railways are providing special train service, which, with regular trains, will meet all demands. Special trains will be operated as follows: Leave Toronto Union Station 11.15 p.m. Oct. 31st for Capreol and intermediate points, and 11.15 p.m. Nov. 2nd, 3rd and 4th for Key Jct. and intermediate points. The usual ample accommodation of sleeping cars, baggage cars and coaches will be provided.

The Annual Hunters' Leaflet issued by the Canadian National Railways is now ready for distribution, and may be obtained on application to any agent of the Company, or write General Passenger Department, Room 607, Royal Bank Bldg., Toronto. 5d-18-21-25-28-30

How Gaby Deslys and I Shocked Wild Paris

Georges Clemenceau Gatineau, Grandson of the Tiger, Describes the Bal des Deshabilles.

Not long ago, the acknowledged leader of the gayest group in Paris, Georges Clemenceau Gatineau, tossed a million francs to the winds in less than a year, while the haute monde stood aghast.

Then, disowned by his famous grandfather for his notorious escapades, ruined by wild extravagance, exiled from France by memories of a past that ever haunted him, the youth came to America.

Here his famous name stood him in no great stead.

"Get a shovel and go to work. That's the rule here," they told him.

And so he did. The grandson of the Tiger of France—the handsome debonair dandy of the boulevards went to work.

The arms that had embraced in the abandoned dances of Montmartre the lissome forms of Gaby Deslys and Delysia heaved coal on a Boston Dock.

The Spender, he who tossed his last thousand francs away for one final revel, now in grimy overalls, but with robust appetite, learned to enjoy his "ham an'" on a Boston lunch counter. And his wages $4 a day!

M. Gatineau has consented to write a series of articles. He will deal with the gay life of Paris and the Riviera. He will tell anecdotes of his famous grandfather, of President Wilson's visit to France, of King Edward, Rudyard Kipling, Roosevelt, as The Tiger saw them.

The series gives intimate glimpses of Clemenceau that never before have been revealed—of the premier of politics, of the father at home, of the Teacher Tiger who found his bride in a little New England town.

It is a remarkable personal tale of reckless pursuit of happiness in wicked Paris, of the glamor of the night life in the City of Romance—and of the Tiger's fury.

Here is the first of the series.

By Georges Clemenceau Gatineau
(Grandson of the ex-Premier of France)

ARTICLE I.

The Tiger sat grim and silent, the hint of a sardonic smile, at the corners of his mouth.

The boy had laughed, played, squandered recklessly, with no thought of the morrow.

It was good to live. It was good to by gay!

Long ago, the Tiger had given warning but the Boy had not been ready for serious advice. Wine, women and song. Lavish entertainment. In a few months a fortune had run through his fingers.

Then—the crash.

"I need your help, sir," he said.

But the Tiger was implacable. No help for the spendthrift, for the man who could not carve out his own future! No money for extravagance and jewels!

"You are no longer a grandson of mine," he said.

The Boy smiled courteously and left. After all, he cared nothing for money; it was only the lack of money that bothered him!

He packed his bags and surveyed his financial wreck. Five thousand francs were left. Five thousand francs—hardly enough for a decent blow-out! A blow-out—that was an idea! He'd finish as he had started!

And in a flare, the Boy's spendthrift career ended.

Paris could no longer be his home, for merely to watch is a bitter pill to the man who has danced with the throng. At last, destitute, he fled, paid for his passage across the sea with labor, and came to the land where his Tiger grandfather had found Romance and a wife—America.

I was the Boy. And the world knows "The Tiger"—Georges Clemenceau, ex-premier of France, the man who, in the opinion of millions, did more than any other statesman to win the war for the Allies, the outstanding Frenchman of the twentieth century.

He is a great man, a peerless leader. Since he has cast me aside, I might wish to belittle him. But that is impossible. He is great, feared by his enemies—and the world knows it. Disparaging, I should be like a mosquito, trying to kill the tiger with its sting.

But, oh! he is so hard, so unsympathetic! Only once in all the years I knew him as he ever truly shown that he has a heart like other men—only once has he been really moved. I will describe that scene later, in its proper place.

However, it must not be thought that he was unkind, or cruel. It was simply that he must never be defied, his will thwarted. Obedience to his desires won him to you completely, though he might disguise his feelings: defiance meant batile.

And yet, I think that it was always so—

* * *

It is not such an adventure as one might suppose, my coming to America. I have travelled far before. Once, indeed, on a business venture, I spent three months on the west coast of Africa, dealing in cotton goods. But I was soon back in France and it was not long after that on a trip to Marseilles I met Marguerite Duval, a famour French actress. She was playing there.

"I'm going to Gaby's palace," she told me. "Come along! You should meet her."

I really wasn't interested then in Gaby Deslys, but, for politeness sake, I went.

Her palace, looking out upon the Mediterranean, was a wonderful place—all white marble, surrounded by beautiful gardens. It impressed me greatly, but I cannot say that Gaby did.

It was a tea party. Gaby was dressed stunningly in white and rose and wore three strings of pearls.

She appeared to be most naive—that is to say, she was a woman of almost unequalled experience in the world who yet managed to impress one as an innocent child.

Gaby very nicely invited me to visit her in Paris, and a week later, there on business, I met her in the promenoir of the Casino de Paris. She was escorted by Harry Pilcer, her partner. The popular Nina Miral was playing there with Darville.

"Won't you sit in my box?" Gaby invited.

I accepted.

Later I returned to Bordeaux with Harry Pilcer and Gaby's mother, Mme. Gaire, who was sailing for New York. Pilcer became sick. I did little or nothing for him—all I could, of course—but when Gaby rushed down to see him she almost overpowered me with her gratitude. We struck up a friendship which was to last for some months.

With the exception of visits, at intervals to Paris, I lived for the next four or five months as one of guests in Gaby's palace in Marseilles. We had many good times—Gaby and I and Pilcer and Scaramanga, the richest man in Marseilles.

We decided to go to Monte Carlo, about 150 miles away. For our expenses while there we pooled, between us, 40,000 francs. Anyone was at liberty to gamble with any of it—the profits to be divided—also the losses. I was treasurer of the fund.

When Gaby threw Me Into her Bathtub!

One morning there, after I had dressed, I made my way to Gaby's room. To understand what followed you must know that we had agreed to play tricks upon each other. And we had fun galore—laughing at the other fellow's plight.

I knocked at her door.

"Come in," she called.

I walked in. She was in the bathroom, brushing her nails, preparatory to leaving the room. I bade her goodmorning

Suddenly, as I stood in front of her she raised her arms and gave me a quick, strong push. The bathtub, full of water, was scarcely an inch behind me. I went against it, doubled up, and flopped down into the tub!

My, I was a sight! My cut-away drenched—my inane, perplexed grin, matching the cheery flower in my button hole so poorly!

We returned to Marseilles, where Gaby was to open her new show, "Laissez-les-tomber," which means, "Let 'em Fall."

The show began in the continental style. At first we sat together in her box. Gaby was badly frightened. She always is, at the first performance. The time came when she must step to the stage.

She grabbed my wrist, dug her nails into it so that the marks didn't leave me for months, and stepped directly from the box to the stage.

Of course, she was a tremendous success.

The hundredth performance of the show was the wildest thing I ever saw anywhere. The most prominent people in Marseilles, standing on their seats, engaged in a hilarious battle of flowers! Laughs, screams—it was mad.

"Gaby!" they yelled, and over and over again they cried her name.

Pilcer and Scaramanga and I had pooled 20,000 francs and bought a huge cage covered with white roses and filled with six peacocks and a host of smaller birds of all descriptions. When the curtain rose our gift was lowered from the top of the stage in full view.

Gaby was delighted, but when her maid saw the peacocks she began to sob.

"Bad luck! Bad luck!" she whimpered.

For a moment Gaby was sobered. Then because all the world was gay that night, she laughed and scoffed at the dangers of the future. The shadows had been in her eyes—they vanished. It was no time for weeping.

Two days after the hundredth performance we all went to Paris. There I rented an apartment opposite Gaby's house.

100,000 Francs for a Costume for the Bal des Deshabilles

The day of the Bal des Deshabilles arrived. Gaby was to be hostess. I was to be host—and bankroll.

In the afternoon I received a message from Mme. Jacquemaire, my aunt, asking me to call upon her. When I went to her, she said:

"Please do not give this ball, Georges. You know your grandfather is very angry. You must not irritate him."

I laughed.

"Oh," I said, "it will be all right. He should understand. He was young himself once upon a time, and he liked a frolic as well as any man."

So we had our ball, and what a ball it was. Everybody masked, except, of course, Gaby and myself, who were receiving. But no one got in who was not entitled to come.

At the door I had an attendant, and all guests were required to sign their names. If this precaution had not been taken, it would, of course, have been possible for any number of crooks to have entered.

The Bal des Deshabilles cost me many, many thousands of francs—but I still feel that it was worth every sou!

Costumes? Oh, pyjamas, dressing-gowns, bathrobes, nightgowns—what not.

Gaby herself wore a white negligee of old chantille lace, worth, if I remember rightly, 20,000 francs. On her feet were silk slippers. Her ankles, naturally, were bare.

She wore no jewels, for she was afraid of a hold-up. On her head was what we call a bonnet d'ane—a hat with peaks like donkey's ears.

Her lace gown, let me say, was worn only once again. It was her shroud.

I wore a Chinese costume, colored in yellow, white and pink and gold. It had cost exactly 100,000 francs.

"Look at that woman!" cried Gaby suddenly.

I glanced up. In came a creature in a Persian costume—wide trousers of some soft stuffs, a wonderful vest and turned up shoes. She—or he—wore a turban with a huge diamond set in the centre, over the forehead. Caught to the turban and swinging under the chin from ear to ear was a string of big black pearls. A fortune in jewels. One gasped.

Across the eyes was a mask a la longi—a strip of colth with eyeholes—the eyes themselves blacked so as to be unrecognizable.

On the hands—and when I saw them I knew who the owner was—were great, priceless emeralds. It was Youssoupoff, the prince who had killed Rasputin to save Holy Russia.

None else could it be, for in all France there were no emeralds like these, and Youssoupoff was known to possess perhaps the finest collection in the world.

He encountered a lady dressed in a deshabille of the Louis XV. period, tremendously exaggerated. Her sleeves were puffed enormously. Her corset—you know the very pointed type?—extended far down below the waist. At sight of her the ballroom roared approval

No one knew who she was. Youssoupoff appointed himself her companion for the evening.

"You may be stuck on an ugly one," I told him in warning.

"Not a bit of it," he smiled. "She's Emilienne D'Alencon!"

"How do you know?"

"Her earrings."

I looked at them. Youssoupoff was right. It was certainly Emilienne. One of the most popular beauties in all Paris, she was the only woman who wore a black pearl in one ear and a white pearl in the other!

One young lady arrived wearing only a nightie of such fine silk that it might have been passed through a ring. Altogether, it was a trifling affair, and reminds one of Gunda Dhin's famous costume. It reached scarcely to her knees. Who was she? A very famous girl, but I dare not give her name. There is now a certain gentleman who would have my life's blood if I gave his sweetheart such publicity!

A few others there were wearing just as little. In fact, that night the Latin Quarter (if Paris newspapers told the truth), received the shock of its existence when two men and two women paraded through its streets garbed in nothing but pjamas and crepe-de-chine nighties.

At midnight it began, in the Salle Hoche, near the Parc Monceau at midnight on July 11, 1919. And until 8:30 in the morning the two great rooms, the ballroom and the buffet, rang with laughter!

Two gentlemen in impeccable evening clothes presented themselves to me.

"You cannot come in," I told them.

"I am afraid," said one, obviously the leader, "that you do not know me. I am His Royal Highness, the Infant Don Luis of Spain, cousin of His Majesty Alfonso XIII., King of Spain! And I am here at the insitation of Mlle. Gaby Deslys."

"So be it," said I. "Doesn't make a bit of difference, though. The King, himself, couldn't come in. You'll have to skip home and get into some decent clothes."

He glared, but his blood asserted itself. He bowed, and turned on his heel, followed by his aide-de-camp; he left, the Salle Hoche. But he was back in an hour or two—togged out to kill!

At the Bal des Deshabilles comedy was made tragedy; tragedy, comedy. Men laughed at the women most dear to them, snickered at their costumes; men joked and flirted with women they hated. And when the time to unmask came—what a clamor!

Throughout the night, I remember, there was one man who never left the side of the women he had chosen. Once or twice, perhaps, he permitted her to dance with another. But always with poor grace, and because his infatuation was so ovious to all, the others had pity on him, and did not insist.

How happy those two were! Gayly they drank together, laughed, and they danced as only those who love can dance in each other's arms!

At 3 o'clock, in the buffet, the lights went out for a full minute. Unmasking time. Then on flashed the lights again.

He cried aloud: "Mon Dieu! Fate!"

She bowed her head, blushing in confusion.

She had been his sweetheart. There had been a quarrel, and they had separated, furiously angry with each other. He had found a woman to take her place; she, a lover. To-night he had thought that he was with his new soulmate; she, too. And now, with the sudden surprise of it all, her beauty, and the appeal of the moment—

"I love you," he whispered.

Softly she replied: "I have always loved you, dear. I could never love another."

That was tragedy which became comedy. But when comedy became tragedy—ah, what a difference! And there were several instances.

When the unmasking time came, there were men who faced, in the women they had made love to for three hours, the women they hated above all others on earth. Their eyes blazed at each other. They spoke cuttingly.

But they were caught, and they had to carry the situation off as best they could.

It was droll.

The Dancers adjourn to the Streets at 8:30 a.m.

Two orchestras there were, and for eight hours the music was incessant. At the end of the ballroom was a stage, and throughout the night actors and actresses volunteered to do bits to rouse the gay throng to further madness.

When the masks were off, the performers were in their glory. They jested at the women's costumes, particularly those that were most sparse, and poked fun at their companions.

"Ah, my dear, it could not have been expensive—that gown! But you must not mind; it is obvious that you are beautiful."

Or: "Hard luck, Grazia, that you must select such a lemon—though Claudine believes that he is the rosiest of peaches. It is really too bad that Maurice has poor eyes and could not find you. Next time, perhaps, you will play safe and arrange a code of signals with your sweetheart!"

At 8:30 the party broke up and commandeered automobiles for a drive through the Bois and the streets of Paris. The procession could scarcely be expected to be sedately quiet.

Honest men and women started aghast on their way to work as we blared our way through the well filled streets.

They had no right to kick. The most famous beauties of the day in sparse costumes that even the naughtiest stage would have barred then! ("Then," because Paris is said to be more liberal now, and that it is not possible for an actress to wear too little) Wine cheered, many girls rose from their escorts' arms to flaunt their charms at passers-by. For nothing at all they saw as good a show as they could ever have seen at the Follies Bergere or L'Ompia!

A CHOIR THAT IS TUNEFUL-VOICED.

The Female Voice Choir, an aggregation of tuneful-voiced ladies who are all members of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the G.W.V.A., and who gave a series of enjoyable concerts in the city last season, are getting ready just now for another winter of melody. They are practising programmes which will include this year both popular and standard melodies; the old and new favorites, with Scotch, Irish, English and negro songs in dialect, and done in costume. The ladies donate the proceeds of their music towards the relief work carried on by the auxiliary to the G.W.V.A., a very worthy cause that is deserving of public support.

FINE PROGRAMME FOR COMING SEASON.

The local branch of the Y.W.C.A. have a fine programme prepared for the coming season, with classes that embrace all forms of physical education, of gymnasium work and swimming. Some of the special features arranged are a Christmas gift club, which starts in November, and lasts until Christmas, meeting every Wednesday evening. Articles of all kinds suitable for Christmas gifts will be on display and help in making them given. There will also be an exchange of ideas among the members.

The basketry class starts in October and lasts until Christmas; there is a French class for beginners; a home nursing class, with Miss A. W. Pike, the new public health nurse, in charge; a dressmaking and plain sewing class; a book lovers' hour, to commence after Christmas, and a glee club.

Bible study classes are being formed at once, and sing-songs, which were a popular Sunday afternoon attraction last year, will commence on Nov. 19.

The World's Week of Prayer will be held from Nov. 12 to 18, every member of the Y.W.C.A. during the week being asked to give five cents towards the Y.W.C.A. work of the world.

THE BLIND CAN USE TYPEWRITER.

Though blind people who have learned Braille can keep records and accounts, which they are able to read themselves and can write to others who are blind or who have studied Braille, there remains the question of correspondence with those who can see and who could make nothing of a letter in those embossed dots that form the alphabet of the blind.

People whose sight was lost to them in infancy can never learn to write with a pen in a really practical manner, and those who could write when they became blind are seldom able to do so for long in a way that is legible.

The way out of this difficulty is for the blind to use a typewriter.

They can use an ordinary modern machine provided with a embossed scale instead of the usual engraved scale—a device which makes it possible for the operator to tell by touch instead of by sight the position of the carriage.

The pupil is first told the general points of the machine and familiarizes himself with them by touch. The fingers are guided out to the keys, of which the relative positions are pointed out, and after that it is merely a question of memory and practice.

Hallowe'en, Its Origin and Games Decorations and Refreshments Too

Halowe'en is the name given to the night of October 31, as the eve or vigil of All Saints' or All Hallows Day (November 1). It is a curious recrudescence of classic mythology, Druidic beliefs, and Christian superstitions. It has been claimed that Hallowe'en was kept in the Greek Church as early as the fourth century of our era, though it did not become common in the West until the beginning of the seventh century.

Most of the Hallowe'en superstitions have evidently been handed down from one generation to another. Although changes have been made, the manner of celebrating is still very much like those of the early centuries. It was believed that on this night of the year supernatural influences most prevailed. The spirits of the dead were supposed to be wandering abroad, together with witches, devils, and mischief-making elves, and in some cases the spirits of living persons were believed to have the temporary power of leaving their bodies and joining the host of spirits that abounded on this night.

While most of the Hallowe'en observances are supposed to be of Druidic origin, there is a great deal of controversy concerning them among various authors. Various text books give lengthy, detailed accounts of the many varied customs of celebrating this day. Burns' famous poem "Hallowe'en" gives a panoramic insight into the customs of Old Scotia on this holiday of mirth and mystery. This poem has probably had a great deal of influence in preserving and spreading the old time observances among English-speaking folk. All of them are based on immemorial custom. But what was once a ceremony of belief has now become a thing of sport, so that now its observances are all a jest which young people play upon themselves and others, not in the least believing in the consequences.

Decorations.

The most important feature of Hallowe'en decorations is to have the house, or the rooms in which the party is held, as weird an unconventional as possible. Black red and yellow crepe paper is the most effective trimming. The house should be lighted very dimly by grinning Jack-o'-Lanterns, and witch pots. If autumn leaves are available the doors and windows may be effectually trimmed by draping the colored leaves over them. They make a decoration that adds to the weirdness of the evening by rustling when people come in contact with them. Corn stalks are also very effective, but usually harder to get, unless one lives in the country. If any pictures are in the rooms in which the party is to be held, they should be covered with white paper in which witches and black cats have been drawn with black crayons. This is effective if an attemtp is made to draw the witch and cat separately. The cat should be made with its black in a decided hump, it's tail wide and it's hair standing on end. In other words, it should be made to look as angry as possible. The witch has her broom, of course. If a small magic lantern is available, insert a picture of a skeleton and direct the rays of the lantern on a large sheet hung in one corner of the room. The lantern can be covered with leaves or hidden in a box covered with crepe paper so as to hide the source of the picture. Have a huge Jack-o'-Lantern hanging just above the heads of the people in the center of the room. This can be made more weird by putting a small amount of incense in the lantern so that it will both glare and smoke. Huge black paper ears may be wired to the sides, with daubs of red paint smeared on them. A black cat can be made out of black crepe paper which has been pasted on card-board, having small green electric light bulbs for eyes. If no electricity is available, cut out spaces for the eye and carefully place a candle behind it. A glass baking dish is good for this purpose as putting the candle in the dish prevents danger of fire and the light is relected through the glass.

If the house is lighted with kerosene lamps, shades of yellow crepe with black cats and witch heads should cover the lamps. These are easily made by using a light wire, such as hat wire, etc. Electric lights and gas lights are dimmed by covering completey with yellow paper and black; having the figures of black paper pasted on. The windows may be converted into transparencies by covering them with yellow tisue and pasting on cut-out Jack-o'-Lanterns and pursuing witches. If the rooms are dimly lighted and lanterns are hung outside of the windows, the effect in the room will be indescribably weird. Doors may be fixed in the same manner, but should be lit from the inside. Each guest should be requested to come in rostume, which of course adds to the fun.

THE AUTUMN OF THE BIBLE

One wiser than us has said there is something in the fall of the year which is kin to the blood of all of us. It is zest and a clean spirit that are world old and eternally new. Spring may be the renewal of life; autumn is its refreshing.

Turning to the Old Testament and read there all the manifestations of autumn and early winter—of the east wind, and breath of the Lord coming up from the wilderness, the clouds, the storm and the rain. The comparisons of the Bible are all with simple things, but none are more effective, none more beautiful, than those which link the humility of man or the glory of God with the powers of nature.

In the imagery of autumn there is something sombre. Calamity cometh on a whirlwind, we read "I have blotted out as a thick cloud, thy trangressions and as a cloud, thy sins." The rain of fall is not as early rain of spring which covereth the valley of weeping with blessings, but the latter rain which watereth the earth. The dancing of brown leaves in fantastic procession and the whirling dust before the storm bring to nostrils sick with the city's odors, a breath of that sharp, tingling air which makes life glorious and love a lovely thing.

The town in autumn takes on new features and drapes herself in fresh garments. Over her the setting sun throws strange colors and the pavilions of the clouds dark in grandeur. The snap, the keenness of vitality, all above all.

"The spring, like youth, fresh blossoms doth produce,
But autumn makes them ripe, and fit for use."

All Saint's Eve or Hallowe'en will soon be here. All the ghosts, goblins and witches of the past will come forth and mingle with the people of the earth The mysterious influences of these fictitious creaturs cause the superstitious and very young to quake with a fear both pleaurable and excitable. Halowe'en, as a rule is given over to many entertainments, but care should be taken to keep the youngsters under control, as on this night they often do irreparable damage. Children should have a good time but they should be taught not to wantonly destroy the property of others

Charity thinketh no evil. With an unwilling ear and sad heart it hears bad news. It glories in no man's downfall— in no one's misfortune. It rather holds down its head and partakes of his shame It rejoices in the belief that all men are sincere. Where it cannot succor want it will condole.

Wives don't sit up waiting for your husband Go to bed and get all the sleep you can. In the morning when you are looking and feeling your best, if you have anything to say, say it; nine chances out of ten you will win.

If religion has done nothing for your temper it has done nothing for your soul.

Wealth consists not in a store of riches, but in contentment and serenity.

Good appearances may be pleasant but solid realities, are safer and more comfortable.

A safe way to judge a man is to ascertain just what friends he does not make.

It is noble to live for others, but it is a crime to neglect ourselves.

Do not emphasize your virtues by enlarging upon the faults of others. A mother's tears are the same in all languages.

THE PUMPKIN.

O fruit loved by boyhood! tho old days recalling;
When wood-grapes were purpling and brown nuts were falling!
When wild ugly faces were carved in its skin,
Glaring out through the dark with a candle within!
When we laughed round the cornheaped, with hearts all in tune.
Our chair a broad pumpkin, our lantern the moon,
Telling tales of the fairy who traveled like steam
In a pumpkin-shell coach, with two rats for her team!
Then thanks for thy present!—none sweeter or better
E'er smoked from an oven or circled a platter!
Fairer hands never wrought at a pastry more fine.
Brighter eyes never watched o'er its baking, than thine!
And the prayer, which my mouth is too full to express,
Swells my heart that thy shadow may never be less,
That the days of thy lot may be lengthened below,
And the fame of thy worth like a pumpkin-vine grow,
And thy life be as sweet, and its last sunset sky
Golden tinted and fair as thy own pumpkin pie!
—John Greenleaf Whittier

FAITHFULNESS.

Whatever happens, never forsake a friend. When enemies gather, when sickness fall on the heart, when the world is dark and cheerless, is the time to try true friendship. They who turn from the scenes of distress betray their hypocrisy and prove that interest only moves them. If you have a friend who loves you, who has studied your interest and happiness, be sure to sustain him and adversity. Let him feel that his love was not thrown away. Real fidelity may be rare but it exists—in the heart. They only deny its worth and power who never loved a friend or labored to make a friend happy.

The woman that saves up her household worries and her bodily aches and pains to entertain her husband with on his return home from a hard day's work at the office drives a nail in the coffin of conjugal happiness.

Memories of what we learn thru bitterness and sorrow may not always be held in regret.

The thief who stels your peace of mind is meaner than the one who steals your property.

Usually if we postpone our worries for a day or two it will fail to keep its appointment.

The circle of human duties is only complete by the union of those of man and woman.

Many a man pretends to care for a woman when all he really cares for is himself.

Think a little of your defects and you will think of the defects of others.

Those who are much together grow singularly alike as time goes on.

No individual in the world can do a mother's work for her.

Mirth may prove a better digestive pill than a doctor's pill.

There is good in all to the man that is altogether good.

There Is a Mistaken Notion---

Commencing Sunday, Oct. 22, our Milk Delivery will start on Winter Time, two hours later than at present.

that milk is merely a "baby food." Milk as a health food is indispensable at all ages. Milk gives all of us protein for building muscle and body tissues. It gives the lime needed for our bones and teeth and for other body uses. Milk also contains other substances necessary for a normal growth and development, now commonly known as "vitamines." Milk is Nature's first food. Nothing can take its place. Use liberal supplies in your household and let the children have plenty of milk and milk products.

Need a Tonic?--Try Milk

The next time you observe a herd of sleek cows grazing in their green pastures, remember that in the grasses, weeds and twigs which they crop so enjoyably from the ground is the source of the widely heralded vitamines which help to make MILK what it is. The meadows and pastures abound with incalculable atoms—vitamines—which only the cow can transform into a food fit for us humans.

Good milk properly pasteurized is the ideal—that is why our milk is noted for its healthfulness and purity.

Paris Delving Into Past For Evening Gowns

The night will be glad for its thousand eyes this winter when the picturesque evening gowns Paris is sending over are revealed in all their glory.

The loveliest styles of former days have all been revived and one need consider only becomingness when selecting.

Instead of the all-black costume, so favored last year, we are in for a season of gay colors and daring combinations. Straight lines have given way to draperies and graceful points.

One of the most beautiful of evening wraps is shown above. It is of heavy silver brocade heavily patterned with heads.

From Czechoslovakia comes the unique bodice and fan, formed from a silken scarf. This is a style Paris is favoring at the present time, and it promises to become one of the most popular fads of the season.

WOMEN'S PLACE IS IN THE STADIUM.

By H. I. PHILLIPS.

If that great institution, the Home, is to be preserved in good condition Woman has got to be taken out of athletics. There is too much running and jumping going on and too little housekeeping. Nearly every woman you see these days is either going to or coming from an athletic contest of one sort or another. The hand that rocked the cradle now socks the tennis ball. The midiron has replaced the flatiron as a domestic utility.

Now and then you see a woman coming down the street with something pressed to her bosom. "Ah!" you whisper. "At last a good, old-fashioned mother." But as she comes closer you see you are wrong; it isn't an infant; it's a pewter cup the lady has won in an athletic event.

* * *

Woman's place, as the old saying goes, is in the stadium.

* * *

She comes home only long enough to see if any new entry blanks have arrived in the mail. Home, sweet gymnasium!

* * *

All over the world women are plunging into an orgy of athletics. In Europe they are taking up boxing, wrestling, hurdling, and even pole vaulting. The women of France and England are going in extensively for running events. There are women's football teams in many countries. In America tennis, golf and swimming are the sports that have the ladies by the ears, but rowing, boxing, running and baseball have many women recruits.

* * *

The American woman used to be pictured sitting before the fireplace, surrounded by her family. Today you have to picture her in knickerbockers, flat heels, and sleeveless shirt taking a 'cross-country run while husband and the kiddies gaze after her through tear-stained eyes, wishing she'd limit her road work to two miles and get home in time to turn over the eggs.

* * *

The modern woman is not happy unless she is qualifying for finals. Her idea of a home is a place with "four gymnasiums and bath" entirely surrounded by running tracks, golf courses, and tennis courts.

* * *

She believes in furnishing the home entirely with pewter cup trophies. Many a husband has to shave out of the cup won in the women's doubles, bathe in the trophy won in the married ladies' foursome, drink his coffee out of the cup she won in the swimming race, and shake his cocktails in the contraption she captured in the ladies' running meet.

* * *

In the good old days a man chose a woman to be a true wife and a good mother. Today he takes her as a true putter and a fairly good singles player.

* * *

They are about to change the marriage service so he will be required to promise to love, honor, and keep score.

* * *

A fine time the baby has! Once mother read it fairy stories, crooned sweet lullabies, and rocked it to sleep in a cradle. Today she reads it her score in the doubles match, and rocks it to sleep with a mashie.

* * *

"Take my daughter!" says the Fond Parent of today, giving her in marriage. "She's a good girl and a wonderful athlete. I know she will make you a devoted tennis player and a faithful golfer!"

MONOGRAMS.

Monograms are a feature on sport blouses and dresse. They started small and comparatively inconspicuous but now they are attaining quite large proportions and are frequently made the whole decoration.

Fat Women's Day Here

By MARGARET ROHE.

NEW YORK—Oh lady of the triple chin and 48-inch waist, no more you'll need to roll and pant to suit the public taste. No more you'll need to diet and eschew all fat'ning fare. Of luscious pies and chocolate cake no more you need beware.

For Mrs. Sears, Elizabeth, the New York president of Women's League, professional and business, has just sent the dictum forth that stout and fat and portly women are much better than the skinny and the slender ones, by far, when it comes right down to business and a question of success. The biggest girl's the biggest hit in business, so says "Bess."

The reason is, although more pounds she has, also more poise, persuasive personality and charm that never cloys are hers and what is best of all a cheerful disposition is always owned by "Fatty" and it seems her constant mission to lighten little business cares and brighten business fret, then too her very presence, so substantial, makes folks get the very good impression that her firm's substantial too. She's good broad understanding (you can tell that by her shoe).

They Listen to Her.

The moment that she enters any office she'll command by reason of impressive bulk on each and every hand immediate attention. She'll impress by very size and inspire the greatest confidence in e'en the wary guys.

Whereas the little slender wisps of femininity are not a big impressive in a business way, you see. Before they put their sales across, their personality they've got to put across and overcome, you'll all agree, their slight slim insignificance that's very apt to be a handicap when overshadowed by some portly she.

There's just one thing, says Mrs. Sears, against the woman plump and that's the way she's had to dress. It made her look a chump. All clothes for small and willowy type females were designed with nary thought for billowy and bulky belles in mind.

And the Result—

So consequently plump 'uns looked grotesque in styles misfit that simply emphasized their bulk and didn't help a bit to minimize their lumps with lines becoming and de riguer that used discretion to restrain a little too much figure.

But now that blight for females fat's removed. Their future's bright. The latest fashion shows all show some fashions that are right for perfect forty-eights, designed to make the stoutest swagger e'en though neath many surplus pounds of flesh she's doomed to stagger.

Hip, hip, hurray, let all hips sway, let joy be unconfined and also waists and also chins, for in these styles designed to set her bulky beauty off, the fat girl, not the lean, by Mrs. Sears is now proclaimed the perfect business queen.

MANY BUSY HANDS AND KIND HEARTS.

Although the city of Peterboro, as a civic body, may not yet have done much towards suscribing money towards the relief of the fire victims, in Northern Ontario, there are many busy hands and kind hearts just now engaged in making and gathering together and sending away made-up goods for their assistance. Every church in the city, numerous organizations and many private individuals are helping. Even the school children in many city schools are doing their bit.

Since the meeting held by the Red Cross Society, attended by over a hundred people, women have been busy making up the garments for which all the material is supplied by the Red Cross organization, who also supply the patterns for the garments, time and labor being the contributions of dozens of willing workers.

Although the Red Cross here is specializing on babies' outfits, women's and children's underwear and knitted garments, there are plenty of other articles going out daily. A number of sicieties are working on towelling alone, an urgent appeal having been received for towels; and different church societies are making quilts and comforters. Flanellette to make children's clothing has also been supplied to several busy workers.

The large shipments going out from the Fire Hall comprise new and second-hand clothing, with woolen socks and heavy coats, also sundry needed articles that include beds ,mattresses, baby carriages, cradles and cots .

A full list of supplies forwarded to the fire zone, with names of individuals and societies contributing and helping, will be published next week.

NUT BREAD.

For the children's lunch box, or for a luncheon bread at home, there is nothing better to serve once or twice a week than a good nut bread. The following is a good recipe for nut bread which does not crumble and keeps moist as long as there is any left.

With marmalade between the slices it is a satisfying sandwich:

2 cups entire wheat flour
1 cup bread flour
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ cup brown sugar
½ cup molasses
1½ cups milk and water
1 cup walnut meats cut in thin slices

Measure flour after sifting once, then sift again with remaining dry ingredients. Mix molasses, milk and water and combine with flour.

Thoroughly mix, beat well, add nuts and turn into a well greased bread pan. Let stand for one hour—then bake two hours in a moderate oven.

IF YOU ARE WELL BRED.

You may omit making a call of condolence on any friend who is in trouble, but you make that call a brief one.

If you feel you cannot say anything comforting or fear you cannot be composed, it is better to send a note.

Some persons in affliction prefer to be alone, in which case they may with propriety deny themselves to all callers.

A THOUGHT

And that which fell among thorns, are they, which, when they have heard, go forth, and are choked with cares, and riches and pleasures of this life, and bring no fruit to perfection.—Luke 8:14.

The glory of life is to love, not to be loved; to give, not to get; to serve, not to be served."—Hugh Black.

THE PROBLEM OF BAKING AT HOME

The problem of home-baking is one that has been thoroughly taken up and considered by the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers of California. In the interests of their product they have devoted a great deal of time to research work in an effort to determine whether the average housewife prefers to bake her own bread, pie, cake, cookies and other such pastries, or whether the inclination seems to be to purchase them ready-baked from a baker or grocer.

Interesting results were obtained from this investigation, it is said, and the outcome, as far as the Raisin Growers are concerned, may mean a step forward in the increase in sales of baked products through the merchant.

Warm weather, of course, discourages home-baking. Merchants report a greater value of business during the summer months than during the cooler seasons. With this as a basis, the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers determined to inaugurate an educational campaign among the bakers and grocers in an effort to impress them with the great possibilities in baking the kind of breads and pies that the housewife takes pride in baking herself.

Bakers particularly seem to have appreciated this argument and realized on it. Hundreds of them every day are falling in line and today the average baker sells the same full-fruited loaves of raisin bread that one customarily expects to have baked in his own home. The sace has become true of raisin pies. Bakers take pride in making delicious pies, cakes and cookies from fresh California raisins, and many report increased sales and scores of favorable comments from the housewife.

The Sun-Maid Raisin Growers have entered into an unusually large advertising campaign, national in its scope, to acquaint the public with this new trend in baking. Because they have found that the public will buy ready-baked goods, they are supporting the trade in this respect and featuring it in their advertising. What effect it may have on other lines of merchandise is yet to be seen, but the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers are confident that their experiment has proved fruitful and that henceforth a large percentage of housewives will go to their bakers or grocers for raisin bread, pie and other raisin pastries.

WANT ADS BY RADIO!

The radio newspaper is gradually getting to be all that the daily journal is—including even the small want ads in back. The first step in this direction has been taken by the navy's station at Anacostia. From this station help wanted ads are being broadcast whenever application for such is made. It is a step toward the establishment of an employment clearing house.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE.

An old Assyrian marriage custom is based upon sound psychology. All the girls of marriageable age are assembled in one place and auctioned off.

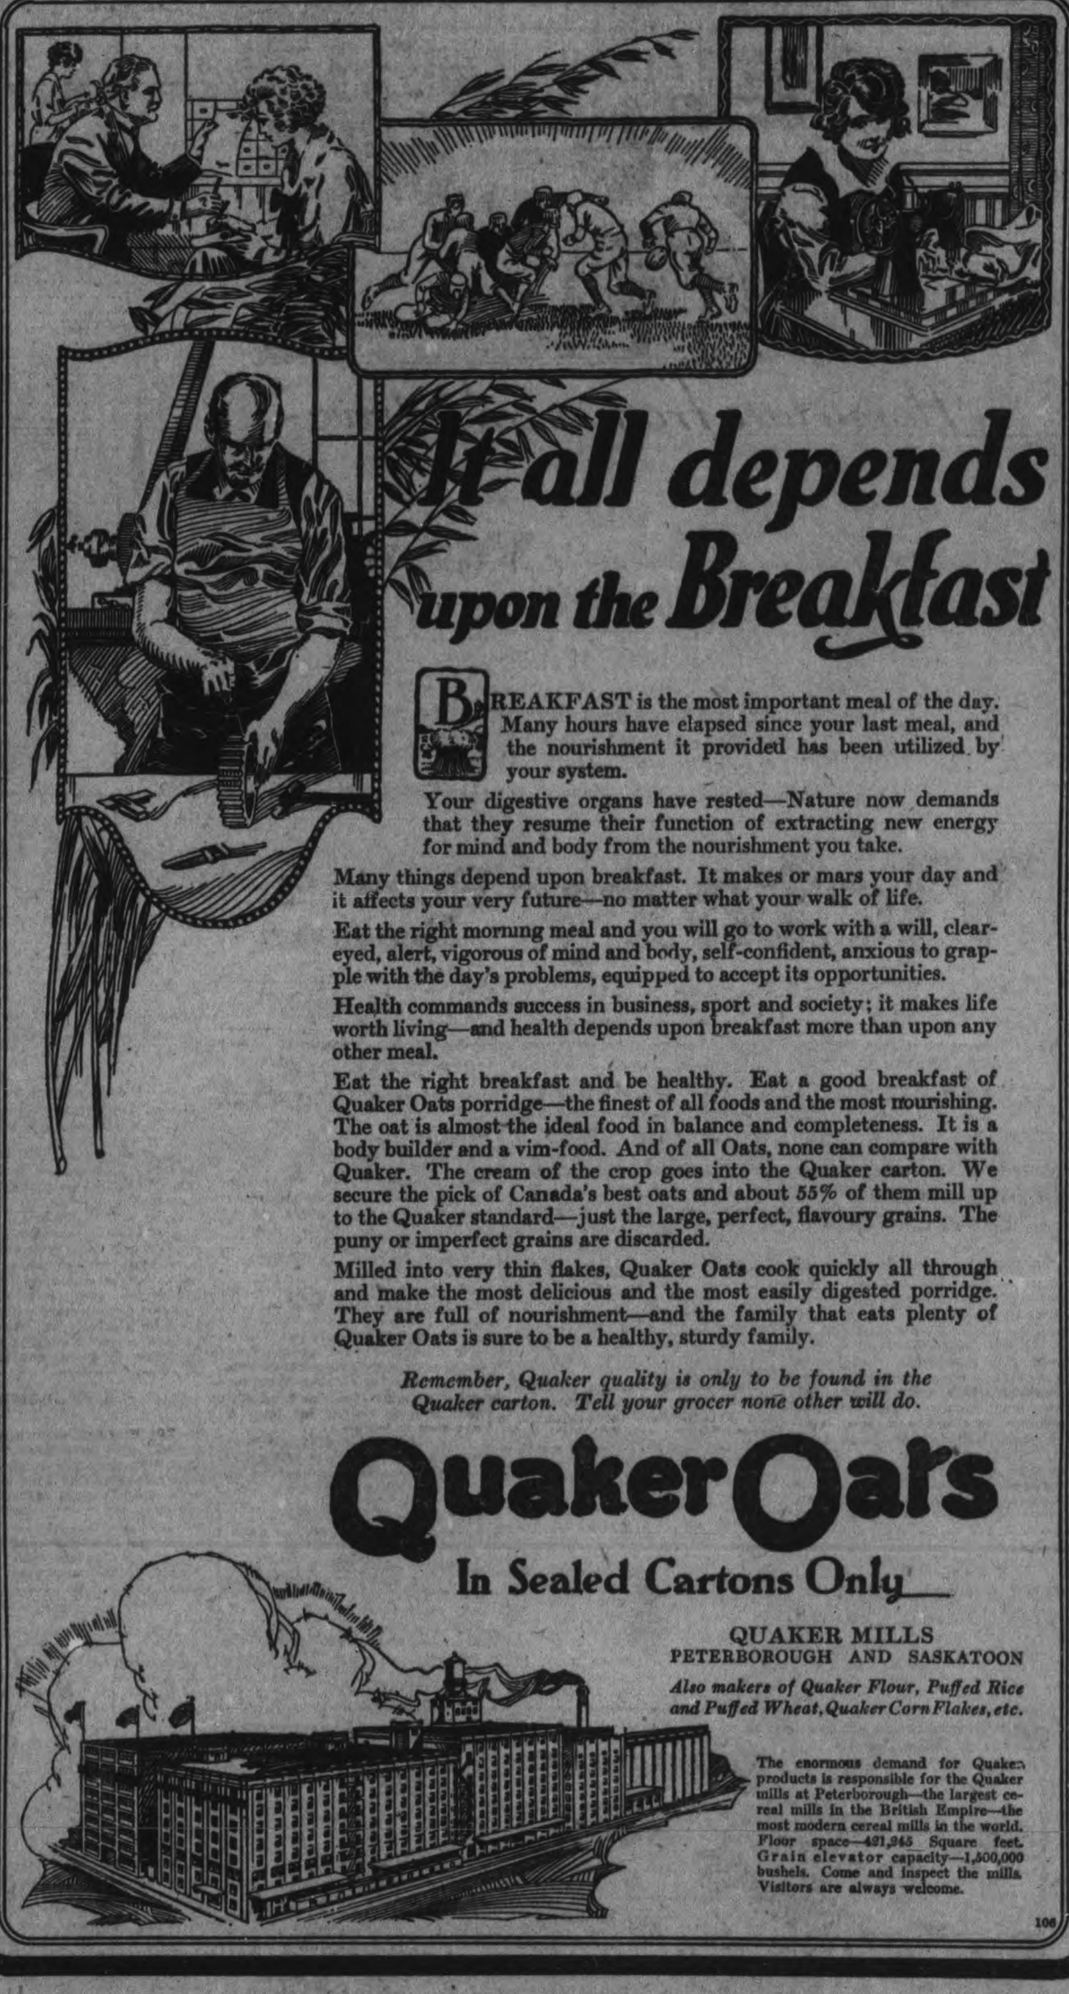
The money which the handsome girls bring in is bestowed upon the plain ones as a marriage portion, giving them an added matrimonial value.

In this way all girls, no matter how unprepossessing as to appearance, are provided with husbands.

HOPE FOR BALDHEADS.

Radio is a cure for baldness! An English wireless society makes this contention. By wearing headsets to listen in, a baldheaded person may feel new hair growing, say members of this society. The electrical waves received through the headsets are the cause, they say.

It all depends upon the Breakfast



BREAKFAST is the most important meal of the day. Many hours have elapsed since your last meal, and the nourishment it provided has been utilized by your system.

Your digestive organs have rested—Nature now demands that they resume their function of extracting new energy for mind and body from the nourishment you take.

Many things depend upon breakfast. It makes or mars your day and it affects your very future—no matter what your walk of life.

Eat the right morning meal and you will go to work with a will, clear-eyed, alert, vigorous of mind and body, self-confident, anxious to grapple with the day's problems, equipped to accept its opportunities.

Health commands success in business, sport and society; it makes life worth living—and health depends upon breakfast more than upon any other meal.

Eat the right breakfast and be healthy. Eat a good breakfast of Quaker Oats porridge—the finest of all foods and the most nourishing. The oat is almost the ideal food in balance and completeness. It is a body builder and a vim-food. And of all Oats, none can compare with Quaker. The cream of the crop goes into the Quaker carton. We secure the pick of Canada's best oats and about 55% of them mill up to the Quaker standard—just the large, perfect, flavoury grains. The puny or imperfect grains are discarded.

Milled into very thin flakes, Quaker Oats cook quickly all through and make the most delicious and the most easily digested porridge. They are full of nourishment—and the family that eats plenty of Quaker Oats is sure to be a healthy, sturdy family.

Remember, Quaker quality is only to be found in the Quaker carton. Tell your grocer none other will do.

Nuts Rich in Food Value

By BERTHA E. SHAPLEIGH, Of Columbia University.

Crisp October days always bring new nuts and one of the autumn pleasures is to gather the winter's supply.

In some parts of the United States we have the pecan, one of the finest flavored nuts; the black walnut, and in California the wonderful almond, which has figured in the history of cookery for centuries.

It is probably possible to use the almond in a greater variety of dishes than any other nut, with the possible exception of the peanut.

Nuts and Meat.

Someone has said that instead of considering nuts as a meat substitute meat should really be called a nut substitute.

Nuts are nature's meat, used, perhaps, before any cooking was known. We have grown accustomed to using nuts as an addition to a meal, combining them with raisins and fruit.

That combination is ideal, but might take the place of a part of the meal, supplying the body's needs, instead of coming at the end.

Nuts are a very concentrated food material, and a much smaller portion of a nut loaf is needed than that of a meat dish.

Many nuts are rich in oil, as peanuts and walnuts. Some contain a large proportion of starch, as chestnuts.

Chestnuts can be eaten as we eat potatoes, and when boiled and mashed can be made into croquettes and desserts.

Many think a chestnut stuffing a necessity for a turkey if one wishes to have the best tasting turkey. Peanuts chopped and mixed with bread and seasonings are certainly a delicious stuffing for duck.

Fruit Necessary, Too.

When many nuts are eaten fruit is necessary to regulate the system. For that reason a nut and fruit salad is a good combination.

Cookies with nuts in them are good for children.

Instead of frosting a cake, occasionally try this: Just before placing the pan in the oven sprinkle the top of the cake batter with shredded almonds and powdered sugar. Bake, being careful not to brown the top too much.

Brown or maple sugar and cream cooked with nuts make a delicious candy. Any combination of nuts and sweet chocolate is one of the best sweets for the children's lunch box.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE.

One reason why early marriages were not the rule in Prussia and Poland in the old days was because a woman had to be such an expert housekeeper before she was considered eligible for matrimony.

Besides a thorough knowledge of cooking she was supposed to have wrought cloth enough to make garments for every person at the wedding. Brides of 20 and 40 were the rule.

Household Hints

TRIMMED WITH BLACK.

White silk lingerie, trimmed with black lace and insertion and occasionally with black embroidery, is a novelty shown by one of the smartest New York houses.

GOLD AND SILVER LINING.

For lining evening wraps no material is more popular than gold or silver cloth. In coats of white broadcloth or fur these metallic linings are preferably seen to best advantage.

BROCADED CHIFFONS.

In velvet brocaded chiffons the softer color combinations prevail. Browns, blues and blacks are frequently combined with plain chiffon, and made into the gracefully draped frocks of the moment.

LONG SLEEVES.

Long, tightly fitted sleeves are being extensively shown for daytime wear. One designer finishes his with a flaring circular cuff, lined so that it stands out stiffly from the wrist. Others reach almost to the knuckles in a very fitted line.

ORNAMENTS.

The craze for barbaric ornaments continues. It is the fad to catch up the front drapery of the new frocks with them, or to use them with long fringes of beads or silk.

PICTURESQUE FROCK.

Ermine tails are the popular trimming for black velvet. They are used from the shoulder line to the hem on a smart street frock which has a side closing and a square neckline.

DANCING FROCKS.

Smart dancing frocks are made of delicate colored satins with very full, scalloped skirts. Needless to say, the skirts are but a few inches from the floor.

DINNER GOWN.

An unusually lovely frock of yellow chiffon velvet is intricately beaded with cut steel beads and trimmed with bands of sable. The girdle is of fur.

ELABORATE BRAIDING.

Elaborate braiding is seen on the newest street costumes. A long bodice entirely covered with braid and a circular skirt is a popular mode just now.

CHOKERS.

Soft choker collars, made of the same material as the bodice, are seen on many of the smart fall costumes.

CARACUL.

Caracul in black and in dyed shades is very popular for banding gowns and cloth coats, as well as for short sport coats, belted with cords and atssels.

To acquire speed in shorthand and typewriting get a radio set. Several business schools have adopted this form of helping their students become speedy by transcribing the speeches broadcast by radio.

MARITIME AMATEURS EXPECT A BIG SEASON

Charges of Professionalism Were Not Substantiated and Players Are in Good Standing.

OUTLOOK IS GOOD.

"Will amateur or independent sport receive the greater share of public patronage in the Maritime Provinces during 1923?" This question was asked of W. A. Covey, of St. John, President of the Maritime Provinces branch of the Amateur Union of Canada. Mr. Covey is an athlete with an enviable record having been quarter mile champion of the Maritime Provinces in 1902 and having competed in football, hockey and baseball. He has been a student of things athletic for twenty-five years. Here is the Maritime President's reply:

"Amateur sport will without question hold its place in the Maritime Provinces during the coming years. The present year has been the crucial one and as we more than held our own this year there is no reason to work over what is to follow. The fact that conditions were such that we were forced to place every athlete on his honor as to his amateur standing does not prove that conditions were as bad by any means as they were supposed. While so many athletes were charged with offenses against the amateur rules that it was impossible to investigate all cases, it must be taken into consideration that most of the charges came from men, who were mixed up with professional sport. Although, several athletes against whom charges were made have taken the affidavit of professional promoters have not laid further charges except in one case and this they failed to substantiate."

"Apparently these promoters expected the Amateur authorities to expel the men against whom charges were made and from those expelled they expected to strengthen their ranks."

"Amateur baseball never had such a following as it had in Nova Scotia during the past year. Prince Edward Island made a good start with baseball and the people took to the game in good style. In New Brunswick, where the pros were forced out into the open the Amateurs did not receive much patronage until the month of August, when in several centers the fans left the pro game to follow the amateurs. Track and Field sports had the best year in their history in the Maritime Provinces. Several records were broken and others were shaved closely. There are more good amateur athletes in the Maritime Provinces at present that ever before. Football is being taken up in the larger centers and will be strictly Amateur."

"Amateur hockey will, without doubt, receive a larger share of patronage than the pro game as the patronage of the latter has been growing less during the past year. Outside of Moncton there is no pro hockey in New Brunswick and now with a ring in St. John the amateur game will get a further impetus. We have no fear of the outcome. The professional promoters had high hopes that their charges of last January would bring to them the desired results of adding vast numbers to their ranks. As this did not happen the only logical conclusion to come to is that history will repeat itself and that the pro game will die within a year or two as has been the case on former occasions."

)MARK SLUMPS AGAIN

BERLIN, Oct 21.— (Canadian Press)—Foreboding that Germany's creditors will now deal yith her more harshly than in the past coupled with nervousness resulting from the resignation of the Lloyd George cabinet, was the general explanation given here yesterday for the slump of mark to 17,450 to the pound.

The Mercantile Five Pin League will have a number of new teams in this year's league.

SHAG REBUILDING THE M'GILL TEAM

Complete Change of Style is Expected in To-Day's Game With Toronto.

MONTREAL, Oct. 21. — McGill will present a differently arranged line-up and a new vogue of play when they meet the champion University of Toronto squad here this afternoon in the final game of the Intercollegiate season locally. Coach Frank Shaughnessy Thursday worked out the red and white candidates for two hours, using new plays and a shifted team in the trial. Considerable time was put in on instructing the less experienced men in fundamentals of rugby. The McGill coach now thinks that he will field a squad that will show a more effective fight than did the team against Queen's last week.

Flangan and McGregor are still on the ailing list, and it is not expected that either will report on the gridiron. In the meantime Manson has been moved to the backfield. The former English rugby player made an excellent showing against Queen's and will most likely do considerable work against Varsity. Walsh was used Thursday at middle in place of Manson, and Gamble was sent in to fill Walsh's place. The plays that the team ran through were totally different from those used against Queen's. Coach Shaughnessy has decided on an entirely different policy as the only means of his inexperienced squad putting up a real tussle against the champions.

SOME DUMBELLS.

Languid Luke was talking about some dumb rugby players that he knows.

"One guy is so dumb he thinks a rouge is something to wear on your face.

"Another one is so dumb he thinks that converts are made by missionaries."

Then he told of the dumbell who thounght the game was played with dollars because it generally takes three bucks to get ten yards and somebody is always talking about a quarter back.

"I suppose the reason a lot of people get heated up about rugby is because it is played on a gridiron," remarked Languid more or less en passant.

PICKING A MANAGER

The Hot Stove Leagues are now engaged in picking a manager for the Washington Senators and the Boston Red Sox. Clarke Griffith has announced he would like to have Mike Kelly, St. Paul's pennant- winning manager, and once with Toronto, take hold of the Senators, but Kelly has not reached a decision. Because Harry Frazee and Frank Chance were seen with their heads together during the world's series, it was reported that the former leaders of the Chicago Cubs was going back into the managerial game. Frazee says there is nothing in it and Chance says if he gets back into baseball it will be as a club-owner.

Umpires Pick All Star Nationals and The Choice of Only Three is Unanimous

By BILLY EVANS.

In football when an expert decides to select an all-star or all-American eleven he goes to the football officials for advice.

No one connected with the gridiron game is better able to judge a player's worth than the referee, umpire of field judge.

On the same line of reasoning, in baseball the umpire should be very competent to pass judgment on the relative ability of the ball players.

In order to get a composite all-star team from both the National and American Leagues I got into touch with as many umpires as possible. The difference of opinion was rather surprising. In only a very few cases did the umpires agree on the same player as the best at his respective position.

In the National League Rogers Hornsby, Dave Bancroft and Max Carey were the only three players who received the unanimous vote of the arbitrators.

In selecting Hornsby for second base all of them agreed that Frisch was so good that it was a very difficult matter to draw a line of distinction.

All the umpires said that Frisch deserved a place on the team. Several suggested that he be moved to third base where he would share honors equally with Groh. On the season's play they felt that Frisch was entitled to third base on the mythical ttam.

Groh's great work in the world series, and his fine showing late in the year, earned much consideration for Heine in passing out the honors.

The selection of Jake Daubert for first base is a fine tribute for that veteran. Several years ago Jake was pronounced all in. The umpires say that his work at first this year far surpassed the play of any other National League first sacker.

There was a wide difference of opinion as to the pitchers. It is rather interesting that three of the four pitchers selected should be left handers.

All Star National League Team

Schimdt	Catcher	Pittsburgh
Rixey	Pitcher	Cincinnati
Cooper	Pitcher	Pittsburgh
Donahue	Pitcher	Cincinnati
Reuther	Pitcher	Brooklyn
Daubert	First base	Cincinnati
Hornsby	Second base	St. Louis
Groh-Frisch	Third base	New York
Bancroft	Shortstop	New York
E. Meusel	Left field	New York
Carey	Center field	Pittsburgh
Russell	Right field	Pittsburgh

In the outfield it was just as hard to select a trio, with the exception of Carey.

Some of the arbitrators favored Young of New York for right field. George Burns was also mentioned as an outfield possibility. Bigbee of Pittsburg was well liked by several. Zach Wheat of Brooklyn was also favorably considered by many.

Bill Klem, in commenting on "Reb" Russell, said he is one of the most valuable outfielders that has broken into the National League in years.

In former years Eddie Roush would have been a unanimous choice This year he failed to qualify for a position. While all the umpires conceded his greatness, they argued his late start handicapped his work, and his failure to sign may have cost the Red's a pennant. The selection of players was made on the value of their respective teams in 1922.

An unusual fact about the selections was that none of the officials rated the great Alexander among the first four most valuable pitchers.

A few years back Alexander would have been first choice. Just another indication of how fleeting fame is in baseball.

NEW WHITE HOPE HAS BEEN FOUND

Tommy Burns Is Grooming a Gigantic 21-Year-Old Scotch-Irish Youth Named Robert Read.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—(Associated Press)—Tommy Burns, ex-heavyweight champion, claims to have found a new "white hope" in Robert Read, a gigantic Irish youth who has lived in Scotland since he was 12 years old. Read is now 21. He is 6 feet 1¾ inches tall, weighs 200 pounds, and has a reach of 81½ inches, 7½ inches more than Dempsey's.

In a photograph sent to the Daily Mail, the British veteran's find towers above him; Burns head reaches only to Read's shoulders. Read has a good appearance, an athletic build, and is gaining experience in rough and tumble life of the English travelling boxing show, a familiar sight at any small carnival or country fair.

Burns says that he has tried Read out and that he is not disappointed in him. "Last year Read won the amateur western district championship in Scotland," said Burns. "He is a quiet, gentlemanly boy, and of course he needs a lot of experience. Only time can tell whether he will develop into a real champion. The experience with the travelling boxing show which he joined after winning the amateur championship, certainly won't do him any harm."

CUBAN TRACKS TO FOLLOW CANADA

Will Install Pari-Mutuel Machines and Eliminate the Bookmaker From the Track.

NEW YORK, October 21 (Canadian Press-. — The success of the pari-mutuel machines at Canadian tracks is given as one of the chief reasons for the decision announced here of the Cuban-American Jockey Club to eliminate the bookmaker from its track in Cuba. The announcement, made by Frank J. Bruen, general manager of the club, says that at the next meeting an increase in the number of betting machines, "to the exclusion of bookstake races in favour of overnight handicaps are to be the salient points of the club's policy this winter. "I have looked carefully into the racing situation in Kentucky, Maryland, and Canada," said Mr. Bruen, "and I am satisfied that the popularity of the sport in these places is based on the machines. This is particularly true as applied to Canada."

SPORT NEWS

Hughey Jennings is positive that Pitcher Jonnard will one of the stars of the National League next season. Jonnard is a big husky right hander with a world of speed. despite the fact that the sight of one eye is very faulty, Jonnard is strong on control.

And odd major league record was set last season by Max Carey and John Gooch of the Pittsburgh team. They were the only major league players to punch out six hits in a game, and strangely enough both turned the trick in the same contest.

The two best shortstops in the American League last year were youngsters, Chich Galloway of the Athletics and Rigney of Detroit. Galloway stands out as the most improved ball player in the majors, while Rigney has a big season in his major league debut.

Shortstop Everett Scott of the Yankees has unquestionably seen his best days in the majors. Scott's fielding in the world series was a distinct disappointment. He failed to cover any ground. Grounders that went as base hits because he failed to reach them would have been easy chances for him a few years back.

Four American League players enjoyed batting streaks last season that lasted longer than 20 games. George Sisler created a new major league record by hitting safely in 41 consecutive games. Ty Cobb formerly held the record with 40 games. Ken Williams was second with 28 games, Pratt with 23 and Tobin with 21 followed in order.

Connie Mack hopes to lead the second division in the American next season. Vacating last place was pleasing to Mack. He is shooting at fifth place for 1923. Mack is satisfied with three of his infielders, Dykes at third, Galloway at short and Hauser at first. If Scheer is able to hit, he will be a fixture at second as he is a fine fielder.

Boston was shut out more often than any other team in the American League last season. The Red Sox suffered a whitewash on 16 occasions. Detroit was the hardest team to shut out, being blanked only 5 times.

No player in the American League succeded in making six hits in one game last year. The feat of making five hits was accomplished 10 times. Ty Cobb on three occasions made five hits. Gosling, the recruit outfielder of the Washington team, turned the trick twice, while Rice, Witt, Baker, Gardner and Rigney each had one big day.

Detroit and St. Louis played the longest game in the American League last year, battling sixteen innings before the Browns got the decision. In this game Shocker, the star pitcher of the Browns, was put out of the game in the 14th inning and the recruit Pruett took his place and got credit for the victory.

The season of 1922 established more firmly than ever before the supremacy of American tennis players. More International stars invaded the country than ever before and all of them were turned back. The United States is not only first in tennis but she has no serious rival.

"Stuffy" McInnis of the Cleveland team wants to take up college coaching after he retires from the big league. Recently it was reported from New Haven that McInnis would be tendered the position as Yale coach. The reappointment of Tommers, however, kills such a rumor.

A BIG SCORE .

The correct score in the St. Jerome's College game with the Kitchener and Waterloo Collegiate was 93 to 0 in favor of College. St Jerome's with their numerous bucks and trick plays had their opponents baffled at every stage of the game and the result was that they ran up this enormous score. An observer says: "The St. Jerome's husky squad, with their numerous interference plays, and their deadly tackling, should have no difficulty in winning the Interscholastic championship, despite the fact that the team is moulded mostly from green material."

THE SOFT BALL LEAGUE RESULTS

The DeLaval grabbed the large end of a 16-5 score. The DeLaval crew played errorless ball making sensational plays in one hand catches and double plays. The DeLaval battery, Perks and McGee turned in a nice game. For the Woolens Hopkins did good work on the rubber, but his team mates gave him very poor support particularly in the infield. The batting feature of the game was Hopkins terrific drive to the end of the Armouries for a clean cut home run.

KIWANIS DEFEAT THE LAWN BOWLERS

The Lawn Bowlers turned the tables on the Kiwanis beating them 13-6. The game was full of excitement from start to finish. Cummer took the rubber of the Kiwanis with Neil catching. The battery for the Bowlers Fox pitching and Freeman catching. Fox had 11 strikeouts to Cummers 5. A large crowd witnessed both games in spite of the cool weather showing the increasing interest in soft ball.

TILDEN AGAIN IN THE LEADING TEN

Bill Tilden Tops the List For Season's Best Tennis Player.

Now that tennis is a thing of the past except for the southern climes, ranking the first ten players is the popular custom.

Winning a berth in the first ten is the same to the tennis player as being selected for the all-America by the gridiron athlete.

It is easy to pick the champion of them all, Bill Tilden. There is no doubt as to his right to rank first. Second place goes to William Johnston without much argument. The other positions are open to dispute.

Look over this ranking of the first ten, and select your weapons:

1—William Tilden II., Philadelphia.
2—William M. Johnston. San Francisco.
3—Vincent Richards, Yonkers, N. Y.
4—Richard Norris Williams II., Boston.
5—Robert Kinsey, San Francisco.
6—Kenzo Shimizu. New York.
8—Wallace F. Johnson, Philadelphia.
9—Francis T. Hunter, New Rochelle, N.Y.
10—Watson M. Washburn, New York.

SOME MORE TALK OF RECASTING CIRCUIT.

Every fall rumors of recasting the International League circuit arise. It argues that the list of towns is far from the best. Every spring the same old line-up appears. Every fall the public at large are told that Reading and Syracuse and Newark and Jersey City are deadwood; every month or two Montreal and Providence are thrust forward for their old places. It might surprise the fans to know that Toronto's attendance during the past summer was nearly as low as the lowest; that it was not as good as Reading's for instance. Floating in the second division is not relished there or elsewhere and the fans refuse to float with a losing team. A fight squad in the race means a flocking of fans to the grounds.

MORAN WILL AGAIN LEAD CINCINNATI.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 21—Patrick J. Moran will manage the Cincinnati National League baseball team again next year. This was announced following a meeting of the directors of the club at which it was voted unanimously to re-engage the veteran leader. Terms already having been agreed upon, it was said Moran would sign his new contract as soon as he returns from the east, which will be within a day or two.

SPENCER IS TY COBB OF TRAP SHOOTING

Has Been on the Job Since 1889, When He Tied With His Father For First at St. Louis.

Charles G. Spencer, of St. Louis, is the Ty Cobb of trap shooting.

Spencer has been shooting continuously since 1889, when, as a boy, he entered a tournament in St. Louis and tied for the first place with his father.

For a score of years he has been in the front rank of trap shooters, and is generally considered the greatest trap shot of all time.

Over a period of 12 years, from 1909 to 1920, Spencer shot at more than 10,000 targets each year. He had an average of .967, the best ever compiled by a trap shooter over a span of years.

During the 12 years in which he entered practically every big event he never fell blow the 96 per cent. mark of perfection.

Last year, owing to illness, Spencer did but little shooting. The records show that he shot at only 1,310 targets merely as try-outs, and his average was .957.

This year to date he has averaged about 97 per cent. perfection, and bids fair to again take his ranking position at the head of the list of trap shooters.

A Sturdy Six at the Price of a Light Six

At its new low price the Jewett Six is still further removed from the possibility of legitimate comparison or competition.

This Paige-built six-cylinder, 50 horse-power automobile was introduced to the public less than a year ago as a new standard of value. On that basis it made good with a success of amazing proportions, for here at last at the price of a so-called "light" six was a six of genuinely sturdy construction. Every part and unit was found to be more than equal to the demand of any speed, or any condition of the road.

The car that unquestionably established a standard of unprecedented value has now been reduced to $1525 f.o.b. Windsor. There is just one way to understand what this price means. You must examine the Jewett, ride in it, and then compare it with any other five-passenger six.

The complete Paige-Jewett lines of six-cylinder passenger cars offer a selection of eleven models priced from $1525 to $5280. The complete line of Paige trucks meets every haulage need. They are sold and serviced by Paige dealers everywhere.

GREATEST SENSATION OF SHOW HISTORY IS BOOKED FOR CAPITOL

Endorsed by 500 Police Chiefs and Trade and Daily Press -- "In the Name of the Law," Tremendous Success.

"In the Name of the Law," the picture that stood New York on its head, running for one solid month at the George M. Cohan Theatre, and is now sweeping the continent like a hurricane, is booked for the Capitol Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

This picture has received the most colossal endorsement in the history of the show business; all the glittering superlatives in the English language have been showered upon it by the trade and daily press, and over five hundred police chiefs of the United States have written to the producers paying tribute to this epoch-making and unparalleled picture.

"Accept this as one of the finest heart-interest pictures ever shown on Broadway," says The Billboard, one of the leading theatrical trade papers. The Moving Picture World, the leading motion picture trade paper, declares: "This production is strikingly different and meets with very definite success."

As a great and human heart-interest drama, "In the Name of the Law" surpasses "Humoresque" and "Over the Hill. At the same time it is packed full of thrills and action. But above all it shines forth as a great beacon of truth, the first picture to give a square deal to the defenders of the lives, liberties and property of the citizens.

AT THE GRAND.

THE DUMBELLS.

It was a happy inspiration that led to the use of the phrase, "a national institution" in connection with the Dumbells, for that's exactly what Capt. Plunkett's soldier entertainers are. Canadians from coast to coast are proud of the Dumbells, proud that they were fighting men first, proud of the work done afterwards to brighten the lives of Canadian soldiers at the front, proud of the successes scored since the war, and especially proud that these soldier artists were able to go into New York in the midst of a hot summer and enjoy a long run on Broadway. With a Canadian audience a night with the Dumbells is a family re-union, for although the clever company have all the ease, skill and sureness of experienced professionals, they are still "home folk" and to see them again is like meeting dear old friends.

The Dumbells are with us once more—not in Biff! Bing!! Bang!!!, for nothing remains of that famous production, but in their new Revue of 1922 which opened an engagement at the Grand last night, and was greeted by an enthusiastic audience that exhausted the theatre's accommodation. All the old favourites are in the cast. Al. Plunkett, Red Newman, Ross Hamilton, Arthur Holland and all the other well remembered entertainers, and in their new show they add to the laurels they have already won here. The Revue of 1922 is a bigger and more ambitious offering than the Dumbells' original production, with a wealth of rich costumes and effective scenic accessories, but like Biff! Bing!! Bang!!! it moves at lightning speed and there is not a dull moment. Once again it is difficult to convince one's self that the programme is contributed entirely by men, that it is indeed a "girl" show without a girl, so cleverly are the impersonations done by the "ladies" of the cast.

There are so many good things on the programme that it is difficult to mention them individually without running the risk of missing somebody.

"Red" Newman, although he has dropped his favourite "Lovely War" song, is one of the big hits of the new production, as might be expected. His coster specialty, in which he sings Albert Chavalier's classic, "My Old Dutch," with the necessary feeling and pathos, and winds up with the lively "I'm a Daddy," scored heavily and earned him a dozen encores.

Albert Plunkett puts over his usual success in "K-K-Kiss Me Again" which by the way he 'broke in' here on the previous appearance of the Dumbells in Peterborough, and his number, "My Lady's Dress," with a fashion parade by the company, is an effective contribution.

Jimmy Goode, one of the smoothest working black face comedians seen here in a long time, is responsible for much of the fun of the evening. He has an assortment of quips that are up to the minute and a style all his own in delivering them.

Ted Young, heard here for the first time with the Revue of 1922, has a resonant baritone, which he uses to great advantage, and his singing of "That Old Mammy of Mine" was one of the gems of the programme last evening, and he repeated his triumph in his rendition of "Girls of My Dreams."

"Marjorie," otherwise Ross Hamilton, lovelier than ever, and with a wardrobe that makes the women in the audience gasp with envy, sings "Widows Are Wonderful" and "Say You'll Not Forget" most effectively.

Much of the impersonation work falls upon the "soubrette" of the production, Arthur Holland, who sings "Joshua," "Incense" and "Something Doing Over the Way" in irresistible style. Mr. Holland's work shows constant improvement and he is one of the most successful members of the company.

Ted Charter has a most amusing bit of nonsense, a satire on a well known type of public speaker that wins many a laugh.

These are only a few of the outstanding features, but menion of them will serve to show that the Revue of 1922 is the Dumbells' at their best.

They will be seen at the Grand again to-night and are sure of another capacity audience.

A SENSATIONAL SINGER COMING

A quarter of a century or more ago, all of America and England was longing to be within sound of the voice of Black Patti, so called because of her color and her favorable comparison as to vocal charm with the famous and renowned Adelaide Patti, the opera singer.

Marguerite Jackson is as black, as dark complexioned as she can be, for she is a member of the negro race, but her voice—oh, such a voice! If you could hear her singing without looking at her you would declare you were near to one of the famous opera singers of the day. The press notices and reviews where she has appeared, voluntarily refer to her as the Galli Curci, the Tetrazini of the black race. She is deserving of these compliments.

The Harvey Minstrels advertise her as "The Modern Black Patti." With her husband, this remarkable singer constitutes one of the features of the celebrated vaudeville section of the Harvey Minstrels. Special scenery is provided for the act and this modern Black Patti is first revealed as a poorly but neatly dressed country colored girl, attracted to a transient show company. When she applies for a position, the manager asks her to demonstrate her voice, and then—and then the audience which has been swamped with a battery of negro wit, comicalities and vaudeville realizes the surprise that is in store for them and are sure to depart from the theatre satisfied that it was well worth the price of admission to hear Marguerite Jackson, the Modern Black Patti.

"THE BAT." CHAMPION MYSTERY PLAY, COMES TO PETERBOROUGH

"It certainly is a grand show."

That was the way the dramatic critic for "Life" summed up his review of "The Bat," by Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood, which Wagenhals and Kemper present at the Grand Opera House on Friday and Saturday, October 27 and 28, with matinee Saturday, and if subsequent records may be accepted as proof, the critic was certainly right in his judgment.

"The Bat" has broken every theatrical record of New York and Chicago for popularity and success, as measured by the standards of the box office. Incidentally, it is in a fair way to do the same in London. And there is no one to deny that that, after all, is the test of a play. If the public likes it, it is good and if the public doesn't all the arguments in the world cannot make it stand as a good play.

"The Bat" is a thrilling mystery play through which there runs a vein of comedy that is irresistibly funny. One moment you are thrilled until your hair fairly stands on end and the next you are plunged in a perfect paroxysm of laughter.

"The Bat" played for more than two years in New York. In Chicago "The Bat" scored a run of over one solid year, something no other play has ever done in the history of that city. Moreover, in both cities, week after week, the play was seen by audiences that taxed the absolute capacity of the theatres in which it was being given.

"The Bat" is presented under the management of Wagenhals and Kemper, known for years in the theatrical world for their success in producing successes. It has been handsomely staged and is acted with consummate skill by an excellent company.

CORNWALL, Oct. 21.— (Canadian Press.)—At a meeting of hockey enthusiasts held yesterday, Cornwall Hockey Club was organized for the season.

It was decided to operate an intermediate team this year under the name of the Cornwall Colts and the club has applied for membership in the intermediate series of the O.H. A.

CORNWALL HOCKEY CLUB ORGANIZED

MONTREAL, Oct. 21.— (Canadian Press.)— Speaking at the annual dinner of members of the Montreal branch of the University of Toronto Alumnia Association here last night, E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, voiced his regret that there was in athletes too great a tendency to systematize. "And because of this the lure is going out of our games.

The athlete nowadays is becoming ing merely a part of a machine and is in fact an automaton."

OLD AS THE HILLS BUT IT WORKED.

Some of the old-time rugby stunts re-appear from time to time and prove real ground gainers. Collegiate pulled one yesterday that the Carlisle Indians made immortal years ago. Rooney sailed over for a try on a play concocted by Coach Burridge known as "St. Germains Special." Tucked under Rooney's sweater was the ball, and while the astonished Collegians swarmed after the quarter who was making a fake run., Rooney sauntered through the line to an open field and then galloped for goal undetected. Rooney had on a loose sweater, and in the play the ball was inserted in his sweater, which he pulled forward in front. He walked up to the quarter, who got behind him when he stooped forward and put the ball into its intended place, and then circled around with his head down and his hands cupped to his chest as though holding a ball.—Ottawa Evening Journal.

A Letter From Mr. T. Tooms

POLICE ESTIMATES.

Mr. Editor,—I notice in Friday night's Examiner in the report of the City Council business, Alderman Crowe raised the question of the submission of the estimates of the Police Commission to the City Council for its consideration and approval. City Solicitor Widdifield replied that the amendment referred to by Alderman Crowe might be interpreted by five different people in five different ways. "I presume those five different people would have to be lawyers." As I was responsible for the introduction of the amendment, I may say the intent of the Act is to do exactly what it says. These are the words of the amendment:

Sub-section 1 of Section 363 of The Municipal Act is repealed, and the following substituted therefor:

1. The board shall, on or before the first day of March in each year prepare and submit to the Council for its consideration and approval, its estimates of all moneys required for the ensuing year to pay the remuneration of the members of the police force and to provide and pay for offices, watch houses, watch boxes, arms, accountrements, clothing and other things for the accommodation, use and maintenance of the force.

To ordinary common-sense people it would be natural to expect that should the Council disapprove of the estimates they could be returned for reconstructions in the line suggested by the Council.

Alderman Crowe asks is there a joker in the pack. I would suggest that a pack of lawyers are a joke at any time, but here is what a lawyer of the Attorney-General's Department says about this amendment. This answer was forwarded to me when I requested an interpretation of the Act last April:

Toronto, April 20th, 1922.

Memorandum for Mr. Tooms:

It seems to me that where the Board is required to prepare and submit estimates for the consideration and approval of the Council, that the Council would clearly have power to cut down or reject any of them. What would happen if the approvalof the Council was not given? The Board surely could not force the Council to provide the money under the present state of the law. This opinion is not given in any official way.

W. B. Wilkinson.

Mr. W. B. Wilkinson, K.C., law clerk Private and Municipal Bills, was the lawyer that drew up the amendment for the Legislature and knows the spirit of the Act. But I understand that the Attorney-General's Department can only give its opinion on any bill. Their opinion is of no more value from a legal standpoint than the city solicitor's and if there is any difference of opinion amongst the lawyers, the only alternative is the higher court.

But I am sure if it were left to the people themselves they would know how to interpret it.

Thomas Tooms, M.L.A.

P.S.—The Fire Department's estimates come under the hammer of the Council. Why the Police Department should not do the same beats me.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J., October 21 (Canadian Press). — On the heels of unconfirmed reports that the Grand Jury of Somerset County yesterday had returned an indictment in the Hall-Mills murder mystery, the investigation was given a sensational twist last night when it was officially learned that an eyewitness to the double shooting, a woman of reputable character in New Brunswick, had been discovered.

LOCAL FIREMEN STILL ON JOB

Members of the Peterboro Fire Department, to-day added another notch to their record, when they completed the packing and shipment of six more boxes of goods for the Northern Ontario Fire sufferers. If the citizens of Peterboro were as willing to donate a few fifty cent pieces and one dollar bills as they are old clothes, the city's place in the subscription lists now being made up for this work, would be more conspicuous.

MANY FINED IN POLICE COURT

For Running Over Highway Between Old Toll Gate and Rowe's Gate.

COBOURG, Oct. 21.—During the week a number of prominent residents of Hamilton Township were fined an average of $30.00 each for running over that strip of road between the site of the old toll gate and Rowe's gate on King street east.

Even though the vehicles detoured to the side of the road, not touching the cement work at all, the defendant was fined just the same.

Mr. Bew, resident engineer, under the Department of Highways of Toronto, said that he had the power to close any road at any time, and persons driving over any section of a highway that he saw fit to close could be fined. He closed the road in question, leaving the matter of re-opening the road to the Warren Company who were authorized to open it to the traffic at their own convenience.

BONAR LAW IS NOW HEAD OF THE UNIONISTS

The Unanimous Choice of Party at Meeting This Afternoon—Powerful Representative Vote.

CARSON PRESENT

LONDON, Oct. 23.— (Canadian Press.)— Andrew Bonar Law was unanimously chosen leader of the Unionist party at a party meeting held this afternoon.

Those present at the meeting included Viscount Cave, Lord Derby, Lord Carson, Viscount Peel, the Duke of Devonshire, Earl Grey, Viscount Curzon, Sir Samuel Hoare, Admiral Suoter and William Ormsby-Gore.

The presence of Lord Carson created considerable comment, adding to the recent rumors that the Ulster Unionist leader intended to re-enter politics. This would necessitate his resignation because holders of judiciary Lordships cannot participate in politics.

Ministry Complete.

The meeting was an enthusiastic gathering held at Hotel Cecil, attended by 439 members of the party, including 152 peers. Bonar Law was proposed for leadership by Lord Curzon, secretary for Foreign Affairs in the Lloyd George Cabinet. The nomination was seconded by Stanley Baldwin, President of the Board of Trade. Mr. Bonar Law's election enables hi mto accept the task of forming a cabinet, thereby giving Great Britain her first Conservative Prime Minister since 1905. It is understood Bonar Law's ministry is virtually complete.

First in 17 Years.

Great Britain to-day had its first Conservative Premier in 17 years, in the person of Andrew Bonar Law, who was to-day formally chosen leader of the Unionist party. Absent from the meeting were prominent Unionists such as Austen Chamberlain, Earl of Balfour and Lord Birkenhead, who revolted from the decision of their party to return to party independence and to quit Mr. Lloyd George. To the revolting members Bonar Law held out the olive branch.

The rise to power of Bonar Law, retiring Scotch Canadian, with tendencies bordering on those of a recluse, brings to the forefront a man who remained in the background contentedly until the hour came, and his experience in State craft was called to the serivce of the country.

CONFER WITH KING

LONDON, October 23. Canadian Press. — On leaving the Unionist meeting to-day Bonar-Law, who was unanimously elected leader of the party told the newspapermen that he would accept the task of forming a ministry. He immediately arranged for an audience with the King at 5.30.

PLEADS FOR UNITY.

The Premier-Designate, in his speech before the gathering, expressed the hope that those Coalition Unionists who had voted against the resolution passed by the Carlton Club meeting for a return to Party Independence, would join their Union brothers and go to the country as a united party. He reiterated his statement that the Irish constitution must be carried out.

STRONG APPEAL FOR NORTHERN SUFFERERS.

That unless a continuous supply of money and supplies was forthcoming keen hardships would be endured by the people who lost everything in the Northern Ontario fire zone, is the report brought back by Dr. C. A. Hodgetts, honorary secretary of the Northern Ontario Relief Committee who went up to investigate and make a report. Dr. Hodgetts reports that relief arrangements have been well systematized in the north. Peterborough is expected to give her share in contributing to the relief fund. The Examiner acknowledges subscriptions. Please send them to this office.

Bandit Used a Pipe Instead Gun

VANCOUVER, B.C., Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press.) — When Constable Dineen wandered into a restaurant early this morning for a cup of coffee he found Clifford Ritzon covering the cashier with what appeared to be a revolver in his overcoat pocket. Ritzon had about persuaded the cashier to hand over the contents of the till when the constable arrested him, only to find that the weapon carried was a pipe.

SUGGESTS AID FARM SETTLERS

Passage Costs Too High For British Farmers With Modest Nest Eggs

QUEBEC, Oct. 23.— Hon. T. D. Patullo, Minister of Lands in the British Columbia government, when arriving here from England on the Canadian Pacific liner Monclare, gave an interview on the immigration question. He said in part:

"In regard to the British farmers with a desire to come and settle in Canada, I may say that there are many such, but owing to the large expense entailed in passage money they need assistance, and I think a plan could be arranged by which the Dominion government would pay one-third, the British government one-third and the Canadian province in which the immigrant would designate to settle, the other third. There are many British farmers who have a little nest egg of their own of from five to seven hundred pounds, but as they are men of large families, they do not feel like breaking into this nest egg. To spend approximately the one thousand dollars that it would cost them to bring them and their families out to Canada. They desire to retain this money in order that they might have it when they reach this country to invest in a farm or protect them from any necessities that might occur until they are comfortably settled.

TORONTO VISITORS MUCH IMPRESSED

Glowing Praise for Quaker Oats Plant and Peterborough City.

On the special invitation of the Quaker Oats Co., to visit their plant at Peterborough, a large Toronto party consisting of representatives of the well known firm of Eby Blain Ltd., Wholesale Grocers, Toronto, visited Peterborough Friday afternoon and Saturday.

Mr. George McDonald, manager, acted as host and gracefully welcomed the visitors to the city. The extensive plant of the Quaker Oats Company, which is the most modern of its kind on this continent, was shown in detail to the visitors, after which the party wasf entertained at luncheon in the Company's Cafateria at the plant. The time was most profitably and pleasantly spent by the members of the party, to some of whom it was their first visit to Peterborough, and they all were imprtssed with the city itself and greatly so with the Quaker Oats plant, in which they are so much interested in a business way.

A very cordial vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. McDonald and the Company, after which they viewed the Lift Lock and left for Toronto on the afternoon train.

The members of the party were as follows:— Messrs. W. P. Eby, D. Casey, A. Glanville, L. Morden, R. Walker, F. W. Jones, W. Haight; W. R. Bond; J. K. Christie; F. Tomkins; E. Lung; E. Lees; J. A. Montgomery; J. E. Swift; J. Church J. Taylor, J. K. Christie, T. Padget.

COST OF LIVING AUSTRIA JUMPS 200 PER CENT.

Trades Unions Claim That Increase is Due to Lack of Control Over Profiteering.

SALARIES LARGE

VIENNA, Oct. 23.—(Associated Press).— It is estimated that the cost of living in Austria has increased over 20,000 per cent. since January of this year.

Each monthly index number, on which all government salaries as well as agreements between employes and employed are based, has mounted steadily, until this month government employes are based, has mounted steadily, until this month government employes receive salaries equal to 156 times the amount paid in March of 1921. This and other government outlay has been met largely by the printing press, until the current statement of the Austro-Hungarian Bank shows a total note circulation of nearly two thousand billions of kronen One week's increase alone was 189,000,000,000.

Within the last month strict government control over all dealings in foreign exchange has raised the krone from about 84,000 to 74,000 to the dollar. But despite this there has been no appreciable check in rising prices. It is claimed for example, that flour, margerine, beef fats, coffee, clothing, shoes and fuel are above world parity.

The government and private interests recently initiated a fight against the index number system. An amendment to the statute was brought in by which the government will pay only on-half of any future increase, while private employers served notice they would not meet it, but would negotiate the basis of increase with the unions. Organized labor of every kind rose as a man, and more than half a dozen unions are still on strike.

The unions claim that the index system is not a cause of increased prices, but a thermometer, and that the basic faults is lack of control over profiteering in necessities.

SCHOONER RACE STARTED TODAY

United States Secretary Will Sail Again on the Ford.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—The Gloucester schooner Henry Ford, with a makeshift crew, left her wharf in tow of a tug at 9.15 o'clock this forenoon to participate in the international fishermen's race. The crew began bending on her main sail as she left the dock.

At that time Blue Nose, the Canadian defender of the trophy, was sailing around Eastern Point.

Captain Morrissey took charge of the bending on of the Ford's re-cut main sail. The scenes preceding the decision that the Ford would sail were dramatic. Members of the Ford's crew, carrying south-westers and slickers, marched in a body through the main streets, shouting: "We're through. We'll have nothing to do with the committee or its races."

At the wharf where the Ford was docked they were met by Secretary Denby, who was an unofficial member of the Ford's crew in Saturday's race, and planned to sail again today.

In the last two miles of the second leg the Ford apparently demonstrated her superiority over the Blue Nose. She opened out a lead of 700 yards and gained steadily.

The race started at 11 o'clock and Bluenose crossed the line first, but Ford quickly caught up and passed her.

At noon the wind fell from 12 to 6 knots an hour and Ford had a lead of 200 yards.

At one o'clock the Ford was leading Blue nose by about 500 yards.

Peterboro Shows Old Time Form In Responding to Relief Appeal

Like the Days of Old When This City Went Over the Top for Men and Money During the Fateful Days of War--Peterboro Today Hears Another Call, This Time From the Great Northland Where People Wait and Suffer--The Fire is Three Weeks Old--Have You Contributed?

Peterborough's efforts to provide financial relief for the fire sufferers in the Northland is beginning to assume material form, and if the present impetus is maintained, this city's place in the list of contributors will not be far from the top. Although the call for relief is nearly three weeks old, the need is just as pressing.

The churches throughout the city have taken hold of the work, and yesterday Trinity Church reported contributions amounting to two hundred dollars. George Street passed the four hundred dollar mark on Friday, and Knox Church also reports substantial subscriptions.

In addition to the activity of all the churches in the city, the various organisations are busy providing supplies for a need that will be with us for some time yet.

Donations amounting to one hundred and seventy-five dollars were left at The Examiner office on Saturday.

The greatest thing that can be said of the people of Haileybury is that they are true Canadians. The indomitable courage which they have shown throughout this greatest ordeal that the North Country has ever passed through stamps them as possessing that dogged fighting spirit which never knows defeat and which has been handed down to us from our forefathers as one of Canada's greatest assets. The quiet courage with which these people took up the tremendous task of rebuilding the homes that now lie in ashes and accepting this task in the face of an approaching winter will in the future form one of the epics of Canadian history.

The Examiner, the Red Cross, the Fire Department and other organizations are accepting donations for the fire sufferers and will see that such aid as is offered is forwarded immediatly to where it will do the most good. Those who wish to give but who cannot bring their offerings in persons need only telephone any of the organizations named and a messenger will be sent.

Money is badly needed to help rebuild the fire-stricken homes and buy other necessary supplies. Winter clothing and blankets are needed for men, women and children. Give and give now, for now is when it will do the most good.

LITTLE FOLKS HAVE SYMPATHETIC HEARTS

Set Example in Raising Funds For Fire Sufferers Worthy of Emulation on Large Scale.

Four little people gave a lantern slide concert on Friday night in aid of the Northern Ontario Fund. They were quite successful and turned into the fund this morning $4.50.

Those responsible for the concert were Roger Amys, Virginia French, Josephine Dobbin and Jack Dobbin. It was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Dobbin, Stewart street.

Largest Yet.

The largest individual subscription yet sent in for the Fire Suffers in Northern Ontario was received by the Examiner on Saturday, when fifty dollars was placed to the credit of the fund by the secretary of the Coldsprings (Otonabee) Union Sunday school.

The Sunday school has, comparatively speaking, a small membership, but they are always deeply interested in matters of this kind and can be found to have contributed liberally on different occasions.

Cash Badly Needed.

The Examiner has received this morning a subscription of nineteen dollars to the Northern Ontario Fire Fund, together with the following letter:

"Oct. 23rd, 1922.

"Mr. R. M. Glover, Managing Director of the Peterborough Examin, Peterborough, Ont.:

"Dear Sir,—Please find attached my check for $19.00 to be applied to the Northern Ontario Relief Fund. This amount results as subscription by the staff of the Peterborough men.

"I trust that you may be successful in raising a large amount toward this fund as I am sure it must be very badly needed.

"Wishing you success, I remain,
"Very truly yours,
"John I. Allan,
"Superintendent."

Beans and Coffee "Y" Girls' Dinner

On Saturday afternoon the girls of the Senior Gymnasium Class of the Y.W.C.A. took their first hike for the season, when between 20 and 25 girls of the class went to Nassau, where they prepared a real camp dinner of beans and coffee over a real camp fire. Miss Littlefield, who chaperones the girls, is planning a series of these hikes through the fall season, the length of the tramps to increase as the girls become accustomed to them.

BRITISH ADMIRAL TOURING CANADA

Admiral C. E. Byron Gave Distinguished Service in Late War.

QUEBEC, Oct. 23.— Among the prominent passengers aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Minnedosa, when she docked here from Europe, was Admiral C. E. Byron of London, England, on a visit to Canada, first going direct to Toronto. Admiral Byron, was in charge of all transport arrangements during the late war, with headquarters at Marseilles, France. He is a gentleman known for his distinguished services in the British navy and considering the fact that he is still in active service, was not to be interviewed.

HAMBURG'S POOR MAY GET GOVERNMENTAL HELP.

HAMBURG, Oct. 23.—(Associated Press).—Two hundred and eighty million marks are required to help the poor of Hamburg city and state through the winter, according to an estimate of the public welfare office which has been submitted to the State Senate.

This sum would include the following provisions: 100,000,000 for general welfare activities, 20,000,000 for war sufferers, 50,000,000 for fuel for the needy, 10,000,000 for clothing and shoes, 25,000,000 for reducing the prices of milk, 4,000,000 for lowering the cost of foodstuffs, 30,000,000 for the establishment and conduct of schiil children's feeding, and 5,000,000 for aiding aged persons and limited wage-earners.

The likely sources of these funds have not yet been specified, although large contributions are expected from the central government.

YOUNG CHAMPS ARE GUESTS OF ROTARY TODAY

Maple Leafs, Winners of Ontario Midget Title, Are Guests of Honour at Luncheon.

A MERITED TRIBUTE

It was baseball day with the Peterborough Rotary Club to-day, when Manager Chas. Curtis, and the members of his Maple Leaf Club, the Midget Champions of Ontario, were the guests of honour at the weekly luncheon. The youngsters were given a royal reception when introduced to the Rotarians, whose applause showed they appreciated the prowess of the Maple Leafs in bringing an Ontario championship to Peterborough. Alex. Kay, well-known umpire and baseball authority, was the principal speaker of the day, telling the members of the Rotary Club something of the recent history of baseball in this city, while Rotarian Dr. A. W. McPherson outlined the work of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association and appealed for support for that organization in the membership campaign which will be inaugurated this month.

Rotarian V. J. McElderry presided to-day and there was an 87 per cent. attendance of members.

Miss Marjorie Ingall delighted the gathering with a splendid recitation, "Bobby Shafto" that was greeted with much applause.

In introducing Mr. Kay, Rotarian McElderry paid a high tribute to that gentleman's services on behalf of baseball.

Mr. Kay in a comprehensive address, sketched the great development that had taken place in baseball in this city since the organization of the City League by Mr. J. J. Solomon in 1917. A steady growth had taken place until this year Peterborough had been represented in four series of the Ontario championships and the C.G.E. were within one game of the intermediate honours, while the Maple Leafs had already captured the Midget title. Netx year it was hoped to have teams not only in these four series, but in the bantam and juvenile divisions as well, and Mr. Kay asked the Rotary Club to father one of the teams in the bantam class next summer.

The speaker was loud in his praises of the conduct of Peterborough's young ball players on the field. During all the games he had umpired he had never heard a profane word on the diamond from the youngsters and it was evident that they were brought up to play the game. Peterborough, he thought, had more promising baseball material than any other centre in the province and he urged the Rotary Club to assist in its development. Mr. Kay also called attention to the splendid assistance given by the P.A.A.A.

Rotarian Dr McPherson outlined the activities of the P.A.A.A. in the various lines of sports and declared that the principal object of the Association was to provide healthful recreation and exercise for the people of Peterborough of all classes and of both sexes. He told of what had been accomplished in reviving lacrosse and rugby and in assisting baseball and other sports and called attention to the membership campaign which it was hoped would bring the membership up to at least 1500.

Thanks to the skill with the shot gun of Rotarian Chris. Graham, wild duck had a prominent part in to-day's menu.

MRS. SAM. ROBERTS BURIED ON SUNDAY.

Funeral in Port Hope of Mr. Wm. Roberts' Mother

The funeral of Mrs. Samuel Roberts, mother of Mr. William Roberts, Westcott street, Peterboro, who is an employee of the "Examiner," was held on Sunday afternoon, from her home in Port Hope, to the Union cemetery in that town, and was very largely attended.

Among those present were Mr. Wm. Roberts and his wife, their daughter, Mrs. C. W. Clarke, and Mr. Walter Libby, all of Peterboro.

Referring to the death of Mrs. Roberts, the Port Hope Guide paid the following tribute:

"Another aged saint of God has passed to her heavenly inheritance in the person of Mrs. Samuel Roberts, Brown street. The dear old lady celebrated her 92nd birthday last May and up to about a week ago was able to be around the house and was very bright and cheerful, and it was a great pleasure to call and have a chat with her. She was born in England and came to this country with her husband and young family many years ago, and has made Port Hope her home ever since. She was an exceedingly kind neighbor and many a life has been made brighter by her ministratinons. The late Mrs. Roberts was a member of the Methodist church, and for many years engaged in its activities, especially in the Missionary Society of which seh was a member. To mourn the loss of a devoted mother, there are three sons and two daughters, to whom the sympathy of the community is extended.

One Dealer Sells Bread at Sixteen Cents Large Loaf

A Charlotte street grocer, at least, is trying to equalize bread prices here with those of larger centres. For sixteen cents a large loaf, a good quality of bread can be purchased at his store, a price nearly approximating to the fourteen-cent loaf of Toronto.

ANNUAL CHURCH PARADE RANGERS

Rev. James Rollins, Chaplain of the Regiment, Addressed the Men.

The annual church parade of the Peterborough Rangers took place yesterday morning to St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, where the members, together with representatives of other military organizations in the city, were addressed by the chaplain of the regiment, Rev. Jas. Rollins. The men, all in uniform, were in charge of Lt.-Col. A. W. MacPherson, O. C.

An appropriate text formed the basis of Rev. Mr. Rollins' address, in an extract from Isaiah, 13:12, "I will make man more precious than fine gold." God, said the speaker, is working with His people to make a perfect kingdom for Himself, and if we are to have a powerful nation, we must have sons and daughters of strong spirituality. A nation may have high walls, strong armour and powerful military forces and still be weak if the men of that nation lack courage, and the bread of the nation depends on the morals and the religious beliefs of its people. A country that may be considered rich and great according to material standards may still be weak in moral force.

In conclusion, Mr. Rollins expressed his belief in the fine character of the Canadian Militia, and urged that we shoulder responsibility with God in His great task of making men more precious than fine gold, and to give more attention to the religious and social formation of character in the young.

Special music was rendered by the choir at yesterday's services, and Mrs. M. H. Park sang very beautifully "Watchman, What of the Night?"

GEORGE ST. CHURCH JAMMED TO DOORS

Large Congregation to Hear Madame Fahey Sing Two Beautiful Hymns.

George street Methodist church saw one of the largest congregations in its history last night, when the large edifice was jammed to the doors with the people who attended the evening services. Madame Lugrin Fahey rendered two beautiful hymns in "The Ninety and Nine" and "No Night There". Rev. Mr. Young preached an inspirational sermon, follwing out thep resent series with an address on "What lies beyond the grave?" Prefacing his remarks with a reference to some of the difficulties which confront a belief in eternity he went on to emphasize the things which make it inevitable, treating his subject from four angles; (1) the Bible clearly promises it. (2) It is required by the rationality of the universe, as it is unthinkable that matter should be preserved and the most previous possession of all be allowed to drop out. (3) It is required by the justice at the heart of things. Justice is not rendered here, and obviously another world is required to balance the inequalities of the earthly state. (4) It is absolutely inevitable if one believes in thelove of God, "if ye, being evil, know how to care for your loved ones asd would give all and more than all, to keep them with you, how much more will your Heavenly Father insist on having His loved onec with Him for all eternity.

At the morning service, when Mr. Young was absent at Centreville, Rev. A. H. McConnachie, pastor of South Monaghan Presbyterian Church, preached a feeling sermon on the love of God. A large congregation attended this service also, at which Mme. Fahey sang twice; "Behold, what manner of love", and "Leave it with Him".

POURING RAIN HELD UP TORONTO VOTERS.

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Pouring rain accompanied the voting to-day in the Ontario Legislature by the election in the thickly populated urban constituency of South-West Toronto, made vacant by the death of John O'Neill, Liberal. Four candidates are on the ballot paper: Col. John A. Currie, former M.P., Conservative, for North Simcoe; Claude Pearce, endorsed Liberal nominee; John Callaghan, Independent Liberal, and Trevor Maguire, Labor. This morning's voting was light, probably to some extent on account of the unfavorable weather.

MEMORIAL HERE IN MEMORY OF DENHAM FAMILY

Two Handsome Exterior Lamps, Gift of the Late Mrs. W. H. Denham—Former Residents Here

THE INSCRIPTION

That the exterior of St. John's Anglican church has been appreciably and serviceably embellished is due to the generosity of the late Mrs. Claribel B. Denham, who left a cash bequest to the church to be appropriated at the discretion of its executive. A portion of the bequest —$375—has been applied to procuring two handsome lamps, now erected just at the head of the broad cement steps leading to the front entrance of this sacred edifice, one at each side. Rising seven feet high and mounted on solid stone pillars, these lamps, bronze in base structure and octagonal lantern in illuminating top design are fittingly in keeping with the antique build of old St John's. An inset tablet in the east pillar carries the following inscription: "These lamps are erected in memory of William H. Denham, Claribel B. Denham and Donald P. Denham." The lamps were made at the Toronto factory of the Canadian General Electric Company, and are a credit to their manufacturers, St. John's church and this city. They will be dedicated a week from next Sunday, the Sunday following this church's annual dedication festival.

The late Mrs. Denham was a loyal member of and faithful worker in St. John's church for years, during the time that her husband, Mr. W. H. Denham, also a member of the church, and who predeceased her, was manager of the local Quaker Oats Co. Their only son, Donald P., a worker in St. John's Sunday school, died in early young manhood, a victim in the 'flu epidemic here a few years ago.

FIRST SESSIONS IMPORTANT BODY KEENE VILLAGE

The Campbellford District Religious Educational Council Met and Planned Extensive Operations.

KEENE, Oct. 23.—The Campbellford District Religious Educational Council held its first sessions in the Methodist Parsonage on Friday afternoon. Rev. A. MacLaychlin, B.A., B.D., of Keene, was in the chair. Rev. W. R. Archer, B.A., of Stirling, was acting secretary.

Plans were completed for Sunday School Institutes and Epworth League Conventions on the afternoons and evenings of November 7, 8, and 9 at Westwood, Stirling and Campbellford respectively.

This committee has oversight of all Sunday and week night activities of the district, representing the separate organizations for promoting the units, and carrying on under unified "Programme of Religious Education" for the local church.

Campbellford district has 35 Sunday schools with 3,211 scholars and 287 teachers, a total of 3,508; 1,100 of these are church members, many of whom joined during the year; 4,140 lesson helps and papers are required, practically all of which are published by the Church Book-room.

The givings of the Sunday schools for 1921-22 were: For general Sunday School Fund, $501; Methodist Missionary Fund, $662; school purposes, $3,665, other purposes, $394—total, $4,222.

Twenty-nine schools held Rally Day; 23 are open the year round.

The Young People's Societies of the district include 5 junior organizations, with 176 memebrs; 11 older boys and girls of ages 12 to 17, with 295 members; 11 Young People's organizations, with 503 members of 18 years of age and upwards. $842 was raised for missions and $660 for other purposes.

The Sunday schools and Y.P.S. support Rev. W. R. McWilliams, B.A., and wife, at Kanazawa and Toyoma, Japan.

The committee is under the chairmanship of Rev. Andrew MacLaughlin, district secretary for religious education of Keene, who was president of Peterborough Epworth League from 1917 to 1920. The members are: Rev. H. B. Kenny, chairman of the district; President of District Epworth League, H. E. Hulin, of Stirling; also 7 superintendents as follows: General Sunday School Efficiency, A. Winter, Campbellford; Elementary Teachers, Mrs. Dr. Watt, Stirling; Intermediate and Senior Boys, A. C. Denike, Havelock; Intermediate and Senior Girls, Miss G. Payne, Campbellford; Young People's Department, Rev. S. A. Kemp, Warkworth; Missions, Rev. E. V. Seymour, Havelock.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Kindred, Mrs. (Rev.) MacLauchlan, Keene; Mrs. H. Borland, Indian River, and Rev. W. R. Archer, of Stirling, attended Friday as corresponding members.

HERMINE OF RUESS OF AN OLD FAMILY.

BERLIN, October 23. (Associated Press.) — Since the announcement of the engagement of former Emperor William to Princess Hermine of Ruess, there are many stories being told of the early life of the Princess and members of her family.

The family of Ruess carries its history back to a period several centuries before that of the Hohenzollerns. Her father the 22nd reighing prince of his line, always held the reputation of hating the House of Hohenzollern and all its works.

When Princess Hermine was four years old her mother died, and the child with her three sisters and a brother were brought up in mediaval surroundings by their father. The sisters are said to have been dressed in little better than rags and to have lived in the almost bare rooms of a castle which their father refused to heat during the winter months.

The sisters on growing up rebelled against the tyranny of their parent and all married against his wishes. Marie married an Austrian cavalry officer, Baron Guagnoni; Enima married Count Kuenigle, and now lives in Hungary, and Ida married Prince Zu Stolberg Rosla. Princess Hermine's husband, Prince Von Schonaich Carolath came from a family whose history can be traced back to the 12th century.

The male members of the Reuss family all bear the name of Henry, each one being numbered. By an arrangement made in 1701 the senior line to which the Princess Hermine belongs continues this enumeration up to a hundred and then begins with the next born as Henry I. The Junior branch, however, counts from the beginning of each century, when the first born is named Henry I. December closes the century's list, no matter how far short of the hundred mark the names may be. The brother of Princess Hermine is Henry XXIV.

During the hunting season there is a demand for wireless fences.

Fishermen's Race Ends in A Mix-up--Will Be Resailed

Boats Started When Told Not to and Continued With the Race When Told to Stop — Race Again To-Day.

TOO MUCH SAIL.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press). — Confirmation yesterday by the International Committee, through its Chairman, Wilfred W. Lufkin, of the Sailing Committee's ruling, in calling Saturday's opening contest for the International Fishermen's Trophy no race, coming after twenty-four hours of furious controversy, definitely cleared the decks for a resumption today of this year's series.

Saturday's contest got away to a poor start when it was found that the Henry Ford, Captain Clayton Morrissey, the American challenger, was still spreading 135 square feet more canvas than was permitted under the rules. Her owners had agreed to dispense with 437 square feet, the amount by which she overtopped the limit allowed her on the basis of her waterline length, but in re-cutting the mainsail the mistake was made of removing one cloth instead of two. The second cloth was being removed by sailmakers yesterday afternoon. Captain Angus Walters of the Canadian defender, Bluenose, which had been found to comply with all the regulations, spent the day quietly with his brother, living a few miles out of Gloucester.

Then when the Sailing Committee took charge early Saturday morning, they decided that the Ford might not be able to make the line in time. Consequently they ordered a signal hoisted from the American destroyer, Paulding, acting as a committee boat, postponing the race one-half hour to ten-thirty. At ten o'clock the original time set for the starting of the race, this signal was properly taken in, but the red flage which was to have acted as a halfhour preparatory signal was not hoisted. Moreover it was decided to blow the destroyer's whistle instead of firing a preparatory gun. As there were some twenty to twenty-five steamers lying about, each endowed with a whistle, this added somewhat to the confusion of the skippers engaged in the hundred and one details of jockeying for a start.

The sun, lying directly in line with the schooners and destroyer, completed the work and the upshot was that the contestants got away despite frantic efforts on the part of the committee to recall them. Finally it was decided to send a coastguard cutter to warn the skippers they would have to return in order to make it a race. Bluenose to leeward and somewhat astern was the first boat hailed. Angus immediately gave orders to clew up his foretopsail and lower his staysail, the necessary preliminary to coming about, and t he work was actually in progress when Russell Smith, official American observer aboard the defender, interposed with the remark that he had something to say about the race and that it should be continued. He megaphoned the same advice to the speeding Ford. Walters acquiested, Morrissey followed suit, and the race continued without the sanction of the committee. In the wake of the schooners thronged countless craft from steamers to sailing dories.

The committee abandoned the anchored destroyed, forming one end of starting line were in a quandary as to what they should do. They decided to order a second destroyer to bar the way of the racing schooners and to arrange to tow them back to the starting line. These instructions were actually being wig-wagged when some one suggested that as the wind was not more than eight knots, gave no evidences of increasing and the course provided for a ten-mile beat to windward, it was a sheer impossibility for the leading schooner to finish within the time limit. He added that in order not to disappoint the thousands who had come out to see the contest, perhaps the easiest way out would be to let the schooners go to it. The committee, looking for an easy way out of the dilemma, adopted the suggestion—halted the signalman doing daily dozens from his pulpit on the bridge, ordered up the mudhook and set out to officially supervise an unofficial race.

The Ford was having much the better of the encounter when the committee boat reached the vicinity of the first mark. The Canadian's long suit is not running off the wind in light airs. Margaret K. Smith beat her even more decisively than did the Gloucesterman under simllar conditions in the Nova Scotia elimination series. Bluenose steadily dropped behind the lightly ballasted Ford and as the wind hauled southerly with each succeeding mark, making every leg a reach, the disparity between the two boats on this point of sailing in light weather became more apparent. At the fourth mark with but five miles to go, Ford had established a lead of twelve minutes and fourteen seconds. She also had made it clear that barring accidents she would finish within the time limit, expiring at five o'clock. This made for a very serious consultation aboard the official destroyer. The committee decided it was not their day. Not only had the skippers refused to do their bidding, but the wind had persistently declined to hold true. Ignored by the racers and doublecrossed by the wind, they ordered the destrofer into port, leaving the finish line in the air. They also took the precaution at that time of advising every one and sundry by wireless that the race had been off all day.

Later, as the racing schooners were making a laborious way into the harbor the committee took off the skippers and official observers for a final heart to heart talk. Angus told them he was satisfied with the race. He said the Ford had won fairly and should be given her due. He had disobeyed the instructions because the representatives of the American committe aboard his boat, had told him to do so. Clayton Morrissey of the Ford said that since he and Angus both agreed the race had been fairly won he would go fishing Monday unless they reserved their decision. He has disobeyed instructions, because Angus had disobeyed his. The committee advised they would require more time to consider the matter and this particular meeting broke up.

Later the committee announced from the master mariners headquarters that their decision held. Then they made their way to their various homes as best they could through streets thronged with gesticulating individuals discussing the cons of the day's entertainment. Today the skippers will certainly keep a weather eye on the bridge of the committe boat and possibly the weather man will prove more kind.

PROGRESSIVES REFUSE TO JOIN LIBERAL PARTY

Liberals Have Made Definite Offers As Inducements to Fusion Between the Two Parties.

CRERAR'S POSITION.

REGINA, Oct. 23.— (Canadian Press)—The meeting of the Provincial Committee of the Progressive Party of Saskatchewan here on Saturday unanimously went on record by resolution as being definitely opposed to any relationship between the Progressive and Liberal Parties closer than which existed during the last session of Parliament.

It was established at the meeting that a definite offer of representation in the Liberal Cabinet had been made to Progressives as inducement to fusion between the two parties.

A statement that this was so made at the meeting by R. H. Milliken, Secretary of the Progressive Party in the Province. The exact nature of the proposals was not divulged owing to the presence of the press.

The position of Hon. T. A. Crerar with reference to the leadership of the party will be made clear before November 23, the date of the next meeting of the shareholders of the United Grain Growers, of which he is president. Thomas Teare, retiring Vice-President of the Saskatchewan Progressive party told the committee that Mr. Crerar would, before then, make up his mind either to resign his position as president of the United Grain Growers, or that of party leader.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press)—Admiral Sir Algernoon De Horsey died at Cowes yesterday.

Admrla De Horsey had been Deputy Governor of the Isle of Wight since 1913. He was 95 years old. He was senior naval officer during the Jamaica insurrection of 1865 and the Fenian Raids on the lakes of Canada in 1886. He was commodore of the British Fleet in the West Indies from 1872 to 1875 and Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific fleet from 1876 to 1879. During his command in the Pacific his flagship, the Shah, engaged the Peruvian rebel ironclad Huascar and forced it to surrender to the Peruvian authorities. The question of the Admiral's action was debated in Parliament, but De Horsey was justified for what he did. The admiral was placed on the retired list in 1892.

LOST AT SEA.

RIGA, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press)—The Russian armored criusers Rossiya and Gromboi and several other vessels have been lost in a storm in the Baltic Sea.

Fourteen Children Perish in the Flames

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press) — Fourteen persons, most of them children lost their lives early yesterday in a fire, believed by city officials to bt the work of a pyromaniac. The flames swept with murderous suddenness from cellar to attic of a five storey brick tenement at Lexington Avenue and 110th Street, in the thickly-populated East Side.

The blaze apparently started in a baby carriage under the stairs of the lower hall under almost identical circumstances as the recent incendiary fire in an upper West Side apartment house which resulted in seven deaths. So quickly did the flames shoot through the building that a number of the dead were found in bed, burned or suffocated without the slighest opportunity to escape.

LINDSAY MAN MET DEATH IN SCUGOG

Deceased enlisted during the early part of the war and remained in the service until the close. He was well known and his untimely death will be regretted by a wide circle of friends.

BARN DESTROYED IN OPS TOWNSHIP.

De Laval Won An Easy Game From Comrades.

LINDSAY, Oct. 23.—On Saturday afternoon fire destroyed the barn and contents of John Ruck of Ops Township. The farm is situated on the outside of the northern limits of Lindsay. Threshers were working on the farm at the time and it is believed the fire was caused by a spark from the threshing engine. The season's crop of grain, including the grain separator, were destroyed. The threshing outfit was owned by Mr. Dunn of Cameron, Ontario. The insurance on the property had expired about two weeks ago, and at the time of the fire had not been renewed. The barn and contents will be a total loss.

Frank Walker, who was in the barn at the time, had a narrow escape.

CURRENCY WILL BE RETURNED TO THE GOLD BASIS

Canadian Dollar Worth More Than U.S. Bill So Special War-Time Legislation Will Be Repealed.

EMBARGO ON GOLD.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press)—The coming session of parliament it is thought is likely to see the repeal or modification of some remaining financial war legislation and the formal return of Canadian currency to a gold basis. At the present time, under war legislation still in force, the government is not required to redeem Dominion notes in gold—an embargo first imposed by order-in-council under the War Measures Act and then, after the war, continued by satute. These steps were taken to conserve in the country the available supply of gold and have been continued during the reconstruction period to ensure against depletion of the gold reserves.

Recent spectacular improvements in Canadian exchange however, are raising the question whether it would be advisable to return to prewar conditions in regard to redemption in gold. When Canadian funds were at heavy discount in United States, there existed the probability had the war legislation not been continued, that the gold reserve would be heavily depleted by presentation of Canadian notes. But, instead, of being at discount, the Canadian dollar it now at a slight premium as compared with the American dollar and it is argued there is not the same necessity for continuance of the legislation.

The question is one which Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, will no doubt consider carefully on his return and any action recommended in Parliament would be dependent on financial conditions existing at the time.

LECTURE COURSE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Interesting Series to Be Given By Rev. Dr. Meyers

The introductory lecture to the course on Aspects of Hebrew Literature, which is being given on Tuesday evenings by Rev. Dr. Meyer, was heard by an attentive audience in the Art Room of the Public Library last Tuesday. The lecturer discussed the peoples and their location, belonging to the Semitic group in ancient and modern times, the falacy of the Anglo-Isralites, the discoveries of archaeologists in Mesopotamia, the rise and spread of Mohammedanism, the original home of Semitic peoples. He then went on to deal with poetry in general as the earliest form of literature among all nations, and why so? As peoples early pass through a period of struggle, if they survive it, they begin to compose songs of the deeds of their heroes and war songs. Each nation has a cycle of such songs and poems. The English, The Arthurian Cycle; the French, The Orlando Cycle, etc. So the earliest Hebrew books in the Old Testament quote from a collection of poems called "The Book of the Wars of Jah." As to the martial deeds of heroes, however, the stories of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob are not very warlike. Are these, however, the earliest heroic idols of the Hebrews? This question will be answered in the next lecture. The lecturer read one of the older Hebrew poems, the Prophesy of Balaam in the Revised Version, showing that it was looked on by the literary critic as a commemoration of the warlike achievements of Israel already realised rather than a forecast, though its literary form was that of a forecast by a seer of Midian. What is it that constitutes the lifference between poetry and prose? Not rhyme; rather meter, the use of figurative or metaphorical language, personification of forces of nature, virtues, vices, etc., and the suggestion of much thought in few words, to those who know. Meter is lost in translation, but the other characteristics are abundantly illustrated in Hebrew poetry, as we have it in the Old Testament, which, because this language, through its lack of abstract terms, is compelled to use figurative language for all abstract ideas, is particularly rich in figures of speech. Some of the most beautiful selections of Hebrew poetry were quoted in translation illustrating different varieties of verse, as The Sword Dance, War Songs, Riddles or Proverbs, Dirges, and Prophetic Poems. The second lecture will be given on Tuesday, 24th inst., at the Library.

Lloyd George Defends the Action of His Government

Ex-Premier is Given An Enthusiastic Reception at Leeds — Did Not Reveal His Future Policy.

PLANS NOT MADE.

LEEDS, Oct. 23.—(Associated Press).—In a characteristic speech before a sympathetic audience on Saturday, David Lloyd George defended his administration, but refrained from revealing his programme. He spoke strongly of the past, but vaguely of the future. Apparently his plans are not yet formed, or he feels that the time is not ripe for disclosing them.

He promised the people that whatever the future might bring he would do nothing mean or paltry, declaring:

"I will play no part that is unworthy of the confidence placed in me by the people of this country at the greatest moment in the Empire's history."

Mr. Lloyd George did not say specifically that it was his purpose to lead the Liberal body; he did refrain, as at Manchester, from endorsing Austen Chamberlain's pronouncement that the Labor party was a menace to the country. After reviewing the achievements of his Government in war and peace, and particularly holding up its success in scoring Great Britain's commercial prestige, he exclaimed:

"And they have smashed the combination that has pulled through our trade, our commerce and our credit throughout the world; it is a crime against the nation."

He voiced a warm tribute to his Chancellors of the Exchequer, Mr. Chamberlain and Sir Robert Stevenson Horne, and paid his compliments to the anti-waste outcry, declaring that its leaders gave no help when it came to enforcing specific economies. He passed over lightly the word "revolution," which is the spear-point of Mr. Chamberlain's attack on Labor, and asserted that the Government had dealt successfully with industrial crisis after crisis and now had got peace throughout the industrial world.

One of his keenest phrases was: "We are just beginning to look the dollar in the face on equal terms," after claiming the approach of Sterling exchange toward normal as one of the important works of the Government.

Enthusiasts recently accused the retiring Premier of coldness toward the League of Nations, but he eulogized that as another of the Government's great works. He had good words for the Washington agreement and for the Unionists who cooperated in the Irish settlement.

A typical passage was: "Education for the people; housing difficulties; disarmaments; peace with Ireland; more liberty in India—these are not things that sound well in Mayfair, and they have no special appeal in Belgravia. . . . . It is really cheerful to know that when you have been spending your strength as I have for years in trying to serve your country, you aren't forgotten the first time a resolution is passed against you at a West-End club."

The meeting was held in Kimena Hall, a moving picture place, because it was the largest hall in Leeds. In this darkened auditorium the limelight was turned upon Mr. Lloyd George literally. The crowds were immense and there was no mistaking the warmth and affectionate nature of their greeting. Characteristic as the speech was as far as it went, it lacked personalities, which usually give a spice to Mr. Lloyd George's platform appearance. He had no words for his enemies; Mr. Bonar Law had been his friend, and was still his friend. He declared that no one who might possibly join in the Georgian caravan could be offended by anything he said today. A much greater assembly was outside the hall than the 3,000 fortunate ones who managed to get tickets.

In the morning, accompanied by several members of Parliament, Mr. Lloyd George laid a wreath at the foot of the Leeds war memorial; then lunched with the Lord Mayor at the Town Hall before the ceremony of conferring the freedom of the city. His arrival at the hall, accompanied by Mrs. Lloyd George and their daughter, Meghan, was a signal for an outburst of real campaign enthusiasm which was repeated by those gathered within.

Lord Airdale, who presided, presented Mr. Lloyd George as "a great statesman," who, through the severest crisis in history, had been the pillar of the people's hope and the centre of the world's desire."

The proceedings began with the customary British ritual for such occasions, the singing of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." In acknowledging the vote of thanks from the meeting, Mr. Lloyd George said:

"I have been very much encouraged by the kindness which I have received in many quarters. I have never in the whole of my experience witnessed such a spectacle as the crowds at the stations which met me on my way to Leeds. I do not believe that the people of this country will take their marching orders. I do not believe the people of this country will order their army at such a bidding. (Referring to the resolution of the Unionists). And whatever happens in the next few weeks I cheerfully stake my appeal on the people of this country."

DOURO HOME IN ASHES AND ALL CONTENTS LOST

Hynes Homestead Near Lakefield Totally Destroyed on Saturday Night.

ORIGIN UNKNOWN.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 22.—A contributor last week to the Haileybury Relief Fund, Mrs. Michael Hynes of Douro lost all her household goods in a fire that destroyed her home and its contents on Saturday night about 8 o'clock. The family were sitting together downstairs, when they heard a noise in one of the rooms above that sounded like an explosion. Opening the door leading to the stairway, Mrs. Hynes discovered that the whole upped part of the house was on fire.

Fortunately none of the children had been put to bed, and the family escaped without difficulty, but were unable to save any ot their furniture or other belongings. Mr. Michael Hynes was working away from home at the time, but his mother Mrs. Morris Hynes was with the family and was ill with a cold. It was feared yesterday that pneumonia might devlop from her experience.

The Hynes homstead was a log building about a mile east of Lakefield in Douro township. The origin of the fire that reduced it to ashes and left the family homeless was a complete mystery to them. Mrs. B. Q. Dench, one of the oldest neighbors, offered the Hynes family immediate comfort and shelter in their distress. Only last week Mrs. Hynes had contributed a bundle of blankets and bedding to the Haileybury Relief Rund. Today she is homeless and all her belonging are gone.

Women of some 50 nations now whiten teeth in this way

Do you know that millions of people, all the world over, are now cleaning teeth in a new way? One result is whiter, prettier teeth. You see them everywhere today.

If you don't know that method, we urge you to make this delightful test. See what it means to you.

Why teeth discolor

Teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it now. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film, which no ordinary tooth paste can effectively combat. So, under old methods, tooth troubles constantly increased, and beautiful teeth were less often seen than today.

Two combatants now

Dental science, after long research, found two ways to fight film. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. These two great film combatants were embodied in it. Now this Pepsodent has come into world-wide use, largely by dental advice.

Other new effects

Other results were found to be essential, and Pepsodent brings them. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits, for they may ferment and form acids.

Thus every use gives manifold power to these great natural tooth-protecting agents. And these combined effects are fast creating a new dental era.

You'll quickly see

These benefits are quickly seen and felt. One week will convince you that Pepsodent does what nothing else has done. The results will amaze and delight you.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

You will soon realize that this method is important, both to you and yours. And, when you know that, you will not return to ineffective ways. Cut out the coupon now.

THE GRAND JURY'S WORK.

The general feeling seems to be that the Grand Jury at the local Assizes did a splendid bit of service in exposing the conditions at the County House of Refuge.

Their report will lead to reforms and improvements that are evidently needed, and the aged people housed in the institution will have reason to remember the Grand Jury of 1922.

A lot of people have at various times expressed wonderment that Grand Juries should still form part of the legal machinery, and intimated that they were unnecessary and of little service.

Last week's jury rather gave the lie to such complaints.

The jury not only saved a lot of time and expense in hearing a murder trial, in which it was evident there was little direct evidence against the accused, but it completed its work by visiting the various institutions with its eyes open and presenting a report that was constructive in its criticism.

There is obviously work for Grand Juries to do.

The trouble has been that many of such juries refuse to see the opportunity they are given to be of service and content themselves with a mere imitation of discharging their duty.

HELPING THE SETTLERS.

Consideration is to be given at the next session of Parliament to a proposal of granting new homesteads to settlers in Southern Alberta who have been unable, because of drought or other unfavorable conditions, to make a living on the land on which they originally settled. These settlers are to be moved to other land in the north of the province.

There will be every sympathy with these unfortunate people, who evidently were allowed to take up land where there was little chance of them succeeding.

At the same time, however, from an Eastern viewpoint, it looks as if the same concession as is proposed for the people of Southern Alberta might be extended to settlers elsewhere in Canada.

There is no need of going outside of Peterborough County to find people trying to snatch a living from land which gives them little in return for much labor.

The rocks and stumps of some part of our northern townships offer nothing in the way of encouragement to the people who live among them. Professor Zavitz once remarked that the grain grown under such conditions was raised with blood and tears, and if people in Alberta are to be given an opportunity, at the expense of the State, to locate on more favorable land, logic and justice should see to it that a similar chance is given to other people who are just as badly situated.

There are far too many such families in Ontario, and doubtless the other provinces have their share.

ARMISTICE DAY.

The mistake of combining the celebration of Armistice Day with Thanksgiving Day is becoming more and more obvious as various cities decide to ignore the official proclamation and observe the anniversary of the end of the Great War on the proper date, November 11.

Ottawa is the latest city to arrive at this decision, and it is announced that the celebration of the 11th will be the biggest of its kind that the Capital has known.

Those who appreciate the significance and importance of the proper observance of Armistice Day are a unit in maintaining that the actual anniversary should be celebrated. They point out that November 11th is a date of sufficient historic importance to be perpetually remembered by the Canadian people, and that to shift the celebration to Monday and combine it with Thanksgiving Day is a sacrifice on behalf of expediency that is not justified.

The Monday date, of course, makes a better holiday, but it is not holidays that Canada needs so much as a proper understanding and appreciation of the historic significance of the national days that are observed.

To thousands of Canadians, Dominion Day means nothing save a day off work or an opportunity to go fishing.

There is great danger of Armistice Day developing into the same kind of a holiday if the proper date is ignored and Thanksgiving Day used instead.

This is a question that should engage the attention of Parliament before the next anniversary rolls around.

"WOT A LIFE!"

The King of Roumania has been having a fine time; likewise the Queen and the gallant army and the jolly populace. We are uncertain as to the purpose of it, but with proper ceremonies the king put an iron crown on his royal bean and put a golden crown on the queen's lovely head, says the Chicago Tribune. Soldiers stood hours at attention, which is trying when the tailor wants it done, but warriors do it patiently.

One representative of the lusty peasantry stood up with the royal gang at the ceremonies and all the lustry peasantry cheered wildly at appropriate moments. The army galloped over the plains. The king and queen rode about on white chargers, milk-white chargers as they have in the fairy books.

Some kings have more luck than other kings. Many of them have gone into the twilight. Constantine now is in it somewhere, inquiring the way in the dusk, but it is high noon for the King of Roumania. This pleasant pomp of monarchy so relished by the jolly populace gives us a feeling of mental unrest. It is unpleasant to doubt the virtues of democracy, but we look about us and there is doubt.

We are trying to find a charm of life in hot dogs, flivvers, and pop. Our only public spectacle is that of Big Bill putting a crown of burdock in the taxpayer's hair. Our processionals are in the wheeled sardine cans in which the dejected populace goes to work. What animation is in the dreary crowds milling at street intersections or the moody voters going to register? What colour in "Igoe rakes up old exposé in coroner's office?" What excitement in Bob Sweitzer's campaign?

Sad-eyed and sentimentally starved, our people shove their 30 cents at the girl in the movie ticket window, seeking illusion and relief from their realities. They give up real money to see Doug Fairbanks as Robin Hood—hungry children flattening their noses against the baker's window and wishing they had some cream puffs.

Democracy is a survival of the Puritan idea that it is wrong to have too good a time. The Roumanians go to the crowning to see the king put on an iron bonnet. We can sit in the flat and read the report of the Municipal Voters' League.

ON GOING TO COLLEGE

The opening of the Universities has led President Faunce of Brown University, to make some remarks upon going to college which are worthy of close attention. He points out that there is not room in the universities for all those who wish to attend them, not so much because there are too many men, but because too many are often the wrong kind of men, says the Kingston Standard.

He thus emphasizes the point which many others, ourselves included, have frequently struggled to impress upon parents and upon young people. He says that the vast majority of young men "would profit far more by some other kind of education than that given in the traditional college." The president clearly shows what he means by this in saying that every large industrial enterprise now maintains its school for the education of employees, and the largest banks are giving their clerks certain hours for study. The deduction is that young men should consider at least before they decide to enter a university with a view of joining one of the "professions" whether those are not already over-crowded, and if it would not be wiser to train for some other occupation, such as trade and commerce and industrials offer in abundance to the right and efficient view.

The president points to the example of the Motherland upon which the American, and it might be said the Canadian universities were founded. There this question of education has arisen, and President Faunce says that is has been solved not by building more Oxfords and Cambridges, but by developing other types of training. He states that this is what the United States must do; and we might point out that this is exactly what Queen's is doing.

It must not, however, be gathered from this that President Faunce underrates or disparages in any way the value of a university education. Very far from it; but he claims that it is of no benefit unless it produces two things, horizon and mastery. He says that "most of us entered college with an experience that is real but extremely limited. We have lived in our own backyards and seldom looked over the fence. To enlarge that horizon until it covers all lands and centuries, until it covers the great domains of literature, science, history, philosophy and art is the first object of the college training." By master he means that a man should make it a point to master one subject, it may be a chemical process, or an economic question, and thus obtain the key to mastering others. With horizon and mastery the road is opened to leadership.

These remarks apply as much to Canada as to the States, and it might be said of all Canadians as much as to those among them who go to college. Canada has taken her place among the nations of the world, she is helping in guiding the destinies of the world. What Canada must have is men with broad horizons and mastery, who will become leaders.

PROTECTING CONSUMERS.

Merchants, wholesale and retail, as well as manufacturers, are objecting to legislation that is proposed at the Ontario House for the fixing of prices. The objection is made to the method mentioned, but the dealers and manufacturers say they have no objection to a price-fixing board, by the decisions of which they would abide.

The experience in Canada with this class of legislation has not been very satisfactory, and it is necessary to go carefully, for tinkering with business is not the most satisfactory line.

There is room for activity along some lines, though. For an example we may cite the case of coal buying. A manufacturer buys a number of cars of bituminous coal, and after he has started to use it his engineer comes in with the complaint that it is not satisfactory. Then it is necessary to call in the chemist to find out by analysis what the coal contains and what it does not contain, and after that the manufacturer can go ahead and fight the matter out with the man who sold him the coal.

The man who buys coal for domestic use—anthracite in any of its various sizes—has often had the same experience. He goes ahead and lights his fire, and after he burns the coal for a time finds that he has a very large number of clinkers, and that the coal will not hold overnight, because there is so much foreign substance that contains no volatile material at all. In most cases it results in a verbal battle between the customer and the coal man, and if there can be no agreement reached the best the customer can do is transfer his orders to some other yard.

We mentioned the case of coal because it is an item that is in the public mind right now, but there are other things that will readily suggest themselves to the mind of the consumer.

It is not a difficult matter to analyse coal. Many of the larger concerns protect themselves by buying coal on the basis of a specific analysis. Smaller firms have no chemists on their staff, and the householder has no chemist in his employ. A chemist can take a shovel of coal, pulverise it after weighing it, burn out under draft all the volatile material, weigh the remainder, and tell exactly what was in that shovel of coal, how much slate or shale or foreign substance, and what percentage of real heat-producing material was present.

The matter should be dealt with before it comes to to the retailer. In nearly every case the dealer acts in good faith. He simply takes the coal in and teams it out, and most of it he never sees. Companies shipping from the mines should be given to understand that when people pay present prices they are entitled to coal, and it is the duty of the authorities to see that they get it.—London Advertiser.

THE MYSTERY MIND

Arthur B. Reeve and John W. Grey

Dupont retraced the path threaded by Vera and Renard the day before, locating the tiny open space where he had found the unconscious Strangler. The gangster had disappeared, however, and there were no traces of footprints in the fringe of forest immediately about, or upon the wind-swept surface of moss and roots and matted leaves which constituted the shore for some distance beyond the strip of beach in either direction.

"What next?" asked Randolph. The little man was very chastened by the accident to the airplane; his attitude suggested that he felt at fault even for the lack of tangible evidence of the band's whereabouts.

Dupont took the glass which Renard and Vera had neglected to unsling from his shoulder when they lashed him to the sand. He began a careful inspection of lake and bay, of shore and woods; he even swept the distances over the trees for any sign of smoke.

Violet dropped to the ground, clasping her feet. There were tears in her eyes from the pain. Randolph saw her, and immediately insisted upon offering his own boots; in fact, began to unlace them.

She smiled, wistfully. "They'll be so awfully big" she protested.

"No" He grinned. "I've got little feet. I'm a little man, you know, even if I am strong and husky." He collected dried moss to pad the extra space about each foot, and he tore a sleeve from his shirt to make bandages for the worst of the cuts and bruises, first making her bathe them in the clear, fresh water, of the lake. "I used to go barefoot a lot," he added, when she still seemed unwilling to don the boots.

Dupont finished his inspection visibly disappointed. Then he brightened.

"They were going to bring the Strangler out for the same torture they gave me," he explained. "There will be footprints in that sand."

Violet shuddered, remembering her own experience at the delta. Randolph insisted that they hurry to the clearing first to pack up the meagre supply of food and to prepare to carry it upon their backs.

"If some one stumbles upon that we surely are out of luck," he remarked.

For all his assurances to Violet of the hardiness of his feet the adventurer walked with a gingerly step which brought grim smiles to the faces of both the others. Violet herself made her way with difficulty, due to the pain, but the stout leather gave her support and protection, shielding her nearly to the knees, and there meeting the torn edges of her trouser legs.

The sun was nearly at the meridan when they reached the delta once more. Dupont, less worn than the barefooted Randolph, stole out to search for footmarks in the sand.

He identified those of Vera and Renard and Evil Eye from the day before; he traced the arrival of Violet and Randolph and the departure of the three of his own party back in the direction of the lake. There were no additional prints.

Violet insisted that they rest and eat, and led them to a sheltered spot in the woods where they could watch the delta in case Evil Eye and his companions should return. While she fussed with the contents of their packs, womanlike, determining just how to ration and divide the food for Randolph's estimated three days, the adventurer achieved the ascent of a tall tree in his bare feet, Dupont's glass slung from his shoulder. From a vantage point in the very top he studied the lake at his back, the level stretch of forest leading to the mountains behind, and the rises and breaks in the hills themselves. After a while he slid to the ground. His confident manner had returned to a considerable degree.

The Long-Life Battery

The actual performance of a battery in your car and not a paper "guarantee" is what counts.

Since the days of the first storage battery (which was an Exide), the Exide has been earning its reputation as the long-life battery. Ask some Exide owner—they are all about you, for more cars leave the manufacturers' hands equipped with Exides than with any other battery.

The dependable, long-lasting power of the Exide means more to you even than comfort—it means dollars and cents economy.

When you get a new car you have a right to a battery of Exide quality—in other words, an Exide Battery. In replacing an old battery in your present car, insist on an Exide and if you have any trouble in getting one, write us or our nearest district distributor.

If you don't feel warranted in buying a new Exide Battery at this time, ask our nearest Service Station—before you consider getting a substitute make of battery—whether your present battery cannot be rebuilt with genuine

A MANVERS MAN IS RELEASED FROM JAIL

COBOURG, Oct. 23.—A few days ago Sheriff Nesbitt received a telegram from the acting under-secretary of state at Ottawa, stating that the Governor-General of Canada had authorized the immediate release of Joseph McCullough, serving a month's sentence in Cobourg gaol for breach of the inland revenue act. He was also fined $300, and the order stated that if the fine had not been paid, not to collect it. McCullough was sentenced on Sept. 28 to a month's sentence at Bowmanville by P. M. Horsey for operating a still. In addition to the month's sentence he was fined $300 and $37 costs, and, if the fine was not paid, he was to serve an additional six months' sentence. The fine was paid on October 2, consequently he will not have the fine thrown off.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. He contended that Canada, by the example she set with Prohibition, may yet save the rest of the Empire from the danger which threatens it.

SEVEN ABOVE ZERO IN APSLEY DISTRICT.

Potatoes May Hardly Be Worth Digging as a Result—Apsley News of Interest.

APSLEY, Oct. 23. — With a severe snow storm lasting all Tuesday night until 9 a.m. on Wednesday ,the pall of winter descended on the north country to a thickness of three inches on the level. During Wednesday night the temperature dropped to seven above zero, being only three degrees higher the following night. Many of the settlers have not yet dug their potatoes, and it is feared the severe frost which shows no sign of abating will have have made the harvesting of them hardly worth while.

Oyster Social.

An oyster social under the auspices of the Grace Methodist church, Lasswade, was held on Wednesday evening, but owing to the sudden cold snap, so few attended that it was not a financial success.

Sub Branch Formed.

A sub branch of the A.Y.P.A. was formed at Chandos on Tuesday evening when fifteen members joined. The Rev. C. Spence presided and gave an interesting talk on 'Radio,' which he repeated at Lasswade on Thursday evening, where another branch with an initiatory membership of twelve was launched.

Social Postponed.

Out of respect to the family of the deceased Mrs. John Taylor, a fowl social that was to have been held in Apsley on Monday evening under the auspices of the Methodist Ladies' Aid, was postponed.

Died in the West.

The sad news was received here by Mr. and Mrs. William Hales of the death of their daughter Myrtle (Mrs. John Taylor), at Eston, Saskatchewan. The deceased was very popular in and around Apsley, where she lived all her life until removing to the west about seven years ago, and the news of her untimely death was a great shock to a large circle of friends here. Besides her husband and two small children there are left of her her immediate family to mourn her loss, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Hales, three sisters, Mrs. Bert Lean, Peterborough, Mrs. Will Lean, Apsley, Mildred, and one brother, Russell, at home, to whom the profound sympathy of the whole community is extended in their sorrow.

LINKING THE AMERICANS.

North and South America will be joined more closely together when the Tropical Radio Telegraph Company has finished erecting its Tegucigalpa, Honduras, station. It will be one of the most powerful tube-transmitting stations on the western hemisphere. It will begin operations, its builders believe, by the beginning of next year.

"I suffered from a run-down system and nervous debility. I could not sleep or rest at night, and felt so weak I could not walk any distance. I took several tonics, but they only helped me while I was taking them. Sunday Services.

Rev. W. R. Archer, B.A., of the Methodist Church, Stirling, occupied the pulpit of the Methodist Church here on Sunday morning and evening, when unusually large congregations attended. Rev. Mr. Archer's morning subject was a missionary address, and in the evening he based his remarks on Romans, chapter 1, verse 16: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Jesus Christ." Mr. Archer's addresses were full of stirring gospel truth, and were much appreciated. He is moreover one of Campbellford's sons, having been born here while his father occupied the parsonage, and Campbellford feels proud of him, as he is one of the foremost ministers in this Conference.

Seymour East, Oct. 20.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Sarginson,—

Having learned that you are soon to leave our midst, and it is therefore with feelings of the deepest regret that we, your friends and neighbors have assembled here this evening to bid you farewell.

We have enjoyed our social life with you; you have ever been willing and capable to lend a hand in sorrow, sickness and death. We feel that we cannot express in words alone, as we would wish, our esteem for you, and our appreciation of all you have done; therefore we ask you to accept this gift as a small token of our appreciation and affection, with our kindred wishes for yourself and Mrs. Sarginson, in your new home.

As you are not removing far from us, we trust that we will meet in the coming years. and we assure you that our best wishes are going with you, and our sincere prayer is that God's choicest blessings may be yours for many years.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors: Allan Simpson, Morley Petherick.

Though taken entirely by surprise Mr. Sarginson replied most acceptably, thanking his friends on behalf of himself and Mrs. Sarginson for their kindness. The remainder of the evening was pleasantly spent in music, games, etc., the ladies serving dianty refreshments.

Burgar-Kennedy.

Autumn leaves, palms, ferns, golden 'mums and greenery, made the quaint old Anglican church in Campbellford, look even more beautiful than on Wednesday evening at eight-thirty, the marriage of Eleanor Jean only daughter of Mrs. Kennedy and the late T. The Rev. C. E. Clarke, M.A., performed the ceremony, and Mrs. C. H. Harris presided at the organ.

The bride entered with her cousin, Mr. Humphrey S. Grove of Ottawa, and was given away by her mother. She wore a gown of ivory crepe meteor and rose point lace, with long court train embroidered in pearls and crystals, lined with pink georgette.

The bridal veil of old rose point lace and tulle draped from a coronet of orange blossoms fell! softly to the end of the train. She carried a sheaf of Madonna lilies. FEW CHANGES IN PERSONNEL DOM. A.Y.P.A. OFFICERS.

Conference Just Closed One of Best in History of Council — Peterborough District Representation.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 21.—The A.Y.P.A. conference, which ranks as one of the most successful in the history of the Dominion Council, closed on Thursday afternoon. There are few changes in the personnel of the officers this year as the list shows.

Honorary President—The Primate of all Canada.

Past President — A. Calloway, Hamilton.

President—T. H. Hollingsworth, Toronto.

1st Vice President—W. R. Sproule Toronto.

2nd Vice President—Rev. Canon E. Appleyard, Woodstock.

3rd Vice President—Frank Boudon, Lachine.

Gen. Secretary—Miss Nora Powell, Toronto.

Assistant Secretary—Miss M. A. Down, Toronto.

Eastern Secretary—C. H. Jones, Montreal.

Western Secretary—Rev. S. Fea—Vancouver.

Treasurer — Miss B. Graham, Lakefield.

Publicity Secretary—W. de H. Hammond, Toronto.

Auditor—T. H. Marrow, Toronto.

The district of Peterboro is represented on the executive committee by: Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, Miss J. Horsefield, Rev. Geo. Bousfield, E. G. Brown, Peterboro; C. R. Spencer of Millbrook.

Rev. G. W. Tebbs of Burlington who was one of the most popular speakers at last years' conference, was also one of the outstanding figures this year. His address on "A.Y.P.A. Ruts and how to avoid them" was excellent, being clear cut and extremely practical.

Specially mentioned points were: (a) complicated machinery which left no room for anyone to really do the work, (b) the appointment of people on committees without regard to their fitness, (c) stale programmes, no variety, (d) not running according to schedule, (e) the rowdy element prevading the meeting. An Irishman being asked for a definition for steam replied "It's water gone crazy with the heat". The remedy of rowdyism is work and lots of it, (f) cliques are another rut which caused heartaches to many clergy, (g) late hours. The A.Y.P.A. is not a society of owls and bats and should break up in reasonable time, (h) lack of definite service. Other ruts touched were extravagance, lack of intercourse between branches and also of petering out and not fulfilling the ideals we started with .

All the Peterboro city and district delegates took in the trip to Niagara Fall on Wednesday afternoon and thoroughly enjoyed it.

A feature which was much enjoyed was that there was a special railway coach between Toronto and St. Catherines reserved for the A.Y.P.A. and the social intercourse made the trip very pleasant and also very lively. Chorus singing and branch yells helped to make the time pass pleasantly.

The pains of strains and sprains are due to congestions. Just quicken the circulation, and the inflammation and pain subside—disappear. Without rubbing, Sloan's penetrates and breaks up the painful congestion.

Sloan's relieves rheumatic pains, soothes neuralgia, warms and comforts tired, aching backs. Loosens congestion from colds in chest. Keep it handy.

A Profitable Goose

A Cavan farmer took a cow-hide to Millbrook to sell. While there he had his boots mended. It took the price of the cow-hide to pay for the repairs to his boots.

Mrs. Matchett, Miss Muriel Matchett and Mrs. Lang, were visitors to Peterboro on Saturday.

(By Stuart P. West.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 23. — (Special.)—To-day's break on the stock exchange could not be set down to any one cause, but rather to a combination of causes. One of these was the further extreme weakness in French exchange, which directed attention again in a rather unpleasant way to the uncertainty of French finances. Another was the slackening of the investment demand, which has been a noticeable feature all through the last month. Finally, there was the position within the market itself. Undoubtedly weaker because of the extravagances of the recent speculation in industrial, stocks, founded upon rumours of stock dividends which were either premature or else made up out of whole cloth.

Of these influences the speculative situation counted the most. The manipulation of high priced industrial shares during the last few weeks had alarmed conservative sentiment and still further alienated public support. In these ways the buying power, or better, the resistance which the market was capable of holding to professional attack, had been weakened. Speculators for the decline started in soon after the opening this morning to find out just how vulnerable the market position had become. They began by offering down the shipping stocks, because of the court order upholding the treasury ruling in the liquor case. They pressed down the motor stocks with considerable violence, although there was nothing to warrant this outside of the slow down which the motor trade always undergoes at his season of the year. Encouraged by the quick success attained in these directions, the selling movement was extended until in the early afternoon it became fairly general.

There was not the slighest grounds for supposing that the fallen stocks meant any change in opinion regarding the business out look of the country, or that it was due to disappointment because the recovery was not making better progress. On the contrary the stock market, in some degree has felt like the bond market, the diversion of funds into commercial channels, which up to a month and a half ago were available for investment uses. There has not been the actual liquidation of stock investments as there has been of bond investments by banks having to meet the demands due to increasing trade activity. But the element of investment support, which all along has been very helpful to the stock market, is not what it was up to the middle of September.

The weakness of French francs was more pronounced than on any day so far. Not since the first week in December, 1921, when the rate touched 6.88, has the mark been so low. Undoubtedly the decline during the last fortnight has been due chiefly to the fear of unpleasant disclosures when the Chamber of Deputies begins its discussion of the 1923 budget as it will do this week.

STRONG AT OPENING.

NEW YORK, October 23. — Stocks were stimulated at the opening by further evidence of continued business improvement afforded by Federal Reserve compilation of bank debts which showed a $700,000,000 over 1921 in the week ended 18th October. Studebaker, BL., MNP. and other industrial leaders scored gains of initial transactions. Rails had an additional impetus in September traffic reports which set forth a gain of 10 per cent. in car loadings over the same month in 1921. Norfolk. B. and O. Union Pacific, and Atchison advanced fractionally. Central of New Jersey to new high at 240 against last week's low 210.

SUPPORT FOR WHEAT.

CHICAGO, October 23.—Wheat opened off half a cent on lower cables, but support was in evidence on breaks. Export interest quiet.

Corn unchanged to oc 3-8.

DETROIT UNITED STOCK DIVIDEND RESCINDED

MONTREAL, Oct. 23.—Directors of Detroit United Railway declared resolution for two stock dividends of 2 1-2 per cent. payable Sept. 1 and Dec. 1st last year has been rescinded, as the State Commission refuses to sanction payment.

NEW LOWS MADE TO-DAY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—After further bad break in general list of stocks showed slightly improved tone upward at 2 p.m.; before rallying tendency set in new lows on reaction were touched by most of the active industrials. Stop losses were caught in abundance just under levels touched on last week's break as many traders were unwilling to stay with a market which showed no rallying power and professional operators were quite willing to heighten the impression that prices were due for an extensive decline.

LORD CURZON WILL CONTINUE IN OFFICE

LONDON, Oct. 23.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—It is generally conceded that Lord Curzon will continue in office of Foreign Secretary under Bonar Law.

Stanley Baldwin it is believed, will be next Chancellor of Exchequer.

The Duke of Devonshire will probably be Lord President of the Council and Marquis of Salisbury will be Lord Privy Seal.

Lord Cave is strongly favored for Lord High Chancellor, although the names of Lord Carson and Lord Sumner are still being mentioned for this position.

Filling law offices in the new Cabinet will probably give Bonar Law considerable trouble. Douglas Hogg, prominent advocate, with a huge practice ,is regarded favorably as possible Attorney General, but nobody cares to prophesy who will be the new Solicitor-General.

LABOUR'S VIEWS OF POLITICAL SITUATION.

LONDON, Oct. 23. Canadian Press Cable. — Right Hon. J. R. Clynes, leader of the Parliamentary Labor Party, in an interview here, declared that the allegation that Labor intended to attack industry was false. "Industry suffered enough under the Coalition Government," he said, "and is not to be revived by Tory rule. Labor has supreme interest in the progress of industry. The war we make is upon the evil results of social and industrial wrongs."

NOT HARVEY TOWNSHIP PEOPLE.

Reeve Shaw Points Out That Principals in Jones vs. Davis Were Smith Residents.

Mr. Robert Shaw, Reeve of Harvey, objected the other day to the report that the principals in the case of Jones vs. Davis are not residents of Harvey township, but live in the north end of Smith township. "We have our own share without marking us up with those of other townships." The Examiner obtained the information from the statement of claim of both the farm hand Jones and the defense of Davis.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: When I entered upon the fight for first principles some months if not some years ago, if I was not justly to be accused of deserting my post, it was necessary for me to stick to it, and not drop out. Few who do me the honour of reading my communications to the newspapers will accuse me of having proved a deserter or unstable, and vacillating in this regard. With this introduction let me refer to the amazing address of Rev. Dr. Pidgeon referred to by The Examiner. It was made before the Rotary Club and set out the alarming increase in wife desertion. The tremendous increase of all classes of offences against women is due to the change in public opinion. It used to be that Public Opinion on any subject, like a papal interdict, made life insupportable to an offender. Public Opinion used to spring on the instant, to defend women. Why has it changed? Because women's status in the state has changed. Because women have changed. Women wanted equal rights and opportunities. At the polls and elsewhere they have "put it up" to men as the saying is. Men say that equal rights mean equal responsibilities. Public Opinion agrees to that. Women have now no defenders but themselves, and they will have to defend themselves accordingly. It is useless to drop Public Opinion in exchange for laws. Public Opinion is a thousand times more powerful than laws. It makes and unmakes laws but is never made and unmade by them. Men used to throw a guard, a protecting arm about women. It was the cult amongst men, the overwhelming force of unascertive Public Opinion, that "women first" should be the rule of their life. No man could violate that rule and retain his standing as a man amongst men. But what do we find to-day? We find men determining to compel women to do their own fighting and defending. Men say that women go to the polls and force men to do the feminine will against their will — that if it were not for the women's vote men would be in an entirely different position to-day. They declare that men are not defenceless—that they will "get back at" women, and I regret to say that that is exactly what they are doing. I have been amazed to find men so generally hostile to their women folk, have become bitter and revengeful. Men who themselves would not commit a crime against women now say when they hear of their increasing ill-treatment: "It serves them right. They want to run us, and now let them take their medicine. Because of this terrible change in Public Opinion, the increase in the number of serious offences against women excites not half the shock and alarm that we would expect it to excite, and that formerly it would have excited. I have heard well-known men say in a passion, "Oh, you women, who didn't earn a cent of their money, are now riding around in autos, dashing up to meeting and dictating laws to men, and generally making a man's life a torture."

It is because of this that it is necessary to stop this spirit of dictation that is in the air, especially amongst women. The Czarists used to be like that. They believed the policy of coercion to be the best for Russia, so long as they did the coercing. They abolished slavery and vodka, but they did more: they imprisoned and fined respectable people, who had a national divine right to enjoy their private and domestic liberties in their own way. You see what happened in Russia. Women are not even women, but chattels there. The old slavic chivalry regarding them has disappeared just as, and for the same reason as, it is disappearing in Ontario. Men will not be compelled in their private lives by others and whoever have misled women into the blunder of thinking that men are "easy" and only waiting to be bossed, are guilty of preparing the soil and the air for this very crop of serious offences against women, which is now maturing. If men are forced, coerced and fined for no real crime but for simply acting as independent, free and respectable people, they will in time get ugly. They will go back to the caveman age, and things look pretty much that way at present. The prophecies of the coercionists have proved to be wind, were wind, and nothing more. With all its faults, the old order was heaven in comparison with this hell of deceit and blow begotten of ignorance and compulsion into which we are now so rapidly drifting. We must get back to the first principles. First principles are the principles which come from God and are those upon which all right life is founded. The principles of to-day are never the vapourings of those who believe themselves to be even superior to God and who propose to establish a new order of things accordingly. Of course this sort of thing will break down, and is breaking down already with, as we see, calamitous results. But why wait for ruin before we recognize our blunder? Dr. Pidgeon might have suggested something—why did he not do so?

J. H. BURNHAM.

P. S. — The chief surgeon of the Prudential Life Assurance Co., of the U. S., says that the deathrate from cancer is steadily rising and that no less than eight thousand five hundred women in the United States died from breast cancer last year, due to the wearing of corsets, very largely. Think of the countless cases of face and neck cancer due to the irritation of paint and powder. The native women of South America have no deaths from cancer. Is it our North American conceit that is killing us?

Some little time ago I wrote the New York Cancer Hospital and asked them if alcohol had any effect in causing cancer. They answered No.

The reason I wrote to them was that cancer is increasing at a faster rate amongst total abstainers, and it might be possible that the doing away with the drinking of alcohol in moderation might be doing away with a remedy for cancer. This suspicion is creeping upon the people in the United States—J.H.B.

AMERICAN FARMERS MAY GO TO RUSSIA.

Ten Thousand Thinking of Making Their Homes With Soviets.

MOSCOW, Oct. 23.—(Associated Press). — The Russian-American population of Soviet Russia now totals more than 20,000 persons. Ludwig Martens, formerly Soviet representative in the United States, who recently has been charged with the colonization of and assistance to the returning emigres, told the Associated Press correspondent that since about January, 1921, 20,000 persons have come from America to Russia, thanks to the work of the Technical Aid Society, which has organizations in many American cities.

Some of these colonists are sorry they left their homes in the United States and Canada, while others appear perfectly contented in Russia. The correspondent has met both varieties. All of them have had interesting experiences, and those who have lived long in America, or the native born Americans who joined various colonies, are bringing something of American methods and American standards to cities, villages and farms all over Russia.

"The majority of those who have come from America and Canada to Soviet Russia are agricultural laborers and farmers," Mr. Martens said. "Of these, there are several groups, for example at Tamboff, Kuban and Odessa. To each, if he desires to work his ground alone, five dessatines of land is given, but if they work communally they can have as much land as they can farm."

At the present time, because of industrial difficulties, greater encouragement is extended to farmers to come to Russia than to industrial workers. Plans are now under way to bring over from the United States about ten thousand farmers for colonization in South Russia and Turkestan, where they will be encouraged to grow cotton.

Of the farming groups already in Russia one of the most successful is that in the Tamboff and Odessa Governments, where the Russian-Americans have introduced tractors and other agricultural machinery and already have reaped one big harvest.

The correspondent has encountered more discontent among the industrial groups than among the farmers, but most of the little concerns started by factory workers from America seem to be more flourishing to-day than they were some months ago.

Among the industrial groups there are thirty tool and die workers, who, under the name of the Link Tool Corporation group, are introducing die casting in Russia. There are also two groups of tailors, one long established, which has undergone varying fortunes and the other, just arrived, which brought $75,000 worth of equipment, is preparing to turn out American cut clothes.

MEXICAN SOLDIERS TO-DAY PRESENT FINE APPEARANCE

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 21.—(Associated Press).—Even the critics of President Obregon are admitting to-day that he has accomplished real results in the matter of army reconstruction, and that a parade of federal soldiers now is no longer a comic opera display, but a showing of genuine fighting men, at least in appearance. The soldiers of the Obregon regime are well equipped and there is disipline in the marching ranks—things that have been observed in Mexican soldiery for many years. On a recent national holiday the war department held some public manoeuvres for its troops, and several newspapers commented editorily on the fact that "at last Mexico has an army."

It is the ambition of Secretary of War Serrano to reduce the federal forces to 50,000 men, and in recent statements he has said that his goal is almost reached. These 50,000 picked men are well uniformed and equipped with rifles of tested shooting powers, and when on parade they make a smart showing. Not so many years ago a Mexican army partook in appearance, more of the comic than the serious, and it was not unusual to see a company of men file by some of them barefoot, some with caps and some with battered straw hats, rifles carried as suited their convenience, and all of them straggling along as best they could without any semblance of marching order.

The song of the nightingale may be heard at a distance of a mile on a calm night.

NEARLY CRAZY WITH PAINS IN BACK

Read How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Mrs. Beecroft

Hamilton, Ontario.—"I have suffered for three years from a female trouble and consequent weakness, pain and irregularity which kept me in bed four or five days each month. I nearly went crazy with pains in my back, and for about a week at a time I could not do my work. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the 'Hamilton Spectator' and I took it. Now I have no pain and am quite regular unless I overwork or stay on my feet from early morning until late at night. I keep house and do all my own work without any trouble. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to several friends."—Mrs. EMILY BEECROFT, 16 Douglas St., Hamilton, Ontario.

For nearly fifty years women have been telling how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored their health when suffering with female ills. This accounts for the enormous demand for it from coast to coast.

If you are troubled with any ailment peculiar to women why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? It has helped others, let it help you.

The STORY of the BIBLE
By E. C. Braithwaite B.D. Ph.D.

III.—The Oldest Translation.

The translation into various languages supplement the early manuscripts in helping us to know what the original Scripture text was. Where the evidence of the manuscripts is obscure or lacking altogether, the translations are especially valuable. The oldest and by far the most important of these is the early Greek version which was produced in the second or third century B.C. This is known as the Septuagint version, from its traditional "seventy" translators.

There are various legends about the origin of the Septuagint. One is that the high priest at Jerusalem, in response to a request from Ptolemy Philadelphus, who was king of Egypt from 285 to 247 B.C., sent six scholars from each of the twelve tribes to Alexandria to produce a Greek translation of the Scriptures. These seventy-two scholars were placed in seventy-two different cells on the Island of Pharos to work independently, and on comparing their work which was completed in seventy-two days, the translations were found to be identical.

There seems to be ample evidence, however, for discrediting this story, while the varying merit of the translation of different books confirms the idea that the version came into existence naturally and by successive stages to meet the long felt want on the part of the body of Greek-speaking Jews dwelling in Egypt. Its production probably extended over a period of something like a hundred and fifty years, somewhere between 285 and 130 B.C.

This translation was not only used by the Greek-speaking Jews in Egypt, but became the Bible of all the Jews about the Mediterranean in the time of Christ and the Apostles. It was in constant use by the church fathers in the early centuries of the Christian Church. It included also many of the apocryphal books.

This version being about twelve hundred years older than the oldest Hebrew manuscript we have, takes us that much farther back towards the original Scripture text. Unfortunately, however, the text of the Septuagint itself has been very imperfectly preserved, and it has besides the disadvantage of being only a translation.

The importance of the Septuagint was early recognized, and one great scholar, Origen, who lived from about 180 A.D. to 250 A.D. gave practically his whole life to the recovery of its text. He produced a momentous work of fifty large volumes, known as the Hexapla, the Scripture text from various sources being arranged in six columns for ease or comparison. This is said to have been extant in Caesarea in the sixth century, but the enormous cost of reproducing it in those days must have been prohibitive.

The life work of this great scholar was, however, largely lost by the treatment which it received. While Origen was very careful to indicate all passages introduced into his text from various sources by certain signs those who copied his texts were just as careful to omit these, which has resulted in almost hopeless confusion. In spite of these untoward circumstances, the Septuagint version is nevertheless one of the most valuable of all aids to the study of the Scriptures.

AN ANNIVERSARY AT CENTREVILLE.

Rev. H. Young Preached in the Morning and Rev. F. W. Anderson in the Evening.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 23.—The anniversary services of the Presbyterian church, Centreville, were held on Sunday, October 22nd, the congregations filling the church to capacity both morning and evening. Rev. Harold Young, M.A., B.D., of Peterborough, was the preacher for the morning service, his sermon, delivered in his well known eloquent style, being of a practical nature and making a deep impression upon his hearers. In the evening, Rev. F. W. Anderson, M.A., of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, Port Hope, read for his lesson Revelation, 3rd chapter, taking for his text the 8th verse: "Behold I have set before thee an open door, and no man can shut it," and the speaker was listened to with the closest attention as he unfolded his subject, interpreting the message to the church at Philadelphia as a fitting challenge to the churches to-day. That God has an intimate knowledge of every church is evidenced by the phrase, "I know thy works," the works being always "faith in expression." The Philadelphia church was small in numbers, "thou has little strength," but because of fidelity to God and duty, "thou hast kept my word, and hast not denied my name," therefore, "Behold, I have set before thee an open door." This same door of opportunity God opens before each one of us if we have eyes to see and ears to hear, for to the spirit of readiness to serve there is always given the opportunity of service. This was the heart of the minister's message. "Know thyself," and "Know thine opportunity," were two mottoes which should be upon the walls of every Christian church, and as frontlets before the eyes of each individual believer.

There is a place in the plan of God for every life, but we belittle our own sphere, and disparage our opportunity, forgetting that Jesus, in the parable of the talents, taught that each will be held accountable "according to his several ability." As a reward for work well done, God opens doors leading to greater heights, and to richer experiences. "Put first things first, and keep them there" was a message sent from across the seas to a big Y.M.C.A. convention in Boston, but how are we to know which is the primary duty? The Master of Life gives unerring counsel, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and all other things shall be added unto you." Find your place of opportunity at home, then in the community, the nation and the world. There are two doors mentioned in the chapter, "Behold, I stand at the door and knock; if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him," this is man's door, and the other is God's, "Behold, I have set before thee an open door," and the speaker earnestly pleaded with his hearers if they had not already opened the heart's door to Christ that they would do so now, and so make this church anniversary an occasion of joy amongst the angels because one of the straying sheep had returned to the fold of the Good Shepherd. Then God can make each surrendered life count for its comrades and for the world.

The special music prepared by the choir was much enjoyed, the selections in the evening including a quartette, "Nearer Home," by Misses E. Tate, A. McConnachie, and Messrs. O. B. Johnston and J. Isbister, and as a concluding number the anthem, "Now the day is over," with duet by Miss Tate and Miss C. McConnachie.

C.G.E. Won from Lucan-Toronto Swamped McGill-Other Sport

C.G.E. WON FIRST GAME OF THE FINAL SERIES FROM LUCAN NINE

Western Ontario Champs Put Up a Good Game at Riverside Park Saturday Afternoon But Lost Out.

SCORE WAS 5 TO 3.

The Canadian General Electric team got away to a good start in the final series for the intermediate Ontario championship on Saturday afternoon by beating Lucan, the Western Ontario titleholders, in an interesting battle by 5 runs to 3. It was anybody's game until the last of the eighth innings, for the one-run lead carried by the homesters from the fourth frame did not look very big, and although they increased it by one more counter in the seventh, Lucan rallied in the next session and made things decidedly interesting.

Frost, on the rubber for the Generals, turned in a steady, effective game, and outside of the second and sixth frames, when Lucan bunched hits on him, was not in much trouble, especially as his control was perfect and not one of the visitors drew a charity. Weir, the burly left-hander of the Lucan outfit, allowed one less hit than Frost, but was inclined to be wild, walking four men and hitting two others. The two twirlers broke even in the matter of strike-outs.

Both teams fielded nicely, Jackson and Helson having a big day for the C.G.E., while Weir, the visiting pitcher, handled seven chances in cool fashion. The feature plays, however, were contributed by Legon, the C. G. E. left fielder, who prevented Lucan from tying the score in the eighth by a perfect throw to the plate, and by George, the Lucan shortstop, who robbed McCarney of a hit and the C.G.E. of a couple of runs by a one-handed pickup of a hard rap near second.

The crew from the Western Ontario village trotted out a nice looking ball club and they performed like a bunch that knew the game. They pulled a hit-and-run play in the second innings that was as neat a demonstration of John J. McGraw's favourite method of attack as has been seen here this season, and that helped materially in giving them an early lead. The return game in Lucan on Wednesday should be a merry battle all the way.

The visitors were the first to score. Crawley, the little catcher, who, by the way, had three hits in four times up, singled to start with. When he started with the pitcher's arm for second and Jackson ran over to take the throw, Hindmarsh hit through the opening left by the C.G.E. second baseman and Crawley easily went to third on the play. Hindmarsh immediately stole second. Gibson's fly to Legon let Crawley score and Hindmarsh go to third, and Weir boosted his own game by exploding a single over second to score Hindmarsh. The next two were easy.

The Generals got one back in their half. After Frost had popped to Weir, Ross doubled to right for the only extra base hit of the day. Weir disposed of Corrin on strikes, but Legon, with the count 3 and 2 on him, singled over Langford's head, scoring Ross, and going to second on the throw-in. Jackson's rap to George extinguished Legon at third and retired the side.

A bad throw by Crawley helped C.G.E. to tie the score in the third. With one down, Helson beat out a roller to third and stole second, going on to third when Crawley threw low to the middle station. Rose struck out, but Primeau supplied the needful hit with a sharp single through short. He died stealing a moment after.

Another poor throw figured largely in the C.G.E.'s third run. Frost, first up in the third, singled to left, and when Barnes threw carelessly to second Frost reached that station, going on to third when Ross rolled to his namesake at first. Corrin's Texas Leaguer, which would have been easy for Gibson, went for a hit when Langford tried for the fly and failed to reach it, Frost scoring. Weir struck out Legon, and after Jackson had drawn a pass got McCarney on strikes.

The score remained at 3-2 until the seventh, when with two out in the C.G.E. end of the frame Helson was hit. He stole second and rode home on Rose's timely single. Rose advanced on a wild pitch, but Weir threw out Primeau.

Lucan threw a scare into the homester camp in the eighth. Rose started them on their way when he whistled a throw over Corrin's head, allowing Bradley, the first man up, to reach second. He remained there while Helson was throwing out Langford. Crawley got his third hit, a lively one, the ball hopping too high for Rose to handle. Crawley stole second. Hindmarsh hit to Helson and Bradley was trapped between third and home, Helson finally making the put-out by tagging Bradley as he was taking his last step to the plate. It was a narrow squeak. Crawley reached third and Hindmarsh second on the play. Gibson, the next man up, shot a single between short and third, on which Crawley scored. Hindmarsh, however was nipped at the plate by Legon's perfect throw, although a fast runner would have scored on the rap.

The Generals made it safe by adding another run in their half. After Frost had fanned, Ross singled between short and third. Corrin's roller got away from D. Ross, and Bob Ross went to third. Corrin stole second. Legon was hit, filling the bases. Jackson hit to George, who fumbled long enough not to have a chance to get Ross at the plate, and then threw Jackson out at first. McCarney shot a fast one towards second that looked like a sure hit, but George scooped in the roller with his gloved hand and got McCarney at first. It was the best fielding play of the day.

Lucan went out in order in the ninth.

CENTRE FELL TO HARVARD TEAM

Yale and Princeton Also Victorious—"Big Three" Contest Will Be a Hard One.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Harvard, Yale and Princeton convincingly demonstrated on Saturday why they are the "Big Three" of eastern football and through their trio of victories gave cause of the prediction that the annual group of contests among them late in the season will be of sizzling intenseness.

Overshadowing in popular interests all the other contests staged in the eastern arena last week-end was the Harvard-Centre game at Cambridge, which, while not fought as closely to form as it had been "doped," ended approximately in what critics had expected, a victory for Harvard.

In the second half, the Kentuckians showed that they were more than a picturesque collection of gladiators and that they really had football stuff. Their fumbles in the first quarter and their inability to collect themselves against the Crimson onslaught, was a poor picture of what the Colonels really are capable of.

Harvard proved that it has strength, Yale and Princeton showed that they too have power, the former by vanquishing the Villians, 38 to 7, and the Tigers by clawing up Maryland, 26 to 0. The fact that both the Blue and the Black and Orange kept their goals from being crossed gave both teams the prestige that they had not enjoyed this season.

The upsets on the day included Vermont's amazing victory over Dartmouth, 6 to 3; New York University's defeat of Columbia, 7 to 6; and Washington and Lee's tie game with West Virginia, 12 to 12. In three games preceding yesterday Dartmouth had scored 60 points and had prevented its opponents from scoring one point.

WOOLLEN'S VICTORS IN A FAST GAME

C.G.E. Senior Team Went Down to Defeat After a Great Battle.

The Canadian Woolens defeated the C.G.E. in a senior league soccer game 2 to 1 in a fast game at King Edward Park Saturday afternoon. As these two teams were old rivals and both had a chance to win the shield the game was never slow from start to finish. Both goal keepers had plenty to do and both made some very good stops. Sharman of the C.G.E. was very conspicious on the extreme left and he found the net with one of his old favorites after twenty minutes of play. The Woolens tried hard to get on even terms but the great defence of Griffin and Bestard was too good for them and half time came with the Electricians in the lead with a score standing 1 to 0.

On resuming play the Woolens had the wind behind them and started off with a spirited attack. Griffin again proved a stonewall defense and cleared shot after shot. He cleared a corner which was takens by Downs and beautifully placed but Chambers met the rebound with a terrific drive and equalized the score.

The battle for supremacy then started. The Woolens sent two of their backs to the forward line and gradually got the best of the play. Shuttle scored the winning goal after taking a good pass from Gaskell. The C.G.E. attacked strongly for the remainder of the game but Williams was playing a wonderful game in goal and saved everything that came his way.

The teams were:

C.G.E.—Griffin, Bestard, McMillan, Williams, Mann, Hurley, Gatfield, Manders, Sharman, Monks, Knowsley.

Woolens — Williams, Cridlan, Terry, Roberts, Monkman, Reid, Hopkins, Gaskell, Downes, Chambers and Shuttle.

Referee—J. Clarke.

C.G.E. DEFEATED BY C.P.C. JUNIORS

Fast Soccer Game at King Edward Park Saturday Afternoon Resulted in a Victory for the C.P.C. Team.

The Canadian Packers' Junior team sent the C.G.E. Juniors down to defeat by a score of 2 to 0 in a clean, fast game played Saturday afternoon, at King Edward Park. This makes the second encounter for these teams and the second victory for the C.P.C. The electricians showed a vast improvement over their previous play and a good fast game resulted.

Starting with the wind, the C.G.E. pressed the attack, but Downe and Curtis were equal to the occasion and successfully broke up every play. The packers got in some long drives and Jenkins, the C.G.E. goalkeeper, showed good form in making some difficult saves, but after fifteen minutes of play Anderson found the net for the only score of the first period.

In the second half the C.P.C. went away with a rush and Anderson kept up his good work by scoring again with a dandy shot. From then until time was called the C. G. E. kept on the defensive, allowing the packers to rest on their honours with 2 goals to 0. For the winners, Curtis at back was in fine form, while Anderson was by far the best forward on the field. Jenkins, in goal, showed up well for the electricians.

The teams were:

C.P.C.—Killenbeck, Curtis, Downer, F. Ball, M. Shadgett, T. Ball, Mitchell, Anderson, Edwards, Chambers, Haw.

C.G.E.—Jenkins, Saunders, Sturdee, Storey, Feely, Ball, Schweis, Grant, Clarke, Mullard, Gale.

Referee—James Clarke.

Brawn Not Essential To Winning Football Team

"BO" McMILLIN'S FIGHTING FACE.

By "BO" McMILLIN,
All-America Quarterback.

What part does brute strength play in modern football?

Is brain and speed more essential than brawn in the open play that now features the grid game?

When a coach looks over his available material what style player has the most appeal?

The good old game of football has changed much in the last 10 years. The successful coach must adapt himself to existing conditions. A coaching system that was successful 10 years back would be an absolute failure today.

There was a time when football games were won by brute strength and awkwardness, but today we can't find a place on a successful team for the man with "a million-dollar body and a ten-cent head."

My experience has proved conclusively to me that this scientific game of football is still in the embryonic stage, therefore it is imperative that we choose the most active and intelligent men for our eleven.

Each season we are introducing new modes of attack and our field general is constantly changing his defense in order to successfully cope with these strong offensive experiments.

The general conception of a quarterback is one who directs the attack, but today both the defense and offense is directed by the wise field general.

It has been my pleasure to act as field general for Centre College during the past four years. It was necessary to change our style of play for each game.

From my experience at Cambridge in 1920 it was evident that our success in 1921 depended upon the ability of our field general to instantly diagnose each Harvard formation and meet it with the proper defense. As I backed up the line I was in a position to direct my linemen.

Those of you who saw the game will remember that I had my centre out of the line on practically every pass that Buell attempted. Although our 1921 line was lighter than the line which Harvard whipped in 1920 we were able to stop their line thrusts because our centre had been shifted up into the line.

I have always tried to direct an offense which would require the least bit of energy because when we shift to the defense we want our backs and ends to have plenty of speed to come in fast on opponents' offense.

In the Tulane, Auburn and Washington & Lee games last year our secondary defense always came in exceptionally fast and never allowed our opponents to gain around the ends or by forward passes.

Our team was criticized by a number of sport writers for getting our plays off so slow, especially was this noticeable in the Harvard game. Centre had a reason for using such methods.

On our close formations I would call a series which would indicate the point of attack. We would then try to widen the hole in the defense by calling short series of signals and shifting to and fro to pull the defense over. Just as soon as the hole was assured the snapping signal was called and our backs were through the hole like a streak.

Yes, it takes a smart team to play that kind of football, but, as I said before, 75 per cent. of the game of football is played above the shoulders.

McGill Hopelessly Beaten By University of Toronto

Game Ended With the Score Standing 51 to 5—Worst Beating in the History of McGill Rugby

MANY MISPLAYS.

MONTREAL, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press)—Never in the history of rugby football at McGill University have the red and white colors dropped so low as they did on Saturday afternoon when the University of Toronto squad administered an overwhelming drubbing to the local collegians. The blue and white intercollegiate titleholders left the gridiron at the Percival Molson Memorial Stadium at the conclusion of the rout with the enormous total of fifty one points piled up against McGill's small five.

It was a complete rout. Eleven years previous McGill had not been vanquished by Toronto on the home campus, but after the first quarter Saturday the outcome was apparent though none of the 6,500 odd spectators present in the early stages thought that the count would reach such an enormous figure. In the second half McGill crumpled badly under the heavy blue and white line plunges, and runs, returned kicks and perfectly booted balls and were totally unable to stem the attacks of the visiting collegians, who ripped through practically at will.

At the closing game of the Intercollegiate season locally the affair was a disappointment. McGill was no match for Varsity and while the visitors gave an almost perfect display, the one-sided struggle, with frequent misplays on the part of the local squad, rendered the affair a very mediocre rugby spectacle.

Varsity were superior in every department and for the first time in many seasons McGill was hopelessly outclassed on the line. In former years the front rank had always been the strong link on the red and white squads and no matter how the back field played, the line always kept the struggle close by a strong defensive and offensive style. But Saturday the line gave way badly to the heavy blue and white plungers. Never once through the game Saturday did the front rank open a clean hole for their ball carriers.

President Heydler of the National League comes to bat with a worthwhile idea. He suggests that a goodly portion of the receipts of the World Series tie game given to charity should go to wives and families of needy players. Baseball has no such charity and could use part of the money as a fund to take care of a number of needy cases that have been brought to light.

Football coaching seems to run in the Romney family. Milton Romney, formerly a University of Chicago star, is coaching the back field of the University of Texas. The Montana A. and M. Battling Siki, who recently won fame over night by his defeat of Georges Carpentier, is already showing the true instincts of a fighter. Likewise he has decided to break some of the contracts already made with American promoters. Success is a terrible thing for some people.

CONACHER'S PLAY DEFEATED OTTAWA

Was the Whole Team — Great Exhibition of Individual Play — Final Score was 28 to 1.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press)—Connacher—that's all.

The above three words would adequately describe the result of Argo's victory over Ottawa Saturday except for the fact that the score was 28 to 1. Five thousand people glimpsed the reason why Connacher is called the "superman" of rugby, and saw an exhibition of individual playing that stamps this twenty two year old half back as the greatest that ever stood on an Ottawa gridiron. For only a few minutes in the first period were Ottawas in the race when they took a single point. After that it was all Argos and mainly Connacher, though his supporting cast cannot be dismissed lightly. Taken all in all Argos are just as strong as last season through the fact that "Conny" is twice as good and does enough work for any back division by himself.

Argos led at half time by nine to one. For ten minutes Connacher was on the side. In the second half he had his big innings and scored a touch and gave the pass for another. Twenty yard runs were mere walks for the big fellow. Usually he took anywhere from forty to sixty yards and one of his gallops was a seventy yard sprint through a lane of tacklers whom he flecked off like the hired girl sweeping crumbs off the table cloth.

"Conny" had everything in the rugby repertoire. He kicked well though it must be said in justice to Tubman that he had a bit of foot in sfeer distance on the Argo 'express" but did not place as accurately. Connacher ran like a buffalo spilling tacklers right and left and showed amazing generalship.

De Laval Won

De Laval won from the Comrades, 2 to 0, in a Junior Cup game at the Oval Saturday. This game was expected to be one of the closest played as both teams stood even regarding points, but since the Comrades could not put their full team on the field the De Laval had it practically all their own way. They took the offensive from the start and won a very one-sided game by a small score. The fight for possession of the Yeotes Cup will not be between the De Laval and the C. P. C. Junior aggregations. S. Calladine was the referee for this game.

THRESHING RETURNS.

EDMONTON, October 21 (Canadian Press). — Official returns from the threshers throughout the Province are now coming in, and those received thus far by the Department of Agriculture, indicate that the wheat crop this year has been about the same as last year, but that in oats and barley Alberta has the lowest yield in its history. The wheat yield is figuring out to an average of from eleven to twelve bushels per acre, and oats from fourteen to sixteen bushels per acre.

PETERBORO COLLEGIATE WON CLOSE GAME FROM LINDSAY

Brought Home 8-6 Score in Curtain-Raiser of the Interscholastic Rugby Series—Muffs Were Few

Here Next Saturday.

In the opening game of the Interscolastic rugby series, Carl Browne's Collegiates defeated the Lindsay Collegiate on the latter's grounds by the score of 8-6 on Saturday afternoon. It was a close, clean, stubbornly fought game with the teams about evenly matched and produced a lot of clever football.

Lindsay fielded a heavy plunging squad, and were superior to Peterboro on the line plays. They were unable to gain a yard around the ends all afternoon owing to the deadly tackling of the P.C.I. wings.

Good Back-field.

Peterboro showed a marked advantage in the back-field section, and time after time gained yards on running passing plays, that won the praise of Lic Loftus the Toronto official. Both teams caught faultlessly each missing but one catch. Not once during the entire game was there a delay for an injury.

The return game will be played at Riverside Park next Saturday afternoon, and should bring out a big crowd of local rugby fans.

The Teams.

The Peterboro Collegiate line up was: Flying wing, L. Browne; halves, J. Fanning, captain, D. Mulholland and A. Bookout; quarter, H. Young; outside wings, F. Stevens and E. Johnston; middle wings, S. Stacey and H. Menzies; inside wings, S. Flemming and D. Hay; snapback, H. Cowan; subs Walter Rye (replaced Menzies for second half), E. Rye, N. McColl. C. Parrington and G. Eastwood.

Lindsay—Halves, Smale, Rigley, Anderson; quarter, Robertson; snap, Fisher; insides, Logan, Walker; flying wing, Pearcy; middles, Hayes and McAlpin; outsides, Palmer and Mills; spares, Sutton, Lockie, Myers, Cook.

Referee—L. Loftus, Toronto; umpire—Art Carew, Lindsay.

The Game.

Lindsay won the toss and chose to kick down hill with the winds at their backs. They failed to score in the first quarter, and just before the whistle blew Peterboro lost the ball on a forward pass in front of their goal line. Score 0-0.

The second opened with Lindsay in possession 8 yards out. They crossed the line on the third down with a centre down which the referee refused to allow as this play is illegal. P.C.I. were given the ball one yard out, and Mulholland relieved the situation with a long punt on the first down. With the wind at their backs Peterboro soon carried the play into Lindsay's territory.

Pete Mulholland kicked to the dead line for the first point of the game. A little later, Young following down on a kick, forced the ball-carrier into touch-in-goal for the second point. A nice run by Fanning put Peterboro within striking distance and Howard Young went around the end for the first try.

The half-way score was 7-0.

During the third quarter P.C.I. did their best work and held Lindsay to a single point on a rouge.

Lindsay's Buck Count.

In the fourth Peterboro played safe, two bucks and kick. Toward the end of the game Lindsay played splendidly and carried the ball 50 yards on bucks and line plunges, only to lose possession on Peterboro's 25-yard line. With three minutes to go they blocked a kick, and got possession 20 yards out from the P.C.I. goal. Again they called on their line plunges and tore the Peterboro line to pieces, going over for a try in three down.

The score was then 7-6 with a good chance to convert and tie it up. The ball was kicked and Lindsay claimed a point but the referee declared no score. The ball passed at least two feet outside the goal post.

Made It Safe.

From the kick-off Peterboro again forced the play. With thirty seconds to play Lindsay ran the ball out two yards from their line. They kicked for the last play of the game. Fanning caught and returned it, the ball going to the dead line for the point just as time was called. It was a wise play as it put the result of the game beyond question. Final score 8-6 for Peterboro.

NO WAGE REDUCTION FOR EMPLOYEES OF THE C.N.R.

Present Pay Is Only Adequate For Support of Selves and Families.

OTTAWA, Oct. 21. — (Canadian Press).—That a reduction in wages of clerks, freight handlers, roundhouse store, shop, station and other lesser paid employees on the Canadian National Railways should not be made was the finding submitted to the Department of Labor yesterday by the Board of Conciliation appointed last August to deal with the question. The report is signed by Chairman F. T. Costello and H. S. Ross, K.C., representative of the employees. George D. Kelly, representative of the railways, did not concur in the finding and will submit a minority report.

More than seven thousand employees of the Canadian National lines in all parts of Canada are affected. The principal reason given for the decision was that any further reduction in wages of the classes under consideration would leave them without adequate means of supporting their families in a proper manner. The report stated that, after full investigation of all available statistics, it was believed that little or no reduction in the cost of living in Canada had occurred during the past year.

RUSS. MONARCHISTS GROUPING BACK THEIR FAVORITES

Consternation Arises Over Grand Duke Cyril's Recent Manifesto.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(Associated Press.)—Something akin to consternation has been caused in Russian monarchist circles by Grand Duke Cyril's recent manifesto claiming succession to Czar Nicholas II, and a conference will take place at Wiesbaden to find a way out of the difficulty caused by rival groups of Russians who will not admit that the Russian revolution terminated Czardom.

The Belgrade group of monarchists, which considers itself most representative, was not warned of Grand Duke Cyril's decision and would not in any case have supported him either as the guardian of the Russian throne or as a candidate to it, according to the Berlin correspondent of the Times. The Belgrade monarchists' hopes are centred around Grand Duke Nicholas Nicolaievitch, and they have been endeavoring for a considerable time to persuade him to place himself at the head of their movement.

This group asserts that the chief instigator of Grand Duke Cyril's unexpected declaration is a Colonel Balasheff, at one time a secret agent, and a paid guard of the Russian Minister Protopoff. The monarchists on the whole regard Colonel Balasheff with great disfavor as he only recent left Soviet Russia, where he was in the service of the Bolsheviki. On coming out of the country he became Cyril's closest adviser. Cyril's supporters maintain that his energy, military experience, and finally the fact that he is now the head of th family, are all factors which render him the most suitable candidate for the throne.

Supporters of Grand Duke Nicholas retort that Cyril is unpopular, not only among the masses of Russia, but also in the Romanoff family itself, while Grand Duke Nicholas' popularity is so great that this factor alone decides their choice.

Many monarchists seriously deplore the whole controversy and condemn the supporters of the unpopular Cyril as well as the supporters of Nicholas. These, they say, are endeavoring to bring into the contest the figure of an old soldier who has repeatedly declared that he would devote the remainder of his strength to the service of the Russian people only if he were called upon to do so, by their general vote, but that he was loth to place himself at the head of any movement outside Russia.

Born at Sea Has Six Fingers On Each Hand

NEW YORK, October 23. Canadian Press. — Six fingers on each hand is nature's endowment of the baby daughter of Hans Kriger, of Bremen, who was born on the North German Lloyd steamer York, on the way over here. The little girl is doing well and is destined apparently to have plenty of time in which to find out if the sixth digit is any particular advantage in modern day life. Her father Hans has six fingers on the right hand, but the usual five on the left hand.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Here's Grandmother's Recipe to Darken and Beautify Faded Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes of mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

GREAT AND HUMAN HEART INTEREST FILM AT CAPITOL

Story of "In the Name of the Law," Epoch Making Picture.

Officer Patrick O'Hara adds to the heavy burden he already has in caring for his wife and two sons, Johnny and Harry O'Hara, the task of providing for little Mary, a waif whom he finds one night while covering his beat. Because she reminds the doughty officer and his wife of their own dead daughter, they have not the heart to send her away.

As the years pass Mary shares all the sorrows and joys of the family, in addition to claiming the undivided love of Johnny. Johnny and Mary are both employed at the First National Bank. Johnny as teller and Mary as secretary to John Lucas, the treasurer, and the greatest part of their salaries go to swell the fund which Patrick O'Hara has started to buy a home in the country.

Harry, the oldest son, an ambitious student of law at college, is the only one unable to contribute. To pay his way through school, Harry does odd jobs for the other boys, such as pressing suits and shining shoes, and is barely able to make ends meet. Time after time he is forced to "stand off" Bivens, his irascible landlord.

Mrs. Bivens sympathizes with him and to help him out gives him her husband's trousers to press.

One morning she is about to take her husband's trousers to Harry for pressing before Bivens has risen, she dislodges a roll of bills from one of his pocket. It becomes wedged between mattress and footboard without attracting her attention.

When Bevins later dons his freshly pressed trousers the money is missing. Knowing Harry has pressed them, he hastens toward his room. The door is slightly ajar and he sees Harry take a roll of bills from his pocket and count them. The boy has just received the money from his mother and is counting out the amount which he owes Bivens Bivens, hwever, waits for no statement from Harry and immediately brands him a thief. He seizes the roll, finds the sum inadequate to cover his loss and sends a telegram to the O'Haras, accusing Harry of theft and demanding they reimburse him to the extent of $400.00 if they would save their son from jail.

Mother O'Hara is just about to leave for the bank with the $700 Patrick has given her as a final payment on the house in the country when the telegram arrives. Terror stricken, her one thought is to save her son, and with frantic haste she puts the money in an envelope and mails it to Harry.

When O'Hara learns what his wife has done, he berates her and denounces the absent son as a prodigal. For the first timt in twenty-years he leaves the house without kissing her.

Mary and Johnny are both aghast at the unhappiness that has come into the household, and each one determines to help in some way.

Mary leaves the office early that afternoon after a long, significant conversation with her employer. On the way out she stops a moment at a desk, leaning rather heavily against it, and Johnny notes vaguely that from one of the pigeon-holes protrudes a sheaf of bills.

Just before closing Johnny determines to withdraw the savings he has horded to provide the means for marrying Mary and turns them over to his father.

COMICAL MINISTREL TALENT

With Lawrence Baker, 'Spareribs' Jones, 'Slim Jim' Austin, Will Merritt, Noah Robinson, the comedy end of Harvey's Greater Ministrels would be superior to other similar shows without Duke Anderson, Chas. Beechman and Frank Kirk. After all there cannot be too much comedy in a Ministrel, provided of course it is clean-cut and of an irresistable kind.

Manager Harvey is justly proud of all the talent he has secured, and although it is expensive to pay high salaries to so many clever people, yet it is a lot of satisfaction to the Manager to feel assured that no matter where the Harvey Greater Ministrels play, it is going to please the patrons.

However, none of the above coterie of experts are funnier than Frank Kirk as he is playing the banjo and singing with a lighted cigar in his lips, that he apparently swallows the cigar and continues to sing as smoke pours forth from his mouth like lava from a volcano.

Kirk's performance is clever but likewise is the work of Alonzo Moore the man of much mystery, the four old men dancing number and the comedy acrobatic buck and wing dancing of Buster Miller.

This company will be at the Grand Theatre, Monday and Tuesday, October 23 and 24 .

"THE BAT" COMES HERE WITH TORONTO CAST

Mark this date and place well, October 27 and 28 at the Grand Opera House.

Then and there, local theatregoers are to have the opportunity of seeing for themselves "The Bat" the biggest success in years.

"The Bat" was written by Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood and is presented by Wagenhals and Kemper. It has established new records for success, wherever it has been seen.

At this writing "The Bat" has over two years to its credit in New York and more than one solid year in Chicago, something never before heard of in that city for any play, in every other city that it has seen, it has played to absolute capacity audiences for just as long as booking arrangements have permitted it to remain.

"The Bat" is a thrilling mystery story, filled with dramatic moments and interspersed with some of the rarest comedy ever seen on the stage. It is entertainment from beginning to end and defies the most jaded theatregoer to resist it.

"The Bat" comes here, presented in exactly the same careful satisfactory manner as it was offered in New York and Chicago. Wagenhals and Kemper, sponsors of "The Bat" have long been noted for their success as producers. Not a little of that success has been due to their rare judgment in the selection of plays and not a little to the fact that they have never sent a play on tour that was not carefully and competently produced and that did not depend for its presentation on the efforts of a decidely excellent company, "The Bat" comes here as no exception to the rule of the managers. It has been staged with all the care of a Broadway performance and the company speaks for itself.

AT THE ROYAL.

TOM MIX, IN LATEST PICTURE, INDULGES IN GREAT SCENIC BEAUTY AS WELL AS SPEED.

All Boy Scouts and all lovers of outdoor life will be especially interested in a picture that is at the Royal Theatre to-day, with Tom Mix, the famous Fox star. It is called "Up and Going," and the title explains the general character of the picture—full of action, and running over.

Yet that is not the principal attraction that it holds. When William Fox assigned Mix to make this production, he told him he wanted some real Northwest atmosphere in the country of the famous Royal Mounted Police. So Tom took his company up into British Columbia.

The result is the most beautiful picture from a scenic standpoint that Mix ever has turned out. There are water, forest and mountain scenes as a background for an exciting story, and followers of the wild trails will find many little tips on living in the open, and how to meet emergencies that are bound to occur.

For instance, there is a scene in the picture when Mix as a mounted trooper comes across his pal, who has been shot by a gang of whiskey smugglers. Tom has two horses with him, and must get the man to a doctor quickly. His experience among the Indians has taught him what to do. Cutting down two strong saplings he passes these through the stirrups of each horse on each side, and covers the young trees between the horses with branches. On this improvised litter he places the wounded man. In this manner he carries his friend to town and to a physician.

Mix, who was raised near the Choctaw Indian reservation, knows all their tricks of the open, and can speak the language like one of them. He is as much at home among the redskins as he is in Los Angeles.

"Up and Going," while a picture full of spirited action, is built along lines different from those of the usual Mix picture.

CHANGES IN RULES WOULD MAKE RUGBY BETTER GAME

Past President of M.A.A.A. in Favor of More Open Play Than at Present in Force—Other Opinions Regarding Rugby Rules.

Following are some opinions, from men who have at one time or another been prominent in rugby circles, with reference to the benefits or otherwise of the new Canadian rules for the gridiron games:

The game has improved scientifically ,says Jack Davidson, past-president of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, and one time player for the blue and red. The old game was a great deal more fun to play than the present day game; that is, the players formerly went in for the fun of the game, and the plays were not run as scientifically as they are to-day. The plays of to-day run like the working of a big machine ,and each of the players is like a cog in the wheel, while in the old game individualism was the thing that counted. In those days there was no such thing as holding a man on the line, or massed plays where the ball carrier was followed with two or three men. If all the massed plays and interferences were eliminated, Mr. Davidson is pretty sure that a great deal of the danger would be done away with. He is greatly in favor of the one-man play.

J. J. Louson, an ex-rugby star of the M.A.A.A. team of twenty-five years ago, is greatly against the present day massed plays and interference. If the players would only get into the habit of open plays it would speed up the game and make it much more interesting from the spectators' point of view. One man through the line is plenty, and in this way danger will be eliminated to a great etxent. He thinks that the kicking game should be used more, for he is of the opinion that it is the greatest ground gainer of them all. In the old days there were very few accidents, and very little padding was worn, if any at all.

The idea that British rugby should be substituted for Canadian football does not meet with much favor in Ottawa.

Discussing the proposed change, consequent upon the deplorable death of the late Allan Arless, George Church, former president of the Ottawa Football Club, and of the Provincial Union, also a member of the teaching staff of the Ottawa public school, saide

"We do not play rugby football in our schedules in Ottawa, not because the game is too strenuous, but because of the fact that we have not got sufficient grounds. The boys devote their time to soccer, which we have found very satisfactory.

"I do not think the British rugby game would take in Canada. It is not in the first place, as good a game as ours; and in the second, it lacks our spectacular features. Every sport is subject to accidents, and those in Canadian football have been comparatively few. We might modify some of our rules to minimize the possibility of accidents, but I don't think we should seriously consider abandoning it."

Eddie Emmerson, of the Ottawa football team, drew attention to the fact that English rugby was now being played in Ottawa, that it created no interest ,and did not attract any crowds. Tom Clancy declared that Canada ought to stick to her own game, and other officers of the Ottawa club, while admitting that the British rugby had its good points, did not think it measured up to the standard of Canadian football.

President Jack MacKenzie thinks, however, that the rules committee should get together and devise new regulations, calling for the absolute elimination of interference. Hundreds of Ottawa school boys play football outside the regular hours, and so far there has been no interference on the part of players, who fear additional accidents.

WINDSOR, October 23 (Canadian Press). — Coroner Dr. Labelle stated to-day that probably no inquest would be held into the death of Mrs. Mary Lefave, found dead in her apartment shortly before 2 a.m. to-day.

Cloutier is being held by the police for investigation.

Mrs. Lefave's body was found huddled on the floor of the apartment over a desk telephone, which had fallen to the floor.

The police took the Lefave woman and Cloutier into custody early on Sunday afternoon on account of a fight in which they had engaged.

IN MEMORIAM.

JONES — In loving memory of our dear mother Mrs. W. M. Jones, who departed this life Oct. 23, 1920.

The midnight stars are gleaming on a lone and silent grave,
Beneath sleeps one we dearly love, but who we could not save;

Her weary hours and days of pain,
Her troubled nights are past,
Her ever-patient worn-out frame has found sweet rest at last.

The happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still,
But death has left a vacant place,
The world can never fill.

Rev. E. R. James officiated, and Lohengrin's wedding march was played by Miss Marjorie James.
The bride was given away by her father, and wore a gown of brown radium lace over satin, with black hat, and carried Ophelia roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Luella Nurse, of Toronto, wearing wood brown canton crepe with hat to match.
The groom was supported by Mr. Cliff. Might, of Toronto.
The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents, including a handsome library lamp from the staff of the Canadian National-Grand Trunk.
After the ceremony the happy couple left on an extended honeymoon to Toronto, Montreal, and Quebec. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood will reside at 110 Lock Street.

CRANLEY—COLLINS.
The wedding took place on Tuesday, Oct 10th, in the Church of the Immaculate Conception, of Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Collins, of Douro, and Lawrence Cranley, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cranley, Douro. Rt. Rev. Monsignor McColl performed the ceremony.
The bride was charmingly attitred in a gown of brown Duchess satin, with touches of silver, and picture hat to match, the bridesmaid, Miss Margaret Collins, wearing navy canton crepe and large hat. The bridesmaid was supported by Mr. Michael Sheehan of Douro. The wedding march was played by Mrs. O'Donoghue.
After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride'se parents, decorated for the occasion with roses and ferns. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Cranley motored to their future home in Douro, where they entertained about a hundred and fifty of their friends at an enjoyable social evening.
The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a handsome pendant, to the bridesmaid an onyx ring, and to the best man a pair of gold cuff links.

GREEN—FLORENCE.
A very pretty wedding was solemnized quietly on Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr and Mrs. D. Florence, 342 Stewart street, when their youngest daughter, Rose, became the bride of Benjamin Green, of Toronto. Rabbi Jacob Gordon, of Toronto, officiated.
The bride wore white satin charmeuse with overdrape of white georgette, heavily beaded. Her veil of Brussels net was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of ophelia roses. Miss M. Lexchin, of Toronto, acted as bridesmaid, wearing black charmeuse draped with Spanish lace, picture hat of black velvet and bouquet of Columbia roses. Mr. J. Green supported the bridegroom.
After the ceremony, a reception to over one hundred guests was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. P. Black acting as toastmaster. Mr. and Mrs. Green left later for Toronto and points west, the bride travelling in a seal coat with squirrel trimming and hat to match. They will reside in Toronto.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march, played by Mr. J. B. Chenhall, was smartly attired in a suit of navy duvetyne with large black velvet hat, and bouquet of ophelia roses. Her sister Miss Sadie White, was her attendant, wearing brown satin with hat to match, and carrying Columbia roses. Mr. Jas. Heasman of Stirling acted as best man.
Following the ceremony, a dainty buffet luncheon was served to the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties at the home of the bride's parents, where the decorations were carried out in cut flowers and ferns Mr. and Mrs. Heasman left later for a short honeymoon, after which they will re side in Toronto.
The many gifts received by the bride testified to her popularity with a large circle of friends. The bridegroom's gift to the bridesmaid was a pearl brooch, to the groomsman, a pair of gold cuff links.

IN MEMORIAM.

YORK.—In fond and loving memory of my dear husband, Pte. H. York, who entered into rest October 23rd, 1918.

He is gone but not forgotten,
And as dawns another year
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of him are very near,
Yet again we hope to meet him
When the day of life has fled,
And in heaven with joy to greet him
Where no farewell tears are shed.

THE EXTENSION PUBLIC HIGHWAY

Preparing to Entertain the Minister--Chamber of Commerce News.

The Peterboro Ontario Motor League has appointed a special committee Messrs. F. W. Borbridge, E. B. Fowler, H. O. Fiske to make a report as soon as possible on the level crossings of the roads in the city. The object of this report is to make a recommendation to the Board of Railway Commissioners.
The President R. S. Cotton, reported as to the action of the Motor League. The Minister of Provincial Public Highways had authorized the future construction of two miles of macadamized road of the Peterborough-Port Hope Highway between Kendry and Fraserville.

THREE REASONS FOR SHORT SKIRT.

Those who are still holding out for short skirts will find makers of hosiery on their side. They are making a desperate effort to keep up the interest in stockings and here are three of their latest efforts
Above we find Salome, she of the seven veils, embroidered in silk on a pair of chiffon hose.
Silk embroidery and jet beads have joined their efforts in the middle pair, and below we find an interesting application of spangles and brilliants.
Need we add that these came over from Paris?

RE-ELECTION OF BONAR LAW IS NOT CERTAIN

Hinted That His Glasgow Constituency is Likely to Return One of His Opponents-

BIG IRISH VOTE

LONDON, Oct. 24.— (Canadian Press.) — Prime Minister Bonar Law held a conference to-day with Wm. T. Cosgrave, head of the Irish Provisional Government, with regard to Irish affairs.

The Colonial Office's announcement on the subject is as follows:

"In view of the change in Government, arrangements were made at the beginning of the week for a meeting between Mr. Bonar Law and Mr. Cosgrave, head of the Irish Government. The meeting took place this morning. Mr. Cosgrave was accompanied by K. O'Higgins, Secretary of Home Affairs, and Hugh Kennedy, law officer."

GLASGOW SITUATION.

Glasgow will be the chief centre of interest in the political situation this week. Andrew Bonar Law, Premier, on Thursday will announce details of his policy there, and forty-eight hours later Lloyd George will address the meeting, being accompanied by Sir Robrt Horne.

It is hinted that Bonar Law's re-election as member for the central division of Glasgow is in no wise certain, and that he will be opposed by Sir George Paish, as a free Liberal, in addition to a Labor candidate. Former Premier Asquith will speak in Glasgow next week.

In many centres in England and Scotland there is considerable Irish vote and how they will cast their votes is arousing interest. Freeman's Journal crystallizes its advice to them in this sentence: "Wherever you see a diehard head hit it."

AGAINST SOCIALISM.

The Conservative party's campaign will be one against Socialism, judging from the flood of propaganda being released from Unionist central headquarters. "Safety first, vote Conservative," will be the slogan ,and among the watch words are "be safe under Unionists, not sorry under Socialism," and "no hand up to Reds; Socialism is the Red route to ruin."

It was learned to-day that nearly half of the eighty-seven members of the Conservative party who supported Austen Chamberlain at the Carlton Club meeting last week voted for Mr. Bonar Law as their party leader at the Hotel Cecil gathering yesterday.

LLOYD GEORGE'S HONORS.

LONDON, Oct. 24. — (Canadian Press.)—Issuance of Lloyd George's honor list, which is expected tomorrow, is awaited with much interest. It is persistently rumored that Marquis Curzon is to be raised to a Dukedom.

This would be a most remarkable incident, as a Dukedom is the highest rank in the British Peerage.

It is also rumored that the immensely wealthy Sir Philip Sassoon is to be raised to the peerage.

CREATED SENSATION.

LONDON, Oct. '24.— (Canadian Press.)—Reginald McKenna, former Liberal Chancellor of the Exchequer, created a sensation to-day when he announced to the City Conservative Association that he supported entirely Bonar Law's policy.

"I highly esteem the courage and conviction of Mr. Bonar Law," he said. It seems to me his Government offers us the only prospect of stability. We shall have not only peace, but capable and faithful administration.

FRAME LABOR POLICY.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press).—A dozen of the most prominent Labor men in Britain met here to-day to frame a Labor policy for the coming general election. A manifesto will be issued in a few days. It was decided not to affiliate with any other party.

FAIRY TALE OF A BOOTLEGGER

Saw Man Hiding Bottle of Burke's on Gravel Road —Paid $316.50 in Police Court.

Lawrence Edwards, who lives on the outskirts of Port Hope, was fined $300 and costs of $16.50, by Magistrate Langley, in the local police court on a charge of having liquor in a place other than his private dwelling. The police classed him as a bootlegger, and added to their list of prehistoric jokes Edwards' tale of how and where he obtained the liquor.

He was driving along the Gravel Road toward Peterboro on Saturday evening when he happened to see a man hiding something in the grass. Going back to the spot Edwards discovered that "the something was a sealed bottle of Burke's Irish. Congratulating himself upon his luck, he came on into Peterboro, and met a man who "persuaded" him to part with the "beautiful bottle of Burke's." However the police had noticed his arrival, and because he was a suspected bootlegger Constables Thomas and Carey kept him in sight and swooped on him after the transaction was made.

The man whom he supplied was fined $20 and costs, altogether $31.50, for "being under the influence."

DETROIT WIFE DENIES THAT SHE GAMBLES

Eyes Alternately Snap and Fill With Tears When Seeking Divorce From Lazy Husband.

FED BY CHARITY

DETROIT, Oct. 24.— The blue eyes of Mrs. Catherine Sugden, 21 years old, of 376 1-2 Louise avenue, alternately snapped with anger and filled with tears, as she related her marital difficulties in Circuit Court before Judge Adolph F. Marschner. She is suing her husband, Frank, 10 years her senior, for divorce, on the grounds of cruelty and non-support.

Scenes in which Sugden became violently angry, struck her, and threw at her a metal toy automobile belonging to their two-year-old son, Palmer, causing a wound that left a scar, were described by Mrs. Sugden.

Fed By Charity.

There were times, she testified, when the only food she had was what her mother brought her, and what a friend who roomed at her home shared with her.

Her husband was lazy and refused to work, she said. The strident note of the alarm clock meant nothing to him, she declared. When the alarm went off in the morning he would rise only long enough to shut it off, she said, and then return to the comfort of his bed.

She denied her husband's charge that she returned from all-night poker parties with men at 2 and 3 a.m., and then refused to rise in time to get her husband's breakfast.

On the contrary, she said, she would prepare breakfast, and call him, but he would refuse to get up.

Penny Ante Only.

The only time she played poker, she asserted, was when she indulged in a friendly game of penny ante at her mother's home, when she never lost more than 50 cents.

"I did not tell my husband that I lost the $5 he gave me in a poker game," she replied to Sugden's counsel who asked her if she had not made such a statement to her husband.

Mrs. Catherine Walker, 578 Emerson avenue, who lived with the Sugdens for five months, testified that on many occasions when Mrs. Sugden was without food or money to buy it, she had given her potatoes, lard and other groceries from her own supply.

Money is Beginning to Flow More Freely For Relief of Fire Sufferers

Peterborough's Contributions Have Shown Great Improvement the Past Few Days—The Need is Still Acute and Everyone Should do His or Her Bit Without Delay.

Peterborough's contributions toward the relief of the sufferers in Northern Ontario has shown a great improvement in the past few days, and the amount left with the Examiner to forward had reached a total last night of $380. In addition to this, appeals from the pulpits of many of the local churches have resulted in several substantial subscriptions being raised, the exact totals of which have not yet been reported.

It is now almost three weeks since the first reports of the fire reached the city, and in that three weeks' time reports have come in every day of the wonderful struggle against terrific hardships that is being made by the people of Haileybury and the surrounding district. The first touch of winter followed close on the heels of the fire which wiped out their homes, and even before the most temporary shelters could be raised the victims of this terrible disaster had to face a raging blizzard from the north. Snow and sleet added to their already overwhelming sufferings and their blackened fields and ruined villages became but a sea of cold and clammy mud. On this they pitched their flimsy tents or built their makeshift huts, and with a display of courage that is unequalled in the history of our nation made preparations to rebuild their stricken homes.

Aid was sent to them from many of those communities who were fortunate enough to escape a similar terrible disaster, and Peterborough, having at last awakened to the emergency of the occasion, is also sending aid. We must not stop here. These people must have more than just enough to tide them over for a week. A long hard winter is before them, and if our aid is to be effective it must be continued through the winter months.

Clothing is needed—many of the sufferers are still going barefooted, many have only the light clothing in which they fled from the flames. Blankets are needed, and more will be needed through the winter. Money is needed to help rebuild the homes and to buy some of the necessities of life.

Contributions will be accepted and forwarded by the Examiner, the Red Cross, the Fire Department and similar organizations.

LLOYD GEORGE MARKING TIME

Thought He is Waiting Until His Political Enemies Unmask Their Guns.

LONDON, Oct. 24. — (Canadian Press)—The present political battle is only in its preliminary stage, and David Lloyd George likely realizes this better than his followers. That is why his speech on Saturday seems disappointing to his staunchest friends.

Instead of the Lloyd George of former days, the crowd heard a speech from one who for the moment is obviously tired and who is also for the moment uncertain which way exactly to direct his steps.

"There is no gratitude for past services at election times," declared an old political campaigners to the Canadian Press when discussing Lloyd George's speech, particularly in regard to his long review of the past.

However, Lloyd George knows every rope, and many shrewd observers are of the opinion that Saturday's oration was merely marking time and waiting until the enemy unmasks his guns. For a knowledge of Bonar Law's full policy, Lloyd George will apparently have to wait till Saturday, when Mr. Law speaks at Glasgow, whereof he is one of the representatives and where he will have a stiff fight in the approaching election against Sir George Paish, the noted economist. Meantime the new Premier's policy is presumed to comprise: (1) Maintenance and stabilization of the Entente; (2) no extension of such foreign commitments as in the Near and Middle East; (3) development of trade within the Empire; (4) economies at home; (5) settlement with Ireland.

Private members of Parliament openly confess their difficult position. When asked what he thought of the political situation, one member said: "I have not begun to think about it. I am too busy trying to find out which party I belong to and what the leaders think about the situation."

PRICE OF GAS 37c.

The Wholesale Price Is 31c Per Gallon.

Little Ones Busy.

In aid of the same afflicted fellow-mortals, with commendable industry and sympathetic interest, the children in the sewing classes of Peterborough's public schools have been busy as bees making towels. They needed no spurring, but, working like little daughters of Trojans, have just completed in remarkably quick time no less than 200 towels for fire-stricken residents in Haileybury and surrounding districts. These goods will be forwarded at once.

CARS DAMAGED IN SUNDAY MISHAPS

Two Accidents on Gravel Road — No Person Injured.

Mr. Arthur Clydesdale's automobile was considerably damaged on Sunday afternoon, near Fraserville, by the recklessness of a speed fiend, who dashed between two cars as they were passing and struck both of them glancing blows. Mr. Clydesdale was going south and a man named Brown from Cobourg was on his way to Peterboro, according to an account of the affair. Just as these cars were passing, a third car heading towards Peterboro, rushed between them, brushed each of them, forcing them into either ditch.

The automobile owned by John McCann was hit by Mr. J. Hamlin's car about five miles out the gravel road, and on the Lakefield road on Sunday afternoon Ernest Whitren, while driving his car was hit by another.

The offender promised to pay Mr. Whitren the cost of repairs, which were estimated at from $30 to $50.

Dominion notes held by the banks have increased by ten millions, call loans in Canada are up seven millions, call loans outside Canada show a decrease of four millions; current loans in Canada are up twelve millions, also as compared with the previous month.

CROSS ARCTIC ICE.

OTTAWA, Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Allan Crawford and his companions, who ran up the British flag on Wrangel Island, can, if compelled by shortage of supplies, cross Arctic ice to the Siberian coast and comparative safety, it was stated at the Department of Naval Service here to-day. This perilous trip could be made without undue risk, although no fears were entertained that Crawford and his party would be driven to this extremity.

It was stated that the party was provided with sufficient supplies to protect them in case of necessity. One of the intentions of the expedition is to live "off the country" as far as possible, and it was believed no difficulty would be experienced in shooting or trapping enough game and fish to enable the members to survive with ease.

A Silver Collection will be taken at the door in aid of the Northern Ontario fire sufferers.

It's Time For COLDS Don't Get One

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.— The season of sickness approaches. The air will become dusty, full of germs, ready to be stirred into life and activity when a warm lodging in nose or mouth can be found. The usual winter ailments, coughs, colds, tonsolitis, diphtheria, grippe, pneumonia, are on their way here.

How to prevent them? Dr. Allan J. McLaughlin, assistant surgeon general and president of the American Public Health Association, lays down the rules:

1. Keep clean. By that is meant, not only bathing daily, but washing out the mouth and teeth after every meal. It also means gargling the throat and douching the nose. For the nose and throat wash use a solution of one teaspoonful of salt to one pint of warm water.

2. Keeping the pores open and functioning through daily baths is of little value unless you wear the proper clothing. Loose-fitting, well-ventilated underwear is the thing.

3. Get plenty of exercise. Eat heartily of substantial food. Consult your physician as to diet, exercise and rest.

ONLY 3 PATIENTS IN ISOLATION HOSPITAL

One Diphtheria and Two Scarlet Fever, Dr. T. W. H. Young Reports.

The Queen Mary Isolation Hospital has at present only three patients, one with diphtheria and two scarlet fever, Dr. Young, M.O.H., told the Examiner to-day. Only one house in Peterboro is placarded for measles, and these four cases constitute the total number of contagious diseases in the city known to Dr. Young.

RENT NOT HIGH IN PETERBORO

Although Increased From 60 to 85 Per Cent the Past Few Years.

The Ottawa Journal of recent date has an article that refers to the prevalence of "to let" signs on apartment houses in that city as an evidence of return to pre-war conditions in the matter of lower rents. The writer says:

"If renters of houses and apartments feel joy at the prospect of lower rents, it is not merely because of the thought of the money they will have, but largely because of the feeling that since about 1916 they have been the victims of the law of supply and demand—as applied to rents."

The writer cites the case of one apartment house in Ottawa that rented in 1917 at $35 per month. It was in that year that a lively demand for houses set in, made possible by the return of the normal growth of the city, and the influx of people seeking war jobs. In 1918, the rent of this apartment was raised to $45; in 1919, to $55, and in 1920, to $60. Between 1918 and 1920, (3 years), this landlord had increased the rent over 70 per cent. The taxes, however, had increased during this period of time on this building by only six dollars, so that the author of the article figures out that the landlord had taken from successive tenants $300 more than he would have received had the rent remained at $35 per month, while he had paid in that time only six dollars more in taxes.

The Situation Here.

In Peterborough, inquiry elicited the information that rents in the same period of time have increased anywhere from 60 to 85 per cent. for both dwelling houses and apartments while taxes have gone up from 20 to 25 per cent. The contention is always made when rents are boosted that the taxes are going up and require an increase in rentals to match them, but the figures do not bear out this argument. It is true that between 1917 and 1920 coal and janitor wages increased also, but this would only play the fraction of a part in the increased cost of maintenance.

Another aspect that is blamed is the attitude of the people themselves in the times when houses were scarce. Some would-be renters would pay almost any money to secure desired domiciles, and in this way, helped to keep the prices up.

Low Rents Here.

A man, who, owing to the nature of his work, is an authority on things of this kind, asserts that Peterborough is not a place of high rentals, when compared with other smaller centres. Oshawa and Lindsay, for instance, in his opinion, charge bigger rents than one finds here, and the dwellings and situation are not as favorable. Rents won't come down until building costs come down," he says, because repairs and general maintenance cos's are excessive just now for the owner of real estate, while the would-be builder is discouraged when he faces the prospect of the initial expenditure required to erect even the smallest sort of dwelling.

The luxurious tastes of the present age; the demands by tenants for all manner of conveniences unknown to their forbears; the severe building restrictions claimed by one man to be almost prohibitive to erection of houses; the by-law which demands that a man submit a plan of a projected dwelling for the approval of the city engineer, all these are regarded as obstacles in the way of an etxensive building programme in any community.

One man makes the assertion that an owner is quite justified in asking for all he can get, in other words, that he should not consider the initial cost of the dwelling erected when building costs were low, as a basis for rental, but that he should charge the rents that are general now, as much as he can get being his idea. This is an opportunist frame of mind that perhaps wouldn't just appeal to the tenant as the right and proper thing, but that may be the final explanation of high rentals, as it is in the case of a good many other things.

TWO MEN AND A WOMAN ON "HIKING" TOUR

Are Journeying on Foot From Atlantic to Pacific Coast for a Private Wager.

IN PETERBOROUGH

"The Hikers" are in Peterboro. They arrived on Saturday, and are leaving to-night some time for Lindsay, their next stop. A trio of cheerful walkers; Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Saunders of London and A. P. Griffin of Oshawa, they are traversing Canada from ocean to ocean on a private wager, the terms of which they refuse to divulge. Starting from Charlottetown, P.E.I. last June, they have already walked 1,526 miles on their little tramp, and expect to cover a distance of some 3,600 miles by the time they reach their destination in Vancouver, where they hope to end their hike about the end of March of next year.

Walking steadily, sometimes fifty, sometimes forty usually about thirty miles a day, the never accept a ride. This walk is a real constitutional on foot; they carry their forty-pound loads on their backs, and the lady, as well as the gentlemen, is equipped with sensible-looking knickers. She is a trim little figure, small and slight, in a white wool jersey and knitted coat, with heavy stockings, stout low-heeled shoes and a jaunty tam The low shoes she habitually wears will be changed for high boots in Toronto, where the party expects to equip themselves for their winter campaign, when they will face the West, and later, the Rockies, with snowshoes for the tramp, whenever they can be used.

Had No Money

Starting out with no money, one of the conditions of the wager is that they arrive in the same condition, their necessary expenses along the way being paid by voluntary contributions from interested citizens of towns they visit. Mr. Saunders is just three weeks out of the hospital in Kingston, where he was operated on for peritonitis, after walking for nearly 30 miles in a condition of acute pain. Both men are returned veterans of the Great War, D. G. Saunders having been wounded and held prisoner for two years in Germany, and A. P. Griffin still suffering from the effects of serious gassing and of wounds that require a steel plate and stiff bandages for one leg Despite this handicap to pedestrianism, despite the recent operation and the frail look of the small pretty wife, they are a bright and happy trio, with a great deal of the atmosphere of the out of doors about their outlook and conversation, and a firm determination to accomplish their stunt, no matter what the difficulties may be.

From here, their route lies through Lindsay, Toronto, North Bay, Sudbury, on to Winnipeg and the Rockies, which they expect to traverse in the depths of winter.

The trio were most enthusiastic about the reception accorded them by Peterboro, its business men, its mayor, its citizens generally. "It's the very best town we struck since we started from Charlottetown", they all agreed, and wished to express their gratitude for the treatment accorded them here by the public at large.

FORMALITIES ENDED BONAR LAW PREMIER

It Is Expected That the Composition of the Ministry Will Be Announced To-Day—Election on November 15.

LONDON, October 24 (Associated Press). — Andrew Bonar Law yesterday, in the traditional phrase of the Court Circular, "kissed hands upon his appointment as Prime Minister and First Lord of the Treasury," and thus becomes Britain's first Canadian-born Premier.

Yesterday was devoted to the formalities necessary in Great Britain to a change in the Government.

The King in the morning gave an audience to and took formal leave of the outgoing Prime Minister, Lloyd-George. Then came the Unionist meeting in the afternoon, when Bonar Law was unanimously elected leader of the party. This was followed by an audience at Buckingham Palace, when Bonar Law, at the King's invitation, undertook to form a new administration.

The King will hold a Privy Council, probably on Wednesday, if the Prime Minister has by then completed his ministry, for the swearing in of the new Ministers. The King will, on the advice of the Prime Minister, proclaim the dissolution of Parliament on Thursday, and, according to present arrangements, elections will be held on 15th November.

Bonar Law is understood to have his Cabinet list almost completed, and it is expected the composition of the Ministry will be announced today. It is the almost universal opinion that he succeeds to a most difficult and onerous task, and many misgivings are heard whether his health will stand the inevitable strain, but he has made it quite clear that if he finds his health unequal to the task, he shall be allowed quietly to step aside.

The situation is unique in the annals of British election politics, inasmuch as with only three weeks to the election date, none of the leaders has yet announced his policy; each side appears to be waiting on the other.

Mr. Lloyd-George's opponents are making merry with the suggestion that the sword he announced himself as brandishing when he left London on Saturday must have been lost somewhere on the way to Leeds.

The only real question before the electorate is whether they wish to be governed by a Coalition. But that cannot properly be described as an election plank, because, in the quite unanticipated result of a tremendous landslide in favour of one particular party, it is almost certain that no party will be returned strong enough to form a Government—without the co-operation of some other party.

Bonar Law confirms the assertion that Ireland is an agreed question, and he further intimated clearly and frankly at the Unionist meeting yesterday that tariff reform or protection would not form an item of his policy. And, since Mr. Lloyd-George has announced himself as a Free-trader, this question cannot come to the front, as both the Liberal and Labour parties are in favour of Free-trade.

The Prime Minister promises to define his policy in his coming speech at Glasgow, but judging from his remarks yesterday, it will not be of an eventful character.

Previous to the breakdown of his health, which forced him temporarily to retire from politics, Bonar Law was a very close friend of Lloyd-George, and was identified with the entire Coalition policy; it is therefore practically impossible that he can in any important measure reverse this policy. Thus, unless Lloyd-George should take a strong turn in his policy, there will be little difference between the platform of the two men.

The contest seems likely to be one of the personalities of men, rather than measures, so far as these two parties are concerned. The free Liberals and the Labourites have, of course, well defined policies, and, according to present indications, are resolutely opposed to any co-operation with Lloyd-George even should the former Premier seek reconciliation with either of them.

The Labourites will resent the fixing of the elections for mid-week, and will represent the decision as a deliberate intention of the Unionist Party to handicap the working men voters. The Unionists have two arguments against delaying the elections until the following Saturday—First, that a short time is allowed for passing Irish legislation, and, second, that the country dislikes a general election so near Christmas, because it interferes with Christmas shopping.

If the elections are held on 15th November, Parliament will be able to re-assemble on the twentieth, but several days will be consumed in swearing in the members, electing the Speaker, and debating the reply to the King's Speech, which, it is expected, will only contain a single legislative item, namely, the Irish Constitution.

Thus there will be very few days left to debate the Irish Bill, and the Prime Minister will probably invite the House to pass it practically without debate as an agreed measure.

BISHOP M. J. O'BRIEN OPENED NEW CHURCH

LINDSAY, October 24. — His Lordship Bishop O'Brien of Peterboro formally blessed and opened the new Catholic Church at Coboconk, on Thursday. He was assisted in the ceremonies by Rev. Father Kelly of Victoria Road, who will have charge of the new parish, Rev. Father McAuley of Ennismore, and Rev. Father O'Brien of Peterboro.

The new edifice, which is a frame one, cost in the neighborhood of $5,000.

Second Race Will Be Sailed To-Morrow.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 24. —(Canadian Press).—The International Committee in charge of the fishermen's races here last night reiterated through Chairman W. W. Lufkin, at a banquet in honor of the two racing crews, that Saturday's race stands as no contest and that the series will be resumed on Wednesday. The postponement over today was decided upon on account of the illness of Captain Morrisey of the Henry Ford and at his request.

The Nova Scotia members of the committee who at one time last night had agreed to hand over the championship cup to the Henry Ford if the committee saw fit to so decided concurred whole heartedly in the agreement to postpone.

HAD ROYAL TIME LOCKED IN A CELL WITH REAL BOOZE

Alexander Cameron, of Sarnia, Was Shut Up With Some "Real Stuff" Which Was Being Held As Evidence.

WOULD STAY IN.

SARNIA, Ont., Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press.)— Alexander Cameron, arrested early Sunday for intoxication and placed in the local jail, had a pleasant sojourn over Sunday in his cell, where he imbibed freely of some fine stock gin and real beer which he secured from a case which had been placed in a cell case by the police. Cameron secured an opimum pipe, taken in a recent raid by the police and reaching into the case pulled the box of gin where he could pry the lid open. He secured the gin and immediately proceeded to drink it with all possible haste and secretly toopping it off with several bottles of real beer held as an exhibit in a former capture. Soon all was peace for the prisoner who, when questioned later as to bail, expressed his perfect contentment with his restricted quarters which had furnished him with such liberal amounts of the "real stuff."

Cameron said he was not anxious to leave the jail as he might only get drunk again, but yesterday he paid the customary $25 and costs and is once again free.

SALEM FARMER IS BURNED OUT

Barn, Well-Filled Silo and Season's Crops a Total Loss.

HASTINGS, October 24. — Mr. Gordon Vanwicklin, owner of the Israel Platt farm, at Salem, met with a severe loss last Saturday when his barn and season's crops together with a well filled silo were destroyed by fire. Threshing had just commenced only six or eight sheaves having been fed, when the place burst into flames.

The separator belonging to Mr. James Peters, was also burned.

With an insurance of only $1000 on the barn and $100 on the silo, the losses are heavy.

PRIEST'S SLAYER IS FOUND INSANE

Deaf Mute Cosgrove Will Be Confined During the Pleasure Lt.-Governor.

OWEN SOUND, Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press).—John Cosgrove, deaf mute, charged with the murder of Rev. Father Clohecy at the door of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church at Proton, was found insane by the jury at the Assizes yesterday afternoon, and was ordered by Mr. Justice Riddell to be confined to jail at the pleasure of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

Rev. Father Clohecy was foully murdered on the evening of August 19. When about to leave the church a rifle, thrust through the half-open doorway, was discharged, and the bullet penetrated the priest's body. He staggered from the church, and finally reached the home of Michael Connolly, where he expired on August 23.

A sacred fire in a Buddhist temple in Bakyoh, Siam, is the oldest man-lit fire in the world. It has been burning for more than 500 years.

Henry Ford Won First Race For the Fishermen's Trophy

Gloucester Entry Led the Canadian Bluenose Home By Two Minutes and Nineteen Seconds — The Captain of Winning Schooner Had Trouble With the Crew Before Starting.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 24.—Canadian Press. — Mrs. Jonathan Raymond, of Gloucester, wife of a part owner of the schooner Henry Ford, American challenger for the International Fishermen's trophy, shares with Captain Clayton Morrissey and United States Secretary of the Navy, Edwin C. Denby, the honor of winning yesterday's nip and tuck forty mile struggle over the Canadian defend : Bluenose, Captain Angus Walters, for the fishing schooner championship of the North Atlantic seaboard.

Captain "Clayte" hailing from Lower East Pubnico, Nova Scotia, sailed a race such as any expert yachtsman might wish to have to his credit, blanketing his opponent at the start four seconds after the gun a lead of two minutes nineteen seconds at the finish. But the real heroine of the day was the petite and intensely earnest Mrs. Morrissey, who rallied the recalitrant crew of the Ford, in open mutiny against the decision of the I national committee in declaring Saturday's contest no race, fought them to a finish in a field and in language of their own choosing, and finally saw them board their schooner for the finest race of any international series sailed to date. Mr. Denby and "Clayte" Morrissey proved able seconds.

The contest got away to perhaps the most remarkable start in sea racing annals, both schooners crossing the starting line at the same moment, four seconds after the gun. But 'Walters' gibing too soon for the line on the reach to the first mark, had lost the weather berth, and being thereby immediately blanketed experienced the disappointment of seeing the challenger draw steadily away. She was never headed. When the first mark was reached, the Ford had established a lead of 40 seconds. Both schooners had hit a clip of approximately 11 knots in a 13 knot breeze.

The second leg was a dead beat to the windward. But to the great surprise of Canadian witnessing the contest. Ford pointed as high while footing considerably faster in a breeze that had dropped to eight knots. When half the leg had been covered the American had established a lead of ten minutes, but the wind freshening, and aided by the poorer judgment of his opponent in determining his position Angus reduced this lead at the second mark to two minutes fifty four seconds. Morrissey made three tacks in order to round the buoy. Walters did it in two.

GOULET ELECTION IS CONCEDED IN RUSSEL

OTTAWA, Oct. 24. — Canadian Press. — The election of Goulet, Liberal, in the Russel Provincial bye-election is conceded by a large majority. In Rockland Goulet led Blanchard, Farmer, and Bowen, Beer and Wine, by a 800 majority, and in East View, the only other large sub-division in the constituency, he led his nearest opponent by nearly 500.

A HOME-BREAKER MEETS TRAGIC FATE.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 24.—Who killed Guy N. Dernier, clubman and bon vivant may never be known.

His extraordinary fascination for women, which officials declare caused his murder here, is the means now of protecting his slayer or slayers from the vengeance of the law.

Dernier has been accused of breaking up numerous home. His diary, recently found, is said to contain the names of many women socially prominent in the southwest.

Fearful lest the finger of scorn be directed toward their feminine relatives, powerful men are said to be subtly but effectively blocking the police in their efforts to unravel the mystery.

The acknowledged Beau Brummell of Arizona's capital was strangled to death and his body thrown into an irrigation ditch near here. His clothes were left neatly piled in his automobile which was left near the ditch, apparently to give the impression that Dernier took his own life.

CHILD BURNED TO DEATH.

PORT ARTHUR, Oct. 24. — (Canadian Press.)—When Mrs. John Anderechuck, Austrian, arrived home Saturday after visiting a grocery store, she found the clothing of her three year old daughter, Elsie, on fire, and the bed, in which an infant lay, burning. The woman reached the infant and extinguished the fire, but before she could turn to the older child, it had been so badly burned that it it has since died in the hospital.

MAY CALL U.S. CONGRESS BACK ON NOVEMBER 20

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press)—President Harding's purpose is to call Congress back to Washington November 20. This is the information which has been given members of Congress who have recently conferred with him. It has not been announced officially and there is as yet no certainty when official announcement will be made. Also, it is true that a number of loaders are still trying to induce the President not to call the extar session.

Ship subsidy will likely be before the House as soon as the extra session meets. The Senate will consider it in the regular short session which open in December.

While the House takes up subsidy, the Senate will consider the anti-lynching bill demanded by colored republican voters. A number of other important measures will be pressed for passage this winter, including a general overhauling of the existing law relating to railroad labor and the railroad labor board. The Harding administration wants to avoid an extra session next spring but the program of proposed legislation of the first order is so long that it is by no means sure it can be avoided.

CURRIE WINS IN TORONTO RIDING

This Morning's Summary Gives Conservatives Southeast Torontp Seat

TORONTO, Oct. 24.— (Canadian Press). —By plurality of 3653 votes with two polling places still to report the Provincial riding of south east Toronto resumed its conservative allegiance in yesterday's bye election by returning Colo John Currie. The vote was extremely light only seven thousand votes being cast from the roll of about 37,000.

The results with two polls missing were:—

Currie, Conservative 4759; Callahan, Independent Liberal, 1,106, Pearce Liberal 742, Maguire Labor 488.

Voting shows considerable revision of sentiment in riding from 1919 when the late John O'Neill, Liberal was given the majority of 4,585 over his nearest opponent.

HAT FOR WOMAN MOTORIST IS PATENTED IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Oct. 24.—(Associated Press)—A motoring hat for women has just been invented, and patented, which is claimed to protect women's hair from the effects of wind and rain.

It is designed on the lines of a man's flying helmet; is made of silk and fitted with silk hood over the back, and small pads over the ears. The hood and pads are detachable and it is claimed the wearer can finish a long motor tour looking and feeling perfectly tidy and without a headache.

BYRON LEDERER DIED SUDDENLY

Left Peterboro Yesterday Morning and Expired Last Evening in a Toronto Hotel.

TORONTO, October 24. Canadian Press. — Byron Lederer, aged 50, president of the Birmingham Motors Ltd., Peterboro, died suddenly in the King Edward hotel last night.

Death was due to heart failure. it is believed, but an autopsy is to be performed to-day.

Lederer, whose home is in Brooklyn, N.Y., had taken a bath, and he was just leaving the bathroom when he collapsed on the floor.

A doctor was called, but the application of restoratives was of no avail and he expired almost immediately. Lederer left Peterboro yesterday morning for Toronto.

The deceased had been out driving early in the evening with A. F. Boyle, 65 Glenmore avenue, also of the firm of Birmingham Motors. Mr. Lederer complained of pains in his chest and asked to be taken to the hotel.

GOULET SCORED HOLLOW VICTORY

Defeated Phineas Blanchard, U.F.O. Candidate in Russell Bye election

OTTAWA, Oct. 24. — (Canadian Press.)—Alfred Goulet, merchant of Bourget, Liberal standard bearer, scored a hollow victory over Phineas Blanchard, U.F.O. candidate, in the Russell County by-election yesterday.

The last result available last night with twelve outlying polls to hear from, gave Goulet 4,093 votes and Blanchard 1,907. James Bowen, Independent, received 250. Goulet led in all accept three sub-divisions. Less than half the voters went to the polls.

The Liberal candidate's victory is largely the result of polling in three large sub-divisions. In Rockland township he received a majority of 849, and in Eastview 674. In the Township of Clarence his majority was 293. The utter route of Bowen, who was a beer and wine candidate, leaves no doubt as to the feeling of the riding on the issue.

WILL NOT FORM NEW PARTY IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Oct. 24. — (Canadian Press.)—Speaking at a dinner given here last night by Coalition Unionists to their leaders, Austen Chamberlain said they would always remain Conservative and did not contemplate forming another party. Difference between Bonar Law and himself was that he was thinking of unity of the nation while the Premier designate was thinking how to preserve unity of party.

Earl of Balfour said they could not bring themselves to the degraded position of saying to Lloyd George, whose great services to the country would be immortalized in history: "We find that party machine has had enough of you, and we must ask you to leave."

Action taken at Carlton Club, he said, would give wound to the Conservative party that would be hard to heal.

ANOTHER DEPARTMENT DISCOVERED IN OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, Oct. 24. — (Canadian Press.)—Pinned to the wall of one of the offices occupied by the finance department is an envelope bearing the perplexing address:

Fine Aunts Department
Government House, Ottawa.

The envelope is postmarked Toronto and contained an inquiry about Victory Bonds. Many quaint contributions to orthography are received in Ottawa, but "Fine Aunts Department" is unique.

OFFICERS TESTIFY ABOUT COLLISION

Captains and Pilots of Izgled and Orkeld Had Difficulty in Explaining Why They Collided.

MONTREAL, Oct. 24.— (Canadian Press.) — Two captains, two pilots and various other officers of the steamships Orkeld and Izgled at the Wreck Commissioner's Court here yesterday had a difficulty in explaining why the two vessels, steaming at easy speed up the St. Lawrence and going in the same direction, should have come into collision near Cape St. Charles on the night of October 12 last.

Captain Nicolas Dabinowitch, a Jugo Slav, of the Izgled testified that his ship while turning to port had sheered in the current at a sharp turn in the river and before he could get it straightened out, the Orkld had collided with her.

Captain Julius Skovgaard, of the Orkeld, was below at the time of the accident, so his evidence was not important.

Armand Marchand, pilot of the Izgled, said he was trying to get out of the way of the Orkeld, but the current sheered his vessel too much.

Peter Hansen, chief officer of the Orkeld, testified that the thought the Izgled was in trouble at the time of the collision. He had sounded four blasts prior to striking the Orkeld. The latter had not sounded as she had right of way and both vessels were in full sight.

Taking of evidence will proceed to-day.

SHOOTING OUT THE CRUSTS CEMENT KILN

Fusing of materials used in Portlong cylindrical kilns. In these, the ling cylindrical kilns. In these, the ground stone and other raw materials are blended under intense heat.

The molten mass is wont to collect and form a ring around the interior of the cylinder. As this grows, it threatens to close up the cylinder, and stop production.

Stopping to remove this ring is an expensive process necessitating a two-day shutdown. The shotgun, therefore, became the agency for removing it while the work went on.

Standing at a special opening shot gun in hand a marksman watches for a ring to collect. When he sees one, he fires "deer load" of heavy shot at one point in the ring breaking through the crust and causing the rest of the ring to break off.

From 500 to 1000 shots are fired at one ring, often, and all at such speed that 10 repeating shotguns must be used, one man firing them and another loading them.

It's great for your marksmanship —but hard on your shoulder.

WILL SEND RELIEF TO FARMERS WHO HAD CROPS SEIZED

Inquiry Being Made Regarding Alleged Seizure of Crops in the Dauphin District of Manotiba.

WANT ARBITRATION.

WINNIPEG, October 24. Canadian Press. — Following the reports of the seizure of farmers' crops in the Dauphin district, steps have been taken to inquire into the situation, and if possible to extend relief to the farmers.

W. R. Wood, secretary of the United Farmers of Manitoba, it is understood, has written to representatives to learn the actual condition and to have the difficulties between the farmers and their creditors submitted to arbitration of the joint board set up by the United Farmers Executive, and the mortgage association of the province. Many farmers in the Dauphin district, according to reports received here, are demanding that a moratorium be granted them.

WILSON PLANNING TO ESCAPE AGAIN.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 24— Herbert Wilson, former evangelist, alleged mail robber and convicted murderer, who, a few days ago, led a break from the Los Angeles county jail, will continue "to plot and plan to get his liberty," according to newspapermen.

"I long for my liberty, would risk my life for it, and eventually expect to get it, if I can do so with out taking human life," he was quoted as saying.

Wilson is held in the County Jail until the appellate court acts on his appeal.

KILLED IN MILL.

PORT ARTHUR, Oct. 24. — (Canadian Press.)— Attempting to remove a belt from a revolving wheel at the Pidgeon River Lumber Company's planing mill, Jacob Neim, 39, was caught in the machinery, whirled on to a steel table in which was running a cross-cut saw and so badly injured that he died a few hours later. He leaves three children.

LAMENTABLE APATHY.

When only seven thousand voters out of a total on the list of thirty-seven thousand turn out to vote in a by-election, in which four candidates are competing for support, and this in an urban riding where no one has to walk more than a block or two to reach his polling sub-division, it is evident that there is need of a shaking up of the people to a realization of the fact that their apathy and indifference are a drag upon progress and an impediment in the path of good government.

That was the showing made in South-East Toronto yesterday.

The opinion of over 80 per cent. of the electors of the riding was not represented at all in the vote.

It is not a record in which the people of Toronto can take much pride, nor is an encouraging sign for those who have been endeavoring to arouse Canadians to the fact that it is the duty of all good citizens to discharge their responsibility at the polls and that no man or woman who does not do so is not a good citizen nor a good Canadian.

YESTERDAY'S BY-ELECTION.

There is little political significance in the results of the two Provincial by-elections yesterday.

South-East Toronto and Russell failed to furnish a surprise, for the Toronto seat returned to its normal Conservative representation and Russell remains in the Liberal column as it has for many years.

There was little doubt of the result in either case, and the chief factor of interest in the contests was the apathy shown by the electors in both ridings, the smallness of the vote registered indicating that the people are lamentably unconcerned over their representation in the Legislature.

The voting in Toronto, however, contains some food for reflection on the part of the temperance forces, for it indicates that in the Queen City at least there is a tendency to swing back from extreme prohibition measures. The fact that Col. J. A. Currie, whose speeches suggested the necessity of changes in the temperance regulations, headed the polls, and that J. J. Callahan, the Independent Liberal, who advocated wine and beer licenses, was second, beating the official Liberal candidate, is conclusive evidence of a "moist" sentiment of considerable extent in that section of Toronto.

Otherwise, the by-elections yesterday are devoid of importance, except to the condidates themselves.

MAKING THE ROADS SAFE.

St. Catharines proposes to pass a bylaw compelling all vehicles to carry lights at night. The movement is growing, and eventually the Province will have to adopt the common-sense precaution against accidents.

It is a self-evident truth that if the city of St. Catharines considers it necessary to have vehicles illuminated there is much more need for a similar measure to be operative on the country roads.

A vehicle that does not carry a light is considered a menace on the comparatively well-lighted streets of a city.

How much more dangerous then is a similar vehicle on a dark road?

The Ontario Motor League has been pressing for the passage of a measure to cover the whole Province, and many newspapers, the Examiner included, have been using their influence to securing this protection for those who travel our highways at night.

So far but little impression has been made upon the legislators.

The Farmer members are hostile to the proposed legislation, although they as a class would be more benefitted than anybody else by such a measure.

If an accident occurs because of a collision between a motor car and a horse vehicle it is usually the latter who suffers the most.

Yet the Legislature refuses to adopt a simple precaution that would make conditions safer for everybody.

THE P.A.A.A. DRIVE.

The Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association is shortly to inaugurate an appeal for more members, and a campaign to secure at least 1,500 members in this city will be launched in the near future.

As the President, Dr. A. W. McPherson, explained to the Rotary Club on Monday, the chief object of the Association is to provide healthful recreation and exercise for the people of Peterborough of all classes and ages and of both sexes.

That is a policy broad and comprehensive enough to enlist the support of the whole community.

On its record for the past year, the Association deserves that support.

Never in the history of this city have so many people taken part in organized sport as in the past twelve months, and credit for that fact must be given to the P.A.A.A.

That organization has launched and fostered new leagues in lacrosse, hockey, rugby and soft ball, and scores of young people who otherwise would not have had an opportunity of participating in these splendid games have had the amusement and the health-giving benefit of organized recreation.

That is work that is well worth while.

A community that provides plenty of opportunities for clean recreation is a community that attracts people to it.

It is a community that has not to worry much about juvenile courts and larger police forces.

It is a community in which people are glad to live and the fame of which spreads abroad, constituting a better advertisement than any publicity organization could possibly launch.

The Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association has done much to make Peterborough just such a community in the short time it has been functioning. Its officers believe that with the co-operation of the people much more can be accomplished in the coming months.

Little, however, can be done without funds, and it is for the purpose of securing the necessary sinews of war that the membership campaign is to be inaugurated.

The Examiner hopes that when the drive starts there will be little difficulty experienced in giving the Association that increased membership that its policy merits and that its record deserves.

A COMPLETE FAILURE.

No more convincing proof of the failure of the Russian experiment in Sovietism is to be found than in a statement just issued by the Eastern European and Levantine division of the United States Department of Commerce, summarizing a report made by an expert on Russian agriculture. The Russian peasants, as is well known, refused to obey the dictates of the Bolshevist rulers, and neither coercion nor persuasion —both of which policies were tried in turn—prevailed to effect any alteration in their attitude. There was, naturally, initial enthusiasm on the part of the peasants, when they were handed tracts of land—seized from the large landowners by the Soviet authorities—and became in their turn, as they considered, peasant proprietors on a small scale. This kind of socialization of the land the peasants willingly approved; but there were strings attached which did not suit them quite so well, and which, in fact, they have persistently repudiated. "The great mass of the peasants failed entirely to grasp the fact," says the report, "that this law confiscated their land as well as that of the imperial family and other privileged classes." The decree issued by Lenine in February, 1918, abolished private ownership in land and gave it to the peasants, who were required to work it personally, retaining enough of the produce to maintain themselves and surrender in overplus to the state. Owing to trouble over claims, which led to much disturbance among the peasants, an amendment to the law was made one year later, by which a policy of "large Soviet estates, rural communes, group agriculture and other forms of collective use of the land," was established.

Under this plan, cultivation gradually decreased, and in the early part of 1921 the theory that the produce belonged to the state was abandoned, and to every peasant who paid a fixed tax in kind the right was conferred of disposing of his produce in any way he pleased. Later on the commodities liable to taxation were reduced to four in number—they had been 13 previously—and a reduction in the total amount to be taken was also made. Last spring the principle of Communism in land settlement was abandoned altogether. The report explains the latest enactment in these words: "The old village communities are allowed to continue their practice of permanent group possession, with repartition from time to time to their members for actual use. At the same time the individual peasant family may break away from these communities and acquire direct possession, perpetual and hereditary. The new law is almost identical in theory with Premier Stolypin's laws of 1907 and 1910." If any peasant wishes to withdraw from the community system, he is at perfect liberty to do so, and his share of the community land must then be given to him in a single separate piece.

Peasants may now lease their farms, if they wish to do so, and employ hired labor to work them, and should a family emigrate, it may still retain hold on the estate, and can either lease the land or work it by means of hired labor through the expedient of having some member of the family on the ground. "Russia has created a nation of small landowners," it is shown, and has abandoned Communism, because it was found quite unworkable insofar as the peasants were concerned. And yet we have a party of Canadians, sixty families in all, about to try a similar experiment among themselves in Ontario, conforming, however, necessarily, to Canadian laws. The thing has already been worked out for them on a big scale, and proven impracticable and foredoomed to failure. But hope springs eternal in the human breast, and some people will never learn from the experiences of others. One real debt of gratitude the world owes to Russia—it has shown us quite a lot of things in the way of experimental government that will not do, and this Communism in farming is emphatically one of them.—Hamilton Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The announcement of the names of the winners of the two by-elections yesterday is the first intimation many people seem to have had that the contests were being held.

The weatherman seems determined that nobody will forget the coal situation.

Lloyd George's serial promises to be serious for some of his opponents.

The Toronto Star tells of a girl being hit on the sidewalk, and then describes how the motor car "hit Miss Weir and broke a traffic standard." Perhaps our medical friends will tell us in plain language just how she was injured, for the Star leaves the matter in doubt.

Several cities are trying the experiment of an earlier municipal election this year in the hope of bringing out a bigger vote. The rest of the municipalities will await the result with considerable interest.

It should not be difficult for the management of any public institution to see that in any case the inmates are supplied with clean clothing.

The Councils of various Ontario municipalities are keeping warm in spite of the fuel shortage by debating whether or not the price of coal should be fixed.

LITERARY GEMS

CANADIAN QUOTATION.

The salt wave, of the quiet valley, fain
  Has pushed across the sands. The talking stream
Is silenced by its passing. Will it gain
  Th' untroubled reaches where the lilies dream,
To bask in still content beneath the gleam
  Of stormless skies? No; it has climbed in vain;
For even now 'tis falling. I could dream
It breathed a long-drawn utterance of pain.

And thou, my soul, thou dost attain release
  From mortal sadness in the fields divine
Where thou are often led; but it is thine
  To stay—how short a time! below thy peace
The great world travails, like the moaning sea,
  And calls thee back to share its agony.

THE MYSTERY MIND

Arthur B. Reeve and John W. Grey

"I know quite a bit about the general contour of a country," he began. "It was my specialty in the service and I was the best scout in my squadron when it came to doping the lay of the land. Now"—he sprawled out comfortably, facing them—"this small creek before you seems to head right into a pass in the mountains behind us. The trees are just a little denser and there is here and there a splotch of very green, green which means water, and lets me trace the course of the stream. I don't see any signs of any other river or rivulet within miles in either direction. Your man Evil Eye was aiming straight for the bay below here, and if there is a Cavern of the Skull back in the mountains, it must be near this stream."

"They said they were going to land at that beech in the bay," volunteered Violet.

"See" exclaimed Randolph.

Dupont frowned, not quite understanding. "Why should the Cavern of the Skull be near the stream?"

"Because everything up here was built by primitive man, or found by primitive man. Devil worshippers are not civilized engineers. Man in his early estate was dependent upon water where he found it, and he stayed near it. You always find signs of primitive man near water; you know that."

Dupont nodded. "Of course."

"My idea," Randolph hurried on, "is to follow this stream back toward the hills. It's a good day's trip, in any case. Then, at night, I'll get a big tree and climb up with the glass again and watch for a fire. The chances are ten to one your crew will build a fire at their camp.

"Are you sure they've gone inland, toward the Cavern of the Skull?" Violet asked. "Isn't it possible they are still about?"

"Why should they remain here?" Dupont rejoined. "They have no reason to believe I have escaped. They probably suppose I was alone in the airplane; they may even have found it in the clearing, wrecked. The body of the Strangler is gone, which undoubtedly means they have taken him."

"They haven't recaptured me," she insisted.

Randolph replied to that. "They could hardly expect to find you in this expanse of forest. They will suppose that you will starve or become the prey of some wild beast or even of the head hunters. They know you have been very sick, and are weak."

After the lunch the little party began its long trip in toward the mountains. At times the stream widened and its banks, broad and low, gave them ample room to walk abreast on soft level turf. Again it became narrow with precipitous banks of spongy undergrowth and twisted tangled vines and brush. Then Dupont took the lead, breaking the way, followed by Violet and Randolph in turn.

Both men were careful to watch for signs of the other party, but until well in the afternoon there was neither hint nor sound nor subtle sense that any but these three were to be found in all the broad expanse of this wilderness. It became hot and dry and uncomfortable. Still they drove forward, hoping to make the first rise of the foothills by dark.

EVENING GOWNS.

By all odds the most popular material for evening gowns this winter will be velvet.

It may be embroidered or beaded if on wishes but many extremely beautiful models are showns with no trimming at all beyond, perhaps, a large cahochon buckle, a series of side drapes or a deep Bertha collar of metal lace.

Evening gowns continue to be sleeveless and are much longer. Otherwise there is little change in their lines dicted, but as yet they are nowhere in evidence.

IN BETHANY AND DISTRICT

Well - Known Resident Passed Away — Streets Are Illuminated By Gas Lamps—Personals.

BETHANY, Oct. 21.—On Friday there passed away at his home here a highly respected and well known citizen in the person of the late Samuel Dewell. For some months Mr. Dewell had been in failing health, and was forced through weakness to give up his business of grain buyer for Hogg and Lytle, but he was a patient sufferer and was closely attended by his only child and daughter, Gertrude. The sad part of it was that his wife, the late Ellen McMullen, predecased him only two months ago, since which time Mr. Dewell took to his room.

The funeral service was held in the Methodist church on Sunday, Oct. 21st. under the direction of Mr. B. Roy Raper of Millbrook.

Mr. Dewell, his wife and daughter had been members of the Methodist choir for years. He also belonged to the Orange order, L.O.L. No. 122. The pallbearers were members of the choir, also brother Orangemen, namely Messrs. P. C. Brown, H. Preston, E. Bray, O. Spencer, L. Challice, D. Driver, Rev. J. E. Beckel, pastor of the church, preached the funeral sermon, choosing the words of the Apostle Paul found in 1st Corinthians, 13th chap. 12th verse, 'For now we see through a glass darkly; but then face to face; now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known.' Rev. Jas. McMullen, of Oshawa, brother-in-law of the deceased, led in prayer, and the choir sang softly and sweetly a favorite piece, 'Some day we'll understand.' The funeral procession to Graham's cemetery was by motor and was one of the largest in this community for years, showing the high esteem in which the deceased and family was held. At the cemetery the Orange Order took charge of the service, led by their chaplain, Mr. E. Bray and the Master, Mr. Wm. Sisson. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. The sympathy of the whole community goes out to the only surviving member of the family, the devoted daughter, Miss Gertrude.

Dangerously Ill.

Much sympathy is felt for the Rev. J. E. Beckel, who has been in close attendance at the bedside of his mother in Oshawa. Mrs. Beckel, Sr., is dangerously ill, with little hope held out for her recovery. Mr. Beckel came home to take charge of the funeral service of the late Mr. Dewell and immediately returned to Oshawa.

Rev. Jas. McMullen, of Oshawa, occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church Sunday evening, thereby relieving the pastor, Rev. Beckel.

The Methodist church choir attended the anniversary services at Yelverton on Sunday evening and led the singing. Also contributed to the service several well chosen anthems.

New Street Lighting.

The village streets are greatly improved at night by the illumination from the gas street lamps installed under the Women's Institute. Mr. Henry Reynolds is caretaker and lamp lighter.

Mr. Redvers Brown, a student of Victoria College, Toronto, took charge of the Sunday services at Franklin and Ebenezer on Sunday. He was the guest of his uncle, Mr. P. C. Brown, while in the village.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist church are packing a box of warm clothing, bedding, fruit and pickles on Thursday afternoon in the basement of the Methodist church, for the fire sufferers at Haileybury. Any donations in this line will be greatly appreciated by the ladies.

Among those who attended the anniversary service at Yelverton at night outside of the choir members, were noticed: Mrs. Ernest Beer, Miss Lizzie Kerr, Mrs. John Portcous, Mrs. Monk, B. Monk, D. Lowes, John White and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Spencer.

THE DESERT THREATENS

ERIVAN, Armenia. Oct. 24.—(Associated Press)—Certain flourishing rice and cotton fields at the foot of Mount Ararat are today threatened with the same destruction that at one time in ancient history overwhelmed the hanging gardens of Babylon, namely, failure of the system of irrigation and the inroads of desert sands.

American engineers are trying to save the situation. They are going in with 500 refugee laborers, and will endeavor to reopen a thirty mile irrigation canal from the Zanga river.

Public Now Prefers Vegetable Laxative

Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin affords prompt relief in a natural way

THE public is constantly becoming more discriminating in its choice of things. Those subject to constipation try to learn what makes them constipated, and then avoid it. If constipation persists in spite of all their efforts they take the mildest, most easily tolerated laxative obtainable, and not a drastic physic that upsets them for days afterwards. As over 10 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin are sold a year, a large proportion of the people must believe that this mild vegetable compound is the proper remedy for them, and so it is. No need to take salt waters and powders that dry up the blood; coal-tar drugs in candy form that produce skin eruptions, or calomel that salivates. These drugs are "heroic measures", over-effective, weakening and griping.

The best constipation remedy is the one that moves the bowels without shock to your system, and such a one is Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin. It is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, and has been satisfactorily sold for 30 years. Unlike the harsher physics it does not produce a habit, and increased doses are not required; in fact, it so trains the stomach muscles that in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try my Laxative Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 22 Caldwell Building, Toronto, Ont. Do it now!

Many take a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin once a week as a health safeguard. Others use it only when required, as, for example, Mrs. Jack Turtle of Cherry Valley, Ont., who finds it equally valuable for herself and the children, and Mr. H. S. McLaren of Montreal, Que., who uses it regularly. Try Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin in constipation, biliousness, piles, headaches, sallow complexion, and to break up fevers and colds. A generous-size bottle can be had at any drug store, and it costs less than a cent a dose!

The Professor Thought He Had a Deadly Rat Poison, BUT—

Oh! What a Surprise He Got When the Rats Grew Fat and Husky, So Now Medical Scientists Are Feeding It to Invalids and Anaemic Children to Make Them Fat and Husky Too

By DR. W. H. BALLOU.

DR. JOHN H. MULLER, professor of chemistry at the University of Pennsylvania, believed he had discovered a new poison to kill rats.

He thought it might be the greatest rat poison ever invented.

The supposed "poison" was germanium dioxide, a mineral substance chemically akin to arsenic, zinc and tin. He had every reason to believe it would be a great rat killer. Chemical and medical analogies all pointed that way.

But Dr. Muller was "in for" the surprise of his life. He turned some of the substance over to the Wistar Institute of Philadelphia, where they breed and rear thousands of white rats annually for experimental uses. He asked the biochemists of the institute to try the stuff on the little animals and report if it was a quick and easy remedy to rid the world of rodents. The biochemists promptly caged some rats and administered the "poison."

To their astonishment—and the subsequent delight of Dr. Muller—the rats, instead of giving a few agonized squeals and turning up their toes, waxed healthy, belligerent and large.

By the time the "poison" had been administered regularly for a period of days they became world champion rats—the huskiest, peppiest specimens ever seen in captivity.

A council of surprised chemists was immediately called. Here was a mystery that had to be solved—for the sake of science. The rats were killed and autopsies were performed.

The startling result was announced by Dr. Frederick S. Hammett, of the institute:

"Upon dissection it was found that the bones and livers of the rats were abnormally red. The blood contained an abnormal number of red corpuscles, which constitute the haemoglobin, so vital to life. It is the chief component of red corpuscles. It is to this substance, haemoglobin, that the blood owes its color and its power to carry oxygen."

In other words, it was discovered that germanium dioxide, instead of being a poison to kill rats, was a boon to humanity—a remarkable remedy to save the lives of sufferers from anaemia!

You have heard it said that pale people were "anaemic"—that is, suffering from lack of red corpuscles in the blood. You have probably also heard of "pernicious anaemia," an advanced stage of this condition for which there is—or has been—no known cure.

Dr. Muller and his associates and the specialists at Wistar Institute, like all scientists, are cautious about making claims for the new discovery. They do not yet aver that it is a "cure," but actual experiments have already proven that it seems to correct the disease and increase the lacking red corpuscles.

The first thing the biochemists did was to continue their experiments on rats.

"We took a litter of eight white rats from the same mother and put four of them in a bell jar containing some of the dioxide. Later we etherized and killed them. We found that their blood contained 10 per cent more red corpuscles than the blood of the four brother rats which had not been treated. We next tried the dioxide on other species of mammals, which showed equally marked improvement in the quality of the blood. Finally we asked the director of the institute, Dr. Milton J. Greenman, to administer the substance to anaemic patients in the hospital. He made the experiment and reported astonishing improvements. Small quantities were distributed to outside physicians, who were delighted with the resulting conditions in their patients."

Says Dr. Greenman:

"Physicians are very enthusiastic about the discovery. The failures will decrease with the perfecting of the solution. Anyhow, there is no other known remedy, and hence its vast importance to mankind. The best results so far are from the solution comprising 7.6 of hydrogen with germanium dioxide.

"We dissolve the dioxide in water, to which a little normal sodium hydrate is added. To get rid of the small alkalinity we acidify it with a little hydrochloric acid. We find that any failure of the solution is due to lack of the right degree of acidity, which is determined by a delicate color test.

"The solution is administered either through the mouth or by hypodermic needle. It is used in very small doses, but at that it is very expensive because of the difficulty in refining the dioxide. This difficulty is caused by the affinity of arsenic for germanium, which is hard to separate from it. It is when the arsenic is completely freed that the dioxide is not poisonous, as it was at first supposed to be by its discoverer. In the process of eliminating arsenic the germanium dioxide is redistilled in the presence of chlorine vapor. Arsenic has a stronger affinity for chlorine and goes off with the vapor in the form of arsenic chloride. We will continue experimenting to devise some easier method of getting rid of the arsenic, and must do so to reduce the price sufficiently to bring the treatment within the reach of poor people."

Dr. W. T. Taggard, of the Towne Scientific School of the University of Pennsylvania, has computed the cost of germanium dioxide (not the quality originally experimented with for rat poison, but the ultra refined product for medicinal uses) at $5 per gram. A pound, comprising 450 grams, would cost $2,250.

Although this makes the treatment costly now, scientists are confident that some method will be discovered by which the treatment can be put into general use.

The expense to all large cities for taking care of anaemic people, particularly anaemic children—even in the old way—is enormous. As no medical remedy was before known, cures could be hoped for only through giving the patient better food, better air, general tonics and more healthful surroundings. In larger cities, like New York, anaemic children are cared for in special hospitals, old ferryboats fitted up for the purpose, and out-door schools.

So prevalent is anaemia among children that most public schools throughout the country have inaugurated daily exercises as the only means known to combat the slow growth of the disease. Calisthenics, which experts say will surely increase the height, weight and appetite if followed systematically, are made compulsory for the children. Yet ever so many of them grow up into pale and sickly youngsters, called "delicate" by their people, but in reality suffering from the lack of red corpuscles.

Sometimes the true nature of their ailment is not discovered until it is too late.

Older anaemics among the poor have special quarters and special food in all municipal hospitals, institutions and poor farms. From the public funds set apart for this purpose some part will be diverted for the carrying out of further public experiments with germanium dioxide. If even a portion of the poorer classes of anaemics can be finally cured by this treatment, cities will be ultimately relieved of expenses amounting to millions of dollars.

And so it is that the latest discovery of science, originally heralded as a new and potent poison, may turn out to be a blessing—a recognized cure for a common malady for which no effective medical treatment had heretofore been known.

This will be of untold benefit to the city of Peterborough as it will not only be used by those who attend the Salvation Army, but will be open to the poor children and young people irrespective of creed and will provide a place of recreation where there will be a healthy and clean environment. The building and renovations are costing approximately $23,500, and of this amount $10,235 has been provided for in the following amounts: Salvation Army, Toronto, Central Fund $7,000; local members in cash and promised $3,235, so that the amount needed is $13,265. The Salvation Army will make an appeal to the generosity of the citizens of Peterborough to help them in this undertaking. Adjt. Richardson, financial representative, is here to co-operate with Adjt. The Work of the Male Voice Choir

(By F. H. Dobbin.)

The organization of young men, known locally as the "Male Voice Choir" and which has given the public already several very fine evenings of music, has been considering for some time that the choir might do public work in addition to the annual evening or concert. This is being prepared for and will come off in due course. Members thought that it was not enough to get together for one occasion and then let the direct effort of the party lapse, for the winter, so it has been arranged to put in preparation a programme for another occasion, possibly for two evenings, the proceeds to be devoted to the funds already gained in the erection of the Peterboro City and Country Soldier's Memorial.

So opportunity is taken to tell the public of the position this local object stands in. At a meeting held on Saturday evening, last, members of the local committee for the Memorial met with the Choir and it was arranged that the proceeds of the concert should be devoted as indicated. Some general information as to the state of the Memorial Fund was given, and it was stated that the contract for the preparation of the design of the Memorial had been placed in the hands of the distinguished designer of memorial pieces, Mr. Aldred, who has been commissioned by the Dominion Government to prepare that to be erected on Flander's Fields, in commemoration of Canadians who fell in the Great War. While the designer has had numerous offers to do similar work for other muncipalities that for Peterboro is the only commission he has accepted other than the Dominion work.

Put on Campaign.

Presently a campaign will be put on to raise the balance of funds necessary ,placed at $30,000.00 Money already raised and several substantial contributions are in trust in bank. At what is considered opportune time the canvas will be announced. A sub-committee of the Memorial organization is already at work and intends to push the proposition through. It is expected that the erection of the memorial will take place early in 1824, and will likely be placed in Central Park. But before that date the money to be used in payment will be required. The design has already had local approval and has been passed for the citizens by the Committee.

Anticipating the action of the sub-committee and the putting on of the campaign reference is made following to those engaged in the work so far, and as representing the public in this patriotic effort. The officers include: Chairman, Judge Huycke; Secretary, Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner; Treasurer, G. H .Thompson, with Roland Denne as Chairman of the Finance Committee, assuredly the right man in the right place.

The Committee.

In addition members of the Committee include, Mesdames J. C. Davidson, E. M. Morrow, James Wood, Robert Harstone, W. H. Hill, E. C. S. Huycke, R. Denne, L. Davidson, R. H. Parsons and T. Knox, with Messrs. G. A. Macdonald, W. R. Breyfogle, H. Rush, W G. Morrow, R. H. Turner, the President and Secretary of the G.W.V.A. (for the time being) and the Mayor of the city (for the time being), G N. Gordon, M.P., F. Whitehouse Ald. H. Gainey, Rev. Father Phelan (now of Campbellford). Also two reprsecentatives to be appointed from the County Council.

Of course, for the canvas, many others interested in the movement will be pressed in service. The experience of the war years in public raisings of money will stand in good stead. Already the lists have been gone over and those who gave substantial amounts have been earmarked and will be entreated to live up to previous records in the matter of gifts. For having done something once, and done it well, expectation is that he will not be content to now do much less, even if the ultimate object be not so large nor so important. Then it was the needs of the men in the field and their families at home. Now it is the recognition, in the public eye, of the devotion and sacrifice of those who gave their lives on the battlefield. Some day, in the future, Canada may recompense those who are with us and who returned, but even in that day be deferred we should not be lax in planting in our public square an enduring token of appreciation that will be a constant reminder of a noble part well played.

How Many?

The question often recurs, "how many of our men gave their lives on the field, out of those who so willingly went forward? What of the list of casualties, and of those wounded, of those made widows and of those who returned. So that these facts be kept in mind, concurrent with the erection of the Memorial, they are here repeated:—

Casualties, from city service, 256; casualties from county service, 147; returned from service, 3213; war widows and widowed mothers, 123; and children of soldiers killed, 146.

In preferring the service to raise money and funds, the Male Voice Choir is to be commended. The effort will represent much personal attention that the event when it comes off is creditable to those who attend. As it starts out for the season of practice and study the officers are as follows: Edgar Worth, Hon. Pres. C. B. Adair, Past Pres., W. F. Skitch. President, Jorn Anderson, Vice Pres., C. S. Thompson, Sec.-Treas., and J. H. Renwick Director. As usual the director will have what the boys term, the heavy end of the stick. It is ever such, in musical endeavor. His committee and officers will assist, but the real work falls on the director, who in this case accepts responsibility handed to him.

(By Stuart P. West.

NEW YORK, October 24. — (Special.) — Interest in to-day's financial situation centres upon the foreign exchanges and the market for foreign government bonds.

The heavy selling of French francs went on, carrying them to a new low for the year. The German mark continued to sink and the Italian lire and Belgian francs were forced down to the lowest yet touched in 1922. Sterling lost over a cent and was off over 4c in from last week's high.

This adverse movement in the European currencies was accompanied by conspicuous weakness in the government bonds, especially in the French securities. The French loans in Paris and London were off quite sharply. In the New York market the French 8s broke over a point to the lowest they have ever sold for since they were issued. The 7 1-2s were down within a point of their bottom. Belgian bonds were similarly weak and the United Kingdom of Great Britain issues went lower.

These were the manifestations of uncertainty and uneasiness aroused by the threat of the German Chancellor to confess bankruptcy and thereby refuse any further reparations payments in materials, as well as in cash.

Whether this is merely shrewd political movement to save the present German ministry or whether it is the serious putting forward of a policy which will have the backing of German financial and industrial interests and the great majority of the people is a question. But at all events it is not supposed for a moment that the allied governments have overlooked a contingency of the sort and have laid their plans to deal with it.

The inevitable sequel, if the bankruptcy threat is carried out, would be the insistence upon allied control of German finances, which would include the attempt to balance the budget through increased taxes and the stopping of further paper money inflation.

What the markets were reflecting to-day was not any real feeling that German default would indefinitely hold up the reparations payments, but misgivings as to whether, even under allied supervision, anything like the amount which the continental nations are counting upon could be wrung from the German tax payers.

MEXICAN GOIN GSOON.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24. — After dipping sharply to new low on move at 106 1-8 Steel recovered all loss from previous close before 11 a.m. and whole market showed better tone in second hour recoveries of a point and more took place in leading industrials while rails showed signs of swinging into a renewed forward movement. Reading led carriers, advancing to 82 1-2 against Monday's low 81. One pleasing feature of attractiveness of new conversion basis for exchange of Mexican Petroleum for Pan-American is the fact that it will hasten disappearance of Mexican Petroleum from big board.

Mexican petroleum has been a disturbing element on the Stock Exchange for several years.

—Dow-Jones.

COCA COLA.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24. — Coca Cola statement: Quarter ended October 1, net income $6,464,767 after expenses and pfd. dividend equal to $4.57 a share on common against $5.16 preceding quarter and $2.43 in third quarter 1921.

MARKET STRONG

NEW YORK, Oct 24.—Announcement of new basis of exchange for Conversion of Mexican Pete into Pa Pete made Doheny's stocks features at opening. M.N.P. spurted to 293 up 5 1-4 on initial sales while Pan Pete gained 2 3-4 to 94 1-2 and Pan B 2 3-4 points. Other industrials were irregular with Studebaker showing an opening loss of more than a point at 129. Rails were steady.

END NOT IN SIGHT.

NEW YORK, October 24. — Good Judges of security values point out breaks as becoming more frequent in the stock market usually mark effort on the part of big operators to feel for the top. Until many industrials considered behind the general list and standard rails move forward the street does not look for a conclusion of the major constructive campaign.

MINES.

TORONTO, Oct. 24.—The mining market simply marked time to-day, no doubt awaiting until the larger markets became more settled.

Dome and McIntyre were firm in pots, the former at 39.50 and the latter at $18.10.

Teck Hughes sold nearly two points down at 88½, but recovered easily to 90 3-4; Baldwin closed 10 3-8 and West Tree at 14½; Hollinger sold at 12.90.—F. S. Leslie.

SHOT HIS WIFE AND THEN SELF

New York Gambler Slays on Street in Broad Daylight.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Henry Sigmund, known to the police as "Dutch Lefty," a gambler, to-day trailed his wife, Edith, to her separate apartment in the East Side, accosted her on the street, and when she refused to return to his home, he shot her and then himself. Both died instantly. Sigmund had a pint of whiskey and two photographs of his wife in his pockets.

DIVISION COURT CLERK RESIGNS

Col. J. W. Miller Too Busy With Other Activities to Retain This Position.

Col J. W. Miller has resigned from the position of Clerk of the Division Court, has requested Attorney-General Raney that he be relieved by Saturday October 28. Col. Miller has held this office for some sixteen years, and has decided to retire because of his business activities, and the numerous other demands on his time He has been informed by the Attorney-General that his request will be granted, and that his resignation will take effect on Saturday of this week.

"A man is old as he thinks", Col. Miller remarked in a passing comment on the subject discussed by many prominent Canadians in the Toronto Weekly Star as to when a man begins to find life uninteresting

"If he reads the newspapers and magazines and keeps in touch with world events and the chief affairs of the community, and actively engages in the things other men are carrying on, his interests should never droop. Personally, I feel as keen and alive to things as I did fifty years ago. Everything interests me. But if a man slumps down and says he's getting old, and backs out of the procession, that man is old. He lets himself be elbowed out of the social group, and he's done"

STRONG APPEAL FOR NORTHERN SUFFERERS.

That unless a continuous supply of money and supplies was forthcoming keen hardships would be endured by the people who lost everything in the Northern Ontario fire zone, is the report brought back by Dr. C. A. Hodgetts, honorary secretary of the Northern Ontario Relief Committee who went up to investigate and make a report. Dr. Hodgetts reports that relief arrangements have been well systematized in the north. Peterborough is expected to give her share in contributing to the relief fund. EXPECT TO WIN BIG RACE WITHOUT A FLAW.

GLOUCESTER, October 24. Canadian Press. — The Canadian members of the International Fishermen's Cup Committee, this afternoon, let it be known that at last night's meeting of the committee, when they offered to hand over the cup to Henry Ford, "If it were acceptable that way," four United States Committeemen present jumped to their feet, and said they didn't want it that way, that they wouldn't take it that way, and that they still expected to win it without a flaw.

Efforts were still being made this afternoon to induce Captain Morrissey of the Henry Ford and his men to consent to complete series. Tomorrow has been declared a public holiday by the town authorities in the hope that the racing may be resumed.

SALESMEN!

Here is an opportunity for a salesman of character, aggressiveness, ability and good references to represent our Company in Peterboro in surrounding territory. Our line is mechanics', automobile and household tools. We eliminate the wholesale distributor, and go direct to the retail hardware stores and garages. Preference will be given to a man who has an established connection with this class of trade, and who wants an additional line to handle. One covering territory by automobile would be more efficient with our line. Exclusive territory will be given the right man. State age, territory regularly covered, lines now handling, and references.

SUNDAY SCHOOL DELEGATES WILL MEET, TORONTO

Two Thousand Five Hundred Gather To-Morrow in 57th Annual Convention of the Education Council.

TORONTO, Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press)—Upwards of 2,500 delegates from the Sunday School organizations of Ontario are here for the 57th Annual Convention of the Ontario Religious Education Council in Massey Hall tomorrow afternoon. The convention is interdenominational and will include delegations from the Methodist, Anglican, Baptist, Congregational, Christian, Presbyterian, Disciple, Church of Christ and Evangelical bodies. No religious organization is barred from the Conference, and, in the words of Rev. C. W. DeMille, general superintendent of the council, "every denomination that is willing to work and co-operate with us will be heartily welcomed."

The gathering promises to be the most successful yet held by the council and will be featured by addresses from Miss Margaret A. Slattery, of Boston, and Dr. Theodore G. Soares, Professor of Religious Education of Chicago University, two of the most prominent leaders in Church work on the American continent, who are expected to give inspiration in spiritual leadership to the Sunday School workers. Miss Slattery is a recent "find" and is a gifted author as well as being a well-known orator. She was engaged in girls' work until a few years ago when she entered the larger field of activity and since that time has met with remarkable success in all parts of the United States. Dr. Soares' fame is known in practically every branch of Church endeavor on the continent and is regarded as a remarkable interpreter of the challenge of life. Another feature of the convention will be Professor H. Augustine Smith, director of fine art in religion, Boston University, who will have charge of the pageantry, and music-worship. On the night of October 27, Prof. Smith will produce "The Light of the World" an inspiring spectacle of more than three hundred voices assisted by the Orpheus Choir, one of Canada's best known musical organization. This presentation will be for the delegates, but on the following night the pageant will be repeated for an admission fee.

The work of the convention covers every period of life from the cradle-roll to young people and adults and will be taken on the opening day until Friday when group gatherings and denominational conferences will be held in the various churches throughout the city. One of the most important matters to come up for discussion will be the teaching of religion in the public schools which question was brought prominently before the Methodist General Conference in Toronto by the adoption of a resolution recommending religious teachings in the schools. It is considered likely that further recommendations will be made by the conference along this line of church work following the report of the management board.

Preceding the opening there will be a gathering of young women under the direction of the Ontario Girls' Work Board, on Monday night when Miss Slattery will deliver an address on "The Fate of Dreamers." Next morning from 9 a.m. to 12 a.m. there will be a meeting of the Board of Management, and the opening address will be at 3 p.m. Mayor Alfred Maguire, of Toronto, will deliver the address of welcome and A. MacGregor, of Napanee, President of the council, will reply. The theme of the entire convention will be worship, and the workers will stress the need of vacation Bible schools during the summer holidays in the public schools of the province. The work is being carried on at present by the Methodist, Anglican and Presbyterian churches, and the results are very gratifying.

While declaring that the world was never in its history in greater need of Christian education than it is today, Rev. Mr. DeMille informed the representative of the Canadian Press that prospects in Sunday School work were never brighter. Men and leaders in all professions of life were recognizing, he said, that there must be moral training in addition to mechanical and intellectual training. Ninety-five per cent of them, he added, recognized that there could not be an adequate training apart from the teaching of religion.

In advancing the argument that the churches were making progress in education in all parts of the world, and particularly in Canada, Rev. DeMille pointed to the fact that today there are professors of religious education in the universities of the Dominion from the Atlantic to the Pacific, whereas ten years ago there was not one of such professors in a university in Canada. Today there were twelve giving their whole time to the work.

The task was still a herculean one, he admitted, and the field was tremendous. It would require specialists in every department of human activity to give help and inspiration to the workers. That was why arrangements were made for the attendance of the three great experts in church work who would lend their assistance to the convention. The workers were looking to them for inspiration in the study of their individual problems and to equip them for greater activity in the work of their own districts.

A FIND OF RUBIES REPORTED IN NORTH

TORONTO, Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Find of rubies is reported on the bank of Conestogarive. A. A. Neil, teacher in Continuation school, Drayton, Ont., reports finding rock which when split released sixty or seventy scarlet rubies with apparently several times that number of gems still remaining in unbroken portions. When the find was reported to Deputy Minister of Mines Gibson last night, he stated that it was very unlikely that the stones extracted from the rock were really rubies. They might be garnets.

It will be a fine winter—for the plumbers.

A ESRIOUS SHORTAGE OF MEN FOR MINISTRY

Dr. Rexford Contends that Laymen are Responsible for the Scarcity of Material.

MONTREAL, October 24. Canadian Press. — That there is a serious shortage of young men willing to offer themselves as candidates for the ministry, and that laymen are responsible for this shortage, is the claim of Dr. Rexford, the principal of the Diocesan College, in an interview with a local paper.

In placing the responsibility upon the shoulders of the laymen, Dr. Rexford ctied the history of the early church in which the apostles are recorded to have called together laymen and to have requested them to choose young men for the ministry in the early church.

Miss Erma Mohr, of Shillington, Pa., holds a record for teaching school for 12 years without missing a session.

A ONE-MAN TOWN

A travelling man sold some goods to the proprietor of a general store in a small town. When the merchandise arrived it was not up to sample and was returned. The house drew a sight draft on the merchant through the local bank, which was returned. The letter asking the post-master about the financial standing of the merchant was returned by the government official marked "O.K."? The house wrote the postmaster to secure a lawyer to collect the amount and received this reply:

"The undersigned is the merchant on whom you tried to palm off your worthless goods. The undersigned is owner and president of the bank, which sent back your sight draft. The undersigned is the postmaster to whom you wrote and the undersigned is the lawyer you sought to obtain for your fake business. It the undersigned were not also pastor of the church at this place, he would tell you to go to hell."

A BURIED TREASURE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Word comes from Barnegat, N.J., of buried treasure — gold pieces in an iron chest. Spanish parchments, and the like, all true to tradition, found by Walter Ridgeway while employed by Capt. Walter Thompson, in digging the foundation for a new house.

Eighty gold coins of the size of an American dollar, worth $4,000 or $5,000, bright as new pennies, it is reported, were in the chest. The parchments have yet to be deciphered.

IF YO UARE WELL BRED.

You know letters of introduction should be given to or for very close friends, for whose character one is willing to vouch.

To introduce by letter an individual one knows only slightly is likely to lead to unpleasant complications.

Likewise, one does not ask for a letter of introduction save from one's closest friends.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Mr. H. Elson Gave an Interesting Travel Talk to the Epworth League—Personal Mention.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 24.—Mr. H. Elson gave a most interesting and instructive "Travel Talk" in the Epworth League on Monday evening, descriptive of the many places visited during his recent two months' trip overseas. Mr. Elson is a student of history, and a keen observer, with the gift of making clear to his hearers, in an easy, conversational way, lit up with flashes of humor, the charm which surrounds a personal visit to many of the historic spots in the Old Land. The grave of the "Unknown Warrior" was one of the places visited in Westminster Abbey, and the chapel where the wedding of Princess Mary was solemnized. Needless to say his visit to the battlefields of France was listened to with particular interest. England and Scotland were travelled over but not unhappy Ireland. "You could get in alright," Mr. Elson said he was told, "the difficulty would be in getting out again."

The meeting, which was under the auspices of the Tuxis' Boy, was well attended, and a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker of the evening, for his kindness in entertaining the Leaguers in so pleasing a manner, was carried unanimously, the warm applause showing how much the address had been appreciated.

Girls Had a Hike.

The "Wide-Awakes" Canadian-Girls-in-Training group are holding their regular meeting on Wednesday evening now instead of Tuesday as formerly. On Saturday afternoon the "Wide-Awakes" had a most enjoyable "hike" to the Mansion grounds (through the kind permission of Mr. J. R. Eakins, where after games of various kinds, they tried out some campcraft stunts in the way of building a camp-fire, preparing tea, etc. A sing-song round the fire afterwards, with a final game of "two deep," brought a very happy outing to a close.

On Monday, October 30th, this group will provide a "Hallowe'en" programme in the Senior League, and a social good time will follow.

Stenson-Martin.

Married.—In Toronto, on Saturday, October 21st, by Rev. James Wilson, pastor of Dovercourt Presbyterian church, Mrs. Viola Martin to Mr. Harry Stenson. The bride is a sister of Mrs. G. W. Sayles, and Mrs. E. Kenyon, Millbrook, and is well known here. Mr. and Mrs. Stenson will reside at Kirkland Lake.

Amongst those from Millbrook and vicinity who attended the anniversary services at Centreville Presbyterian church on Sunday evening were: Mr. and Mrs. T. Crossley, Mr. and Mrs. O. Williamson, Mr. and Mrs. W. Mullen, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. E. Armstrong, Mr. C. Garside, Miss M. Money, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Nichols, Mr and Mrs. W. Bingham, Miss Thelma Ball, Miss Anna Hawthorne, Miss Ethel McKnight, Miss P. Byam, Mr. Clarence Ball and Mr. Leonard Henderson.

Sunday, November 5th being Thanksgiving Sunday, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered in the Methodist church one week earlier than is the customary date, the pastor deciding that next Sunday, October 29th, will be a more suitable occasion for this service as many will doubtless be away, or have visitors for the holiday the following week.

Messrs. George E., J. Edgar, and F. W. Burnham motored to Whitby on Sunday, their brother, H. L. Burnham, who has been undergoing treatment in the Ontario Hospital following a nervous breakdown, but who has quite recovered his usual health, returning with them.

ALLEN—HALL.

TORONTO, Oct. 24. — Very quietly owing to a bereavement in the family, the marriage took place yesterday at the Heath street residence of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Hall, of their daughter, Mary Audrey Kersteman, to Mr. Norman Burke Allen, son of Mrs. Allen, and the late Dr. Norman Allen. The bride wore a graceful dress of ivory crepe charmeuse, exquisitely fine lace embroidered in pearls forming the sleeves. Her court train of chiffon velvet was embroidered in pearls with true lovers' knots in pearls in the corners. Her long tulle veil was fastened a la grec with pearls and orange blossoms. She carried lily of the valley, orchids and maiden hair fern, and wore a handsome diamond bar pin, the gift of the groom. Mrs. Norman Kelk was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Isobel Pemberton and Miss Enid Snow, all dressed alike in charming frocks of sand colored georgette, with picture hats of brown velvet and tulle, and long, uncurled feathers. They carried bouquets of Sunset roses. Mr. B. Macdonald acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Da Costa, Mr. James Lepper, Mr. Norman Kelk, and Mr. John Irwin. After the wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Allen left for a trip to the United States, the bride going away in a smart tailored suit of navy blue serge embroidered in black silk, velour hat, and fox fur.

The groom was the eldest son of the late Dr. Norman Allen and is a nephew of Rev. Canon and Messrs John and H. B. Allen of Millbrook.

HOW TO REGULATE THE LEVEL OF GREAT LAKES

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press)—How to regulate the level of the Great Lakes and why the level of Lake Michigan varies at different points at the same time, is the subject of a report made public by John F. Hayford, dean of the engineering school at Northwestern University. Experiments over a period of eleven years formed the basis of the report. Dean Hayford and his colleagues concluded that when the barometric pressure of two points varies, the lake level will vary immensely as the barometric pressure.

Dean Hayford advocates the regulation of lake levels by the construction of movable dams in the St. Lawrence river near Lake Ontario and in the Niagara River, opposite Buffalo, N.Y.

STRIKE ITS COLORS TO CIVILIZATIONS ENEMIES

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press)—A protest against the omission of the words "in the year of Our Lord" from the draft of a proposed new state constitution has been made at the state house by several organizations, which demanded to know whether the home state of Abraham Lincoln would "strike its colors to enemies of civilization."

The signers, clergymen, state Masonic officials and others assert that unless that phrase or the abbreviation "A.D." is placed in the document, its entire worth will be vitiated."

FAINTS WHEN JUDGE STOPS MURDER TRIAL

Dramatic End to Famous Twin-Dolls Case — Old Man Chased Out of Court.

FOUND DOLLS HEAVY.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—The trial of Mrs. Hazel McNaulty for the murder of her twin babies came to an abrupt and dramatic end here when Jurge Henry C. Cleveland threw the paradoxical case out of the Hammond City court.

The defendant was discharged after the state had rested its case and before a single witness had been called by the defence. The court held that while the state may have raised some doubt as to whether the babies were ever born, not one scintilla of evidence had been produced to prove they ever had died or that the 26 year old wife had had anything to do with their death.

Twins to Remain Dummies.

So, far as the law is concerned, the twins were and probably will remain forever just what Mrs. McNally contended they were—a couple of straw stuffed dummies.

Mrs. McNally, who had spent three days in the stifling crowded court-room, tottered to her feet and swayed into the arms of her mother, Mrs. Emily Hills.

Ringing cheers and applause came from women who thronged the back of the room and who had been surging all afternoon against a specially erected barrier of desks.

Freed Woman Faints.

Then Mrs. McNally sank limply into a dead faint while her mother shrieking hysterically, let her sink back into the chair. Women struggled frantically to break through the rows of desks and gather about her while court attaches fought to hold them back. Mrs. McNally was lifted to the reporters' table, where she lay stretched out in full view of the craning spectators, while bailiffs fanned her and dashed cold water in her face.

Then arose a babble of shouts from the crowd.

"I hope he's satisfied!"

"Where are the dolls!"

"The idea of trying her for the murder of a couple of dummies!"

"Where is McNally? He ought to be run out of town! He ought to be lynched! Where is the old man!"

McNally Makes Getaway.

But rank McNally, the middle-aged husband who fought the charges, had slipped swiftly from the room with the first hysterical cry from Mrs. Hills. All morning he had fidgeted under the cross-examination by Attorney Samuel Schwartz, counsel for the defense. He had shifted uneasily every time the crowd roared with laughter as he recounted how he had carried the "twins" knowing they were dolls, how his young wife had chased him with brushes, shoes, dishes, mirrors, and even an alarm clock.

All afternoon he had sat in the jury box, nervously tapping his feet and becoming redder and redder as the attorneys had presented the defense's motion for judgement and discharge.

Eyes Get Glassy.

As Judge Cleveland began his oral decision, indicating near the beginning that it would go against the state, McNally's eyes settled into a glassy stare, his jaw dropped, drops of perspiration appeared and it seemed that his face gathered ten more years of wrinkles. By the time the court had finished he had shrunk into a corner where he stood shifting from one foot to the other, looking hopelessly about as if for something to lean on.

Then Mrs. Mills startled him to action and he shot out of the room unnoticed in the commotion.

So far as the state is concerned that was the end of the doll case. Prosecutor Joseph Todd said no further action would be taken unless on the initiative of the grand jury and he doubted if this would follow. Not even the assault and battery case which McNally is pressing against his wife in South Bend will be prosecuted, he predicted.

Defense Attitude Uncertain.

As for the defense, Attorney Schwartz said he was not sure what steps would be taken although Mrs. McNally had threatened to sue her husband for false arrest, and divorce in case of acquittal.

The trial was cut short just as the defense was preparing to bring dozens of witnesses to prove that Mrs. McNally worked the doll hoax either to please her husband or to appease a peculiar maternity complex which she is alleged to have entertained since she was about 16 years old.

The defense also was preparing to call Dr. W. W. Kelly of Green Bay, Wis., who says he performed an operation on Mrs. McNally in the summer of 1919 which prevented her from ever becoming a mother. Other witnesses were to be called to testify that Raymond, the 7 year old boy which she claims as a son, was an adopted child.

But now the inside story of the doll hoax never will be aired in court and the trial fans who waited for three days for the expected denouement were disappointed though rewarded at the happy ending.

The cross examination of McNally was humorous. He was unable to remember whether he had married his first wife in 1896 of 1906. He gurgled unintelligibly when Attorney Schwartz asked him to tell about the time he came home at 3 o'clock in the morning so drunk that his false teeth fell out.

He denied his wife had cut his hand with a pair of scissors. That was the time she broke a mirror on him, she said. He protested that he did not receive the scar on his forehead when she slammed a door in his face but when she hurled an alarm clock at him.

Found Dolls Heavy.

He had never chased his wife out of the house. She had chased him. He said he bought the go-cart because his wife said the dolls were too heavy to carry and admitted he had found them quite heavy to carry himself. When he had finished Mrs. Cecillia Laurman was called, and she was the only state's witness who admitted she never had heard one of the McNally twins cry. But even then she refused to swear they were real babies.

Then Attorney Schwartz made a motion that the prosecution be directed to place in evidence a certificate or letter sent to Assistant Prosecutor Floyd O. Jellison by Dr. Kelly telling of the Green Bay operation. Mr. Todd denied he was concealing anything from the court. Attorney Jellison admitted innocence. The state must produce certain and unequivocable proof that some one is dead and with that the probable cause of death, and in this case the state has not proved it. Therefore, I discharge the defendant."

Household Suggestions

TIMBALES

By Bertha E. Shapleigh

Any kind of cooked fish may be used for making timbales. Timbales are really a custard with meat, fish or vegetable pulp added. They are baked by placing the molds or mold in hot water. When firm they are turned from the molds and served with a sauce and often changing the usual cream sauce by adding different seasonings, a small amount of left-over peas or asparatus and sometimes cheese.

Try this recipe for halibut timbales with cheese and pimiento sauce:

1 cup cooked halibut
1½ cups milk
2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup soft bread crumbs
½ teaspoon salt, few drops onion juice if liked.
2 eggs

Cook milk, butter and bread crumbs together five minutes. Add fish and seasonings and eggs slightly beaten. Turn into buttered molds, set molds in a pan of hot water and bake 15 minutes, or until firm.

When ready to serve, loosen the custard around the top, invert and allow them to stand for a few moments; they will then be in good shape and hot.

To make the cheese and pimiento sauce:

1½ cups milk
2 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons (level) flour
2 pimentos rubbed through a sieve
½ cup soft cheese

Melt butter, add flour and seasonings. When smooth, add milk and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add cheese and pimientos and cook until cheese is melted.

Custard cups are good to use for the timbales.

Tomato pulp, one-half cup, may be used instead of the pimentos.

COATS

Short, hip-length coats seem to be the smart thing for fall. Sometimes they are full and capelike, but most of them fit rather snugly about the hips and have a straight line from the shoulders to the hem.

HOSIERY

Hosiery continues to grow thinner and thinner, and contrasting shades are still worn, but the number of gray and tan stockings worn with black pumps is not so great as it was during the summer.

GLOVES

Gloves for winter stress the strapped wrist and fancy decorations in the way of perforations and stencil designs. One pair of long white gloves is adorned with fairly large polka dots of black patent leather, appearing about every square inch.

BLACK LINGERIE

Smart lingerie is made of black crepe with oriental designs in satin and silver cloth appliqued with silver threads and French knots.

FALL FABRICS

Among the leading fabrics for fall are vevet, satin and crepes. Dark colors predominate with brown well in the lead.

The STORY of the BIBLE

By E. E. Braithwaite B.D.P.H.D.

IV. —Other Early Translations

Next in importance to the Septuagint is the Latin Bible, known as the Vulgate, translated by Jerome. Though the official language of the Roman Empire was Latin, the Christian church made Greek its everyday tongue until some time in the second century, when it adopted Latin for its ritual and services. Latin translations then began to come into vogue, one such translation of the whole Bible being in circulation at Carthage before 250 A.D.

The variations in these Latin versions occasioned great dissatisfaction There was need of some superior version to take their place as a standard There was one man eminently qualified for this task, one of the best scholars of the early Christian centuries, Jerome. He was especially well qualified as a student of Hebrew. Born at Stridon on the border of the Dalmatia about 340 A.D. he moved in 379 to Antioch and after being for a time in Constantinople, he went to Rome in 382.

At the request of Pope Damasus, Jerome undertook a revision of the old Latin version on the basis of the old Greek text. He soon finished the New Testament and had done considerable work on the Old Testament when the Pope died in 384. The next year Jerome settled in Bethlehem where he founded two monasteries. He continued his work of revision until he became convinced that the need was not so much for a revision as for an entirely new translation of the Old Testament from the Hebrew. This he undertook and in about fifteen years completed his great life work. The friends of the Septuagint bitterly opposed him, considering that he had greatly undermined the authority of that version by translating directly from the Hebrew, and Jerome died almost broken hearted at the age of nearly eighty but the value of his great work was afterwards fully recognized.

As there are three manuscripts in a class by themselves, so there are three ancient versions of pre-eminent importance, the third being the Syriac which was made from the original Hebrew of the Old Testament and the Greek of the New Testament in the second century A. D. thus representing the original of the Old Testament about three centuries later than the Septuagint, and that of the New Testament about a century after it was completed.

The Syriac Old Testament was probably the work of the Jews residing in Syria who had been converted to Christianity. Its sympathy with the Christian standpoint is shown by its faithful rendering of the Messianic passages, while its Jewish leanings appear from its faithfulness to the Hebrew. It is well known that Syria was a favorite abode for the Jews in the early centuries.

The origin of the Syriac New Testament is more uncertain. While there were editions of the Gospel in Syriac in the second century, their existence was not generally known until the sixteenth century, and in some cases not until the last century In addition to these there were also versions in other languages such as Egyptian, the Armenian, the Ethiopic, the Gothic, the Arabic and the Slavonic; but none of these rank in importance with those already named.

May Develop a Race of Women To Whom Sickness is Unknown

By Marian Hale.

When all women will map out their lives on a regular schedule and then develop the courage to stick to their programmes we shall have a race of women to whom sickness is unknown, Clare Dux says.

This grand opera singer, who is an indefatigable worker and rarely takes a vacation, was just leaving New York for a six weeks' concert tour when she talked to me.

She was scheduled to go as far west as Oregon and as far south as Mexico and to do five concerts a week besides the travelling to fill in her time.

But she was all enthusiasm. Hard work is a tonic to her, and she hasn't a nerve in her body that she's conscious of. Health to her isn't a luxury, but a necessity.

CLAIRE DUX.

Health Asset to Her.

"A professional woman soon learns the value of health," she told me. "Sometimes the woman at home never quite learns how important it is because she can't indulge in a little indisposition every now and then without it affecting her standing or her salary.

"But the saleswoman who is listless and takes no interest makes no big sales. A woman attorney can't make a brilliant plea if she is down in the dumps or suffering from a headache. A singer can't give her best and thrill her audience if she isn't in the best of condition!

"So the professional woman learns to get hold of herself and keep in trim. Because the home woman doesn't have to make such an effort she is not so likely to eliminate the things which cause her ill health. Instead of having to keep to the mark, she can slump occasionally if she likes.

Exercise Needed.

"Nearly every professional woman I know of goes through her daily exercises and indulges in some sort of outdoor exercise. The first are necessary to retain her figure and her grace and the fresh air is necessary to keep up her 'pep.'

"Yet most of my friends who lead leisurely lives at home talk a great deal about reducing and exercising, but when it comes to the issue, they don't exert themselves because they don't have to.

"My vocal practice keeps me constantly at my breathing exercises, but I find time each day for a daily tramp and some dancing besides as a part of [illegible] me.

"I don't s[illegible] professional women are naturally more energetic or that they have more character than home women but their lives make them develop it or they fall behind.

"Good health is, I believe, the best habit a woman can form."

DR. Andrew Wilson, the eminent British authority, once said of the cocoa bean—"It is a kind of vegetable egg which contains all that is needed to build up a living body." Tea and coffee are mere infusions—but cocoa is an actual food in itself. Business men should remember that.

Cocoa, made the FRY way, from the world's choicest beans, is pure, extremely soluble and of most delicious flavour. Nearly two hundred years' knowledge of the cocoa business stands back of FRY'S. Of course, remember

A SCHOLARLY TRAMP

(By F. M. DelaFosse).

Many years ago I was spending a few days' holidays at a small village some fifteen or twenty miles distant from Toronto.

On the morning of my return to the city I had walked to the station to await the arrival of the train from the west, and, finding there was some time to spare had sauntered in a leisurely way to the local hotel, which was situated a few yards down the road.

I had scarcely seated myself on the verandah when I noticed a down-at-heels and seedy-looking individual ambling along the dusty roadway, doing his best by cajolery, mixed with more forcible measures, to induce a disreputable-looking dog to follow him. As the forcible measures consisted of heavy pulls and jerks on a rope tied round the creature's neck, I started up indignantly from my seat to enter an active protest.

As I reached the gate the man saw me and, much to my surprise, raised his tattered cap to me with a most courtly bow, taking the precaution, however, to hold on to the rope with his other hand.

It is not a common thing for a tramp to take off his hat to anybody, but my surprise at this demonstration of politeness was as nothing compared with what I experienced when he addressed me in a beautifully modulated and refined voice.

On my returning his greeting he asked if he might tie the dog to the fence and sit down and rest awhile. I told him that the road was as much his property as mine, and, thereupon, he promptly proceeded to make himself comfortable.

He hadn't spoken three sentences before I discovered that I was talking to an Englishman possessed of high scholastic attainments.

The first thing he did as he seated himself on the grass was to say "This is a most beautiful morning, isn't it?" and then he started quoting Byron:

"Mighty Nature bounds as from her birth,
The sun is in the heavens, and life on earth:
Flowers in the valley, splendor in the beam,
Health on the gale and freshness in the stream."

"Have you ever considered," he went on, "how favorite a theme Morning is with the poets? Shakespeare, Browning, Tennyson, Spenser and many more have been inspired by the glories of the sunrise."

I began to be rather afraid of my new-found acquaintance, and turned the subject as quickly as I could to more mundane matters. I expressed my surprise that a man of such evident scholarship as he possessed should be under the necessity of tramping the roads, and concluded with a query as to what he was doing with the dog.

He gave me his story in quite an unabashed manner. It was the very common one of downfall through drink. He informed me that he had been educated at a well-known English public school, and that for several years afterwards he had acted as an assistant master at a celebrated Grammar School. He had tired of teaching and had come out to Canada, but after three years spent in farming in the West, had drifted steadily down hill. "I'm not complaining," he added. "I am a bit of a philosopher and I intend to make the best of life as I find it. As for this dog, the truth is, that the silly chap tried to pin me when I entered a farmer's gate some miles back to ask for some breakfast, and I made up my mind that I would endeavor to get him to like me. The only way to do it was to fetch him along, and I have great hopes that in a short time Snarleyow and I will be the best of friends. I suppose you haven't a flask in your pocket?"

I was unable to fortify him with a drink, and when I offered him money to get some breakfast he was positively pained.

He told me that he had rarely lacked for a meal in all his wanderings, and that he had found that not many farmers were obdurate if one put in a plea for work in order to obtain a meal.

Having satisfied my curiosity regarding the reason for his present troubles, he started on a journey down the long line of literature. He was as conversant with the annals of sport as he was with poetry, and showed very clearly a knowledge of classics, by quoting Pindar, Aristotle and Pausanias with reference to the Olympic Games.

Then he turned to me and enquired as to how long I had been in Canada and from what part of England I had come. When I told him that I knew a good deal about Marlborough and the Wiltshire Downs he was jubilant.

"Why," he cried, "I know that country so well." I found that he could tell me a good deal more about it than I could tell him, and for the balance of the time that we were together he discoursed volubly on Savernake Forest, Ramsbury, Stonehenge, Salisbury and Silbury Hill. Then he passed on to Somersetshire and again we were on ground well-known to us both. We had both seen the dwelling-place of the author of Vathek and had climbed the steep streets of that beautiful city of precipices, Bath. We had quaffed of the Pump-Room waters and had seen the erstwhile abode of that dandy of a bygone day, Beau Nash. We had also strolled through the grounds of Prior Park, where Pope had so often strolled in years long past with his friend Ralph Allen.

The time passed very rapidly, and it was with a queer feeling of sadness that I at last parted with my peripatetic philosopher.

He seemed to be sorry too, for his parting words to me, delivered as he was untying the knot that held the canine captive, were:

"Well, old man, I'm glad to have met you. It is such a pleasure to meet a fellow-being on equal terms."

As a footnote to the foregoing it may be stated that we have in the Library many volumes dealing with the histories of various counties of Great Britain. To Irishmen, Scotchmen, Englishmen and Welshman imbued with a love for their native land, these works should make a strong appeal.

VERY FIRST PARTY GOWN.

It's a thrill that comes once in a lifetime—one's first party frock. As fashions for small girls go this season it's likely to be a very much beruffled affair of georgette or chiffon in any one of the pastel shades or in white, and to be trimmed—if at all—with narrow two-toned ribbon.

A bateau neckline and peasant sleeves will make it quite a fashionable affair.

A frock is the same style without the ruffles will do very well for play days and will probably be made of wool crepe which is light as well as warm. Smocking and cross-stitching continue to be the most popular of trimmings for children's dress and may be—usually are—of the most brilliant colors.

Brains, Not Beauty Wins Business Success

By Marian Hale.

There is one place where the pretty girl has no advantage over her plainer sister—that's in business.

This statement is made on the authority of Nora Vincent Paul, pioneer insurance woman, master saleswoman, vice president of the largest insurance paper in the world, top-notcher in salary and successful business woman generally.

"To get along these days in business a woman has to show results, not a pretty, Follies-girl face," she says.

"There are more pretty girls out of jobs to-day than plain ones. Most employers would rather hire a mature, sensible-looking stenographer than one who looks too much like matrimonial material.

"This doesn't mean that a pretty girl can't succeed in business, it just means that she can't succeed on prettiness alone. Good looks are a wonderful asset only when backed by brains.

Two Classes.

"There are two classes of women working to-day— the serious ones who want to get ahead and those who are putting in time before Mr. Husband appears.

"Serious ones are determining women's position in the commercial world so that within the netx quarter of a century we shall find her on an equal footing with men, darwing the same salary for the same type of work.

"To any woman wishing to get ahead in business, I would give this advice— believe in your work and in what you represent. If you don't you can't put into it the enthusiasm and effort necessary for success.

"If you aren't satisfied in your present line or work try out others until you fit. Like love, you'll know it when you find the right one."

She's From Chicago.

Mrs. Paul is a Chicago woman, who makes frequent trips all over the country in the interests of her work. I saw her at the Hotel Astor in New York, but she was pining for her home in Chicago and for her 13-year-old daughter.

"I'd also say to all business women—never lose your femininity or your instinct for a home. No one needs a home or appreciates one more keenly than a business woman."

Mrs. Paul went into business for herself at the age of 21. Now she makes a specialty of going out after big contracts and big business.

"The thrills of my life come to me when I go in and master a hardcase," she said in conclusion. 'Easy ones don't interest me a bit."

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION EVERY DAY IN WEEK.

TORONTO, October 24. Canadian Press. — While opposed to religious teaching in the schools, the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec yesterday recognized the need for more instruction in religious matters than is provided by Sunday schools and therefore endorsed the proposal looking to the establishment of a system of daily instruction under church auspices.

In presenting the proposal Chairman Harry Stark of the Board of Religious Education, said that the situation meant that the men and women of the Baptist church must arise to the task of imparting religious education to those of school age not merely a paltry half hour on Sunday, but every day of the week.

'TIS THE LAST ROSE OF SUMMER

'Tis the last rose of summer
Left blooming alone,
All her lovely companions
Are faded and gone;
No flower of her kindred,
No rosebud is nigh,
To reflect back her blushes,
Or give sigh for sigh!

I'll not leave thou, thee lone one
To pine on the stem;
Since the lovely are sleeping,
Go, sleep with thou them.
Thus kindly I scatter
Thy leaves o'er the bed
Where thy mates of the garden
Lie scentless and dead.

So soon may I follow,
When friendships decay,
And from love's shining circle
The gems drop away!
When true hearts lie wither'd
And fond ones are flown,
Oh! who would inhabit
This bleak world alone?

ADVANTAGES OF COUNTRY LIFE

No street car strikes.
No rent profiteers.
Plenty of butter, milk and eggs.
A movie that shows regularly with no fear that the actors will strike.
Having dear friends that it doesn't take a day to reach in case of sickness or trouble.
Taking a natural interest in your neighbor.
Plenty of room for children, dogs and cats.

About the middle of the eighteenth century a lighthouse, called Dunston Pillar, was built on Lincoln Heath, to guide travellers over a trackless, barren waste, a veritable desert almost in the heart of England. But now it stands in the midst of a fertile region. No barren heath has been visible, even from its top, for more than a generation. Superphosphate of lime has effected this magic transformation. Many a barren, useless life has been made fruitful by the inspiration of a high ideal. Improvement hardly less radical is possible even in the best of lives. Apply the superphosphate of lofty purpose and your useless life will blossom like the rose.

The chief attraction in a home is a good woman. To man it is his wife. To children it is a mother. Weary and worn with strife, the husband seeks home for consolation. The minute the door opens care is banished from his brow and life takes on a brighter hue. No matter how hard the struggle, hope enters with him here and like the white dove of peace, nestles in his bosom. What a rare combination of virtue must wife and mother possess? How loving, how tender, how resourceful she must be! Home is where mother is.

Women are gradually coming into their own all over the world. Even the kimona clad women of far away Japan are gradually gaining political recognition. For centuries the women of this country have been forbidden by law to take part in any political organizations or meetings of any sort. This law has recently been wiped out, which means that the Japanese women are gradually coming into their own. The next step will be organizing and presenting their claims and in a few years we may expect to see equal rights in the cherry blossom land.

The life of the world is strenuous, and the door of the home should shut out the storm and stress, but it should not shut out new and wholesome and inspiring influences. It should stand wide in hospitable welcome to friends. The home life that is narrow and selfish is dull and enervating.

When men build a new boat and wish to test its strength, they turn its prow upstream against the current. They do not let it drift with the tide. So it is with our lives. If we wish to try our strength we must turn our faces to the current and face the tide.

Many persons do not enjoy eating corn from the cob. The following method is good and will prove a pleasant change:

3 cups corn, cut from uncooked cobs
2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika
3 tablespoons butter
Water to cover

Cook the corn in the butter for five minutes, add seasonings and water. Cover the pan and let the corn cook 15 or 20 minutes. It will then be tender and have a very little liquid to serve with it.

FROSTING

By Bertha Shapleigh

A very simple frosting is made by mixing 4X Confectioners Sugar with cream, hot water or fruit juice until of a consistency to spread. When fruit juice is not used add a few drops of vanilla or any preferred flavoring extract. Fresh strawberry or raspberry juice makes a very prettily colored frosting, and orange—a very good tasting one. If chocolate is desired, melt one ounce or one square and add confectioners sugar until of the right consistency.

RADIO NEWS

Since its inception, July 1, 1911, the government radio service of the Department of Commerce has licensed nearly 4000 commercial and 16,000 amateur radio stations in the United States.

Originally organized to enforce the wireless ship act of 1910, this service has expanded until now it supervises all radio stations on land and sea, that have obtained their licenses in the United States. Its work has increased to such an extent that it has had to be subdivided among other departments.

The enforcement of the ship radio laws now is under the control of the Bureau of Navigation of the Department of Commerce. Radio inspectors assigned to each principal seaport, see that every ship subject to the law has the proper radio equipment before sailing.

The Bureau of Navigation also regulates commercial and other land stations and sees that they comply with the rules of the international radiotelegraph convention of 1912.

For facility in regulation and inspection there are nine radio inspection districts embracing the United States, Porto Rico, Hawaii and Alaska. An inspector is responsible for the proper control of each district.

THE VALUE OF A SMILE

Bluster, brutality, coarseness are no match for gentleness, sweetness, courtesy How often we see a big, vulgar, loud-mouthed, bragging bully clompletely cowed by a smile and a few, gentle, courteous words from a sweet woman. A smile is the strongest possible weapon in the battle of life. It conquers the boorish and the disgruntled; it lifts the shadows, and brings light where before all was darkness. It is all the time winning new friends, new customers, new business, new opportunities. It is a tremendous asset in the business world; for every one likes the genial, cheery, smiling man or woman who has a kind word for everyone. The man who attracts business today must have pleasing manners. He must be a good mixer, friendly to everybody, with the sort of smile that is born of a kind heart and the good-will spirit that wishes well to all.

The value of a smile of that sort, which is not a mere parting of the lips, but a shining of the whole face, cannot be estimated, it is beyond price. Cultivate it and you will be welcome everywhere.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour, Gassy Stomach and Acid Indigestion.

Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, bsmuth, soda, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little bisurated magnesia — not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, oxide or milk, but the pure bisurated magnesia which you can obatin from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little bisurated magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover, the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

MISTER

Have you ever been forced to travel under an assumed name—in a strange country—in want? I mean, have you ever left behind you the name of Billy, Ed or Sam, and travelled for years among strangers as Mister? If you have, then you know what it is to want. I have many times crossed the continent—back to the old home town—that I might satisfy that want. The want of a friend to call me Sam. No Caruso or Bulotti ever sang words so musical to my ear as the "Hello, Sam," of the depot agent as our train drew up at the station. Sam, the name Mother and Dad gave me—the name my playmates knew—the name I had traded off for Mister—that cold-blooded, friendless Mister. Do you see the finish of my story? One word tells it—ROTARY. It has given me back my name, the name I love to hear, because it has a ring of true friendship, and takes me back to other days, those good old days, to the days when friends were friends—and I was Sam.
—Clipt.

THE IDEA OF CASTE

In an economic situation in which some have many advantages and many have few, there is bound to be an idea of casts among those who do not think deeply. The army which won the World War helped to counteract this idea. The "soft jobs" were not all held by rich young men, nor were those in the front line trenches there for the lack of prestige and influence. Boys brought up in favored surroundings marched and fought side by side with hucksters and many of the friendships and associations formed then were lasting.

IF YOU ARE WELL BRED

You know courtesy is the foundation of all conversation. Once people prided themselves upon telling the truth, no matter how much it might hurt. To-day we recognize that kindliness is as much of a virtue as candor.

Arguments should be avoided as well as contradiction, always discourteous. If you find yourself directed toward a heated discussion of some topic, it is wiser to withdraw or direct the talk into other channels.

HARDING BUYS BIRTHPLACE

BLOOMING GROVE, O., Oct. 24.—The old Harding homestead, birthplace of President Warren G. Harding, has just been purchased by the nation's executive. It is just out of this town.

"Sentimental reasons only," is the explanation given by French Crow, Postmaster at Marion, O., who closed the deal for the President.

The old Harding homestead consists of 266 acres, and until repurchased, had been owned by two different farmers. The house in which the President was born burned down years ago, according to Dr. G. T. Harding, the President's father, but the old house still standing was the family home during the early years of Warren Harding.

Trinity Trail

by Jack Lait

A CERTAIN scribbler of periodical fiction wrote a line several years ago that brought him a bushel-basketful of letters, indorsing and disputing his proposition. The line, verbatim, said:

"Into the life of every man come three women—the woman he loves, the woman who loves him and the woman he marries."

The scribbler at that time lived in Chicago, and men in those days and in that grand burg ate at home and drank downtown; later he moved to New York, where men drink at home and eat downtown. And he observed, and he reflected, and he changed his line to say:

"Into the life of every man come many women, divided into three classes—the women he loves, the women who love him, and the women he marries."

But the theorem is the same in its basic elements, just as a couple of x's plus a couple of y's will respond to the general privileges and limitations of the official big league rules that guide the destinies of x plus y. The axioms still ax and the equations still equate.

Manhattan Island is the great hothouse hotbed of the triple triangle; and its main drag, to wit, the Hate Right Way, is Trinity Trail.

For along Broadway may be found the glass-crashers and the come-ons, the gold-diggers and the daddies, the lowdown heels and the lofty souls, the bobbed-haired burglar and the hairy-chested yap who believes in women, the madly ambitious girl and the villainous vulture, the millionaire and the apache, the adventuress and the adventurer, the swill-skimmer who never looks up and the dreamer who never glances down, the harpies and the jezebels and the bunks and the stars and the guns and the money-changers and the inspired geniuses and the tortured spirits and the immortal and the damned.

And there the trinity of man's complicated ratio with woman reaches its tallest peak and becomes involved until not even the highest or the lowest mathematics can find a scientific solution. For the processes of addition and subtraction are unceasing, topped by the concurrent procedures of multiplication and division, while many of the integers are reduced to fractions with every wink and smile and drink and guile, and in love this one is a decimal here and two-to-carry there, with an ever shifting and drifting and sifting and grifting variation that is quicker than the hand, which is faster than the eye.

If a man ever started to compile a "Who's Whose" of Broadway, he would have to issue it as a daily—not overlooking the night editions and sometimes the sporting extras.

Along this trail J. Fielding Fosdick traveled.

Fosdick was some past thirty. He was from Indiana. He was willing to run a trick with or against anybody if it promised a profit; he attracted women, and they intrigued him; he followed a set of flexible ethics operated by a trained conscience that would listen to reason; he was for safety first and every man for himself; he borrowed all the traffic would bear and lent when he had to as little as he could get away with; he suspected every one and expected to be suspected by all; he was within the law when the law was looking; his right hand knew exactly whom his left hand was doing; he had asbestos ears and a cold contempt for theoretical altruism.

Mrs. Fosdick was as "typical" as was her spouse. Her attitude toward him was, "Well, he's my husband; I've got him whether he likes it or not, and I'd like to see the egg get away from me—huh!"

All thought or even all talk of lovebird stuff had ceased years ago. Fosdick had married Nina Wortham because he had seen her in a bathing suit, and she had married him because she couldn't buy the kind of clothes she craved on her salary as a manicurist plus her tips as an expert flirt. Nina had never been wicked—except in her heart, mind, soul and spirit. Her hard judgment had told her that a woman who keeps herself "respectable" and thus hooks some man into providing for her the impregnable security of a Mrs., sits prettiest in the poker game of this existence, for she can call any man's bluff and take down the antes steadily, even though she must forego the long-chance shots at filling inside straights in the feature pots.

She would have sued him for breach of promise in a minute if he hadn't married her when he did, and she wouldn't have divorced him for all he ever could get, though she might have yielded separate maintenance at a figure.

The Fosdicks quarrelled and wrangled, at home or anywhere, yet they were not living in an armed neutrality. At times they enjoyed life together, for the physical returns of living meant much to them both. Fosdick cared for her in a way because she was a beautiful woman and afforded him a flash that made other women look him over and other men sore, and she was fond of him inasmuch as he paid her bills and "took her out."

Neither had any heart-hunger or any tender illusions of a celestial affinity such as illumines the home of the sweetly mated pair. The Fosdicks used up more jealousy on one another than the most infatuated couple on earth, but it was more because each feared the other was having some fun than that each so treasured possession and so sacredly guarded the honor of the beautiful institution.

Fosdick, when he gave the matter any comparative thought, which wasn't distressingly often—for he was quite resigned to letting things go along as they were going—knew he didn't love Nina.

Fosdick knew just what it meant to love a woman, for he loved Polly Marlin.

Polly was a demure, ingenuous little soubrette, with the eyes of an angel and the attributes of a bandit.

The public worshiped her, for she registered virginal, wide-eyed, maidenly adolescence, a timid and diffident romanticism, a fragile and lily-like girlishness. In her own person she was an egotistical, nasty, envious, ill-bred, aggressive, unashamed, unafraid, skeptical, blase, quarrelsome, raucous tyrant, who lived for applause, Government bonds, the adulation and contribution of groveling big men, the hot hatred of all other women except those who sighed over her across the footlights, the chagrin of all other performers, and beatific pictures of herself in the papers.

Fosdick knew all that. But he was infatuated. Being of Broadway, being hard-boiled, he was a child as against the powerful personality and the brazen technique of Polly Marlin. It isn't the backwoods sap who falls hardest for the most obvious shines on Broadway—he may go under, too, but the most logical bird whom the snake enchants is the nearest bird, be he eagle, crow or sparrow. The men who go into raptures over the hard-grained chorus vamps are often their own managers, the actors who strut beside them, the gamblers and crooks and scalpers and sharpshooters who work the same side of the street.

Fosdick would have surrendered his immortal hereafter for Polly. But she never gave him a tumble. She was too far behind with men who could do her some good, get her somewhere, give her something worth while, to even hesitate over the meaningless advances of a bushleague curb broker who still thought a taxi was an automobile. That he was married meant nothing to her—all men are married, practically; and any man that might have been regarded as within plausible consideration of Polly Marlin would be married, for that sort of fish can't grow old enough to be big enough and free enough to be caught without having somewhere been pulled up on an appetizing little worm or a tantalizing scarlet fly.

She knew that Fosdick was alive, because he had given her a ruby. It wasn't much of a ruby, but Fosdick had cleaned his bank account to its scrapings for it. Polly had thrown it into her jewel box with a sneer—just another trinket. When Fosdick telephoned her she rarely answered, and when she did she outspokenly told him that he was a piker and was wasting his time—which was his own affair—but would he please stop wasting hers, which was valuable? Fosdick took it, reserving to himself the comfort of the Broadway philosophy that no may as probably mean yes as no, that women are coy and want to be pursued, and that something would yet happen to throw her into his clutch. And then——

Then, sometimes, he would think of Jane.

Jane Locke was a little stenographer.

She had come into his life through that great medium of intercourse, which has brought about more romance and drama and pathos and comedy and matrimony and heart-break and ruin and fortune and misery and joy than any other instrument of chance or predestined circumstance—the want-ad.

Fosdick employed several stenographers in his bucketshop. And they came and they went. To some man, somewhere, each was perhaps the sun and the axis of the earth, but to him they were just office props, as necessary as the desk, but not as important as the telephone.

And Jane Locke had answered an agate ad calling for an efficient secretary with references and experience, and had been accepted after a glance at a letter she carried.

Which conventional process had revolutionized her whole existence, and turned a carefree, ordinarily sensible and sane young business woman into a lovesick, aching, disconsolate and almost desperate girl.

Fosdick had never given a thought to Jane until one night, when he returned to his office after hours in search of a paper, he had run through Miss Locke's desk seeking it. And there he had found a surprising thing—his own picture.

It startled him. He sat down and thought it over. Where had it come from? He surely had never brought one into his office; he was a man who was constitutionally careful about where his photographs might be discovered. He had sent one to Polly Marlin, but that one was thoroughly accounted for—her own maid had tipped him, after he had tipped her, that it had gone into the beribboned waste-basket, to be dumped with yesterday's paper and the begging letters.

He remembered that he had dictated a letter to the photographer, ordering six prints of his latest sitting, all of which, however, had been delivered at his home. The mystery was lightened, yet deepened, when on the following day he telephoned to the photographer from an outside point and learned that Miss Locke, his secretary, had ordered one additional print, for which she had paid and which had been surrendered to her when she had called in person for it.

It puzzled Fosdick. What could she possibly want with his picture? She must have wanted it badly, and she must have given it considerable thought to go after it in the manner she had employed, and she had paid for it. Now, what the—wha—oh, no, it couldn't be that! And yet—and yet——

As he delved back into his memory he now recalled many sidewise glances, sighs not otherwise explicable. By the cat's whiskers! The girl was in love with him.

Fosdick watched her cannily after that. Yes, it was so. Now that he suspected, the certification was simple enough. He dictated a dummy letter to a fictitious sweetheart, and Jane choked and flushed until he had finished, then hastily ran out of the room and gave unmistakable evidence of tears through her studiously thick coat of powder when she returned.

He didn't know just what to do about it. The girl didn't exercise any allure for him. That sort was dangerous, too, from every angle—a nuisance at best. Yet, a pretty girl at his elbow, to be had for the snatching . . . Fosdick was too much a "chaser" to miss at least having her tell him about it and seeing her suffering.

So, without committing himself, he began to steer their conversations about to personal things. Jane yielded with pitiful acquiescence. The practised and corner-cutting Fosdick rapidly drew her around to utter her sentiments. The girl had gone wildly enamored. For months that endured, Jane eating him up with her eyes, waiting and longing and feverishly hoping and feebly striving that he might put his arms around her, that he would tell her he cared—or at least tell her he wanted her to care. But he kept up his light joshing, his flip banter.

Jane knew that he was married. She knew, moreover, that Fosdick did not love his wife. About Polly she had no intimation.

Before she had come into Fosdick's office Jane Locke had been a girl of clean ideals. Many men had liked her and a few had loved her. But she had never been nicked. She had tut-tutted at the notorious divorces, she had nursed a cold contempt for "other" women. Now? She would have married Fosdick in a dance-hall if he were free and wanted her. She would have submitted to anything to give him grounds for divorce—anything, even public disrepute. She would have fed poison to his wife if she were assured he would come to her afterward. It was an unreasoning, uncompromising passion; her whole being burned with it. And she knew that she meant nothing to him.

It would have been less than natural had she been able to confine herself, in this mad mood, within the formal proprieties of office discipline. One night in the Fall, when all others had left the office, just before six, Fosdick had been lightly amusing himself by twitting Jane. The tears burst to her eyes. She threw herself impulsively at his feet, embraced his knees and begged him to take her, to destroy her if he would, but to take her—to own her, to beat her, to abuse her. . . .

Fosdick yanked her to her feet. With all the righteousness of a rascal, he told her she was a wicked girl, had made herself a nuisance, and had lost her efficiency as an employe. He drew out some bills and paid her off—and discharged her. She staggered limply to the door, leaving the money on the desk. Once she turned, but he stood frigid and unmoved. And she faltered unsteadily out of his life.

Not so long afterward it so chanced that Fosdick was walking up Broadway, Trinity Trail, with his handsome wife. It was of a Saturday, half an hour after the matinees had let out. The streets were jammed with the limousines of the luxurious, the rattling roadsters of the semis and the snappy towncars of the demis.

Traffic along the sidewalks was even more congested, crowds ebbing south and flowing north, turning in and out of the slits of doorways and off and on at crossings.

Fosdick and his wife had ended an acrimonious argument. She had complained that, at a house party the night before, Fosdick had paid conspicuous attention to Mrs. Lanigan, the wife of one of his clients. Fosdick had insisted that it was for business reasons; Mrs. Fosdick had protested that it was for monkey-business reasons.

In order to comprehensively carry on and carry out to a fit conclusion such a dispute a man and wife must get a good running start by turning back into one another's past iniquities and obliquities, perhaps even one another's pedigrees and other antecedents. This had been thoroughly done, so that, as the Fosdicks made their common way up the big alley, there was manslaughter in each heart of theirs and carbolic acid in each artery.

Things each had thought for years had come forth at last, jacked out by the tooth-on-tooth progression of a bitter, two-handed give and take.

Now each knew that the other had been bubbling with venom for years; each knew that the other had been a complete disappointment and a horrible failure. At last the Fosdicks understood one another. There was nothing more to say. Fosdick lacked the manhood to declare himself out and leave her then and there. Mrs. Fosdick wouldn't have left him or let him go now for Rockefeller's millions—it was too sweet, having a man who hated her handcuffed to her, where she could gloat and tantalize and still use him.

And Fosdick, biting his teeth, gripping his stick with the garroting hold he would have given something to have on her throat, raised his chin.

Walking along, in that mincing pit-pat which was so characteristic of her famous and specious stage trip, was Polly Marlin. She wore the poke-bonnet that was at once fashionable enough to be up to her position and simple enough to be apropos of her "type." Many an eye turned to stare at her, for she was of the most pronounced style of what Broadway regards as beautiful.

Fosdick's other hand almost reached out to touch her. At this moment, to be so close to the one feminine thing on earth that he adored, that he hungered for!

The crowd about him stopped. A curb had been reached a few feet ahead, and traffic in midstreet was running across its path. Fosdick relaxed shakily. He turned his head and shot his wife a look. Then, before she could turn and catch him at it, for her head was aimed elsewhere to show her "independence," he revolved his gaze to the other side.

And there, looking up into his face, was Jane Locke.

Before him was the woman he loved, to his right was the woman who loved him, to his left was the woman he had married—the one whom he had never loved and who had never loved him.

Traffic changed with the whistle. The cars were stalled now and the pedestrians were crawling. Fosdick crawled with the pedestrians—with the three other pedestrians who had done so much to him and unto whom he had done so much.

There was the sum-up of all the dramas that had made that street the thoroughfare it was:

The man who loved a woman.

The woman who loved a man.

The woman and man who couldn't love one another.

Three plays without one happy ending, yet three plays without one real sin!

Fosdick fell into a little reverie. He forgot for the moment how he loved Polly, how Jane loved him, how he hated Nina and how Nina hated him.

As we do, so often, in moments of greatest tension, he began to think of things that didn't matter at all, that had no bearing on the situation.

Somehow he was thinking, just then, how miserably traffic was managed on Broadway and what a shame it was that a tax-paying citizen couldn't move along. He was interrupted by his wife.

"Well—are you going to take me to dinner?" she snapped.

Fosdick came to. He saw that Polly had drawn two rows of bodies ahead of him, as she was slight and small. He had drawn a pace ahead of Jane, as he was strong and heavy. His wife was still clinging to his arm.

"Oh, I guess so," he answered.

And he steered her into a restaurant, where other men sat with other women—the women they loved, or the women who loved them, or the women they married.

And Fosdick, Biting His Teeth, Gripping His Stick with the Garroting Hold He Would Have Given Something to Have on Her Throat, Raised His Chin.

PRO. TEAMS ARE GETTING READY FOR THE WINTER

Upheaval Over Transfer of "Newsy Lalonde" to Saskatoon Has Quieted--Joliet Goes to Montreal.

CASE OF GAGNIER.

MONTREAL, October 24 (Canadian Press). — The upheaval which took place at the recent meeting of the National Hockey League at Hamilton over the sending of "Newsy" Lalonde to the Saskatoon Club of the Western Canada Hockey League, has apparently subsided in as sudden a manner as it started up.

Leo Dandurand has got around the objections of the Toronto and Hamilton owners, and Newsy will be traded to the Saskatoon outfit.

Aurel Joliat, another stormy petrel of recent pro-hockey discussions, who was claimed by both Ottawa and Canadiens a short time ago, but who, it was found, belonged to Saskatoon, will come to Montreal as part payment for Lalonde.

The agreement with Saskatoon calls for another player as well as Joliat.

Negotiations between Canadiens and the Western club are held up at the present time on account of the fact that this other player does not belong to Saskatoon. He is a Calgary puckchaser by the name of Gagnier. The Saskatoon owners are now dickering with Calgary for the transfer, but so far they have evidently not succeeded. As soon as they do, the deal will be completed.

Leo Dandurand, managing director of the Canadiens, local club of the N. H. L., yesterday started serious preparations for the coming season, mailing contracts to all last season's team.

PRINCE PROVIDES NEW VERNACULAR FOR THE GOLFERS.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—(Associated Press)—The Prince of Wales established another great bond of sympathy with thousands of his countrymen recently when he duffed a shot that was heard around the golfer's world. This happened the latter part of September at St. Andrews as he was "playing himself in" as captain of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club.

Today thousands of duffers at golf are rejoicing at the enrichment of the golfing vernacular by a phrase used on a course near London, shortly after the news had been received of the Prince's ordeal at St. Andrews. A player scaffed his shot and remarked: "Ah! that was a Prince of Wales!"

This phrase is likely to be generally applied to a drive which moves a considerable amount of turf as well as the golf ball.

RUTH FAILS TO GET OUTFIELD BIRTH ON THE ALL-STAR AMERICAN LEAGUE TEAM

By BILLY EVANS.

In offering their selection for an all-star team from the American League the umpires in that organization agreed unanimously on four players, Collins, Sisler, Speaker and Cobb.

All of the umpires felt that it was impossible to keep Cobb and Sisler off the team, despite the fact that they are veteran stars who are going the other way. All agreed the two still had a shade on all others despite the fact that they are slipping.

For the position of right field there was much difference of opinion. Harry Heilmann received five votes, Johnny Tobin, Ken Williams, Sam Rice and Jamieson four each, Bobb Veach, Harry Hooper and Bob Meusel three each.

A decidedly unusual feature of the composite team was that not one umpire considered Babe Ruth valuable enough to be placed on the all-star aggregation. No doubt many reasons entered in such a decision.

In the National League selections the great Alexander did not qualify for the four leading pitchers. Incidentally the same thing happened in the American League relative to the great and only Walter Johnson.

ALL STAR AMERICAN LEAGUE TEAM

Player.	Position.	Team.
Schalk	Catcher	Chicago
Bush	Pitcher	New York
Shocker	Pitcher	St. Louis
Rommel	Pitcher	Philadelphia
Faber	Pitcher	Chicago
Sisler	First base	St. Louis
Collins	Second base	Chicago
Dugan	Third base	New York
Galloway	Shortstop	Philadelphia
Cobb	Left field	Detroit
Speaker	Centre field	Cleveland
Heilman	Right field	Detroit

At times last season Johnson looked as fast and good as he ever did. However, he lacked a certain consistency that was once a part of his makeup.

In the infield Sisler was the unanimous choice for first base with Lu Blue and Joe Judge receiving much consideration. All the umpires seemed to think the youthful Blue would soon be the successor to Sisler's title. Early Sheely, Walter Pipp and Johnny McInnes also had their admirers.

A rather surprising selection was that of Chic Galloway for shortstop. A year ago Galloway wouldn't have received any consideration to speak of. Yet this year he received a majority of the votes. All the umpires seemed agreed that Galloway was the most improved ball player in the American League.

Other shortstops to receive first choice votes were Peckinpaugh, Scott and Gerber. All agreed that Rigney was the best recruit that had broken into the league in years and was destined to be a star.

Second base went to Eddie Collins without a dissenting vote. All the umpires picked Stanley Harris as second choice and had kind words for Marty McManus of St. Louis.

The arbitrators were inclined to the opinion that the standard of third base play was a bit off in 1922. Joe Dugan was rated the best of the lot.

Schalk was the catching choice of a majority, with Steve O'Neill, Wally Schang, Cy Perkins and Hank Severeid pressing the Sox star closely for first honors.

Of the four leading pitchers selected three are veterans, two of them (Shocker and Faber) spitballers. The fact that all four pitchers are right handers doesn't speak very well for the arbitrators' opinion of the left-handed pitching on tap in the American League.

Ball Clubs Split Up the Proceeds

CHICAGO, October 24 (Canadian Press).—Cheques totalling $37,096.46, representing the amount awarded to the members of the Cincinnati National and St. Louis American League Clubs for finishing the pennant race in second place, yesterday were sent out by Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Each club was given $18,548.23, representing one-half of the 60 per cent. balance after the world's series contenders had been paid and the 15 per cent. allowed the Commissioner's office had been deducted.

The St. Louis Club's share was split into twenty-eight shares, nineteen of the players receiving $662.44 each, and nine receiving $662.43.

The Cincinnati Club's share was divided into twenty-five full shares of $713.41, and a twenty-sixth share, which was split into four parts in amounts ranging from $71.30 to $427.78.

SMOKE EATERS GET LICKED BY ROTARY

Chief Gimblett and His Gang Met Defeat in Fast Soft Ball Game Last Evening.

Two of the fastest games yet seen in the Men's Soft Ball League were played last evening in the Armouries. The Rotarians clashed with Chief Gimblett's Hosemen in the first game and defeated them 14 to 10, taking the lead in the Club section of the League.

A curve ball artist performed in each game, Dunkerly the Firemen's ace in the first and McLeod the Raybestos star in the second.

The Rotarians got three hits off C. Mason's offerings and chased around three runs in the first. The Firemen came back strong and got five in their half of the first. Neither team scored in the second, but in the third the Rotarian batted all around and got six to the Hosemen's zero. The score stood twelve to five at the end of the fourth in favor of the Rotarians, when Chief Gimblett sent Dunkerly to the mound. Dunkerly allowed Chris Graham and his mates two hits and two runs in the remaining five innings of the game. Dunkerly's appearance on the mound seemed to give the Firemen fresh hope and they started an uphill climb to get some runs. At the end of the eighth the score stood fourteen to eight. In the ninth the Firemen chased across two runs and had a glorious chance to get more, with three one, but a fast double play by Chris Graham squelched all their hopes.

The teams:

Rotary Club—Killally, ss; Lauria, 3b; Matthews, p; Caise, 2b; Primeau, rf; Graham, c; Dobbin, ss; McHardy, lf; Young, 1b.

Firemen—A. Mason, c; McBride, lf; Carr, 3b; G. Gimblett, 1b; E. Wilson, ss; Johnston, ss; Rollo, rf; Meehan, 2b; C. Mason, p; Dunkerly, p; subs, Parrington.

Score by innings:

Rotarians	306320000—14
Firemen	500021002—10

Beware Triple Threat

KIPPE

By BILLY EVANS.

Players carrying the triple threat are the most desired candidates for the backfield in this football day and age.

Michigan has, in Harry Kipke, Herb Steger and George Dunleavy, three such players for her 1922 backfield.

Kipke should be one of the great halfbacks of the season. He was, in his high school days, the best ever developed in Michigan scholastic circles. Injured in the Michigan-Ohio State game at the start of last season he did not play much, but this year he is working better than ever.

Kipke kicked a little last year. He averaged 35 yards on his punts. He has been booting the ball for an average of 50 yards in preliminary practice this autumn.

Also, Kipke is forward passing better than he did in 1921 and he is running faster.

As a runner, Kipke is a hard man to tackle. He has an individual style, carrying the knees high, toes barely touching the ground and can turn, dodge and reverse with remarkable speed, quickness and agility.

Due to his improvement over last season, Michigan will have an important triple threat in him.

There is Herb. Steger. He is eligible for the Michigan varsity this year and will undoubtedly play fullback. In 1920 he played with Oak Park High of Chicago and was regarded as the best "prep" school player in the west.

There are football players that can run better than Steger, some can kick better and some can forward pass better, but there probably is not another that can do all three things as well as Steger. Weighing more than 170 pounds, Steger is an ideal fullback and he has the triple threat developed to an even level.

George Dunleavy has been at Michigan two years, but is ready for the varsity for the first time in his college career. He has been ineligible before.

Like Kipke and Steger, Dunleavy can pass, kick and run. He can forward pass while going at top speed and that is something few backfield men ever did. Nearly all of them come to a stop before they can throw the ball. They have to balance themselves. Dunleavy hurls a football while off balance and hurls it accurately.

Michigan never before has had the wealth of backfield material that Yost possesses this season.

Michigan has for years needed a good player who can pass, kick and run. This season Yost has three such men in his varsity squad. It is almost certain tha two of them will be in the backfield in all games and their presence means that the Michigan attack this season will have versality and deception that it never developed before.

SPARKLING BALL IN SOFT BALL LEAGUE

Raybestos Defeated the Brintons in the Fastest Game Yet Played.

The second game last evening at the Armouries sparkled with fast plays and good pitching. McLeod did the twirling for Raybestos and turned in a great game. He struck out twelve of the Brinton's batters and allowed but eight hits. He received good support, there being only three errors made behind him. Bishop pitched well for the Brintons. He struck out six, allowed but eight hits and did some good fielding.

The Raybestos hit Bishop hard in the first inning getting four runs and Brintons got their other run in the third. In the first three innings McLeod fanned seven of the nine men who faced him. Neither team scored again until the eighth when Brintons chased across three runs. The Brintons tried hard in the ninth but failed to score. The game was played in just twenty-nine minutes.

"Prep" Stars Often Fail In College Football

By AUBREY DEVINE.

All-America 1921, Captian Iowa 1921 "Big Ten" Champions.

Winning the varsity letter is the ambition of every preparatory school athlete who goes to college.

A great many of them fail. There are only eleven regulars on the football team and hundreds of high school stars enter the big colleges every fall.

I am inclined to think that the high school star finds college football much the same as the minor league ball player finds the major leagues.

It takes lots of hard work and plenty of ability to make the grade in either case. College football isn't all glory, although some people and players seem to entertain such an impression.

The failure of many notable high school football stars to make good in college football has prompted the laymen to inquire why it is that high school stars do not make good in college.

Now everything in this world is relative, not excepting football, and many relatively mediocre players become what are termed high school stars simply because the quality of the men they play with and against in their high school days is even lower than their own.

In the eyes of the home folks and the sport writers back in the home town the average player is often transformed into the "star."

And when such a man comes to college greater things are expected of him than he can possibly deliver, and then the people ask why this high school star failed to make good in college. But there are many high school stars, men of real football ability, who have made good records in high school football who fail to sustain the promise of their pre-college days and the reason for their failure lies, generally speaking in one or a number of things I am about to speak of.

In the first place, the prospect that a particular high school star has of making good in college is not always as good as he and his friends oftentimes think for. If the particular college he enters is already possessed of good football material gathered from other parts the "star" shrinks in comparison before the larger and brighter constellation into which he has been graduated. If, on the other hand, the college is hard up for good football material the high school star has a rare opportunity to do great things.

But the quality of the man himself is of greater importance than the quality of the football material of his college in determining whether or not he will make good in college football. And here is where his high school training counts. Does he know how to train? Does he rigidly refrain from smoking, drinking and late hours?

If he does obey these elemntary rules of training and is blest with a sound body and a clear head then it goes without saying that his chance of making good in college is considerably increased over other men of equal ability who are less mindful of the importance of training.

HARVEY'S MINSTRELS.

Harvey's Greater Minstrels, that well known and clever collection of coloured entertainers opened a two days' engagement at the Grand last night, where they were welcomed by a large crowd, whose enjoyment was indicated by their frequent applause. The Harvey aggregation is unique in that it carries a mixed chorus and it may be added that it is unique too in the quality of its vaudeville features.

The first part, staged on conventional minstrel lines, is very successfully put over, featured by the excellent work of the six end men, who are genuinely funny in their comedy methods, made the most out of their song numbers and dance so effectively and put so much pep and energy into their stepping that the audience wonders how some of them can work so hard and still remain so stout. In fact their dancing is the outstanding feature of the first part, the female members of the company also showing proficiency in this department.

Five high-class vaudeville acts constitute the second part of the programme. The Edwards, wire cortortionists, carry off the honours with a really wonderful performance, the work of the male member of the act on the slack wire being equal to anything in that line ever seen here. Johnny Woods, a ventriloquist of a superior type, with a good line of patter and very clever in his methods, also scores heavily in the olio. Margaret Jackson, billed as the modern Black Patti, displays a splendid soprano voice in her act, and her sons were an enjoyable feature, worthy of being given as a specialty and not jammed into an act not above the average.

Olonze Moore, in a clever exhibition of magic, and James Crosby, who sings well and gives some good imitations, complete the vaudeville programme.

A musical revue, "At the Darktown Picnic," affording an opportunity for the company's singers and dancers to show their ability, winds up the performance.

The costumes and settings are in keeping with the general excellence of the offering, and the Harvey orchestra adds much to the enjoyment.

Harvey's Minstrels are "just a real good show" and should enjoy capacity business at their performance to-night.

"THE BAT" IS HERE FOR OCTOBER 27 AND 28

"It certainly is one grand show". That is the way the famous critic on "Life" summed up his impressions after witnessing a performance of "The Bat", the tremendously successful dramatic play by Mary Roberts Rhinehart and Avery Hopwood, which Wagenhals and Kemper present at the Grand Opera House on October 27 and 28. And after all has been said and done about "The Bat", Life's critic surely offered one of the best descriptions that could possibly be given of the play.

"The Bat" is primarily a mystery story. As such, it is unquestionably in a class all by itself, in fact, scores of critics have unhesitatingly called it the greates mystery play ever produced. But there is real drama and there is comedy in "The Bat". In fact, there is quite as many laughs as thrills during the play and is entertainment, pure and simple, it is 100 per cent plus.

The story of "The Bat" never has been told and it never will if the wishes of the authors and managers are respected. The first announcements of the presentation of "The Bat" as well as the first words which catch the eyes when the audiences open its programmes are a request that the story not be told. And thus far, although the play has been seen by more than one million persons, it is doubtful if any one has ever broken the confidence imposed.

Suffice to say, the story of "The Bat" is well worth while. It must be. No play in years has had quite the success of this play. Its runs in New York exceeded two years in length. In Chicago, "The Bat" set a new record for theatrical success when it played for over one entire year. Everywhere it has been seen, the result has been the same, absolute capacity audiences at each and every performance. For example, London, where it is nearing it first full year.

"The Bat" comes here staged exactly as it was presented in New York and Chicago and with an excellent cast.

Capitol Entertainment

Human heart interest in strong measure is the theme of the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for the first three days of this week. One of those pictures that portrays the life of an ordinary family, with all its hazards and difficulties, it holds the attention from beginning to end. Patrick O'Hara is the central figure, the policeman whose duty takes him out to busy highways by day and darkened streets by night, and whose heart is big enough to reach out for the little homeless waif, the child of the streets, and bring her into his own home. The scenes of peaceful domestic life are very appealing. One son goes to college, and the other into a bank, with Mary, the adopted daughter ,in the business world as a stenographer. Then, through misunderstanding, misfortune falls on the student away from home, and the peaceful home is turned into a place of jarring discord. Through a peculiar chain of circumstances, the officer shoots his own son, whom he thinks is robbing the bank, and later, at the trial, there occurs an affecting scene when one brother defends the other against an unjust charge. The strong interest taken by the audience in this picture is an evidence of its drawing power. The producers have taken advantage of many little episodes in every-day domestic life; the lost kitty the faithful dog, the homely meals, to make a really delightful feature.

There is an excellent comedy, with the pair of trick geese that are almost human in the antics they go through, and the usual short reels to round out a good programme.

AT THE ROYAL.

MIX IS SPLENDID IN LATEST FOX PICTURE.

Tom Mix, the William Fox star, gave thrilling entertainment yesterday at the Royal Theatre, where he appeared in his latest picture, "Up and Going," a story of the Canadian North-West. Mix seems equally clever at all sorts of out-of-door work. In this picture he gives a fine exhibition of handling a canoe, shooting through the rapids like an Indian.

The picture has many features to commend it strongly. The story is excellent, the scenery beautiful, and Mix, of course, is always "up and going."

CHA..PION SHOW OF THE WORLD

"The Bat," which comes to the Grand on Friday and Saturday has been styled the champion show of the world and its record certainly entitles it to that distinction. In its run on Broadway it was played for over 900 consecutive performances and over two million people paid over three million dollars to see the play in New York. At the same time it was drawing heavily on the road, no fewer than six road companies playing it in 1921 and it is estimated that five million people have been thrilled by "The Bat," which is one of the greatest mystery plays ever staged. It is running successfully in London, and two more companies have been playing the English provinces, while it is being presented in France, India and Australia, making an exceptionally big hit in the latter country. Peterborough's first chance to see "The Bat" comes with this engagement which is one of the most notable of the season.

COLLINS ALWAYS FOUND TIME FOR HIS DOGS

BELFAST, Oct. 7. — (Associated Press).—It is recorded that in the midst of all his pre-occupations and anxieties of the past six years, the late Michael Collins found time to keep up his one great interest outside the establishment of the Irish nation.

This was the breeding of his beloved "Kerry Blues," a type of dog that has become very popular in the past year or two. Even when on the run and later during his bitter fight with de Valera, Collins is said to have found time occassionally to attend his hobby.

People who walk in their sleep should be policemen.

LI'L BILL

By Berton Braley
(With proper apologies)

I've seen a lot of fighters in my time,
On the diamond, in the ring and on the court
I have watched a lot of champions as they climb
To the topmost, dizzy pinnacle of sport;
But Bill Johnston is the grittiest I've seen
The epitome of pluckiness and vim,
With a brain that's always working in his bean,
So I sang this little parody to him.

Here's to you, Billy Johnston,
With your wicked forehand drive,
You are all "Of sand an' ginger"
And you're vividly alive:
And here's TO you, Billy Johnston,
With your reddish-tinted hair,
You lean, lithe bunch of vigor,
With a lot of pep to spare

You are death and you are ruin at the net
You're a terror and a peril when you serve;
There is hardly any shot you cannot get,
You're a bundle made of energy and nerve;
You are made of dynamite and T.N.T.
And a wildcat hasn't anything on you,
And the least enthusiastic must agree
You're a bully little sportsman, through and through

So here's TO you, Billy Johnston,
With your racket in your mitt,
You're the dean of tennis science,
And the curly wolf for grit;
And here's TO you, Billy Johnston,
With your pulses all athrob,
You skinny little demon,
Who is alwyas on the job

THE HENRY FORD OUT OF RUNNING

Will go Back to Her Peaceful Occupation of Fishing—Too Many Fol de Rols,

GLOUCESTER, Mass., October 24.—Canadian Press. — The Gloucester fisherman, Henry Ford, to-day definitely withdrew from racing for the International fishing schooner championship of th: North Atlantic, Captain Clayton Morrissey asserting that his boat and his men had a l-ready won two races from the Canadian champion Bluenose, necessary for the possession of the title trophy and had put pig iron ballast aboard preparatory to going fishing.

The racing had been postponed on the representation that Captain Morrissey was sick. On board of his boat this morniug, he was supervising the work of converting her again from a racing schooner to a working vessel. He said he was "sick," but "sick mostly of committees, and yachting rules, and this and that, and other things, which spoiled the sport we set out on.

"The International Committee persisting in this attitude of denying us victory we won on Saturday, by calling it no contest, because they got their signals mixed up, does not help things, and only shows that we have nothing to gain by going further," he also declared. "Race for sport and not to make an outing for yachtsmen and fol de rol of their kind of racing."

Turn need into demand

HUNGER seeks food; thirst calls for drinks; fatigue requires a place to rest; labor must be eased by recreation. Human nature and human wants create demand. If you can do your share in filling it, tell people so. Turn unive sal need into demand for your particular product.

Through the Daily Newspapers give the people the news about your goods. Make it part of the daily life of Canada.

"Newspaper advertising," says the Ames Holden McCready Co., Ltd., "is as necessary to the successful distribution of a trade-marked piece of merchandise as food, raiment and shelter are to the well-being of the individual.

"Newspaper advertising nourishes the product; it clothes it with reputation, integrity and respectability; and it protects it from the storms of competition and the inroads of goods of questionable parentage."

The human demand for news has created a unit of daily newspaper circulation for every family in Canada and has left a million besides to provide for casual readers. If you need every unit to-day, it is yours; if only twenty thousand, the rest can stand aside without adding one useless dollar to your cost of distribution.

Issued by the Canadian Daily Newspapers' Association, Toronto.

Scene from "THE BAT," coming to The Grand Friday and Saturday, Oct. 27th and 28th. Popular matinee Saturday. Seats to-morrow.

NEW MINISTRY OF GT. BRITAIN RECEIVE SEALS

Take Their Oaths of Office at Council Summoned by the King This Morning.

TRUSTWORTHY MEN

LONDON, Oct. 25. — (Canadian Press.)— The King has summoned the Council for to-day, at which the new ministers announced yesterday by Premier Bonar Law will take their oaths and receive their seals. Nowhere in the London press today is any special enthusiasm shown for Bonar Law's choice, although Unionist papers, as might be expected ,are calmly appreciative. The fact that eight of the new ministers held office under Lloyd George deprives editorial writers of an opportunity of speculating upon their possible achievements. The Times thinks the country's reception of appointments "should be favorable and should ensure the good will of all who wish to see an efficient, business like government." The Morning Post says Bonar Law has thus far satisfied expectations by choosing trustworthy men."

FUNCTIONS IMMEDIATELY.

LONDON, Oct. 25.— (Canadian Press.)—The Cabinet of Prime Minister Andrew Bonar Law was sworn in at Buckingham Palace this morning. As the result of the taking of their oath of office, members of the Cabinet began to function as a new government immediately.

COUNTRY'S INTERESTS FIRST

LONDON, Oct. 25.— (Canadian Press.) — Former Premier Lloyd George, addressing a meeting of the Coalition Liberal members of Parliament this morning, declared that in the coming elections the interest of the country must come first.

I will support any party and any government that pursues a policy of peace, economy and steady progress, neither revolutionary nor reactionary, and does it efficiently," he declared when speaking of the future

In another part of his speech he declared that "Britain must pay America all her debts."

Not Let Britain Down.

"I will never let Britain down," said the ex-Premier with much warmth. "I will not stand for a man who does. Whatever government is in power, there must be no nagging criticism, there must be fair play. We are told that the new government is a government of tranquility. In what respect does their policy of tranquility differ from ours? We have made peace in Europe; we have made peace in the Near East. What does the new policy mean? It's no use using words unless they mean something."

On the question of German reparations Lloyd George said: "We should not attempt to impose on Germany any payment which is beyond her capability. What is within her capacity she ought to pay."

He was strongly in favor of renewal of the pact with Russia, and contended that Britain and the United States must work together.

Capital and Labor.

At home capital and labor must work together, and there should be a policy that would encourage people to devote their energy to the cultivation of the soil. Speaking of the break-up of the Coalition, he said there had been no difference of policy or principal within the government before its end. "It was hardly worth while breaking up a great national combination to substitute Lord Salisbury for Lord Balfour, as President of Council."

He was convinced that the numbers of Coalition Liberals were by no means small. In short journeys he had taken recently in the country there were indications of a good many Coalition Liberals. Independent Liberals, he thought, were concerning themselves less with principles than with pique. They were not concerning themselves with what happens to Liberalism, but with the defeat of Coalition Liberals. Coalition Liberals would fight, and if they fell it would be fighting to the last. If Conseravtives meant to smash National unity, Coalition Liberals would not stand for it all round. Regarding the revolt of Conservatives in coalition, he said he could understand the attitude of under-secretaries. Some were subalterns who wanted to be captains and some were captains who wanted to be made colonels and full generals.

SURRENDERED SEALS.

LONDON, Oct. 25. — (Canadian Press.)— Ministers of the resigned Lloyd George government this morning attended a privy council in Buckingham Palace to surrender their seals and their portfolios.

Marcel Finds Hair Sacrificed to Hats

Beautiful Coiffeurs Impossible, He Says, While Women Wear Toques and Picture Hats.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—Women are hiding the light of beautiful hair beneath the bushel of ridiculous hats, according to M. Marcel, the fiftieth anniversary of whose invention, the Marcel wave, will be celebrated by the coiffeurs of France.

"There can be no really popular and beautiful mode of dressing women's hair so long as women hide their tresses and curls beneath unsightly picture hats and laughable toques," Marcel declared. "The present-day hat is the enemy of woman's best appearance. A beautiful mode of dressing the hair cannot exist so long as women grasp their headgear and pull it down over their hair with a rush.

"While no specially beautiful coiffeur will be invented until women's hats are made suitable to receive it, a new style of dressing the hair is coming into fashion this winter. It is the Greek coiffeur, an adaptation of the mode of 1830, in which hair is brought to the back of the head with the aid of hair waving converted into a mass of curls."

Culprit Turned Over to the New York Police —Got Thrills From a Fire.

PRISONER VIOLENT

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.— Albert F. Molnar, alleged to have confessed to setting fire to the tenement on Lexington avenue, causing the loss of fifteen lives, was turned over to the New York police by the authorities of Bayonne, N.J., to-day. He was arrested in Bayonne as he sat in front of a church with boxes of soda crackers strewn about him and a lighted candle in his hand.

"I set that Lexington avenue fire," he told the police when they asked him what he was about. "I and the rest of the gang I run with. We started it just to see it burn."

Later, however, he repudiated the confession.

Got Thrills From a Fire.

Molnar told the Bayonne authorities he was 33 years old and lived in Manhattan, near the scene of the fire. He said he was a drug addict and that his gang had turned to incendiarism as the most thrilling vice available.

"We have headquarters in a church in East 97th street," he is alleged to have asserted.

Molnar's wife, Anna, called to see him to-day at Bayonne and said he left home yesterday morning for Elizabeth. She declared he was feeling ill and that his "confession" was full of impossible statements.

Gets Violent During Night.

That portion of it relating to his addiction to drugs was not overdrawn, according to the Bayonne jail authorities, for he became violent during the night, smashed windows and furniture, and talked incoherently.

The estimate to-day showed fifteen dead, twelve injured, and an interminate number missing, owing to the fact that many persons went to the homes of friends instead of to hospitals.

FINE SHOWING IS MADE BY RETA HAL

Mr. H. Elmhurst of Keene has returned home from Cleveland, where his good mare Reta Hal made a fine showing at the harness horse meet at the Cronwood track. In this race Reta Hal won the first heat, and then was set back and her driver fenced because of alleged fouling although Mr. Elmhirst declares that the decision was decidedly unfair.

WOMEN JUROR TO TRY CLINE DUEL MURDER

Stenographer of Twenty-three Years is Chosen as Foreman--Picture Colony Tragedy.

A PISTOL DUEL

NEW YORK, October 25. — Six women are serving on the jury which will decide the fate of George A. Cline, Alice Thornton, and Charles Scullion, jointly accused of the murder of Jack Bergen, "daredevil of the movies."

Trial of the three began before Justice Parker in Hackensack, N.J., yesterday. The jury was obtained in forty-eight minutes.

The women are Susan A. Squire, stenographer, of Ridgefield Park; Susan B. Rogers, "home maker," of Dumont; Eugenia F. Muller, housewife, Ridgefield Park; Julia Parsell, housewife, and Adelaide P. Brown, homekeeper, Tenafly. Miss Squire, who is only 23 years old, was chosen foreman.

Bergen, according to the prosecution, was lured to the Cline cottage by the director and Miss Thornton, a former sweetheart of Bergen. It is charged that Cline killed Bergen after he accused him of misconduct with Mrs. Cline. Cline declares he shot the actor when he made a treacherous move as the two were about to engage in a pistol duel.

Prosecutor A. C. Hart indicated that the State's case would revolve around Alice Thornton who is believed to have been the cause of the shooting, because of what she told Cline about Bergen's relations with Mrs. Cline.

Bergen had been a former intimate of Miss Thornton, and after they separated, Mr. Hart said, she became interested in Cline and the revelation followed.

When Mrs. Cline started forward to try to prevent the shooting, the Thornton girl said she stopped her for fear she would be injured, but Mr. Hart's contention was that if Mrs. Cline had not been interfered with the murder might not have occurred.

Scullion, Mrs. Cline's brother, the third defendant, was charged with having brought the gun downstairs to Cline.

FOUR BOX CARS DERAILED TODAY

Accident on Bridge Over the Downie Street Creek to G.T.R. Freight.

Four box cars of flour and grain were derailed on the G.T.R. tracks at the trestle bridge over the Downie street creek at the junction of Murray and Stewart streets shortly after 8 o'clock this morning.

The accident occurred to a special grain train from Midland to Belleville, due to pass through Peterborough after the local freight left for Lindsay. The grain train passed by Wm. Hamilton's foundry at a fair rate of speed, it is said, and on approaching the bridge the rails gave way, spreading enough to allow the wheels of the first car to drop to the ties, where they hit the protecting rail on the bridge, throwing the car up far enough to break its connection with the locomotive when it plunged over the structure, which is about fourteen feet high at this point.

This first box car, containing flour in bags and barrels, carried the following two with it and turned turtle, a complete wreck. The second car, containing scratch grain, was also smashed to pieces. The trucks of both these cars were completely severed. The third car, containing wheat, was broken open, but the fourth remained on the ties and suffered no damage.

The contents of the cars are being loaded into other cars this afternoon, so as to clear and repair the tracks.

None of the crew were injured.

The damage was totally confined to three box cars and part of their contents. Slight damage was also done to the bridge and the track beyond is pretty badly wrecked.

Trains on the Lindsay route have been diverted by way of Millbrook.

How is Peterboro Answering the Prayers From Haileybury for Help

Do the Warmly Clad, Well-Fed Inhabitants of This City Realize Exactly the Magnitude of That Disaster Which Has Stricken Their Brethren in Northern Ontario?

"Come over into Macedonia and help us," Acts 16:9.

So the man of Macedonia cried to Paul in a vision and the prayer was answered.

So also do the needs of the people of Haileybury cry to us. Has Peterborough answered the prayer? Has this city done its full share in sending relief to these sufferers who through no fault of their own must face the winter months with no funds, scanty clothes and in many cases without a roof over their heads?

The sixty odd dollars which were left at the Examiner office yesterday as contributions toward the needs of Northern Ontario raised the total of the sum collected through this office to $428.86. Varying amounts have also been contributed through the churches of the city, the Red Cross and similar organizations, but there still remains much to be done, and if our aid is to be effective we must not only give now and so relieve the more pressing needs of the fire sufferers, but some provision must be made to insure aid for them during the winter months.

In the next few months the suffering in Haileybury is bound to be acute, and it is only by giving constantly and freely that we can help these people to re-establish their homes and become again one of the thriving and prosperous centres of Ontario.

Three weeks have now elapsed since the cry of the stricken Northland was first sounded through the Dominion. At first from the very magnitude of the disaster it was difficult to grasp the extent of the calamity that had befallen the Province. Aid was immediately rushed to the sufferers, but as each day passes it now becomes more apparent that some continuous form of assistance will be necessary for most of the unfortunate families for the greater part of the winter. This will probably be taken care of through Government channels, and in the meantime help is needed for the immediate wants of the sufferers.

An efficient and systematic force of workers is looking after the distribution of all money and articles subscribed, and every assurance given that the money and other articles reach the sources for which they are intended.

Money, clothing and blankets are needed, and needed badly. Those who wish to contribute may do so through the Examiner, the Red Cross, the churches, the Fire Department and other organizations.

ARMED BANDIT COOLY ROBS TORONTO STORE IN BROAD DAYLIGHT

At Noon Today When Yonge Street, the City's Busiest Thoroughfare Was Crowded With People He Relieves Jewellery Firm of $10,000 Worth of Diamonds.

HELD UP THE LONE CLERK WITH A GUN

TORONTO, October 25. (Special.) —A lone bandit armed, his face half covered with a handkerchief, walked into the Ontario Diamond Store, 95 Yonge street, and held up Joseph Gould, aged 28, the general sales manager, 4 Hasrboard street, and Jess Kaplan, and and forced Gould to hand over $10,000 worth of diamond rings from the stock in the Yonge street window.

For coolness and daring the gunman showed himself to be a human icicle. After he had scooped up the gemmed rings gunman backed out of the store, flashing his gun, turned next door south into the Rialton Lunch Rooms, at 95 Yonge street, and dashed through the crowded lunch rooms where scores of noonday lunchers were eating; brandishing his gun the man plunged his way through the congested lunch room, knocking people eevrywhere.

"Get back!" "Get out of my way!" he yelled as he showed his gun, and rushed to the rear and into the kitchen where he ran into four chefs serving orders. Then he got out through a rear door into a laneway heading north into Adelaide street, and was last seen running east where he was swallowed up in the crowd.

Yonge Street Packed.

Yonge street was packed with noonday walkers and hundreds of people were streaming past the store when the hold up was staged. Jess Kaplin ran into Yonge street, and shouting "Police!" followed the man into the restaurant, while Gould hurried to the telephone and sent in an alarm to the police.

Hearing shouts of "Police!" and "Catch that man!" hundreds of pedestrians swarmed around the store, blocking the sidewalk hacking out into the road. A squad of police were kept busy chasing away the eager ones and a mounted constable moving traffic.

"I was sure that he was fooling when he pulled a gun," said Joseph V. Gould to the Examiner. Mr. Gould, the general sales manager, was the first one help up and was forced to hand out the jewelry to the gunman.

"I was standing behind the show case and Mr. Kaplan was sitting near the front window, when the man entered the store. He was about 28, blue eyed, and wearing a cap. I thought that he was a foreigner for he mumbled his words. He lagged at the door, looking the place over. "What can I do for you?" I asked. With that he pulled a handkerchief out of his pocket, and held it over his face as if he had the toothache. Then suddenly he pulled a gun out of his coat pocket and said "Come on and put them up!" I thought that he was fooling and only looked at him, continued Mr. Gould. Again he said, "Stick them up!" I reached for the ceiling. Then he seemed to notice Mr. Kaplan for the first time, and said "You too." Kaplan stuck his hands up. Then he told me to walk behind Kaplan to the show window and take out the jewelry. He evidently knew something of the business for he said, "Pick them out of the middle, not out of the sides; I took out about 30 or 40 pieces; not many out of the middle. I dropped some of the best stones as I reached the counter. I laid them on the counter and he swept them into his pocket.

"Then he backed to the door and stood at the entrance to the restaurant. I ran out to the back and phoned for the police. The fellow ran through the restaurant, and Mr. Kaplan after him. Mr. Kaplan told the Examiner that he last he had seen of the man was when he went up the lane to Adelaide street.

BRADLEY'S OUT ON LION'S TRAIL IN THE STATE

Will Endeavour to Clear Up the Mystery of the Two Lions in Michigan —Take Heavy Rifles.

BOTH DEAD SHOTS

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—If those two escaped circus lion which have been furnishing a few thrills for the countryside around Benton Harbor, Mich., are still roaming the sand stretches and marshes of Berrien county they had better make tracks for safer ground.

For two real lion hunters, who have stalked the huge cats in their native Congo jungles, took up the pursuit. They are Attorney Herbert E. Bradley, of 5,344 Hyde Park boulevard and his wife, Mary Hastings Bradley, the novelist, both of whom returned last spring from a seven months' gorilla hunt in central and German East Africa with Carl E. Akeley, big game hunter and collector of specimens for the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

Mrs. Bradley Dead Shot.

Mrs. Bradley herself bagged two gorillas and several lions on that trip and went through the thrilling experience of having a supposedly dead lion suddenly come to life and emit a blood curdling roar while she was holding up its head to be photographed.

The Bradleys thought the lion hunt in Berrien County was more or less of a hoax until Mrs. Merritt Pinckney, widow of the late Chicago judge, and Mrs. H. F. Ostrander, a guest at her home near Lakeside, both heard strange cries as from some large animal in distress while they were returning from a trip to Lone Island a few nights ago.

Take Heavy Rifles.

The Bradleys cleaned and oiled their high-powered rifles, obtained ammunition and left in their automobile on a several days' lion hunt. Mrs. Bradley said last night would be spent in picking up the latest trail of the animals and that the shooting, if any, would come to-day.

"If there are any lions in Michigan we shall get them," said Mrs. Bradley. "If the whole thing is a hoax we'll find that out quickly enough. But from what we have heard we are led to believe there must be some large members of the cat family roaming Berrien County."

HAD BOTH LEGS BROKEN IN AN AUTO COLLISION.

OSHAWA, October 25. — Following a collision near Dumbarton between an automobile, owned by Robert Ashby ,of Toronto, and a car owned and driven by Everett Leach, of Ashburn, Mr. Leach was conveyed to the Oshawa General Hospital unconscions with both legs broken.

Accompanying Mr. Leach were L. Lynde, of Ashburn, and W. Smith, of Port Perry, owner of the automobile.

In attempting to avoid a collision, Mr. Leach swerved his car to one side. One of the front wheels caught in one of the rear wheels of Mr. Ashby's machine. Leach's car was turned over into the ditch. Mr. Leach was pinned underneath, but the other occupants were hurled clear. Mr. Ashby and his wife escaped unscathed. Their car was badly smashed, however.

Police Rushed to Girl Scared by Lightning

Flash Causes Exclamation at 'Phone and Hearer Sends Call to Headquarters.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—A flash of lightning which frightened Miss Vera Fay, a stenographer, of Bay View Avenue, Jersey City, resulted in five detectives and a patrolman being sent from Oak Street Station to the offices of Caracand Brothers, importers, in the belief the young woman had been injured.

Miss Fay, who had been detained in her office by the storm, telephoned to a woman friend in a downtown office building. A man answered the call and was telling Miss Fay her friend had already started for home when he heard Miss Fay exclaim: "My God!"

Then there was silence and the man could obtain no response to his startled queries. Believing something had happened to her he called police headquarters and four detectives and a patrolman from the Oak Street Station hurried in an automobile to 280 Broadway.

They found Miss Fay sitting at a desk near the telephone, pale and shaken, but otherwise safe. She explained that as she was about to hang up the telephone receiver there was a dazzling flash of lightning and she felt a tingling sensation in her arm and then fainted.

MAGISTRATE TO PROTECT YOUTH

Grocer Fined in Police Court Today for Selling Cigarettes to a Minor.

In the police court this morning a local grocer, who has a license for selling cigarettes, was fined $20 and costs, amounting to $24.75 altogether, for selling cigarettes to a minor of 16 years of age. The accused in defence put up the plea that he understood the age limit was 18 instead of 16, and said that many dealers in the city were of the same opinion. The Ontario statutes place the age limit for selling tobacco in any form at 18 years of age, and Magistrate Imrie made it clear that in future he intended to impose stiff fines, up to the maximum of $50, on any dealers found guilty of a breach of the law in this regard. "The excessive use of cigarettes in harmful to boys, and is bringing down the you of the country. We can do nothing with them after the age of 21, but I would like to do eevrything in my power to prevent them using tobacco up to that age, if possible," he said.

DANE TRANSFERS AUTOS INTO FIRE ENGINES

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 25.—(Associated Press)—John Ellehammer, a Danish electrical engineer, has invented a device which will turn a motorcar into a fire engine at a minute's notice. The attachment, which is not much bigger than an ordinary alarm clock will throw water to a height of 60 feet.

Mr. Ellehammer believes his invention will solve the problem of adequate protection against fire in villages and mansions at a minimum cost.

TO ELECTRIFY THE RAILWAYS IN THE NORTH

Plans Submitted to the Drury Government To-day -- Cabinet Holds a Special Session.

NEWS DESPATCHES

TORONTO, October 25 (Canadian Press). — Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway is submitting engineering plans to the Drury Government to-day calling for the electrification of the Provincial Railway at a cost of $9,000,000.

The report states that at that price the substitution of electric energy for steam power would pay handsomely.

Ministers are favourably disposed to electrification, and there is little doubt that the Lieutenant-Governor in-Council will direct that the change be made.

The T. and N. O. Railway at present has a main line from North Bay to Cochrane, that is 253 miles long, as well as branches, that bring its total mileage up to 330 miles.

Chairman Lee of the railway was here in support of the plan to-day, and the Cabinet was still in session this afternoon.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Octobgr 25 (Canadian Press). — Coming to the mark, Bluenose caught the Henry Ford and passed her one hundred yards in the lead, and the wind had increased to 10 knots. Thirty minutes later the wind increased to 12 knots, and the Bluenose had made its lead four hundred yards.

BAN CANADIAN BONDS.

OTTAWA, October 25 (Canadian Press). — Officials of the Finance Department had little to say this morning when informed that the Superintendent of Insurance of the State of Illinois was said to have threatened to prosecute companies operating in that State if they did not get rid of their holdings of Canadian bonds.

It was pointed out that either the laws of the State or the charters of the various companies be incorporated. As far as can be learned, however, the State of Illinois is the only one which has taken such drastic action in regard to Canadian bonds.

KINGSTON "HET UP."

KINGSTON, October 25 (Canadian Press). — Kingston is aroused over the fact that the railways have refused to grant an excursion rate for the Queen's-Varsity game in Toronto on Saturday.

Last night the Board of Trade decided to protest to the Board of Railway Commissioners against the alleged discrimination of railways against the smaller centres in favour of the larger ones.

This morning W. F. Nickle, M.L.A., wired the Secretary of the Railway Board, asking for a hearing to-morrow in order that the matter might be investigated.

PAYING OWN WAY.

KHARKOV, Russia, Sept. 24.—(Associated Press)—Students were paid by the Soviet government last year to attend classes at the University of Kharkov, but this season they are paying their own way, and the enrollment is larger than at any time since the war.

The unusually large attendance for the beginning of the fall term is attributed to the fact that many of the old professors have been reinstated to their university positions. Last year many of the regular professors were replaced by Communist professors. As a result the attendance fell of materially, and eventually there was a governmental investigation. It was finally decided to try the scheme of paying the students to attend school, the scale being 6,000 Soviet rubles a month. The average government employee was receiving at the same time 4,000 rubles a month.

The majority of the university students are not Communist sympathizers. They objected strenously to being taught by Communist professors, even though they were paid for it. So when the students threatened to strike other plans were thought out, it being evident that the Communist professors were not at all popular in the university.

Just before the university opened this fall, it was then announced that nearly all the old time professors, many of them great favorites for years in Kharkov, would take up their former duties again. This caused general rejoicing, and ther was a rush from Kharov and other cities to fill up the classes. The students willingly agreed to pay the 2,000,000 rubles a month tuition fee in order to have their old professors back.

ELECTION CAMPAIGNING WENT WITH FULL SWING IN ENGLAND

The Principal Members of Bonar Law's Ministry Announced But Few Changes Made — Labor Vote Uncertain.

FEAR OF SOCIALISM.

LONDON, October 25 (Associated Press). — Premier Bonar Law last night issued a list of the principal members of his Ministry. His own name is not mentioned in the official list, which leaves it to be inferred that he takes no other office that that of Prime Minister and First Lord of the Treasury, the latter being a post without specified duties beyond those attaching to the Premiership.

Marquis Curzon retains his post as Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and will be leader of the House of Lords.

Viscount Peel retains the Indian Secretaryship.

Stanley Baldwin, as expected, goes to the Exchequer, but it has not yet been announced whether he will be leader in the House of Commons.

The Earl of Derby at the War Office resumes a post which he has held before. The Prime Minister the greatest difficulty with the law offices. It is noticeable that Lord Curzon's name does not appear in the new Ministry, Viscount Cave becoming Lord High Chancellor.

The Attorney-General, Douglas McGarel Hogg, is new to his office: he was formerly closely associated with Lord Carson. His wife is the daughter of Judge Trimble Brown, of Nashville, Tenn., and widow of the Hon. A. J. Marjoribanks.

There are still a number of appointments to be made, and it is noticeable that the five offices held under Premier Lloyd-George by Austen Chamberlain, H. A. L. Fisher, T. J. MacNamara, Sir Hamar Greenwood, and the Earl of Crawford and Balcarres, who all joined Lloyd-George in the wilderness, are not yet filled. It is expected that the office of Chief Secretary for Ireland will be abandoned, and that the Ministry of Labour will be merged into some other department.

The Prime Minister held his first informal Cabinet council of the Ministers already appointed at a small dinner party at his residence last night to discuss general lines of policy previous to his visit to Glasgow, when it is believed he will make his political pronouncements.

Election campaigning went into full swing yesterday as light begins to emerge from the confusion into which the sudden collapse of the Coalition threw the political world, two distinct tendencies are becoming evident. First, and most important, is the fear evidently animating all the other parties of the unknown quantity in the Labour vote of the electorate.

Labour has been by far the most successful of the various parties in all the bye-elections since the elections of 1918 ;moreover it is known that the Labour Party is better organised for elections than on any previous occasion and that it will have a greater number of candidates in the field than any other party, except the Conservatives. Hence, there is considerable justification for the apprehension entertained.

It is quite possible that this apprehension accounts for the second notable tendency, namely, the desire of the Conservatives to do everything possible to avoid accentuating the cleavage in their party. There is no doubt that Bonar Law still hopes for eventual reconciliation with those Conservative leaders who remained faithful to Lloyd-George, and the real motive for the wish to heal the split in the party is the hope of countering Labour's expected attack on property.

Perhaps the most notable event of the day has been Reginald McKenna's frank support of the Bonar Law administration. This must be a tremendous disappointment to the Asquithian Liberals, and is at the same time an enormous asset to the new administration. Whether Mr. McKenna will return to active political life in the sense of joining the new administration or becoming identified with the Unionist Party is still unknown, and probably depends on the course of future events

The motive of his new turn, however, is the same as that animating all the other parties, as revealed in the recent speeches of Austen Chamberlain, Winston Churchill, and even in the manifesto of the Asquithian, or Independent, Liberals—fear of Socialism and the nationalisation of industry. There is manifestly a fear of the advent of a Labour Government, with attacks on capital in the shape of a levy on capital, and upon private enterprise in trade and industry.

The speech delivered by Arthur Henderson, one of the prominent Labour leaders, last week, before it was known that the Coalition was collapsing and a general election was coming, has been largely responsible for this development. In his speech, Mr. Henderson said that "Labour has declared war on private enterprise," and he made other similar statements, which, it is thought, he would probably have toned down had he known an election was so near.

With regard to the question of protection, Bonar Law although he is strongly in favour of tariff reform, is thought to be going slow out of deference for the Earl of Derby, whose political strength lies in Lancashire, where the cotton industry is firm against protection.

The Asquithian election manifesto issued yesterday, is believed to dispose of any likelihood of a re-union between the opposing sections of the Liberal Party. The Lloyd-George idea of creating a new Centre Party seems not to be making much progress at present.

AN EARTHQUAKE FELT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25. — Canadian Press. — An earthquake of "moderate intensity," estimated to be about 5,200 miles south of Washington, was recorded yesterday afternoon on the seismograph at the Georgetown University. Father Tondorf, director of the observatory, stated that the tremors began at 4.34 p.m., and continued until 5.30.

South Africa Wants Visit From the Prince

LONDON, October 25. Canadian Press. — So anxious are the people of South Africa to have a visit from the Prince of Wales that reports have been in circulation in the Dominion to the effect that His Royal Higness will visit the Union almost immediately. This expectation, however, has just been knocked on the head by the Governor-General, Prince Arthur of Connaught. The Governor has issued a statement expressing the Prince's anxiety to visit South Africa at as early a date as possible, but the Prince regrets that this will be impossible during 1923.

FINANCIAL TROUBLE CAUSED BY WAR

Devastation of Northern France Is Blamed For the Entire Deficit in French Budget.

PARIS, Oct. 25. —(Canadian Press.)—The money spent for the reconstruction of northern France, devastated by the Germans in the great war, is entirely responsible for the deficit of 4,000,000,000 francs in the French budget for 1923, declared Maurice Bokanowski, the budget reporter ,to the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, in advocating that the problem be faced squarely, with concrete proposals of an arrangement to collect from Germany.

M. Bokanowski said that this reconstruction work, coupled with the war expenditures, had caused the French public debt to increase from 32,000,000,000 francs to 221,000,000,000 francs since 1914.

The budget reporter advocated abandonment of the policy of issuing short term internal loans and treasury and national defence bonds, as the interest on those bonds alone now amounted to more than 4,500,000,000 francs annually, or a larger amount than the deficit.

CAT SOUP AND GROUND HAY IS RUSSIAN MENU

H. R. Kemp Tells Story of Famine and Suffering Among the Russian Peasants.

EVERYTHING EATEN.

In an interview yesterday Herbert R. Kemp, lecturer at the University of Toronto, presented a box full of grayish green powder, which last year formed one of the articles of food for the peasants in the Russian famine area. It was grass dried and cut fine.

Mr. Kemp was working with the Friends' war victims relief committee this summer, and was located 800 miles southwest of Moscow and about six hours' journey east of the River Volga.

"There is only one railway in all that section," said Mr. Kemp, "We were distributing relief about sixty miles in every direction from the village of Alexeevka, and the only means of transport normally is by springless wagons drawn by half-dead horses.

"This may give you an idea of the difficulties of transportation which the relief organizations are up against in Russia.

"In each village a Russian famine committee is elected by the people to decide what families are the most in need of food in case there is not enough for all. The position of the men on these committees is horrible. It comes to be a case of deciding which of their neighbors shall be allowed to starve to death.

"Last winter in Alexeevka there were at one time 400 dead bodies lying in the churchyard unburied. Once I wanted a cat on account of the mice in the warehouse, and I had to go 20 miles to get one; all those about the district had long since been used to make soup.

LAKEFIELD HEARS CALL FOR RELIEF.

Twenty-Five Boxes and Bales Shipped in One Day—Lakefield News.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 25.—The response to the appeal of the U.F.W.O for help for the Haileybury fire sufferers has been splendid. Village and country gave liberally and last Friday twenty-five boxes and bales were packed and shipped to the north. The men of the U. F. O. collected and forwarded money, which amounted to nearly $100. The ladies are not content to sit down and fold their hands and say that they have finished, but are going on with their good work and plan to make quilts which will be warm for the winter, which is very long in Northern Ontario. Any one who will donate quilt patches of warm dark material will help the ladies to help the fire sufferers.

Mr. Robert Webster, who has been very kind in taking in goods and caring for it in the town hall will take any offerings of material for quilts. Assistance from the ladies of the village or country in the work would be most welcome as the need is pressing. No doubt the various women's organizations would only be too glad to devote one afternoon or evening to the work. If all did so there would be a great deal accomplished. The U.F.W.O. are working very hard to get another consignment off not later than netx week.

Personal Mention.

W. L. Ianson and Miss Mildred Miller were in the village from Peterborough on Monday. Mr. Iason has closed "Viamede" and will spend the winter in Peterborough with his family.

Mrs. McNulty and children of Montreal ,are spending the winter in the village.

J. W. Stuart of Peterborough, was in the village on Monday.

Mrs. R. J. Lennox was in Peterborough on Saturday.

Mrs. E. A. Tanner is visiting friends in Toronto.

Mrs. Daniels of Toronto, the diocesan officer of the Junior W.A. work, will give an illustrated address in St. John's Sunday school room on Friday evening at 7.30. Mrs. Daniels, who spoke at the Deanery meetings in Peterborough, is a very interesting speaker and makes her subject very interesting.

It was for the purpose of discussing the German government's measures, and the measures necessary to effect balancing of the budget and the stabilisation of the mark.

Loan Association Will Start Again

WINNIPEG, October 25 (Canadian Press). — Ater several months' suspension through lack of funds, the Manitoba Farm Loans Association will commence operation shortly, the Provincial Treasurer having advanced a line of credit amounting to $500,000.

This action follows the recent announcement that the Bracken Government is in favour of farm loan schemes, under which money is advanced to farmers to be repaid in thirty years on first mortgages.

Amendments to the Farm Loans Act are under consideration, and it is possible that in the future the Association will be able to float its own debentures.

FAMINE THREAT FOR REFUGEES FROM THRACE

200,000 Have Crossed the Maritza, and Adrianople Relief Is Breaking Down.

ALLIES INDIFFERENT.

ADRIANOPLE, Oct. 25.— It is idle to deny any longer the possibility of the blackest page in Allied history being written on the banks of the River Maritza. Here we are at the parting of the ways, with Adrianople on the left bank and Karagatch on the right bank. Here is the famous Maritza line, behind which the civilian Greeks of Eastern Thrace in thousands are seeking asylum.

For days the stream of refugees has been flowing westward across the river bridge, and to-day it shows no sign of diminishing. A conservative estimate obtained from Greek sources and checked by the British liason officer, Major Bamford, puts the number of fugitives who have already crossed the Demarkation line at 200,000, but even in the haven of Western Thrace the future of these fugitives is dark and uncertain.

True, their lives and the honor of their women are safe ;but what they will do and whether they are to go no one knows. The Allies are apparently indifferent; the Greek government finds it impossible to furnish adequate aid to the sufferers: the spectre of famine hovers over the fugitive army. Little wonder if, faced with the refugee problem, the Greek relief organization is in a state of collapse. The Greek authorities are doing their utmost, but they, too, are under notice to vacate Eastern Thrace and give place to the Turks.

As the fugitives cross the Maritza Bridge, which is the dividing line, they receive a loaf of bread per adult. This is all the Greek civil authoritics are able to offer and the bakeries, owing to the excessive strain upon them, may have to quit in a few days, and then will come black disaster. Hunger will obtain the upper hand, and thousands may succumb unless some sceme of relief can be quickly applied.

INDEPENDENT LIBERAL PARTY ANNOUNCED POLICY YESTERDAY

Active in Public Life in Cavan

MR. J. W. HAMILTON.

Life-long resident of Cavan township. Ex-President of the Agricultural Society; school trustee for S.S. No. 13, for 14 years, and chairman of the Board of Health for Cavan. Member of the local I.O.O.F. No. 308, also of the Royal Black Preceptory No. 045; Past District Deputy Grand Master of the Royal True Blue Association. Owing to his recent serious illness extending over several months is no unable to take as prominent a part in public life as was formerly his custom.

Declares Lloyd George's Government Left Unexampled Record of Extravagance and Failure.

NOT SOCIALISTS.

LONDON, October 25 (Associated Press).—The election manifesto of the Independent Liberal Party was issued yesterday at a meeting presided over by former Premier H. H. Asquith. It declares that the Coalition has broken up in general confusion and discord, leaving behind it an unexampled record of extravagance and falure, and asserts that both wings of the Coalition are responsible for its misdeeds and that neither can escape its share of the public condemnation.

"Liberalism is not Socialism" says the manifesto. "Liberalism repudiates the doctrine of warfare against private enterprise. It stands for:

"First—Peace and disarmament, made secure through the League of Nations.

"Second—Prompt revision and settlement of reparations and Inter-Allied debts.

"Third—Drastic economy in public expenditure and abandonment of the policy of military adventures abroad.

"Fourth—Fulfillment by the community of its responsibility for securing the workers against the hardships of unemployment; co-operation between Capital and Labour and honest and fair treatment of organised Labour as the only basis of industrial peace.

"Fifth — Unqualified Free trade, with the immediate repeal of the Safguarding of Industries Act and similar protective measures.

"Sixth—Maintenance of such essential social services as education, housing, and public health.

"Seventh—Political and legal equality for men and women.

"Eighth—Comprehensive reform of the existing land system, including taxation and treating of land values.

"Ninth—Democratic reform of the licensing system.

"Tenth—Readjustment of the electoral system by the introduction of proportional representation."

The manifesto asserts that no confidence could be placed in the Coalition's declarations, whether in the industrial or international sphere. The Coalition has shown itself, according to this pronouncement, equally incapable of securing good understandings abroad or pursuing a consistent policy at home. The nation demanded a complete change, conviction instead of compromise, economy instead of extravagance and waste.

Reminding the electorate that it was Liberalism which denounced the recklessness of the Government's disastrous and costly adventures in Russia and Mesopotamia and fought the battle against protection and Government interference in trade, the manifesto says the time has arrived to restore Liberalism to its rightful place in the councils of the nation.

Institute on Religious Education Held in Methodist Church a Great Success--Personal News

BETHANY, Oct. 25.—An Institute on Religious Education was held in the Methodist Church on Tuesday, October 24th, afternoon and evening. The chair was taken by Rev. Redick, of Lakefield, Religious Educational secretary for Peterborough District, and the afternoon session was opened by singing and prayer by Rev. S. T. Tucker, of Millbrook.

Miss Pearl Burnham, of Millbrook, gave an excellent paper on mid week sessions for girls' classes. Miss Burnham dealt chiefly with the C.G.I.T. work with 'teen age girls, giving an outline of the work taken up by this group.

Rev. S. T. Tucker spoke on mid-week sessions for boys' classes. Mr. Tucker followed the same principles and rules which Miss Burnham laid down, only using Tuxis Square and Trail Ranger groups among the boys. Mr. Tucker's address was of deep interest to leaders and teachers of boys' classes.

After singing a hymn and taking up the offering, Miss Hetherington, of Millbrook, gave a very instructive paper on mid-week sessions for young people's groups. Miss Hetherington's paper took in the work done in the Epworth League, under the four headings: Christian Endeavor, Missionary, Citizenship and Literary and Social, and was very practical and helpful to those interested in this work.

The meeting was here opened for discussion along the different lines of thought opened by the different talks and papers heard during the afternoon.

The young people of the Bethany Epworth League served supper in the basement to the delegates present.

Evening Session.

The evening session was opened by devotional exercises, led by Rev. J. E. Beckel. The address of the evening was given by Rev. Mr. Tanton, of Janetville. Mr. Tanton, who is a new-comer to this district and conference, said this was his first Institute meeting in Ontario, and he had enjoyed every moment of it. He chose as his subject, "Christianity in Child Life." This address also was of deep interest to Sunday school workers, leaders in young people's societies, and especially to parents.

Miss Verna Belle Lee's solo also added greatly to the interest of the evening session.

Other speakers were Rev. H. Wilkinson, Pontypool, Mr. S. Nicholson and Mr. Fred. Baker.

Rev. Beckel closed the evening session by a consecration service and by linking up every department with the church and the ministers as their leaders. "Blest be the tie that binds," with the Mizpah, brought this very successful Institute to a close.

Delegates were present from Pontypool, Drum, Janetville and Centre Cavan (Matchett's Sunday School).

News Briefs.

Messrs. Geo. Twigg and Louis Staples shipped a carload of hogs on Tuesday.

F. C. Dawe shipped a carload of Manvers potatoes to Peterborough on Tuesday.

C. C. Jeffery, of Port Perry, was a business visitor to the village on Tuesday.

DANGEROUS CROSSINGS.

The Peterborough Motor League, in appointing a committee to examine the level railway crossings in Peterborough, with a view to making recommendations as to their protection to the Board of Railway Commissioners, is doing a good service on behalf of the public.

The committee will find a number of crossings that, in their present condition, are a menace to safety, and if their efforts to secure a better condition of affairs are successful, the people will have every cause to be grateful to the Motor League.

The level crossing menace has become greater since the advent of the motor car.

Daily the newspapers tell of tragedies at grade crossings, and it becomes evident that some greater measure of protection will have to be furnished or the level crossings will have to be completely eliminated.

The second course is the most desirable one, but the chances of it being adopted are not of the brightest.

In the meantime all that can be done is to press for safety devices at dangerous crossings and to educate the public in general, and motorists in particular, to exercise care and common-sense in travelling over railway tracks.

The Motor League is showing a proper appreciation of its responsibilities in endeavoring to improve conditions locally, and it is to be sincerely hoped that success will crown its efforts.

WHAT IS THE REMEDY?

The fact that only one-fifth of the total vote in the South-East Toronto by-election was polled, coupled with the decision of several Ontario municipalities to hold the municipal elections early in December in the hope of securing a larger vote, again draws attention to the increasing indifference of the Canadian people in regard to municipal, Provincial and Federal government.

The signs are not encouraging.

The refusal of a very large part of the electorate to take any interest in the selection of the men who are to administer public business does not lead to live or good government.

It makes it easy for the man without sound qualifications to get into office, and it keeps other men of the calibre needed in public life from offering themselves as candidates.

And the exasperating part about it all is that the people who complain the most about the inefficiency of municipal councils or of Provincial and Federal administrations are usually men and women who have not taken the trouble even to vote.

What is to be done about it?

Newspapers everywhere have sounded the alarm so often that they have almost grown weary and discouraged.

Municipal Voters' Leagues have been organized to secure a larger expression of public opinion, and their efforts have generally failed.

How the conditions that exist at present can be remedied should occupy the thoughts of all those who are anxious to promote the welfare of their home community and of the country generally.

THE CAUSE OF THE FIRE.

The evidence of Chief Provincial Forester F. J. Zavitz to the Fire Marshal's inquiry into the cause of the disastrous fire in Northern Ontario indicates that the municipalities in the district were themselves responsible for the fact that they were without the protection afforded by the Provincial fire rangers.

The fire rangers were withdrawn from the territory some years ago on the strength of resolutions asking for this action that were passed by a number of municipalities.

Friction between the settlers and the rangers because of the opinion of the former that the Government's representatives were interfering with their rights on their own land led up to the resolutions.

The wisdom of yielding to a request based on such grounds is open to question.

It is evident that the very thing over which the settlers and fire rangers failed to agree was the cause of the conflagration that swept over the district.

Had the Government officials been on duty they would have prevented the farmers from burning their brush and slash, realizing that the long period of dry weather had made such a proceeding hazardous in the extreme.

But there were no rangers, the settlers took chances, a heavy wind sprung up, the numerous little fires speedily united into one and in a few hours many lives had been sacrificed and ten thousand people were homeless.

BE YOUR OWN BOSS.

High priced men require little supervision.

The laborer has a gang boss or a foreman over him; over the foreman is a superintendent; over the superintendent is a general manager; over the manager is the president.

The president gets the highest pay because he attends to his own bossing; the laborer gets the least because he most needs guidance, direction, bossing.

You do not have to be a boss over others in order to start learning how to become a boss. Take yourself in hand.

Be your own boss.

Supervise, criticize your own work.

Be your own timekeeper.

Analyze your own progress.

Think up new ideas for yourself.

Try to devise a better method of handling or systematizing your duties.

Study hard how to become an "efficiency engineer" concerning your own job.

It is usually not very hard to satisfy others with your work.

The hardest person to satisfy ought to be yourself.

You can see the parts which no foreman or chief clerk or manager or president can see.

You know where there are defects.

You know when you skimp a job.

You know when you injure, be it ever so mildly, your own topnotch efficiency by some unwise act of your own—too late hours it may be, or overeating at night, or one of a hundred forms of dissipation which no one but yourself can detect or appraise.

There are a thousand faults which the boss cannot put his finger on—unless you have constituted yourself your own boss.

No boss can boss you half so efficiently as you can boss yourself.—Northern Furniture.

A BUILDING BOOM IN ENGLAND.

The best news of a troubled week in England has been the sudden discovery that a building boom has begun.

Contracts to the amount of $75,000,000 have recently been offered; and taking Great Britain altogether, it is probable that fully $200,000,000 is about to be spent on building.

This does not include the large amount that is being spent on the building of private houses. It is all to be devoted to the repair and extension of office buildings, railroads, docks, factories, etc.

For eight years the architects of England have had almost nothing to do. There was no building during the war, except the erection of temporary houses, which have now been pulled down; and since the war, the architects and builders have been pushed aside by the bureaucrats of the Housing Department.

The Government made a record in its building adventures which should prevent any other Government from trying to follow its example. It built 176,000 houses in four years at a cost of $750,000,000. These houses, as they now stand, could not be sold for $250,000,000. Fully two-thirds of the expenditure was sheer waste.

Recently, I saw two cottages near London that were built by the Government at a cost of $10,000. These are now rented at $195 a year. After paying taxes and repairs, the net rent last year was $50. The Town Council now wants to sell the cottages, but has had only one offer of $700. Such is England's experience in the state control of housing.

But the Government has now decided to let the building trades alone, and the result has been a forward movement in all lines.

"I cannot remember a time when more tenders for building were being invited," says one London contractor. "We have enough contracts to keep us busy for five years," says another.

In London, eight large dry goods stores are being enlarged. Oxford Circus is being rebuilt, with four handsome buildings, exactly alike, at the four corners.

On Kingsway the Bush building and the Africa and Eastern building are being completed. The Bush building will be, perhaps, the handsomest office building in London; and will be devoted to improving trade relations between England and the United States.

A large power station is being built in East London; and the London County Council has set aside $50,000,000 for the rebuilding of a large slum district on the East Side.

Even the old Bank of England has at last surrendered to public opinion, and has decided to rebuild. It will not destroy its historic walls, but it will entirely reconstruct its interior.

Henry Ford is about to build a new factory at Southampton, which will employ over 2,000 workers. Also, at Southampton, an immense floating drydock has been begun by the London and Southwestern Railway. This dock will be 960 feet long and able to berth the largest ocean liners. It is to cost $4,000,000.

The Telephone Department has decided to spend $175,000,000 on the improvement of its lines and exchanges; and $45,000,000 is being spent this year. At present, there are over 5,000 people on the telephone waiting list.

For the most part, the new building contracts relate to extensions and improvements of business premises. Very few new hotels, nor theatres, nor churches, nor colleges, nor factories are being built. As for the iron and steel works, they became 50 per cent. larger during the war, and are today overbuilt.

This building boom is by no means a temporary phase. Back of it are a number of causes. In fact, the building trades have been for eight years like a dammed-up stream, which is now being permitted to run its course.

The Rent Restriction Act is still in force, but it is expected to be abolished in 1924. It is not regarded as permanent.

Wages have been stabilized, and there is a better spirit among the workers. There is less of the deliberate slacking which was the rule on the Government jobs.

There has been a drop in prices of 40 per cent. In general, prices are only 71 per cent. above the prices of 1913.

During the past month, the price of structural steel has fallen. Some shapes are $5 per ton cheaper. The reduced price of coal has brought lower price levels in a large number of trades.

Many leases are running out, too; and this practically compels rebuilding. The ground landlords are being obliged to put up more modern and profitable types of building.

On October 9, a Town Planning Exhibition opened in Manchester, under the leadership of Lord Derby. More than 70 towns are co-operating at this exhibition; and a strong attempt is to be made to start a national campaign of rebuilding.

The important subject of "Arterial Roads" has been revived. A national plan was agreed upon in 1913, but it was laid aside during the war. The scheme is to straighten and widen the main highways of England, to facilitate motor travel and transport.

As all these plans mean more building, there is not likely to be very much unemployment in the British building trades. There is very little at present and no sign of any labor troubles.

Both employers and workers are organized into national federations; and neither side, at the moment, is desirous of starting a conflict.—Herbert Casson in Barron's.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

That wedding up in Western Ontario where a man named Honey married a woman of the same name must have been a sweet affair.

If everybody were to be infected with the hiking fever, Sir Henry Thornton's job of making the National Railways pay would be even more difficult than it already is—and that is bad enough.

The Toronto Telegram will now interpret the verdict in Southeast Toronto as a condemnation of the Drury Government—in spite of the fact that the Progressives were unrepresented by a candidate.

"Queen's troubled with boils," reads a newspaper heading. A very painful affliction at the seat of learning.

With the British elections to be held on November 15th Lloyd George will have to deliver his serial in larger installments than is usually the case.

SAYS PROFESSORS DOUBT OWN CREEDS

Led by Study and Research to Doubt Truth of What They Teach.

MONTREAL, Oct. 24.—There are many professors in seminaries and other theological institutions pledged to teach creeds whose researches and studies have led them to question or deny the truth of what they teach.

So declared Dr. William Laurence Sullivan in the concluding sermon of the series which he has given in the Church of the Messiah.

"This great crisis caused by doubt," he continued, "is going on in every church in Christendom that has an authoritative creed. It is one of the unseen tragedies of our time."

Dr. Sullivan said that what was first needed was not a creed or a theology but a life of zeal to go the way of Christ.

"We are told, or it is implied by another spiritual principle, that it is by character that we are saved. That God our Father and our Creator is somebody to be watchful against; that His will has been to sensr us all to eternal ruin, His wrath has been raised against us and nothing that we could do would avoid it. Now let me ask if this is the sort of Deity that Jesus teaches. There has never in all the world been any religious teacher who gave so beautiful a vision to man as Jesus of Nazareth. This is the final and greatest teaching of the Unitarian Church."

THE MYSTERY MIND

Finally, they came upon a clearing, a depression in the general slope of the table-land, and here the stream split, flowing in two channels straight through a considerable section of spongy marsh. The ground between the twin strands of water seemed more solid than the grass, so they crossed. As they walked cautiously in the low warm light of the sun, which was barely above the mountain tops in the west now, they discovered a deposit of sand where the little river first divided upon its drop into the open space. Immediately before them were footprints. One pair of smaller ones belonged to a woman, a white woman. Three others, male, were clearly distinguishable.

"The Strangler's with them, walking," muttered Dupont.

Encouraged, elated, they drove forward with new strength and energy. The sun dropped and splashed the peaks with golden fire. The conflagration in the sky died down and the glow following faded to the dull tints of twilight. Then when there was just about enough light to see the ground before them, the stream curved with an even wide sweep, creating a beach of dark silt as smooth as though some gigantic iron had passed across it. Here again were footprints, but different, with spreading toes and flat arches which Randolph recognized almost immediately.

"Head hunters" he gasped. "Into the stream Let us not leave a trail for them to follow."

From the marks, there was quite a party. Dupont counselled the selection of a camp while it was possible to pick a defensible position, and in this the adventurer concurred. The men examined their weapons, refusing Violet a fire. Rather quietly the three ate a light cold meal.

After dark Randolph mounted a tree, hoping to gain a sight of the fire which he was sure their quarry would kindle. Violet, glancing toward Dupont with sudden shyness, crept toward him and snuggled into his arms in the gloom. It was their first embrace; their first kiss. Yet there was nothing unusually demonstrative in the contact. Her remark, the only word spoken, was essentially feminine.

"It—it don't seem right to be in your arms in—in trousers, Robert"

He laughed, but held her very close.

Randolph scrambled down from above abruptly.

"Located them" he whispered, gleefully. "There's a fire, right ahead. It stands out like a queen's jewel in the night. They don't dream anyone's following them."

The adventurer now took the lead, followed by the hypnotist, with Violet last. Occasionally Dupont heard a muttered oath as the man ahead of him struck something with unprotected feet, but Randolph was too full of the excitement of the chase to pay attention to minor hurts.

From an hour and a half to two hours was required to reach the camp of Evil Eye. When the first glow from the fire was apparent through the trees they proceeded with extreme caution. Finally Dupont, because he was shod, stole forward alone, leaving Randolph with Violet while he reconnoitered.

When he reached a point of observation he dropped flat to the ground. Then he became aware of an astounding fact. Before him were the four they had followed, but with them were the head hunters. To the savages Evil Eye seemed to be some sort of high priest, or even god. The monster had thrown back the cowl of his cassock, revealing the gleaming, single eye, in his misshapen head, with all its hideousness. There was something horrible in the empty sockets where normal eyes should have been. All the head hunters were prostrate, while Renard and Vera sat with heads averted, unable, even after months of association, to face the priest of the Devil clan unveiled.

In the very middle of the circle of light was the Strangler, strapped to a stake. The fire was built in a ring around him. Evil Eye was intoning his instructions, mixing them with explanations and incantations, gesturing now and then towards the helpless gangster. Dupont understood some of the dialect here and there. He grasped enough to send him back hurrying to his companions.

One reason why it is so popular is, it's made with low neck and no sleeves and in knee or ankle lengths.

"CEETEE" can be worn with any dress, from the heaviest to the sheerest.

In its downy softness, the feel of a "CEETEE" garment is like the caress of a baby's cheek.

Only purest Australian Merino Wool is used, making "CEETEE" so soft that a baby can wear it.

If a baby can wear it—you can.

Just ask your doctor what under-clothing you should wear in the winter time. He'll say: "All-Wool."

FOWL SUPPER AT OMEMEE A HAPPY EVENT

Followed Anniversary Services of the Presbyterian Church — Ladies Make Quilts For Fire Sufferers.

OMEMEE NEWS.

OMEMEE, Oct. 25.—Anniversary services were observed in the Presbyterian church on Sunday, when the Rev. Dr. MacGillivary, of Orillia, took charge of the services. At the morning hour of worship the speaker took his text from John, 10:10, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." He based his thoughts on "life," and delivered a most interesting discourse. Mr. Melville Staples, of Toronto, sang a solo entitled, "In the Garden" in a very pleasing manner. The choir also rendered an anthem. In the evening Dr. MacGillivary was again greeted with a packed auditorium, who listened to his most eloquent sermon very attentively. He took for his subject the words found in Acts 1-8 and Luke 24-29, "Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto me," and "Tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endowed with power from on high." The choir rendered a pretty anthem, Mres. E. H. Mitchell taking the solo, and Mr. Staples again pleased the large audience by his rendition of the beautiful hymn, "Alone."

On Monday evening a most successful fowl supper was held in the basement of the church, when an over abundance of fowl, pastry, etc., was disposed of after a large crowd had been served. A splendid programme was rendered in the body of the church which was as follows: Opening hymn, 'All Hail the Power of Jesus Name'; Chairman's Address by the pastor; Omemee male quartette, "The Lord is My Shepherd," followed by an encore; Address, Rev. IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

M. J. O'Brien Addressed the Orangemen To help the Irish Refugees.

MILLBROOK, Oct 25.—A fair sized audience gathered in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening to hear Mr M. J. O'Brien of Ottawa, other events in the immediate neighborhood causing the absence of many who usually attend a meeting of this kind. Ex-Warden A. J. Henderson was chairman and other who occupied seats on the platform were Revs. R. M. Patterson, S. T. Tucker, C. R. Spencer, G. S. Gervan, all of whom made brief addresses: District Master H. Boddy, was also asked to come to the platform, the meeting being under the auspices of the Orange Association.

Mr. O'Brien presented some of the problems confronting Protestantism, in Canada particularly, but in other parts of the world as well in a clear and convincing manner, urging his hearers to remember that the Separate School question, though apparently shelved for the present, is by no means settled yet. The campaign in connection with that question had cost the Orange Order $15,000, not including amounts raised in some of the local lodges, and at one time they had 1100 men on the platform telling the people the facts in the matter; he thought, therefore, that the Orange Associations is entitled to all the support Protestants everywhere can give to it, and to a spirit of greater co-operation in the excellent work which they are doing.

The contention that the public schools of our land are Protestant schools, was characterized as false. they are open to pupils of all races and creeds; but the suggestion to have Prottstant religious instruction given in the public schools, the speaker thought a very wrong move because, that done, the Catholic leaders might quite reasonably demand that their request for concessions should be granted also. The home, not the school is the place where definite religious teaching should be given, the parents being responsible not the teacher nor the school board.

Aid for Ireland.

The situation in Ireland was reviewed at some length and an appeal for finacial aid was made for the Protestant refugees from the south of Ireland, who have been robbed, and driven from their homes —finding themselves without money, food or clothing; and this is for the sake of their faith. Ulster has welcomed them but is unable to provide for so many in such destitute circumstances; the Central Orange Association expects to send $50,000 by the first of November, but more help is urgently needed. The speaker was informed that a subscription has been raised in the local lodges for this purpose.

In conclusion Mr. O'Brien urged a closer watch over events transpiring in our rich land of New Ontario, the formation of a local branch of the Ladies' Orange Belevolent Association, and the duty of more of the citizens to unite with the local Orange Lodges, their aims, and those of the churches being identical.

A vote of thanks to the speaker for his excellent address was moved by Rev. C. R. Spencer, seconded by Rev. S. T. Tucker, and carried unanimously. The meeting closed by the singing of the National Anthem.

SAVED HER FROM AN OPERATION

So Thinks Mrs. Tracey of Ontario, Regarding Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Knightington, Ontario.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at the change of life for troubles that women often have at that time. I had not been well for a year and was not really able to do my work. A friend who had taken the Vegetable Compound herself recommended it to me and I think its use saved me from an operation. I highly recommend it to all women who have troubles like mine, and am willing for you to use my testimonial."—Mrs. Daniel J. Tracey, Knightington, Ontario.

Some female troubles may through neglect reach a stage when an operation is necessary. But the more common ailments are not the surgical ones; they are not caused by serious displacements, tumors or growths, although the symptoms may appear the same.

When disturbing symptoms first appear take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present distress and prevent more serious troubles.

ANNUAL MEETING BOY SCOUT COM. KEENE DISTRICT.

Officers Elected For the Ensuing Year—Plans to Develop Increased Interest.

KEENE, Oct. 25.—At the annual meeting of the Boy Scouts Committee held here the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, G. T. Gall; Vice President, D. R. Comrie; Secretary-treasurer C. G. Edwards; Advisory Committee, J. F. Comrie, M. E. McCarthy, and F. Walsh; Assistant Scoutmasters J. M. McCarthy and D. R. Comrie. E. H. Barnes was re-appointed to the position of Scoutmaster and the members of the Scout Committee have agreed to assist in the actual work of the to assit in the actual work of the troop. This will mean in addition to the Scoutmaster and Assistant Scoutmasters that two or three of the Committee will be present at each meeting and the boys will in their Scout studies and games have the opportunity to be formed into groups instead of all being instructed as a whole by the Scoutmaster. Also for general instruction for the development of the body, mind and spirit, instead of having to listen to the Scoutmaster throughout, the boys will have all these men to take part in the addresses and lessons.

In order that the parents and people of the communtiy generally may have better konwledge of the Scout movement the three churches are being asked to have the congregations spoken to on this subject in connection with the work amongst the boys.

The Scout movement is not a military organization as some believe, it has no connection in any way with the militia or any military movement. It is an organization for the instruction of boys in better citizenship and a higher ideal in the Christian Life. It endeavors to teach and help a boy that his recreation time may be spent more profitably in the study of useful things and in the playing of the games boys enjoy with a better idea of "The Rules of the Game" so that real sportsmanship may be the result instead of unruly disputes which so often tend to spoil the game or recreation not only for the boys but others concerned.

The ten Scout laws are in themselves an instruction in Better Christianity and Better Citizenship. The Scout Motto, "Be Prepared" is an ideal in Service to the Community, Home, Church and all organizations to which the boy may belong. In short we might say that the whole object of the Movement is to help a boy to "Be Prepared" to carry on his Life with a better knowledge of the demands on all than they would otherwise have a chance to obtain.

SILVER FOX FARMS START IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, October 25. Canadian Press. — Rearing silver black foxes is a new industry in Rosshire, it having started there only two years ago as an experiment, but it has succeeded so well that the operations in connection therewith are being greatly extended. It has been found that the climate is favorable to the fox raising industry, and the increasing demand cannot be met by the ordinary method of trapping.

Meeting of B.Y.P.U.

The meeting of the Baptist Young People's Union, held in the School Room on Monday evening, was entirely missionary, and was a most profitable and interesting one. The meeting was in charge of Miss Helen Cairns, and the subject was Missions in India, which was divided into three headings — (1- The Country, (2) The People, (3- Our Share.

Miss Cairns, after leading in the devotional exercises, gave a most interesting talk on the country of India, and referred to it as a land of extremes its great mountains and plains, its poverty and wealth, its extreme climate often spoken of as a hot and bitter climate. In size, its area is about one-half of that of Canada, and it is making great strides forward in making of roads and irrigation.

Miss Mary Shore gave an excellent paper on "The People of India," dealing with the caste system, their numerous gods, etc. This was followed by another interesting paper by Miss Esther Hall on "The Share of the Canadian Baptists in Christianising India."

Miss Verna Shore rendered a solo in her usual sweet voice, which was much enjoyed.

Miss Eunice Richardson gave a reading of a poem on India, which was enjoyed.

The young people of the Baptist Church are live wires, and this year's work will no doubt be a profitable one for all the young people.

CRAZE FOR BOBBED HAIR STRIKES MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 25.—(Associated Press)—Bobbed hair is now so popular in Mexico City that among young girls long tresseses are considered unusual.

The craze for short hair was started several months ago when a number of young women who had been attending schools in the United States returned home. The idea became popular and, overriding the old belief that only women of doubtful morals wore their hair bobbed, it was not long before the younger set of the capital adopted it unanimously.

IF KIDNEYS BOTHER TRY DOSE OF SALTS

Flush the Kidneys at Once When Back Aches or Bladder Bothers.

No man or woman who eats lots of meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much meat may form uric acid, which clogs the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood; then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to help neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.

GRAIN IS SHIPPED OVER RAIL ROUTE.

PORT ARTHUR, Oct. 25.—(Canadian Press.)— Railway officials in Port Arthur yesterday said there is an immense volume of grain being shipped east by rail. With all outlets to the seaboard choked along the water route, an impetus has been given to all rail movement from Port Arthur and Fort William. Large trains, some of them containing over fifty cars, are leaving the head of the lakes hourly and many men are being employed in moving the steady grain stream. The traffic into Port Arthur and Fort William is enormous. Over the crossing at West Fort William where the three railways converge, an average of 1,-600 cars a day have been gliding.

Municipal Milk Supply System in New Zealand City

LONDON, Oct. 25.—(Canadian Press)—The City of Wellington, New Zealand, with a population of 107,428, has achieved distinction by establishing a municipal milk supply system. It is a system, moreover, which has earned good opinions from doctors and health authorities because of the purity of the supply, and from business men by the efficiency of its management.

The enterprise has been developed by gradual stages, and not without some mistakes and unsuccessful experiments. The attention given to infant welfare by the State Health Department and by the Society for the Health of Women and Children has led to the milk supply in New Zealand cities being subjected to careful examination. Already dairies and herds throughout the country are subject to careful inspection by the Agricultural Department, but between the farm and the city dwelling there is room for adulteration and contamination for which no inspection system has proved a complete remedy.

As a first step towards a better state of affairs the City Council of Wellington, with statutory authority made it compulsory for all milk to be passed through a clearing station, where it was filtered, pasteurized, and tested. The Council also obtained by Act of Parliament a monopoly of milk distribution within the city limits. To use its power effectively the Council found that it must become the sole purchaser of the milk from the farm. Contracts were made with suppliers, and a creamery in the country was acquired to augment the supply in winter and to convert into butter and cheese the summer surplus.

Under private enterprise there had always been a shortage of milk in winter. To overcome this difficulty the Council agreed to pay a higher price to suppliers who would guarantee to supply an even quantity the year round. It also offered a bonus for better quality.

Having by this means assured a regular and pure supply, the Council gave its attention to improving the methods of distribution. Private vendors were formed into distributing companies with a guarantee of three years' tenure, and the city was divided into blocks—one company to each block—so that the loss arising from the overlapping of milk rounds should be ended. The three years' term ended last July, and the Council, being unable to obtain satisfactory tenders for future private delivery, undertook the distribution itself.

Two important departures were made in the method of distribution, and sale. First, all milk was delivered in sealed bottles, and second, all payments were made by coupons or tokens, which customers were required to purchase in advance. In spite of the natural difficulty of introducing the new system and of trouble with one company, which compelled the Council to control the delivery earlier than was anticipated, the scheme was in working order in less than a week.

The people are now thoroughly appreciative of the purity and full measure assured by the sealed bottle system.

So far as can be ascertained by comparison with other cities in New Zealand, the economies effected in distribution in Wellington have been sufficient to meet the cost of the measures taken to assure purity and good quality.

When in Need of a Tonic Should Start on the Road to Wellville by Following This Advice

Peterboro, Ont.—"I can speak in the highest praise of Dr. Pierce's medicines. I suffered for a long time with feminine weakness, through which I became all rundown, weak and nervous. I also had severe backaches, pains in my side and bearing pains. I learned of Dr. Pierce's medicines and began at once to take them. I took two bottles each of the 'Favorite Prescription' and the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and they completely cured me of all my weakness and restored me to good health.

"At one time my husband became afflicted with a chronic cough which caused him to become all rundown. He got so thin he was almost a skeleton. He tried many medicines but did not get any better until he took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. By taking this medicine he was completely restored to good health. I shall always speak a good word for Dr. Pierce's medicines."—Mrs. Martha Sholer, 373 Bethune St.

How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to prepare, and saves you about $2.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It is pure, good and pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

FIRST PRIVATE TO GET A COMMISSION.

Gordon Hill Grahame, Author, Athlete and War Veteran.

The Toronto Star Weekly for October 21st contains the following reference to Gordon Hill Grahame:

"When Gordon Hill Grahame, winner of the $2,500 all-Canadian prize novel competition, was a boy, he was internationally famed amateur athlete. Among the feats which he performed were two trips to New York, one a canoe voyage from Stoney Lake, Ontario, and the other a heel and toe passage from Toronto. When war was declared he happened to be on a similar outing, this time in charge of a number of youngsters. Landing his charge at the nearest port of safety, Grahame made for the first recruiting station and enlisted as a private. Later, offered a commission, he refused on the ground that the training of an officer's berth would hold up his entrance into action. Within ten days from the time the news of war reached his ears he was in a fighting unit. Not long after, rumors began to float back, and many of them took the form of despatches to the press, that a certain "Kits" Grahame had been making a private war of his own at the front. One incident was his escape from a base hospital with a fractured arm still untreated, in order to man his gun when news of his battery's casualties reached the station. Shortly after he was made lieutenant—the first private in the Canadian army to receive a commission.

"When writing the novel which was to receive the greatest literary distinction in Canada, Grahame composed, revised and typed the story in a little green shack among the trees of "Twilight Island", a Stoney Lake, Ontario. It is scarcely larger than the little house in "Peter Pan", where Wendy kept house, but it is the factory where many a Canadian novel of parts will have its beginning.

"On the night of the awarding of the prize, Grahame was, as usual, busy on Twilight Island. It was raining, and the nearest telephone station (no telegraph at all) was about six miles distant by water. In the wind and rain, a septuagenarian villager of Stoney Lake paddled the six miles to bring the message that Grahame was wanted by long distance. They paddled back to the mainland together, where, after long suspense and several cancelled calls, the message finally came through that he had won the all-Canadian prize novel Competition—a contest which had drawn contributions from some of the most distinguished authors in Canada."

LONG LINES.

Long chains and necklaces are helping to accentuate the long lines that are the vogue this season. Long fringes, reaching sometimes from the shoulder line to the hem, are another way of achieving the long effect.

NOSE-RUBBING MAY ROUT KISS

Women's Club Speaker Says Old-Fashioned Smack is Not at all Healthful.

FLINT, Mich., Oct. 24.—Sweethearts may soon be forced to adopt the "Nubian form" of showing affection by rubbing noses—an East African custom—since kissing, the old-established and approved way that has stood the test of centuries, is doomed to go.

At least, Dr. Mary A. Williams, of Bay City, at the convention of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, advocated an anti-kissing society.

"Kissing," said Dr. Williams, "is immoral if it is promiscuous, especially the 'soul kiss.'"

The health question was probably never considered in regard to kissing, but many a girl who has sighed and longed for the long-lingering soulful kisses of the Rodolph Valentino kind may now think twice before she lets "Johnny ones" kiss her, since Dr. Williams says kissing is not only immoral, but it is dangerous to the health and spreads infection.

Many of the delegates took the matter rather lightly, and one elderly lady was heard to remark: "Well, it's all right as far as I am concerned. I guess no one would want to kiss me, anyway."

Dream Question Unsettled.

A resolution expressing the federation's approval of less familiarity between high school boys and girls was passed, but the anti-kissing society is still very much of a dream.

Some women rush in where legislators fear to tread, and, after a heated discussion, a resolution to reaffirm the indorsement of a law for Michigan, raising the age of consent from 16 to 18 years, was passed. This happened despite objections that such a law would increase immorality, would put more young boys in prison and would increase the number of illegitimate children.

Mrs. Edward J. Jeffries of Detroit said: "I am opposed to the bill because there are mothers of sons as well as of daughters. The raising of the age of consent will send many boys and men to prison who do not deserve it. The men as a whole oppose it, and I think we women should think twice before we indorse such an impractical law."

Women First on Earth.

Another dear old tradition about Eve springing from Adam's rib was rudely upset when Mrs. Ida Clyde Clark, associate editor of the Pictorial Review, said: "A new scientific theory has recently been discovered which says that women were the first sex to inhabit the earth and that men were mere parasites.

"Woman's curiosity began to pick out the better specimens, thinking that if men had to be hanging around all the time they might as well be interesting. Thus man slowly developed. According to the Scriptures, man's place is in the home, for the Bible says 'God put Adam in the Garden of Eden to dress and keep it.'

"Eve was the first human adventurer and the first advertising agency in the world, for she over-sold to Adam an article he did not know he wanted. The advertising field was discovered by man thousands of years later. Women first developed the social instinct, and that is one reason for clubs. I think that the reason men object to prohibition is not so much that they miss the drinks but that they miss the sociability of the brass rail."

SUNDAY MOTORING TO BE DEPLORED.

Rev. C. Grant King Tells Lakefield Audience to Get Back to the Lord's House

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 25.— Preaching on Sunday evening in St. John's (Anglican) church, Lakefield, the Rev. C. Grant King said that the gross neglect of Sunday for which the present age stood, was much to be deplored. Much of our modern church going was mechanical and without motive, he was aware, yet he would not agree with the point of view that God could be worshipped at home as well as in His own House. Some people could see God in stones and trees and woods and views. John Ruskin might do so, so might Tennyson or Thomas Carlyle or Barrie or Browning, but there were not many of their kind and he (the preacher) believed that the right place for the Lord's people on the Lord's day was the Lord's house. "Let us get back a little nearer to the old ideas of our forebears," he continued, "and let us have our Sunday clothes and our Sunday books and our Sundays different to other days, and let there be a little more rest and a little less pleasure—less scouring the country in motor cars, looking for rest and finding none and returning to our work on Monday unrefreshed and unrenewed in mind or body or soul."

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, October 25 (Canadian Press). — There was a slight improvement in the demand for grain in the local cash market yesterday, and a moderate business was done.

There were no new developments in the flour market.

Owing to the continued good demand for millfeed, a stronger feeling has developed, and prices were advanced $1.00 per ton.

The market for rolled oats was firm. Demand for baled hay showed no improvement. Prices for eggs advanced three cents a dozen for strictly new-laid eggs, but the other grades were unchanged. There was nothing new in potatoes.

Prices were up one cent per pound in a strong market for butter.

The tone of the cheese market is very firm.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, October 25 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates quoted here yesterday as follows:

Demand 4.4362; Cables, 4.4387.

WINNIPEG CATTLE.

WINNIPEG, October 25 (Canadian Press. — Receipts: 2,070 cattle and calves, 100 hogs, and 29 sheep and lambs.

With holdovers from yesterday, the cattle offerings totalled 3,200 head.

Trading was fairly slow on the cattle market yesterday morning, and bidding was generally in line with Monday's close. Desirable killing cattle were in fair demand, but most classes and grades were absorbed under a light demand.

The hog market continued unchanged at $9.00 for selects.

The few good yearling sheep on offer sold at $7.50, and lambs were quoted at $10.25.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, October 25 (Canadian Press. — Canadian exporters state that they feel there will be very little further demand from Great Britain for eggs this season. It is altogether likely, however, that those already contracted for will amount to a little more than the movement a year ago. Canadian situation generally is firm, practically unchanged.

AUTO ACCIDENT NEAR BAILIEBORO

Large Motor Car Smashes Into Team and Light Wagon-Bailieboro News

BAILIEBORO, Oct. 25.—The road between Car's Corners and Centreville was closed on Monday on account of the blowing up of the old Devell's bridge, and traffic had to make a detour of three miles. Two explosions at 7.30 in the morning rattled windows and shook doors of houses in the vicinity, and left a huge cavity to be filled in where the cement bridge had been destroyed. Men who live near-by turned out and helped the road gang to do this job in quick time, putting the road in travel condition with the least possible delay. The course of the stream has been diverted further north, where a fine new bridge has been erected for some time now.

Motor Car Accident.

Returning home from Peterborough Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Perrin had one of their horses badly cut when driven into by a large motor car owned by a Peterborough man. The accident happened at a sharp turn near Bensfort Bridge, where the driver, not noticing the oncoming team and rig, his car struck one of the horses. The animal reared, and, coming down on top of the car, sustained severe injuries, and damaged the automobile to some extent. Jumping a second time, the horse landed on the bumper of the car, where it was held firmly by one leg until quieted down. Mr. Perrin, thrown between the frantic horse and car, struck the road heavily with his head and lay stunned for some time. Mrs. Perrin clung to the seat of the light wagon and escaped injury.

The horse was badly cut and bruised, and its recovery is in doubt.

The damaged car had to be towed to Peterborough by a truck. Mr. Perrin, borrowing a buggy from a near-by resident, manged to get his injured horse to his own stable.

The driver of the car stopped his vehicle almost as soon as it hit the horse.

INDOOR BASEBALL IS GOING STRONG.

A Triple Header This Evening—Curlers Getting Uneasy.

LAKEFIELD, October 25. — Indoor baseball continues to be as popular as ever and it is on the cards that three games (a triple leader) will be played this evening in the rink. The reason given for the full programme for Tuesday is that the firemen's dance is on Thursday night and many of the baseball devotees want the whole evening free to enjoy the numerous attractions provided by the Firemen.

With the Curlers.

The curlers, who in spite of the fact that baseball still holds the attention of the public, realize that their turn is coming and in view of this have called a meeting on Friday evening to plan their winter's programme. There is no doubt whatever that this season will be the best yet; the new rink with its conveniences and good lighting, and above all the good fellowship that prevailed throughout the entire season, will conduce to a larger membership this season.

(By Stuart P. West.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 25. — (Special.) — Further pronounced weakness in the industrial section of the stock market, offset to some extent by the steadiness and occasional periods of fresh buying in railway and public utilities issues, was the chief characteristic during the greater part of the time on the stock exchange to-day.

It was again a movement not essentially interested in the larger aspects of the financial situation, but absorbed rather by considerations affecting, for the most part temporarily, the market for individual stocks. Selling was heaviest in industrials in which trade recovery has been disappointing, or where speculation for the rise last spring and again during the mid-summer campaign, had been overdone. The one group was represented by shares of fertilizer and chemical companies which when the time came in the early part of the year, were suffering from such acute over production that they have been slower than the rest to improve. The other was represented by the Motor, Equipment and Independent Steel shares, in which the speculation of two and five months ago was most extravagant.

On previous days there had been at least some slight connection between the movement on the stock exchange and the other market movements, but to-day there was practically none. French exchange made another new low for the year and so did Italian lire. Sterling, however, held steady, the decline in marks was arrested, and the heavy selling in foreign government securities was suspended.

This did not necessarily indicate any great degree of confidence in the latest plans of the reparations commission to go to Berlin and discuss with the German government ways and means for relieving the financial crisis. Nor did it means undue encouragement over the German invitation to outside financial experts to lend their advice. But these developments has evidently been taken seriously enough by the speculative element in the exchange market and in the government bond market, to make them pause in their operations for the decline.

Wall Street found its calculations verified by the important railway dividend actions Tuesday afternoon and this morning.

SHE DANCED ABOUT WITH YOUNG QUEEN

Late Lady Peel Knew Intimately Great Personages of Victorian Age.

LONDON, October 24 (Canadian Press). — Lady Georgiana Peel, whose death occurred recently, the daughter of the famous Prime Minister, Lord John (afterwards Earl) Russell, knew intimately many of the great personages of the Victorian age. She remembered, as a little child, being taken into the dressing-room of Queen Victoria and being danced around the room by the young Queen, then only a little over twenty years of age, with her hair streaming all over her shoulders.

Lady Georgiana treasured several little things given her by Queen Victoria, whose marriage she could just remember. One was a china doll, dressed in Chinese clothes.

She remembered, too, as a child of eleven, going over to Ireland with her father, to stay with the Lord-Lieutenant. She went with her father to Vienna on the Mission of Peace after the Crimean War, and during his term of office, while they lived at Pembroke Lodge, given him by the Queen, and in Chesham Place, she met everyone of note at that time, including Dickens, Thackeray, Macauley, Bright, Lord Brougham, Garibaldi, Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone, Longfellow, Tennyson, Melbourne, and Clarendon.

Lady Georgiana's marriage to Archibald Peel, son of General and Lady Alice Peel, and nephew of Sir Robert Peel, was a union of Whig and Tory. After their marriage, they lived chiefly in the country, and brought up a large family of children. After her husband's death in 1910, the King gave her the Cardinal's House in Hampton Court Palace as a residence.

Lady Georgiana was beloved by everyone who knew her for her clever, witty talk, her kindness, her charm, and above all, the never-failing gay courage with which she met all the incidents of life. She never showed depression, but was always glad to see her friends, and interested in all they had to say. She was the centre of a large and devoted family, both her own and her step-children, and for them, and for many of her friends, the blank she has left will never be filled.

FUNERAL OF AUSTRALIAN POET IMPOSING AFFAIR.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press)—They gave Henry Hertzbery Lawson, the Australian poet and novelist, a State funeral in Sydney. Despatches described it as an "imposing affair, fitting the occasion of the lying away of the nation's sweet singer, and there was due applause from the world at large for this splendid recognition of a poet's worth—when he was dead.

While he was alive, however, Poet Lawson did not fare so well. "Australia's greatest minstrel," as he was called at the time of the funeral, died penniless. Indeed, if it had not been for the public funeral under Government auspices he would have been buried as a pauper. He had been in receipt of a small pension from the Government for some time before his death, and this should be ascribed to the State of New South Wales with proper appreciation, for was it not virtually a pioneed in the gracious act of pensioning a poet?

Still, Lawson lived in poverty. The people did not realize that they had a genius in their country until he was laid away with "funeral trappings" befitting Goverment recognition. Then they began to buy his books.

Poor as he was, Poet Lawson left a will. All his wordly belongings were mentioned in bequests. These were: Two suits of clothes, an overcoat, a necktie, a collar stud, a pen, a pipe, a tin matchbox, a pair of spectacles a walking stick, and two packets of tobacco.

WOMAN PROVES THAT HER SEX CAN MANAGE BUSINESS AND HOME AT SAME TIME

By MARIAN HALE.

Home before business, but business before pleasure, is the policy that has enabled Mrs. Lula H. Cusenbary to combine successfully a home and business career.

Now she is vice-president of the Bank of Hydro, Okla., a job coveted by many a man and looked upon with envy by many of her own sex.

But this does not prevent her managing all the details of her home and keeping an accurate eye on all expenditures. Nor has she ever lost her knack with pies or forgotten any of the culinary technique she perfected before she undertook business.

"A woman should devote just as much time to her home as it takes to run it efficiently," she told me, "but if she uses labor-saving devices and lets her head save her feet she should have time left to devote to a business or professional career if she wants one.

They Mix Well.

"Business makes a woman appreciate her home. The contrast between an office and a home puts the home in a very favorable light.

"A knowledge of housekeeping and the ability to make a home makes a woman more valuable and resourceful in business than the mere mastery of shorthand and what the commercial schools offer.

"When I first was married I learned to systematize my housework. That gave me a great deal of extra time. So I got into the habit of going down to the bank to help my husband.

"When he went away on business he left me in charge of his work. So I practically learned banking by absorption. Soon I was given a regular position, assistant cashier. I was promoted to cashier, and then to the vice-presidency.

Trains Her Daughter.

"I am training my flapper daughter, Olive, to be a business woman as well as a home-maker. I consider one just as important as another."

Mrs. Cusenbary believes that the next generation of women will be financially independent and that they will keep at their jobs after marriage, just as men do.

"You would be amazed to know the progress women have made in the last 10 years," she says. "All the business women have their accounts, and the women from the rural districts now bring in their butter and egg money and deposit it in their own personal accounts.

"Women are bringing to business their inuition and their particular feminine abilities, and they are completely changing business methods."

MRS. LULA H. CUSENBARY.

PRACTICAL DETAILS FOR CAREFUL OWNERS

Advice Concerning Battery, Tires and the Carburetor.

If the battery is not kept clean corrosion is liable to occur, eating away important parts and eventually causing an interruption of current. The battery should be wiped clean every time it is examined. A little ammonia or washing soda solution will remove any corrosion that may have taken place and neutralize the acid present so as to stop the action. It is also useful in case of acid burns on the fingers or clothes. Ammonia is better than washing soda as it evaporates clean, whereas the soda solution leaves white streaks.

* * *

Be not weary in well doing when pumping up a tire. Undoubtedly a soft tire makes easier riding for the passengers, but it is ruinous to the tire. The weight of the car bends the tire back and forth and heats it up just the way it will heat a wire to bend it back and forth continually. The effect of the heat is to rot the tire and to shorten its life materially. If you expect to get the guaranteed mileage, keep your tires pumped up to full capacity.

* * *

Popping back in the carburetor is a serious trouble as it may set fire to the car, but it also means a loss of power in the engine. Look for the cause among the following: Lean mixture, cold engine, carburetor out of adjustment, leaky inlet manifold, leaky inlet valve, valve tappet adjustment too close, short-circuit in the distributor or on the ignition wires.

* * *

Do not neglect the universal joint. "Out of sight, out of mind," is the usual motto, but the result is to let this part run dry, which means loss of power, wear, and sometimes a broken joint. If you have a fabric joint this advice does not apply, but it is extremely important with all other kinds.

* * *

A car well in hand is worth two in the bushes.

All's well that runs well.

Rusty springs make walking a pleasure.

It's a long lane that has no turnout.

It's better to say, "There he goes," than "Here he lies!"

REAR STOP LIGHTS DO NOT REPLACE USE OF SIGNALLING ARM BY DRIVER

Motorist Should Continue to Indicate Direction of Turn Whether Car Is Equipped With Signal Device or Not.

For several years different municipalities, backed by prominent automobiles and other organizations, have been carrying on "Safety First" campaigns. It would hardly seem necessary to warn people to look out for their own safety, yet such is the fact; constant association and familiarity with the automobile has been indifference to danger. Both drivers and pedestrians are willing to "take a chance." With results that are sometimes disastrous to one or both of them.

We have continuously emphasized the need of constant care of and attention of the steering gear, brakes, wheel bearings, tires, lights, and signals. If any of these are neglected, serious results will certainly follow. Again, our driving hints have been directed as much toward safety as toward economy of operation We believe that those who read these columns have been sufficiently warned of danger although they may not profit by the warning. But a new angle has been discovered by the officials of the Canadian Automobile Association, who call attention to the fact that the rear signal light has disadvantages and must not be relied on too implicity. It is undoubtedly useful in warning a following driver that the car is slowing down, but its use tends to the neglect of hand signals—and this is bad. The signal simply flashes a red light and says "Stop". This gives the driver of the following car no information as to whether the one ahead is merely stopping or intends to turn and —in the latter case— which way he intends to go. The man in front relies on his signal and makes no motion with his hand, leaving the other driver in doubt. This is rendered even worse in case the signal fails. Neither driver knows it is out of order and on a dark country road is it difficult to realize that the car ahead has slowed down until too late to prevent a collision.

Greater Use of Hand

For these reasons the C.A.A. is calling everybody's attention to the need of greater use of the hand signals, insisting that they should never be neglected. Let us consider the rear signal as merely cautionary, warning the driver of the car behind to get further information from the other driver's hand.

Unfortunately there is no uniform law governing the use of the hand in signalling. Some signals have been adopted by custom and some provinces or cities have made them obligatory. They are copied from the drivers of horse-drawn vehicles, but unfortunately the driver of a car is not so readily seen on account of being hidden by the top or body of the vehicle. The following have been agreed upon by several leading associations, and should be learned by everybody, pedestrians included.

To turn left—Hold the left arm steadily extended at the height of the shoulder, the hand pointing in the direction of the arm.

For Turning to Right

To turn right—Extend the right arm and bend it so that the forearm points upward.

To stop—Extend left arm and move it up and down in vertical direction.

If all motor vehicle drivers will observe these three simple rules, and pedestrians will so familiarize themselves with such rules that they will be able to know the intent of the driver of an approaching car, a large factor of safety will be added to traffic conditions in our city streets. The driver of a closed car can easily comply with these conditions by lowering the left front window of such car, which is necessary anyway for proper ventilation.

We feel that we can add nothing to the above and leave it to the consideration of our readers, hoping that eventually a national automobile parts of the country.

Radio Censor Helps

Radio has its censors. But they're not of the movie variety. They're rather a help than a hindrance to the radio fan. Instead of saying what shall or shall not go by radio, this censor sees that what is broadcast goes out clear and strong enough for easy reception by the radio amateur. He listens in radio concerts and lectures and amplifies the sound and volume for broadcasting.

PETERBOROUGH MALE VOICE CHOIR.

The usual weekly rehearsal was held in the J. M. Greene Music Studio last night. The practice was carried out under difficulties owing to the musical director being confined to his home through sickness.

A conductor was appointed pro tem from the members present, also an accompanist. Several selections were rendered, and the evening was profitably spent, showing that nothing will prevent this live organisation from advancement and reaching the goal which it has set itself to attain, namely, the training and combining of the best male voices in the city for the benefit of the community.

Will every member, present and intending, please make a special effort to keep open next Tuesday's date, 31st October, as this is the evening the competition closes; and it will also be of great interest to the choir as a whole.

We are hoping to give Dr. Fulford chairman of the Social Committee, something to keep him in action for the coming session.

TO SAFECUARD GERMANY FROM A TOTAL COLLAPSE.

PARIS, Oct. 25. — (Canadian Press). — Modification of Britain's position regarding reparations indicated by Sir John Bradbury at a meeting of the Reparations Commission yesterday afternoon, will make it possible for the Commission to leave for Berlin next Sunday with a unanimous Allied agreement on what measures will be imposed on Germany's administration for the purpose of averting a total collapse of that country.

HURDY GURDY BUSINESS POOR IN NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(Canadian Press)—The hurdy-gurdy business in New York is in bad shape. So much so that when Giuseppe Marassi, aged 75, was recently arrested for grinding out canned music on Fifth Avenue, he told the magistrate he could have his organ and good-will, lock, stock and barrel for a five-dollar bill. The magistrate didn't accept the offer, but reserved judgment and told the old man to keep off Fifth Avenue in future.

It is feared they will be put to death in massed executions, in groups of a hundred or more. Allied missions have asked the Angora Government that "generosity be shown these prisoners."

From Bar Boy to Buckingham Palace

Glittering Climax to the Career of "Jimmie" Regan Who Began by Washing Glasses, and Now Goes to the Royal Garden Party as the Guest of the King and Queen

Photograph of James B. Regan Taken Just as He Was Going to Meet Their Majesties on the Buckingham Palace Lawn.

King George and Queen Mary Informally Greeting Their Garden Party Guests.

Photographic Background Shows the Northwest Corner of Canal and Center Streets, New York. Site of the Old Earle's Hotel Where James B. Regan Was a Bar-Boy, as It Is To-day; and a Sketch, Drawn from Description of the Interior of Barroom as It Looked Forty Years Ago.

Alice Joyce, the Film Beauty, Married to James B. Regan's Son.

William Gardner, of the British Diplomatic Service, the Regans' Son-in-Law.

THROUGH the gates of historic Buckingham Palace, with his wife strolling at his side and his ruddy face creased with smiles, walked a big man in a frock coat and a silk topper and everything to match.

"Mr. and Mrs. James B. Regan!" cried the herald.

And Jimmie Regan, who started life as a bar-boy in a Broadway saloon, marched into the most exclusive royal garden party of the 1922 London season as the guest of George V, King of England!

No bands played, no cannon roared when Jimmie Regan met the King. He was as much the mould of fashion as any duke in the throng. He wore a silk hat and a white-wing collar with a black satin bow tie; a stiff-bosomed shirt and a Prince Albert faced with the proper silk; striped trousers and patent-leather boots with suede tops and pearl buttons. He was absolutely vogue to his brown malacca stick. When the photographers snapped him there wasn't a speck about him to distinguish him from the swankiest lord in the peerage.

But back in the old Ninth Ward, where Jimmie Regan married pretty Maggie Gildee when he was washing beer bottles for $15 a week, the ghosts of dead and gone barkeeps must have gasped. Once they had growled at little Jimmie Regan to "hustle up them lemons!" and here he was with a home in London, millions to play with as he pleased, a son-in-law in the British diplomatic service, a daughter-in-law who was queen of the movies, and the entree to the most select society in the world.

How did Jimmie Regan get there? How did he go from a barroom to Buckingham Palace? The answer is a story of spectacular progress fully as inspiring as any Cinderella fairy tale, as one of Horatio Alger's stories of bootblacks who became bankers, or as the story of the canal boy who became President.

Forty years ago or thereabouts Jimmie Regan was a barefoot boy on the oyster banks of New Jersey. His grand-dad brought him up, and it was to his grand-dad he said, "What you gonna gimmie when I'm a big boy?" And grandfather swept one gnarled hand across the bay to the New York skyline and said, "All of that, Jimmie—to make good in."

That was Jimmie Regan's inheritance—"all of Manhattan to make good in." And he began to inherit when he was not sixteen. He crossed the ferry to lower New York and he got him a job swabbing cutlery, sweeping sawdust and squeezing lemons in the bar of the old Earle's Hotel at Canal and Center streets.

Probably his first ambition was to become a great bartender. For he fulfilled it. He became a bartender at the Hoffman House, and the Hoffman House bar was an "ace" bar of its era. Hither floated the intelligentsia, the sports, the spenders, the famous and the merely thirsty of New York, and Jimmie Regan scalped their beer for them with an expert hand.

Now it was characteristic of the Wet Age in America that every normal man wanted to know a bartender by his first name. The bartender, with a bungstarter for a sceptre, was something like a local czar.

So it was that men of wealth and men of prestige, men who could have bought him and sold him a thousand times over, rejoiced in the privilege of strolling in the Hoffman House bar and gurgling, "Jim, a whiskey and soda!" Jimmie Regan, bartender, won the friendship of men he might never even have seen in any other walk of life but barkeeping.

And when Jimmie Regan went to those friends and said, "I want to open a bar of my own," it was as easy as John D. Rockefeller wanting to borrow a couple of thousand from the nearest bank.

So the advance of time found Jimmie Regan graduated from bar-boy to full-fledged bar-owner. He opened Woodmansten Inn, a road-house, and he made it the most celebrated road-house in all Westchester County. There came the Vanderbilts, the Astors and the other blue-bloods.

Mrs. William Gardner, of London, Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Regan. She and Her Husband Were Guests at the Garden Party.

He made so much money at Woodmansten that he was able, with some of his pals, to buy out the owners of that triangle at Broadway and Forty-second street, where the Times Building now stands. Jimmie Regan and his friends put up the Pabst Building on the triangle, and in the Pabst Building they installed a rathskeller with Jimmie Regan as manager.

One of Jimmie Regan's buddies of that day picks up the story here. He says a guest one night at Woodmansten Inn was the late Colonel John Jacob Astor. The colonel liked the dinner so well and he liked Jimmie Regan so much better that he made the owner of the Woodmansten Inn a proposition. Colonel Astor was planning to erect on Astor property what afterwards became the Knickerbocker Hotel, and he wanted somebody to manage it. Would Jimmie Regan do it?

That day marked a long leap in the ex-bar-boy's career. By his own grit and industry he had lifted himself from bar-swabbing to barkeeping, and from barkeeping to bar-owning and managing. But nothing he had won approached the golden splendor of this offer—to become the over-lord of New York's newest and most magnificent hotel.

And yet Jimmie Regan hesitated. He owned Woodmansten Inn. He owned part of the Pabst rathskeller. He decided he wouldn't simply manage the Knickerbocker; he would lease it, too. And he did.

The Knickerbocker Hotel is the Knickerbocker office building to-day. But fresh in the minds of every New Yorker over twenty-five, and of a million Americans over the country, is the memory of the Knickerbocker's piece de resistance—the bar!

They called it "The Forty-second Street Country Club," and there, beneath the famous Maxfield Parrish painting of Old King Cole and His Fiddlers Three, the gods of Broadway gathered for the pre-dinner cocktail with all the ceremony of gods on Mount Olympus.

Jimmie Regan made the Knickerbocker bar a national institution while it lasted. He made the Knickerbocker Hotel one of the best known in the world. And it made him rich. Yet in his affluence Jimmie Regan never forgot the days when he was a tike of a bar-boy, scrubbing for $15 a week. During the terrific Winters of 1915 and 1916, when the unemployed slept and starved in city parks, Jimmie Regan's "bread line," in the rear of the Knickerbocker, did business night and day.

Before prohibition ruined the liquor business and badly dented the business of hotelkeeping, Jimmie Regan was a millionaire. He had invested in importing wines and cigars. He had organized and directed other financial ventures. He became interested in public utilities and in a safety appliance for street railways. His ventures prospered.

As he himself had gone up in the world, so went his family with him. Little Maggie Gildee was now Mrs. James B. Regan, very much in society. James B. Regan, Jr., went to Yale, served with both British and American forces in France, rose from private to lieutenant, was decorated by the Serbian government, and married, in 1920, Miss Alice Joyce, the movie beauty, who had divorced Tom Moore some years before, and who was named by Neysa McMein, the artist, "America's Most Beautiful woman." And James B. Regan's daughter also made her match. She became the wife of William Gardner, of the British consulate at Boston.

When the Gardners went to England to live, James B. Regan followed them. He and his wife took a mansion in London, not far from the residence of the American Ambassador, Colonel George Harvey. Mr. and Mrs. Regan divided their time between New York, London and the continent.

America had not heard much of the James B. Regans in the last two years until recent news dispatches flashed across the sea, telling of the very swanky garden party given by their Majesties, King George and Queen Mary. It was, declared the correspondents, quite the most brilliant and exclusive affair of the Summer season. The grounds of Buckingham Palace were turned into a fairy bower. The King and Queen went over the invitation list and received each of their guests.

"There was keen rivalry in the American colony over bids to the affair," cabled one correspondent, "and there were many sore and angry hearts when the guest list was announced. Only the highest figures in diplomatic and social circles were invited. Among those present were"——

Here followed a small list of the American names. And bulking in the front rank, not far from the names of the American Ambassador and "600" blue-bookers sojourning in London, were the names of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Regan, of New York City.

So the bar-boy got to Buckingham Palace; so the youngster who dreamed of greatness, who rose by his own grit, crowned his self-made career with the hand-grip of a king.

Mrs. James B. Regan.

"NEWSY" LALONDE DEAL CAUSED BIG STIR IN TORONTO

Matter Will Be Threshed Out at the Annual Meeting, Nov. 4.

There will be wigs on the green November 4 at Montreal when the National Hockey League goes into annual session. The big bone of contention will be the disposal of Newsy Lalonde, the famous captain of the Canadien team of Montreal.

Some time ago Leo Dandurand of the Montreal club announced that he was going to sell Lalonde to Saskatoon of the western pro league for $3,500 and immediately there was a howl from the Toronto St. Patricks and Hamilton Tiger clubs, both of whom he refused to waive on him and demanded him under the $500 waiver clause.

At a meeting held in Hamilton the story of the $3,500 sale caused a ruction, and Dandurand said that he was going to trade Lalonde to Saskatoon for Aurel Poliat, the ex-Timmins player who went west after an unsavory "toss the game" episode in the north. Charlie Querrie, the St. Pats' delegate, called Dandurand's proposition in no uncertain terms and told him plainly that the Poliat tdade was just a stall to evade the regulations and that he was taking a price in the side for Lalonde.

Yesterday a Montreal despatch revives the story and says that Dandurand has overcome the objections of the Toronto and Hamilton clubs to Lalonde's transfer to Saskatoon and says that Canadiens are to get Joliat from Saskatoon and a Calgary player named Gagnier, whom Saskatoon are to purchase, for Lalonde.

That yarn got Charlie Querrie of St. Pats up long before breakfast yesterday and brought despatches from Saskatoon and Calgary denying their end of the story. Fred Betts, the Saskatoon manager, says he knows nothing of any Joliat-Gagnier deal and Lloyd Turner, the Calgary "boss" says he hasn't even got a player by the name of Gagnier. The only player in the west whose name resembles Gagnier is Art Gagne of Edmonton Eskimos.

Now for the Toronto end.

"Dandurand is not going to get away with this Lalonde thing," said Charlie Querrie yesterday. "You don't suppose I am going to swallow this trade for Joliat and Gagnier yarn do you. If Dandurand is trading Lalonde for Joliat he is foolish like a rabbit. Dandurand is foolish just like a fox, that's how foolish he is. If he takes Joliat it is only to beat the N.H.L. rule, which says that unless there is a straight flat trade for a player in an outside league waivers must be obtained on the player it is proposed to sell. That is to prevent good players going out and poor players coming in. I told Dandurand that his story of a straight trade for Joliat was all bunk and that he was getting something on the side an under cover on the deal. The St. Patricks offered to give him what he was getting from Saskatoon for Lalonde if he would let Newsy come here. Dandurand won't get by with this deal. You watch the fireworks."

St. Patrick's have signed every man of last year's team. All but Noble were signed up last spring, and Noble signed up last week. The team reports here Nov. 20, and leaves for the west Nov. 28.

Ken Randall, the veteran utility man should have a good year. He has been working at the Arena all summer and during leisure hours has been playing indoor tennis on the big floor.

"I'm in the pink and ready to go right now" said Randall yesterday.

Jackson, the Bluenose forward, who was here with Stackhouse last winter, will likely be brought back for another trial, but Stackhouse is not likely to be brought up again.

Sportsmanship

Whatever the relative sailing merits of their two vessels may be it is very apparent that the skipper of the Canadian entry, the "Bluerose" is far ahead of his United States rival in the matter of sportsmanship.

In spite of the fact that the first race was declared "No race" by the committee on account of mistakes made by the committee itself, the captain of the "Bluenose" and the four Canadian members of the committee offered to hand over the cup to the "Henry Ford" demonstrating the fact that they were not ready to take advantage of any technicalties that might give an advantage to the Canadian entry.

Captain Morrison, commanding the Henry Ford, on the other hand, now demands that the contest previously declared "No race" be awarded to him and the cup handed over forthwith. The members of his crew are of the same opinion and with very bad grace and following the sulky actions of a spoiled child one and all refuse to race again and load in ballast preparatory to proceeding to the fishing grounds.

Such exhibitions of complete lack of sportsmanship do not tend to make international contests the successes that they could and should be. Fortunately such examples are rare.

Carpentier Formally Challenges Siki.

PARIS, Oct. 25. — (Canadian Press)—Georges Carpentier has issued a formal challenge to Battling Siki for a return bout, the month's interim provided by the French boxing federation rule having elapsed since the Senegalese captured the heavyweight championship of Europe by his sensational knockout of Carpentier in the sixth round of their meeting here.

Francois Descamps, Carpentier's manager, is now awaiting a reply from M. Hellers, Siki's manager, but in any case it is improbable that the bout will be arranged for some time to come.

O'ROURKE FOR LEAFS.

The Toronto Ball Club yesterday completed a deal for the purchase of Frank O'Rourke from the Boston Red Sox. O'Rourke formerly played with the Leafs and will add strength to the infield. The deal was a straight cash one, and the price involved is not announced, but it is a large one. Just what will be done with Gonzales and Jones has not been determined.

TEN-YEAR-OLD YOUNGSTER CRACK GOLFER.

Reuben G. Bush, Jr.

The general accepted theory that golf is an old man's game is being constantly shot to pieces.

The latest juvenile to make a bid for a place in golf's hall of fame is Reuben G. Bush, Jr., New Orleans.

This youngster recently played the first nine holes of the difficult dubon course in his home city in 37.

The performance of young Bush is said to be one of the best bits of golfing ever done by a boy of his age.

George's father, who is a former southern golf champion, started coaching the lad in the mysteries of golf two years ago.

Bush Sr. considers nine holes of golf enough for the boy to play at one time and refuses to let him play the full 18 holes.

SISLER SAYS YANKEES PLAYED BELOW FORM

George Sisler, selected as the most valuable player in baseball, picked the New York Yankees to beat the Giants.

Like practically every other expert in the country, George was made to look very bad by the Yankees losing four straight.

However, George need not worry over the failure of the Yankees to come through. Just prior to the series 12 players on the Brooklyn team in the National League were asked for an opinion. Nine of the 12 said the Yankees would win easily.

"I predicted that either the New York Yankees or the St. Louis Browns would beat the Giants in a short series. Despite the downfall of the Yankees I stand on the statement that the Browns could have turned the trick" says Sisler.

"The Yankees have great strength but seldom make use of it. Slow thinking has kept them from being a remarkable club. The Yankees during the season are either very good or very bad. In the series they were very bad.

"The overwhelming defeat of the Yankees casts a reflection on the American League that is decidely undeserved.

"Despite the fact that the Yankees failed to win a game no contest was decided by a greater margin than three runs. In every game but Scott's shoutout and the tie the Yankees were out in front. In two of the games rallies in the eighth inning by the Giants decided the issue."

BUSH GIVES HIS STORY OF SCRAP

Let His Temper Get the Best of Him and Acted Like a Schoolboy.

When a kid did you ever have some one purposely trip you, and then when you started to cry, pat you on the back and tell you how sorry they were and they didn't mean to do it?

Joe Bush played the role of the bad boy in the world series. When he kicked against the order of Manager Huggins to purposely pass Young, he assumed the role of Peck's Bad Boy.

To make matters worse he let the world know how he felt about it. When he finally agreed to obey orders he shouted:

"All right." In a sarcastic voice that could be heard all over the Polo Grounds. To make matters even worse he threw a fast one in Kelly's groove that broke up the ball game.

"My actions was a great injustice to Huggins" is the viewpoint now taken by Bush. "I always have had a temper and it gets the better of me every now and then. I acted like a school boy."

After emitting the apology which helps a bit but doesn't erase in any way the act, Bush says:

"However, I still think Huggins was wrong. Kelly had made three hits of me previously. Young had not been so successful. With first base open I could have worked on Young and tried to make him hit bad balls.

"If I failed I still had a chance with Kelly. With the basese loaded and Kelly up I coudn't waste any balls and felt compelled to try and get them over for Kelly. He singled on the second pitch."

MANY VESSELS ARE NOW IN MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, October 25. Canadian Press. — The Port of Montreal yesterday established a new high record for the largest number of ships in harbor at one time, when 92 ocean and costing vessels were berthed at the local wharves. This total which does not tal.: into account vessels from the Great Lakes, constitutes a record which is expected to stand for some time.

To date, since the opening of navigation heer, the port has been visited by 1033 ocean and coasting steamers as compared with 964 arriving during the whole of last season.

LAWN BOWLING TOURNEY OMEMEE

Residents Have Developed Keen Interest in This Sport.

OMEMEE, October 25. — It looks at last as if the men of Omemee were to become interested in the game of lawn bowling, and arrangements are being made to establish a green on the grounds of the Athletic Association.

Since the first of August until the cold eenings put a stop to it play has been carried on, on the beautiful lawn of Mrs. McCrea, where there is one very good rink. It was with some difficulty that those interested in the game could get others to take a hand, but gradually more and more became interestde in the sport, both as players and spectators, until finally 21 members had signed up.

As some of those who had never played before developed a rather uncanny ability to tie up close to the "kiky," interested increased, and it was decided to add to that interest by running off a sort of tournament, in both singles and doubles, and in order that the evenings might be lengthened, electric lights were installed on the green.

The doubles were run o ffirst and created a great deal of interest. Some of the new bowlers played like veterans and as the tournament proceeded the interest increased. Interest reached a climax on the evening the finals were played.

Three rinks reached the finals—MacFarlane and Stillman; Mackey and Scott; Larkin and Courtney.

Mackey and Scott won their game and then had to face the pair that looked like sure winners. But the fater were against htem. In the first part of the game Mackey and Scott led but at the ninth end the score stood 6 all with one to go. In the tend and last end the favorites were nosed out of the winning by 2 shots.

Then the spectators had their innings poking fun at the contestants as they mimicked the curves they made their bodies assume as the bowls went up the green.

The sigles have only well gotten under way and it is very likely that they will have to be left over until the summer suns shine again.

Many happy eevnings were spent on the green and it is just a foretaste of what might be on a larger green and with more men engaged in the sport.

YOUNG LADY FAN STILL BACKS RUTH

Her Telegram Contained the Only Kind Words "Babe" Received During the Series.

By BILLY EVANS.

Babe Ruth was the big disappointment of the world series.

The failure of the Yankee slugger to hit has caused him to get a high ranking in the list of "goats."

Last year Ruth was greatly handicapped by an infected arm. He had an alibi for his weak hitting. However, he was confident he would treat the Giant pitchers roughly in the 1922 classic. He "flivvered" badly.

No doubt Ruth took his failure to heart. His face plainly showed his feeling of disappointment, as time after time he tapped weakly to the infield.

However, it is doubtful if Ruth felt as badly over his poor showing in the series as did little Ruth Fix, an eleven-year-old girl of Buffalo.

Ever since she has been old enough to understand baseball, Babe Ruth has been her hero. For three years, acco ding to her Dad, she has kept Ruth's daily batting average, also dates of his home runs and the pitcher who opposed him.

Recently when the Yankees played an exhibition game in Buffalo, little Miss Fix realized a cherished ambition, an introduction to Babe Ruth.

I wrote you a letter some time ago and I haven't heard a single word from you," was the way the young lady greeted Babe.

Ruth apologized, said he evidently had overlooked her letter in the mass of correspondence that he receives each day.

In order to make good his failure to write, he autographed a brand new ball for the young lady.

During the series the youngster watched the box scores closely. When game after game passed without her hero knocking a home run, it is easy to imagine her feelings.

I walked around to the Yankees' club house at the finish of the fifth game While talking the series over with Ruth, a telegram was handed to him. He tore it open and as he read it, a smile began to play over a face that had been serious for a week.

"Those are the only kind words that have come my way since the series opened," said Ruth, as he handed me the telegram. It was from a real admirer, Miss Ruth Fix of Buffalo.

"I am so sorry the Yanks lost," read the wire.

Ruth read it again as I handed it back, then folded it carefully and placed it in his coat pocket. Evidently he cherished the only kind words passed to him during the series.

LANDED ALL LIQUOR.

HALIFAX, N.S., Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—The Red Cross liner Silvia on her regular call en route to New York from St. John's, landed all liquor stores here so that she may enter the United States' port without infringement upon the Daugherty prohibition ruling. The Furness liner Sachem, sailing tomorrow for Boston, will carry out the same procedure.

90,000 ENTER CANADA.

As Other Eyes Saw the Game

Casey of Irish fame has always been a doubtful quantity in baseball. Old timers tell of the gloom that settled over Bingville when Casey struck out. We did not witness that sad event, but we saw gloom come over every face in Belleville last Saturday when Casey who looks after the right garden for the Belleville team let an easy fly for the third out get away from him and two Galt runners romped home from second and third. And the excuse was that Casey was not using his sun glasses. Well Casey should know by this time that sun glasses are very necessary and in a game with so much importance attached to it, Manager Gerow should have seen that Casey's paraphernalia was complete. It was an easy ball to handle and the muff cost Belleville the game and probably the championship. But even with Casey's error, Belleville could have won out or at least have tied the score had the coachers used ordinary common sense. Twice Harry Mills came pell mell into third when he hadn't the slightest possible chance; on both occasions had he wanted, he would have scored. Belleville's greatest weakness all season has been on their base running and it has deprived them of many runs. Belleville must understand that now they have reached the playoff stage they are fighting against the best team in western Ontario and the slighest opportunity lost may mean the loss of the game. This was demonstrated in Saturday's contest and we hope that Belleville will profit by the experience.

It was a splendid exhibition of ball, both teams giving a demonstration of snappy, clever fielding. Galt appears to have a little edge on the Central Leaguers, but you can rest assured that the usual breaks in baseball will be a big factor in deciding the championship.

After the game a coin was tossed to decide whether the final game would be played in Guelph or Cobourg. Galt won the toss and the two teams will meet at Guelph today (Wednesday.)

The Pittsburgh Club's share was divided into 23 full shares, ten players receiving $257.62 each, and 13 receiving $257.61. The balance, almost two shares, was split equally between Myrl Brown, George Ashton and J. Fogarty. Each received $85.87.

Miss Irma Wright, of Toronto, was fourth in the novice class, writing 95 words per minute.

Poor Coaching is Often A Serious Handicap

By AUBREY DEVINE
All-America 1921, Captain Iowa 1921
"Big Ten" Champions.

Keeping fit, however, is not the only element that determines the star's prospects in college. The coaching he has received in high school is also important.

Many high school coaches have never played college football. When a high school coach, who has not had the benefit of the expert coaching and training that goes with college football, starts out to teach football to high school players he is apt to generalize and in so doing overlook the techinque in the fundamentals of football, namely, correct passing, tackling, blocking and shifting and carrying the ball.

A high school star who has not learned to execute these fundamentals in the right way is handicapped from the start. In football, as in everything else, it is much easier to teach a raw and inexperienced recruit how to do things in the right way than it is to reform a good man who has learned to do those very same things in the wrong way.

Therefore, if you would know the prospects that a high school star has of making good in college, consider first his manner of living and the quality of the coaching he has received in high school.

Upon entering collegiate football competition, the man fresh from high school must buck up against much more formidable material than he has met with in high school. He must expect to be pitted against men of more weight and greater speed who extend themselves in a way he never dreamed of back on the hometown field. He will find that the college coaches give a good deal more attention to details, to technique and execution .

The "prep" star will find that if he hopes to make the varsity he will have to specialize for some particular position on the team. If the coaches look upon him as a potential center, he must learn the nature and requirements of the center position by heart. If he is to be an end, he must learn football technique and strategy from the sandpoint of an end.

Then, too, the high school star should realize from the start of his college football career that he is more or less under martial law, and that he need expect no coddling from the coaches. He must steel himself to hearing the coaches tell him in plain, unvarnished English in just what matters he is lacking.

The competition and the discipline may be a little irksome, but if a man is going to make good in college football he must pay the price for his success.

It is claimed that mercurial ointment makes a fairly good substitute for the common mixture of graphite and oil for preventing valve caps from sticking when screwed down tightly. It also helps to prevent leaks. But be careful in its use as it is poisonous.

ST. GEORGE'S WILL HAVE BOY SCOUTS

Troop Will Be Formed Among Boys of South-End Church Under the Leadership of Harry Darling.

Plans are rapidly nearing completion for the formation of a Boy Scout Troop from among the younger members of St. George's church and an organization meeting will be held on Friday evening when the final action will be taken and the new troop will formally get under way.

The formation of the troop has resulted from the efforts of Harry Darling who will take over the office of scout master and whose experience in all lines pertaining will be a great help to the new organization.

Owing to the fact that all of the Scouts that formerly flourished in Peterboro have gone out of business, it is expected that the new troop will be numbered No. 1 and will be the start of a concerted movement to re-establish the Boy Scouts in Peterboro, that the younger generation may reap the benefit of the high ideals and fine standards of manhood fostered by this organization.

MR. JUSTICE LENNOX SEES CHANGE IN THE JURIES

Toronto Man Acquitted of Manslaughter—Julge Scores the Verdict.

TORONTO, Oct. 25.—(Canadian Press,)—Mr. Justice Lennox in jury assizes last evening severely scored the verdict acquitting James Blake charged with manslaughter, arising out of the death of eleven year old Fred Werden, who was struck by a motor car driven by Blake. Justice Lennox said he was unable to see how such a verdict was reached, and declared that in recent years juries' verdicts showed great change. Unsettled conditions following the war, the influx of foreigners and the vast amount of propaganda being set forth by this class of the community might account for the change.

"Y" STARTS DRIVE.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Oct. 25.—(Canadian Press.)—A campaign for 1,000 members for the local Y. M.C.A. was begun yesterday by four teams of citizens. At the opening dinner it was announced that C. G. McGhie of the Welland Vale M'f'g Co. had volutnarily donated the winter coal for the building.

THE "STAR" CAR GROWING IN INTEREST

A Well Balanced Car With Valuable Features.

The interest that has been shown in the exhibit and demonstrations of the "Star Car" shows the interest the general public is taking in the Durant line of cars.

The creation of the "Star Car" has been admitted by a number of local critics to be the most brilliant accomplishment of any individual identified with the automobile industry since its inception.

The "Star Car" is a well-balanced car with its well proportioned stream line body, rounded radiator and cowl, one-man top, tilted windshield and crowned fenders, add to the smart appearance of the car. There is ample capacity for five passengers with plenty of leg room under the cowl. The seats are set at a comfortable angle and covered with a good grade of material. The gear shift and emergency brake levers in the centre and close to the seat afford ease of movement in control.

The actual fact is, other car owners vouch this appreciation of the satisfaction Star car owners are going to have in owning a Star car.

GET READY FOR THE CHASE.

Special Train For Hunters.

The Edwards case has been disposed of Mr. Justice Middleton. This action, brought by Miss Ada Edwards against the administrators of her father's estate for an allowance for remuneration for services rendered to her late father in connection with his home in managing and conducting same for six years prior to his death and for which she their special and regular train service makes "The National Way" the premier line for the hunter. The hunting grounds are so vast there is game for everyone.

The selection of grounds is a most important matter and one which requires careful study. The territory reached by the Canadian National lines north of Parry Sound is already a favorite one, but the new country east and west of Capreol is as yet comparatively little known to the hunter and should, therefore, be highly attractive to the follower of the deer and moose.

The Canadian National Railways are providing special train service, which, with regular trains, will meet all demands. Special trains will be operated as follows: Leave Toronto Union Station 11.15 p.m. Oct. 31st for Capreol and intermediate points, and 11.15 p.m. Nov. 2nd, 3rd and 4th for Key Jct. and intermediate points. The usual ample accommodation of sleeping cars, baggage cars and coaches will be provided.

The Annual Hunters' Leaflet issued by the Canadian National Railways is now ready for distribution, and may be obtained on application to any agent of the Company, or write General Passenger Department, Room 607, Royal Bank Bldg., Toronto. 5d-18-21-25-28-30

READING'S PROSPECTS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Persistent accumulation was evident in Reading but Central of New Jersey fluctuated erratically after opening 227, recovered to 236, two factors besides approaching segregation of its own coal properties account for strength in Reading. One is its interest in Central RR of New Jersey, which, in spite of its sharn recent advance, is still selling well below its book value; the latter is something in excess of $300 a share, a large part of it now held in cash or its equivalent because of sale of Central's holdings of Lehigh Valley and Wilkesbarrie coal stock. If Reading obtains permission from I.C.C. to consolidate Jersey Central with its own road as it desires to do, a special dividend on Central stock to equalize values is not unlikely, preliminary to an exchange of securities. The other factor is excellent prospects for regaining something like former earning power of Reading's own railroad operation. Results this year, together with miscellaneous income of Reading Company, compromise to cover the latter's dividend requirements without drawing upon Reading's coal department yet; railway net for 1922 will probably not exceed $6,500,000, against $9,980,000 average for five years preceding.

It is easy to make a temporary fuse in case one of them burns out and you have no fresh one. Wrap a layer of tin-foil around it and put it back in place. One layer is enough as this is a very good conductor. It will not act as a fuse but will enable you to use the light on its circuit. The foil that comes with cigarettes or pipe tobacco will do.

LAUGHTER REIGNS, JOY POURS IN FIVE PART LLOYD COMEDY

Harold Lloyd says that it took four months to dope out the ending of "Grandma's Boy"—that final laugh that made its first audience when pre-reviewed in Long Beach, Calif., laugh so hard that it held up the next act for ten minutes. The hardest part of the comedy, contends Lloyd and his producer, Hal Roach, is the "gag" for the final fadeout.

"Grandma's Boy" is hailed as Harold Lloyd's most pretentious comedy in a lineup of laugh-producing photoplays that have not one mark against them. Lloyd's newest comedy is always a step forward, and "Grandma's Boy" is a mighty big stride ahead.

It is in five reels and its laughs, thrills and suspense are built around a theme as serious as the phychology of fear. Lloyd is seen as the bashful small town boy, afraid of his own shadow. When his little old-fashioned grandmother comes to his rescue with her great wisdom and teaches him the meaning of self-confidence, he makes the sleepy little town of Blossom Bend—and the Girl in particular—sit up and take notice that the worm has turned!

"Grandma's Boy" is from the story by producer Hal Roach, and Sam Taylor and Jean Havez. Fred Newmeyer directed, and the cast includes pretty Mildred Davis, Anna Townsend, Dick Sutherland, Charles Stevenson and Noah Young. It is an Associated Exhibitors feature comedy and will be shown at the Capitol Theatre, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

AT THE ROYAL.

MIX DRAWS CROWDS WITH NEW PICTURE

Tom Mix's popularity seems to grow with each picture he makes. The William Fox star drew big crowds to each showing of his latest offering, "Up and Going," at the Royal Theatre yesterday. Mix is always entertaining and he always has a good story. Usually he picks good scenery as a background for these stories, but this time he has outdone all his previous plays in the matter of scenic effects. "Up and Going" is a Canadian Northwest story; and really, aside from the tale, the scenery is worth the price of admission.

A fine cast supports Mix. Eva Novak again is his leading woman, Sidney Jordan, Tom O'Brien, Pat Chrisman, Paul Weigel and Carol Holloway. Cecil Von Auker, Helen Field and Marian Feduche are in the prologue.

AT THE GRAND.

MOST SUCCESSFUL PLAY OF KIND YET.

"The Bat", the most successful play of its kind ever produced, and written by Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood, will be presented at the Grand Opera House on October 27 and 28 and Saturday matinee. This is an event in the theatre. If you doubt it just remember that "The Bat" played for more than two years in New York; played for over one year in Chicago and has been the outstanding success of all dramatic plays in both cities. In addition it is now the reigning sensation in London.

"The Bat" has been variously described by critics. Some have referred to it as a "dramatic smash." Others have called it "The play of a century." That is not exaggeration. Its record speaks for it.

Without resorting to superlatives, however, "The Bat" may be described as a thrilling dramatic play in which the suspense is sustained from curtain to curtain and running through which there is one of the most delightfully funny characters every introduced on the stage. It is 100 per cent. entertainment and its best advertisment is what those who have seen it, have to say about it.

No attempt will be made here nor in any other advance notice of "The Bat" to tell the story of the play. As a matter of fact "The Bat" is one play—and perhaps the only one—of which the story is never told. From the night it first opened, its authors and managers, the Messrs. Wagenhals and Kemper have made it a point to ask both critics and public alike to refrain from telling the story of the play. And there it not one, so far as is known, who has broken faith.

Suffice to say, "The Bat" comes here, staged exactly as it was played in New York and Chicago and acted by a company of rare excellence.

AMHERST OFFERS A FELLOWSHIP WORTH $2,000 PER YEAR.

To Be Devoted to Study of Social, Economic and Political Institutions.

AMHERST, Mass., Oct. 24.—(Associated Press.)— An Amherst Memorial Fellowship yielding $2,000 a year, to be devoted to the study of social, economic and political institutions, will be awarded next year, according to announcement made by Prof. Walton H. Hamilton, secretary of the fellowship committee. Any college or university graduate is eligible for appointment.

Eligiblity for the award will be based upon the evidence of marked mental ability in some branch of the social sciences, economics, politics and history, and upon promise of original contribution to a particular field of study. Candidates will be preferred who have demonstrated a spirit of service rather than ambition for personal advancement, including selection for life work of a study of the betterment of social conditions through teaching in its broad sense, journalism, and field work.

There are two Amherst Memorial Fellowships available through the gift of $100,000. Two years ago the first competition for places was held and 51 candidates, representing all the leading educational institutions of the country, participated. Three were selected, two for terms of one year each.

Applications for the new Fellowship will be received until December 15, and the award will be made in January or early February, 1923. The term of the scholarship begins on September 1, 1923, and the initial appointment will not be for more than two years, although it can later be extended.

REMARKABLE EVENT,

LONDON, Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press)—Cotton being the keystone of Lancahsire's industries and Preston the chief centre thereof, the recent Preston Guild celebrations naturally featured this great industry. As these celebration occur only once every twenty years, and have been occuring at these stated intervals for centuries Preston's pageants draw immense crowds. Indeed, it was estimated that a million people were in the streets of Preston on the final day of the recent celebration, which lasted a week.

The gerat event of the week was the four-mile long procession of the textile and general trades, a wonderfully interesting pageant. The textile section of the parade gave the story of the cotton industry from the growing of cotton to the wearing of the finished product in home and foreign lands.

After a lapse of sixty years the recent Preston Guild celebration included the revival of the Old Guild Mayoress' Civic Church Parade. Hundreds of women walked in procession to attend service at the Parish Church.

In Avenham Park a number of historic episodes were represented, including the visit of King Edward I. to Preston and the destruction of the town by Bruce.

The last phrases of the Guild celebration were the closing of the Guild Court for another twenty years, and a torchlight procession which culminated in a scene of great brilliance and animation in the market square. At midnight the Guild Mayor made the closing speech, and that ended the celebration until 1942.

THREE-CORNERED FIGHT.

LONDON, Oct. 24. —(Canadian Press Cable.) — In great centres outside London various parties in the electoral machinery remain very much in the dark. From all quarters three-cornered contests are reported.

In Birmingham where, in old days, the political will of Austen Chamberlain was absolute law, it is stated that there is evident hostility to Lloyd George, this being especially due to the outgrowth of repugnance of the Unionist party at being tied so strongly to him. If the conflict should be provoked between Chamberlainites and Unionists of another way of thinking, it is stated, the late leader of Commons would be in danger of losing his local authority.

Mr. Chamberlain is well liked personally, but it is alleged that he has recently shown himself to be out of touch with Birmingham's big business interests.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

A large number of people each year take advantage of the long week-end holiday provided by Thanksgiving Day to visit relatives or take a trip to some place of interest. The Grand Trunk are expecting heavy travel this year on account of the holiday, and provision has been made accordingly. Additional equipment, coaches, sleeping cars and parlor cars have been arranged for in anticipation of this traffic and extra sections of regular trains will be operated from Toronto on November 4th in order that convenient accommodation may be provided for all passengers.

First section of Train No. 45 will leave Toronto 4.30 p.m. for Barrie or beyond if necessary.

First section of Train No. 189 will leave Toronto 4.45 p.m. running through to Palmerston.

First section of Train No. 15 will leave Toronto 5.45 p.m. to London.

Above trains will make same intermediate stops as regular trains and first section of No. 15 will also stop at Ingersoll.

The service of the Grand Trunk Railway, (the double track route) to such points as Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, London, Detroit and Chicago, is particularly convenient and attractive. For full particulars of service and all information, apply to Grand Trunk Ticket Agents.

STRONG APPEAL FOR NORTHERN SUFFERERS.

That unless a continuous supply of money and supplies was forthcoming keen hardships would be endured by the people who lost everything in the Northern Ontario fire zone, is the report brought back by Dr. C. Dr. Hodgetts reports that relief arrangements have been well systematized in the north. Peterborough is expected to give her share in contributing to the relief fund. HIGH COLLARS ON NEW FALL COATS

It seems quite a matter of agreement between designers that the coat you buy for fall may be either a rough-and ready steamer rug affair in large plaid or a suavely beautiful thing of velvet trimmed in expensive furs—but that if it has a high collar it will be indisputably of the higher circles of fashion.

Among the sleeves used are many with slide shoulders and dropped armholes. Straight lines are favored and the materials most shown are velvet, Kasha, silk and cashmere duvetyn.

Linings continue to be gorgeous affairs; always colorful and often on the more elaborate models, of heavy brocaded and metal-embroidsatins.

WEDDING BELLS

FLUKE—WHITE

A wedding of interest was solemnized at 8 o'clock yesterday morning at St. Peter's Cathedral, whes Rev. Father O'Neill of St. Catharines, married Miss Kathleen White to Mr. Albert George Fluke of St. Catharines. Mr. Harry Fluke assisted the groom, and Miss Marguerite Mulhall of Toronto, acted as bridesmaid.

Mr. and Mrs. Fluke left for a motor trip through the Western States.

MOLLARD—ROSS.

Mark Street Methodist Church, East City, was the scene of a very prett wedding at high noon to-day, when Ruthe M., only daughter of Rev. G. E. Ross, pastor of the church, and Mrs. Ross, became the bride of W. Melville Mollard, M.D., of Portage La Prairie, Manitoba, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mollard, of Balmoral, Manitoba.

The church, which was filled with friends and relatives and interested members of the congregation, had been turned into a bower of natural beauty for the occasion. A particularly happy background for the ceremony was achieved by the delicately rounded green arch in front of the pulpit platform where old English ivy, cedar boughs, and gypsophila were entwined, the orange bulbs of the little lantern plant making a bright spot against the green of the arch, which was centred with three pendant white bells. The arch was flanked by large pots of aspedistra, the ribbon fern, and begonias, while the choir gallery was banked with cedar boughs and autumn leaves in a profuse arrangement, the alcove overhead being centred with a large wreath of the fragrant cedar.

Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Mr. V. Boorman, ushered in the bride, leaning on the arm of her father. She wore a handsome suit of reindeer broadcloth, with collar and cuffs of dark beaver fur, blouse of sunset French georgette, and large hat of brown panne velvet, touched with silver. Her flowers were a corsage bouquet of Ophelia roses, and she wore the gift of the bridegroom, a rope of pearls.

Rev. Mr. Ross, who performed the ceremony for his daughter, was assisted by Rev. Ernest Harstone, of Woodville. The young people were unattended.

During the ceremony, Miss Alma Beavis, wearing grey crepe meteor, trimmed with silver embroidery, black hat, and corsage bouquet of roses, sang very sweetly "Because."

Ushers for the occasion were Mr. Edwin Keats, of Winnipeg, and Mr. V. Boorman. The bridegroom's gift to the soloist was a pearl brooch, to the organist and ushers onyx tie pins.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bridal party, with Rev. and Mrs. Ross and Mrs. Ross's sister, Mrs. E. Keats, of Winnipeg, received their guests under a large pink silk floral bell, massed with roses, ferns, and smilax. Mrs. Ross wore navy duchesse satin, with radium lace overdrape, hat of black panne velvet trimmed with silver, and corsage bouquet of Columbia roses and maidenhair fern. Mrs. Keats was gowned in black taffeta, with iridescent bead garniture, hat of henna velvet with ostrich tips, and bouquet of carnations and lily of the valley.

The house was lavishly decorated throughout with flowers and ferns, the dining-room arch twined with cedar boughs, gypsophila, white tulle and white bells. Luncheon was served to between thirty and forty guests at small tables, the bride's table centred with white chrysanthemums and pink roses, with pink and white ribbon streamers attached to the overhead chandelier. Messrs. T. H. Hooper & Sons catered for the occasion. Rev. Mr. Harstone acted as toastmaster.

Dr. and Mrs. Mollard left on the 3.50 train for Winnipeg. They will reside in Portage La Prairie. The bride, who is a registered nurse, recently graduated from Winnipeg General Hospital, where her husband was attached to the staff for some time. He is now associated with two other doctors at the medical clinic in Portage La Prairie.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE.

"Don't Let Your Wife Boss You." Admonishes Chief Justice Meredith.

WELLAND, Oct. 25.—(Canadian Press.)—Wm. Crowcruk, of Thorold, was allowed to go on suspended sentence yesterday by Chief Justice Meredith after accused had pleaded guilty of an attempt to bribe Provincial Constable C. Garnett. His Lordship said prisoner could have been sent to penitentiary for fourteen years, but the case presented extenuating circumstances. "You should not have allowed your wife to boss you," he told Crowcruk. Evidence showed that the constable had found a bottle of liquor in Crowcruk's house and accused had offered officer $50 if he would give it back to him. According to the prisoner it was his wife who carried on the bootlegging business.

Visiting Harems For Styles, and Oriental Veils Are Already Here

PARIS NOVELTIES. (LEFT) TURKISH CHAPEAU, (RIGHT) CHIN VEIL, (BELOW) NOVELTY COMB.

By MARIAN HALE.

Like good Mohammedans, we are all looking toward the East for sartorial as well as political developments.

The political situation may fill us with apprehension, but the styles give us joy. The Turkish influence is one of the most popular ones that has reached us, via Paris, for many a day.

Harem beauties learned long ago how to frame the face becomingly and have been little influenced by changing styles. They have become such artists with the veil that though custom no longer requires them to wear it on all occasions they cling to it from sheer coquetry.

They still wear it draped about the face and their chin veil has been stolen by Parisian designers to be one of the seasons most popular styles.

Of black lace, it gives a grace and beauty to the simplest hat and is more effective than any chin strap known in keeping the double chin out of evidence.

A hat with a decidedly Moslem ancestry is shown beside the veil. Its very oddity makes it charming, framing the face as it does with an entirely new line. Gorgeous Turkish embroidery is the only trimming.

The spider and fly comb is Spanish rather than Turkish, but it belongs with the season's novelties in headdress.

A very black and well-nourished looking spider, mounted on a yellow tortoise shell comb, makes his invitation much more inviting because of its advantageous position in the locks of a lovely woman.

Paris has decreed that the unconventional shall lead. Now is the time for every original citizen to come to the aid of his country and produce novelties in dress.

Here's a Menu For Hallowe'en Feast

By Bertha E. Shapleigh.

The last day of October, when the air is crisp and the autumn leaves blow around like dancing fairies, brings us Hallowe'en, the night when witches and black cats are abroad and a spirit of mischief plays harmless jokes.

Hallowe'en parties are planned and the hostess desires menus in keeping with the occasion.

It is always best to allow table decorations to carry out the idea, and plan only for appropriate and good-tasting dishes.

Apples are at their best in a large part of the country, and the yellow pumpkin adds its touch of color.

What could be more appropriate for a centrepiece than a scooped-out pumpkin, filled with bright red apples. Or fill this bowl with small chrysanthemums.

Make Table Attractive.

It is possible to buy crepe paper covered with witches and black cats. These may be cut out, and when pasted on cards, they make attractive place cards. Of course one can buy place cards with the emblems of Hallowe'en already on them.

The five and ten-cent stores sell small paper and cardboard pumpkins cut out to look like faces. These make attractive favours filled with nuts, candy or lollypops.

One can make these favors by cutting the tops from oranges. Schoop out the inside and then cut slits in the skin to represent mouth, eyes and nose. In the bottom of each skin drop some melted wax and place in the wax a small candle. When ready to serve dinner light the candles.

Bobbing for apples is a favorite Hallowe'en game. Later serve hot mulled cider with baked apples in it. Cookies go well with it too, and one can buy a cookie cutter like a cat or a witch. The cookies so cut may be frosted with melted black chocolate.

This Sounds Good.

A good dinner menu, subject to change, might be as follows:

Black Bean Soup
Garnish: hard cooked egg and lemon slices
Roast Tenderloin of Pork—garnished with small baked apples
Mashed Potatoes Buttered Turnips
Apple and Celery Salad
Hot Cheese Sandwiches
Individual Pumpkin Pies
Nuts Candies Coffee

"Dear Lil:—

"We, your fellow employees, desire to take this opportunity of expressing to you our sincere congratulations. We wish you and Mr. McDougall many years of prosperity and happiness.

"We will admit that it has taken us some time to recover from the surprise we received when we first learned of your leaving single blessedness and stepping the path of life with a mate.

"We feel it a privilege to show our appreciation of your friendship, by presenting you with some slight token of our high esteem.

"We ask you to accept these gifts, and our best wishes that your future may be full of joy and happiness

"Yours till Niagara Falls flows upwards.

"Your Fellow Employees."

A most pleasant evening was spent, at the close of which refreshments and fruit were served.

ONE OF OLDEST OF THIS CITY'S PIONEERS DIES

Mrs. John A. Hartley's Birth Dated Back to the Days of the Robinson Immigration.

AGED NINETY-FIVE

It is a long call back to the year 1828, a time when the city was in its childhood, and only eight years of age, and the perplexing problem was to get the people of the Robinson immigration settled on the lands of the townships adjoining. That is approaching 95 years ago, and yet it is the year of the birth of the late Mrs. John A. Hartley, the subject of this sketch, who passed away on Wednesday, October 25th inst. perhaps only one or two exceptions, the deceased lady was the oldest of the few remaining pioneers of the city. Few indeed reach such extended years. And it was a thing remarkable to have been able to watch the growth and the expansion, right out of the forest, of the city as we see it to-day. For the year of her birth was ten years before the accession of Queen Victoria. She has lived under four reigning monarchs of England.

Mrs. Hartley was the eldest child (and eldest daughter) of one of the most promient citzens of the town, James Trotter Henthorn, well remembered by our oldest people as a man of parts and performances. He came from where many a fine Irishman has come, the County Cavan, Ireland. Leaving the Old Sod in 1828, with his young wife, they made their way from the port of landing, along the river and lake, by waggon and boat to Smith's Creek (now Port Hope), reaching Peterborough just in time that the subject of this sketch might be able to claim Peterborough as her birthplace, though it was known as Scott's Plains. Her father in after years became a man conspicuous in the commercial and industrial life of the town, putting up stores to have them destroyed by fire, during the forties and to rebuild again with energy and confidence in the future town. His properties centred around the north-east corner of George and Hunter streets the brick blo'k on the corner being one of his enterprises. His family lived about where Hooper's store stands on George street. He was the first police magistrate for the town, and one of the first Justices of the Peace appointed in the Colborne District. At a time when to be so honored was a distinction.

Mrs. Hartley inherit.1 from her father much of his common sense, and a taste for music and accomplishments. She was an able musician, indeed accomplished, the favorite pupil of Professor Jenkins, who excelled as a teacher. She was also instructed in piano by Miss Edwards, sister of the late E. E. Edwards, barrister of this city and Edmonton, Alberta. She had also a remarkable talent in drawing and sketching and many friends in the city treasure her handiwork.

She married John A. Hartley, and as a bride moved into the house in which she has lived for over 60 years, now No. 52 Murray street. Her husband, coming to Peterborough in early life, was a clerk in the store of Oughtry Morrow (died in 1848), the business taken over by Thomas Bradburn. Mr. Hartley was for several years with Nicholls and Hall, and further on engaged in insurance and followed that business until the time of his death. He passed away in 1888.

Mrs. Hartley retained all her faculties to the last. She was always cheerful and vivacious. Her greetings to friends were ever cheerful and affectionate, and her interest in what was going on both in the city and abroad ever marked. Only a day or so before her death she had urged her daughter (Mrs. Hall) to bring to her the news from the bulletin board of the changes in the proposed new British Government. Reading the papers she kept in touch with affairs and was ever ready to discuss and exchange opinions.

She was a lifelong member of the George street Methodist church, and certainly the oldest conected with that church, having worshipped within the church walls as girl and woman from the day the church of years ago was opened; and was the only surviving member of those who took part in the opening ceermony in the late thirties of the last century, a remarkable thing in itself.

Of her surviving children are a son, Edgerton, and daughter, Mrs. Hall; at home, and daughter, Mrs. Russell, of Quebec City. All were with her as she passed away. Two grandsons and one great grandson, are also of her descendants. Also her niece, Mrs. John S. Owen, of Euclaire, Wis:

The funeral on Friday 27th, from her late residence, Murray street, at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

The assessed value of real estate in Philadelphia, Pa., subject to taxation in the year 1923, is $2,278,062,000.

Urges Kiss Clinic For Brides-to-Be

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—Establishment of kiss clinics for marriageable girls, to solve America's divorce problem, was urged by Irene Bordoni, Parision stage beauty.

Miss Bordoni declared marriage in this country has become a farce through failure of young wives to kiss properly.

"They kiss with their lips—not with their soul," she declared.

"A woman's whole heart should be put into every kiss she gives her husband."

"A kissable woman will keep any normal man anchored at home", she declared, and all who heard and saw, believed.

"Too many wives think they can hold their husbands through their stomachs," she continued.

"You can starve a man's body but let his soul go hungry for love, and the marriage knot soon will be untied. Scientific love is more practicable than domestic science."

DENIES BELIEF OF HIS CHURCH

Fifty Years a Minister Dr. McConnell Repudiates Divinity of Christ.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The Rev. Dr. Samuel Davis McConnell, once rector of Holy Trinity Church, Brooklyn, and for half a century a widely-known clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church, in a book published renounces the faith on which Christian churches are founded, dismisses as incredible the miracles recounted in the New Testament and denies the Divinity of Christ.

The jacket of the book bears the following:

"I have been for 50 years a minister in the church. I entered the ministry with enthusiasm, believing as I did that the church was the one organization in the world of Divine institution, that it owes its origin to Jesus Christ, and that He was the unique Son of God. I have been reluctantly led to the conclusion that none of these things is true."

The church, Dr. McConnell believes, has in it much more of paganism that of the life of Christ, and asserts that many, if not most of the ceremonies of the church, are far older than Christ, some of them springing, he says, from the time of primitive man.

The known facts of the life of Jesus Christ, Dr. McConnell says, in a chapter entitled, "Jesus of the Gospels," would fill less than a column of newspaper space, and that far less is known of Him than of several other personages of the time.

In summarizing the contents of "The educated and practical world both alike are steadily drawing away from the church. I have watched this movement for fifty years.

"Can anything be done to reverse it?

"First of all, the church must open her eyes and look, but she must not look at things as they were in the Fourth Century, the Twelfth, or the Eighteenth. She should no longer rest in a fool's paradise."

Dr. McConnell's explanation of his book is brief.

"Far too long I have been silent," he said. "I wanted to be sure of speaking. Fifty years is surely long enough for consideration. Now I openly avow by convictions, and leave it to the church to do with me as it sees fit. But I confess I do so with the hope that, after I have said all I have to say, the church may decide that I and such as I have a place in its ministry."

Dr. McConnell now is living in retirement near Easton Md.

BRICKLAYERS WORK 9 HOURS IN EMERGENCY

Agree to Extend Their Working Day on Westclox Building If Paid Time-and-a-Half.

NO SUNDAY WORK

Adhering to the principle of the eight-hour day which they have consistently followed, the Bricklayers' Union last night consented to their members working nine hours daily on the Westclox factory, providing they are paid time and a half for the extra hour.

It was recognized that the contractor is anxious to rush the work as rapidly as possible in order to roof the building before the snow comes, and because of this emergency the Union agreed to extending their day for the extra hour.

On the proposal to work on Sundays they, however, took the stand that for the few Sundays that would be involved, the result wouldn't be worth the sacrifice of the day of rest, and beyond that the Union was unanimously opposed to desecrating the Lord's Day.

REMARKABLE FLIGHTS MADE WITH GLIDERS

Herr Hentzen Remained in the Air For Three Hours—First Woman to Make Successful Flight.

GERSFELD, Germany, Oct. 26—(Canadian Press)—What is believed to have been the first flight in a glider ever made by a woman occurred here to-day when Fraulien Hansen of Magdeburg succeeded in remaining in the air five minutes. She was forced to land because the vertical steering gear had not been suitably installed, the machine coming down on its side.

Herr Hentzen, who ade a memorabl 3-hour flight in a glider here last August, made another flight yesterday which is claimed to be unprecedented in that he succeeded in gliding off the eastern slope of the mauntain in a very slight easterly wind. He remained up 40-minutes and landed smoothly.

OTTAWA, Oct. 26. — (Canadian Press). — Specially reduced rates from Kingston to Toronto will not be available to Queen's University students wishing to attend Queen's Varsity football classic in Toronto on Saturday.

The Dominion Railway Board, to which Queen's applied for special rates, has pointed out that parties of ten or more may take advantage of the excursion rates ruling at one fare and a half for the return ticket.

Approximately 76 per cent. of all the merchandise sold in stores is purchased by women.

Squaw Curses Paleface Who Is Buried in Indian Burial Plot

KANSAS CITY, Mo., October 26. — The body of Frank Espy, a white man, was buried in the Huron Cemetery, Kansas City, Kan., yesterday, while Helen Conley, descendant of the Wyandotte Indians, stood at the head of the grave and delivered the Wyandotte Indian curse on the dead man's soul and on those responsible for the burial in the Indian cemetery.

The curse was delivered in a low tone, most of it in the Indian language. English expressions were interspersed.

Helen Conley and her sister for several years have resisted all attempts to bury white persons in the cemetery, which is the old Wyandotte Indian burial ground. They also have resisted efforts of the city to keep the place in good repair. They contended that the ground is sacred to the Wyandotte tribe, and that white persons should not molest it.

NOW IS THE TIME TO HEED THE CALL

Public Subscription List is Still Hard to Look at—Fire Will Soon Be a Month Old.

It is becoming more apparent that many of the people of Peterborough do not yet realize the full extent of the terrible catastrophy that has befallen the people of Haileybury. Subscriptions received by the Examiner for this cause have shown a decided falling off in the past few days. On Saturday last the sum received was almost $175, while yesterday the subscriptions dropped to a little over $40, which was just enough to bring the total subscribed through this source to $460. Undoubtedly many have given through their churches, the Red Cross and other organizations, reports of which have not been made public yet, but there still remains much to be done if we are to help our unfortunate brothers of the North.

Haileybury's need is not just a need of the moment. Help will be needed in the worst way throughout the greater part of the winter, but money contributed now can be put to much better advantage than if given later, for if it is properly extended now it will prevent a great deal of suffering and so relieve much of the burden of the work that will be necessary during the winter months. If given later it will have to be used to alleviate suffering which could be prevented by giving now.

Those who wish to give may do so through many organizations in the city. The Examiner, the churches, the Fire Department, the Red Cross and similar organizations will gladly receive subscriptions and forward them to the proper authorities.

Money is the most pressing need just now to buy warm clothing, boots, shoes, rubbers and blankets. Those who cannot bring their contributions in person need only to telephone and a messenger will be sent to get it, but bring it if you can—and BRING IT NOW.

TALK OF REMOVING M'MASTER VARSITY TO HAMILTON CITY

Baptists in Convention at Toronto Empower Board and Senate to Further Negotiate.

TORONTO, October 26. Canadian Press. — It was decided at the evening session of the convention of the Baptists of Ontario and Quebec yesterday to empower the Board and Senate of McMaster to conduct further negotiations looking to the removal of the university to the City of Hamilton, with the understanding that when a definite proposition was put forward by the Baptists of that city a special meeting of the Baptist convention would be called to consider it.

The delegates reaffirmed in no uncertain manner their confidence in the Board of Governors of McMaster, despite an hours attack made upon these governors by Rev. Dr. T. T. Shields, of Jarvis street church, Toronto.

The four retiring Governors all stood for re-election and were endorsed.

Rev. H. B. Coumans, of Colingwood, was elected president of the convention for the coming year.

Dr. Shields said he had a feeling that he had missed a great deal in not being admitted to the charmed circle of McMaster University.

He had never suggested that Woodstock and Moulton Colleges had not done good service, and as far as the ideals and purpose of charter of McMaster, as laid down in the report of the Board of Governors was concerned, he could find no objection. The question involved was whether they stood true to their ideals.

The motion of Rev. G. A. Leichliter of London, deprecating the attacks upon the governors and asking for the continued moral support of the colleges and university, was adopted.

JAMES A. STILLMAN HAS STARTED A NEW DRIVE

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., Oct. 26. —(Canadian Press.)—James A. Stillman, it was learned, has started a new drive to re-open in the Supreme Court his unsuccessful fight to divorce Mrs. Anne U. Stillman and have her son, Guy, declared the offspring of Fred Beauvais, an Indian guide.

Teacher's Got a Black Eye

"Look at It, and Then Go Back to Work," She Calmly Advises

DETROIT, Oct. 26.— Two hundred boys and girls of the Benjamin Franklin School stood at attention ready for their class in calisthenics to-day, with their eyes on the face of their teacher, Miss Florence Fitzgibbons. The teacher had been absent for a day.

Miss Fitzgibbons stood bravely before the children, and then said with a smile:

"Take a good look, children; and then we'll forget all about it and go to work."

The "it" is an exceedingly conspicuous black eye inflicted on Miss Fitzgibbons by Mrs. Laura Paulsat, an irate mother, who came to protest over the disciplining of her 15-year-old daughter, Mildred, Monday afternoon.

Warrant Issued.

The story of the attack came to light when Judge Harry B. Keidan issued a warrant for the arrest of the mother charging her with assault and battery. Neither the mother nor the daughter has been found by the police.

Miss Fitzgibbons, who is suffering from a black eye and bruises, and possibly a fractured rib, told the story of the trouble.

"At 2 p.m. ,when the girls were coming to gymnasium," Miss Fitzgibbons explained, "I saw Mildred was talking; and I asked her to be quiet. Then, in a few seconds, the captain of the line came to me, and told me Mildred was talking again.

"Our rules of self-government require quiet from the children while they are marching in the halls, and I stepped back in the line just in time to see Mildred push the girl in front of her, and make a remark. I stepped up to her and she raised her hand as if to strike me. I caught her wrist, told her to step out of the line and then sent her to the principal's office."

In the office of the principal, Mildred, it is said, threatened to go home and tell her mother, who, she said, "would clean up on the whole bunch;" but the girl was kept for an hour in the office, and seemed subdued before she left for home.

Rough and Tumble.

"I was sitting in my office when Mrs. Paulsat came to the door and asked for the gymnasium teacher," Miss Fitzgibbons continued. "I was busy at the desk, had my head down over some reports, and my feet crossed under the desk. She just lunged at me, before I could even realize what had happened.

"Then Mildred and her mother when they had thrown me to the floor, kicked me. That is what is the matter with my rib. After the blow on my eye and nose I don't rember anything further."

Children, teachers and Grant W. Gordon, principal, came running when one small boy spread the alarm, and Miss Fitzgibbons was rescued and restoratives applied.

Miss Paulsat, according to witnesses, walked regally out of the office, shouting to the terrified children, on ether side of the hall: "Well, I guess your gymnasium teachers are not so much."

BOLT OF TWEED MADE HERE FOR PRIME MINISTER

The Product of Peterborough Auburn Woollen Mills Manufactured From Canadian Wool.

G. N. GORDON'S GIFT

Mr. G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., a few days ago obtained a bolt of very fine tweed suitings from the Auburn Woollen Mills to present to the Right Honorable Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada.

The Prime Minister and his Government have been advocating the plan of buying all-Canadian manufactured goods to the exclusion of American or other imported articles, and the local Federal members felt it would prove to the public that Canadian companies could make goods equally as fine as imported goods, by having a bolt of cloth, made from Canadian wool and manufactured by Canadian workers, sent from the Auburn Woollen Mills to the Prime Minister.

Mr. Gordon told the Examiner this morning that his view was that, if we expected to get back our trade balance and break the back of the United States high tariff against Canada, it was to refuse to buy anything made in the United States, which could be obtained in Canada.

Gift Appreciated.

The following letter was received by Mr. Gordon this morning from the Prime Minister, expressing his appreciation of the gift:

"G. N. Gordon, Esq., M.P.,
"Peterborough, Ontario.

"My dear Gordon: On reaching my apartments last night, on my return from Montreal, I found on the writing table in my library a bolt of splendidly woven cloth, which my secretary, Mr. McGregor, now informs me has come from you as a result of a preference expressed by me for one of three or four samples of suiting which he showed me some time ago.

"I have discovered further that the gift is an expression, in part, of your interest in our Canadian industries, and, in part, of your desire to have 'the Prime Minister' make as good an appearance in public as possible. I assure you that both motives are more than highly appreciated. I cannot thank you too sincerely for all that the gift implies. My hope now is that I may find a tailor who will be able to do justice to the occasion, and that as a consequence we may all have reason to share with pride in his latest evidence of the superior quality of all portions of your electorate.

"With kindest regards, believe me, yours very sincerely,

"W. Mackenzie King."

DEATH SENTENCE PASSED ON TWO

Nick Thomas and Harry Rutka Will Hang Jan. 12

WELLAND, Ont., Oct. 26.—(Canadian Press).—At 12.40 to-day His Lordship Chief Justice Meredith passed sentences of death on Nick Thomas and Harry Rutka, who were found guilty by the jury yesterday of the murder of Adam Solton, of Thorold, last August. They will be hanged on January 12 next. Both men took their sentences calmly.

Rutka said simply that witnesses who swore he had a knife told lies.

"I had no knife," he stated. "I did not see the fight. I wasn't there."

Nick Thomas spoke at greater length before sentence was passed upon him. He said he was surprised that the jury should have found him guilty.

"If any one were to ask me now," he said, "what complexion Adam Solton had, I would not know. I never saw him nor knew him."

Rutka's wife and two daughters were in court when the sentence was passed and showed no signs of emotion.

Skirt Fastened On With Court Plaster

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—Denial that she took off her red skirt during a dance in Boston, and flaunted it in the face of the assembly, was made by Isadore Duncan, dancer, here to-day.

"Ridiculous," she said. "It could not come off because it was fastened with court plaster and elastics."

And then she added an indictment of her critics.

"America is terrible," she cried. "American women are impossible. I could teach them to live a hundred years and look 20."

Then Miss Duncan proudly proclaimed that she was a "Red."

"Only the 'Reds' are creative," she said. "There are too many grays and blacks in the world. The grays are those people like Americans, who wish to take the alcohol from the wine and feed a nation grape juice—the blacks those oppressors who stop those people coming into a country, and tell other nations what they shall carry on their ships."

A TALK ON HIS TRIP TO EUROPE

Rev. R. B. Grobb Says England Has Her Feet on Solid Ground.

Rev. R. B. Grobb gave a very interesting account of the first part of his recent trip abroad, before a large gathering in the parish hall of All Saints' Church last evening. The talk was well illustrated with lantern slides, nearly all of which were made from pictures taken by Mr. Grobb himself. The affair was given under the auspices of the Women's Guild and was a decided success in every respect.

Mr. Grobb opened his talk with a few pictures showing the entertainment enjoyed on the boat while crossing the ocean, and then followed the course of his wanderings through Scotland, England, France, Belgium Holland and Germany. The pictures showed excellent views of many of the spots of historic interest in these countries as well as some wonderful pictures of many of the old English cathedrals.

While on his trip Mr. Grobb was accorded an excellent opportunity to study the effects of the aftermath of war on the various countries. Speaking of England he said that England now has her feet on solid ground, and the very steadiness and sureness of the nation can be felt in the general attitude of the people A most optimistic outlook is entertained in the matter of unemployment in England. In France the conditions of many of the peasants in the devastated areas was described as pitiful, but in spite of the hardships they have to face the people are going ahead with a wonderful show of courage and fortitude to rebuild their homes. Pictures were shown of some of these people occupying the sheet-iron huts formerly occupied by the British and Canadian soldiers.

Speaking of Germany Mr. Grobb said that in spite of the collapse of the mark, Germany's rich natural resources were so apparent that he did not see why they could not pay the reparations demanded by the Allies. While in Cologne he was able to buy with $10 what would in normal times have been $1,500 worth of marks, and while in Austria he goth what would ordinarily have been $13,000 worth of kronen for $1.

Other Talks

Other illustrated talks will be given by Mr. Grobb as soon as the slides have been completed, and will include his experiences in Italy, Switzerland and the Holy Land as well as a talk on the Passion Play which he witnessed while in Germany.

During the evening two short musical entertainments were given, with an instrumentl duet by Miss Olga Johnson and Miss Allin and vocal selections by Mrs. H. Doig, Herbert Rush and Mr. Lewis.

Edward Wheeler, Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, to-day told newspapermen that she had identified the man who she says shot the Rector, as well as identifying the woman whom she asserts was with the murderer.

BONAR LAW TO OPEN MEETING OWN DIVISION

Great Britain Will Soon Be Inundated With a Flood of Oratory—Parliament Dissolved.

CAMPAIGN NEWS

GLASGOW, Oct 26.—(Canadian Press).—Premier Bonar Law arrived here this morning to open his campaign in general election with speeches in his own constituency of Central Division of Glasgow.

Discussing his policy he told meeting of West Scotland Unionist Association that his strong belief was that nation needed rest and tranquility and his policy would be negative one in this sense

Government's policy would be to leave recovery from war to untrammelled initiative of men and women of country.

Poclamation dissolving parliament was signed by King George this morning at Privy Council meeting at Sandringham. Proclamation will be gazetted this afternoon. Proclamation ordered assembling of new Parliament November 20.

Oratory by aspirants for seats in new Parliament already fills land and by the end of week, electoral fight will be in full swing. Thirteen hundred candidates have now entered campaign, of these 425 are Conservatives, in round numbers Labor has about four hundred, Asquithian Liberals three hundred and Lloyd-Georgian Liberals about two hundred. To obtain outright majority in House of Commons any one party must elect 315 candidates.

Mr. Law visited Royal Exchange where he said that it was not an occasion for him to make political speech or try to obtain converts.

In position to which he was called whether it was for good or bad, he would realize that the real foundation of welfare and prosperity of the country was that the trade and industry should flourish, and he would do everything to develop trade interests.

OTTAWA, Oct. 26. — (Canadian Press). — Expressing his personal opinion that the present Exhibition Grounds were inadequate to keep pace with the growth of the Central Canada Exhibition, President G. J. Pink announced at a directors' meeting last night that he would summon a special meeting of the directors at an early date to take up the question of acquiring new grounds.

MEAT IMPORTERS ASK FOR SUPPLIES FROM THE EMPIRE

British Society Protests the Action of the Management Committee of the British Empire Exhibition.

A BREACH OF FAITH.

LONDON, Oct. 26.— (Canadian Press.)—The British Incorporated Society of Meat Importers is one of the latest organizations to protest agains tthe action of the Management committee of the British Empire Exhibition in deciding not to restrict the Exhibition restaurant supplies to Empire resources. The Council of the Society met at Smithfield yesterday and passed a resolution bearing on the matter. Copies thereof have been forwarded to the Management committee of the British Empire Exhibition, and to the Colonial Secretary, the Minister of Agriculture, President of the Board of Trade, and the High Commissions of the various Dominions.

The resolution in question expresses dismay at the indication that the catering arrangements for the Exhibition are not going to be used to the utmost for the purpose of making known the merits and the value of the food products of the Empire. It declares that undoubtedly every ounce of meat required for catering during the Exhibition could be provided from Empire sources ,and it points out that the aim of the British Empire Exhibition is to make known the value of the resources of the Empire, and it would be a breach of faith if the policy to which objection has been taken is persisted in.

LITTLE WELSHMAN STARTS HIS CAMPAIGN WITH FIGHTING SPEECH

He Counselled Calmness and Courage, and Asserted the Interests of the Country Must Come First

PEACE POLICY.

LONDON,Oct. 26.— (Associated Press.) — Former Prime Minister Lloyd George started off his campaign in London yesterday with a fighting speech to an enthusiastic meeting of the Coalition Liberal Members of Parliament here, throwing down the gauntlet to the Conservatives, whose attack upon the late Government, he declared, left no alternative but to "spread the war." The little Welshman stood by his Manchester speech of last Saturday, reiterating his declaration of intention to support any party or government pursuing a policy of peace, economy and steady progress, neither revolutionary nor reactionary.

"We are confronted," said Mr. Lloyd George at the outset, "with a very important decision affecting not merely the future of those here and those who support them in the country, but a decision which affects the interests of the country itself. That is a more important matter for us all.

"One chapter in the history of the politics of this country is for the moment closed. A new one is opened. What is printed on that page will depend largely on the attitude we adopt."

He counselled calmness and courage, and asserted the interests of the country must come first.

"I have seen parties destroyed by personal resentments," continued the former Premier. "I have seen parties rendered impotent by personal resentments. I have seen their judgment deflected, and for that reason they are not making the contribution they ought to the well-being of the people for whose prosperity we are deeply concerned. We will not make that mistake, whatever happens. We will consider the land to which we are deeply attached first. Its interests must be deepest in our hearts; its interests must be highest in our concern. Great Britain first; any party, even our own, second and even last.

Stands For Unity.

"Now, that is our policy. We have stood for national unity —that is, unity of all men, all creeds, parties and sections—for the purpose, first of all, of winning the war, and afterwards extricating the country from its after-the-war difficulties."

It was not their fault, declared Mr. Lloyd George to his hearers, if party faction had arisen and unity had been for the moment broken. The war had been won, and the country was getting through its troubles in peace gradually, and throughout the world, re-establishment and successful grappling with financial difficulties was being accomplished.

"Our credit is being built up in a way that amazed the whole world," continued Mr. Lloyd George. "Trade was beginning to turn, unemployment was going down. In fact success was becoming so manfest that some people thought it time to seize the profits." Factions had been revived and the success of the Coalition had made some of the ablest, most experienced and most honorable men in the Conservative party say: "This isn't Jannock." (Provincial English for 'fair play').

"I can understand," he continued, "a rrevolt of Under-secretaries. . . I can also understand for the reason indicated why the wiser heads of the party did not join in the revolt."

Future is Dark.

"The present may look prosperous or promising. The future is dark and difficult, and the wiser men hesitated, were reluctant, apart from the fact that, as Lord Balfour said: 'These things gentlemen don't do.' But what I cannot understand is why the majority party took that line," said the former Premier, laying empasis on these words.

"It is vital that we should not allow our view of the eastern transactions weigh against the country's interests. These are the things that matters at the beginning, at the end, and all the time."

He doubted whether the Conservatives alone could defend the fabric and institutions of the country for which millions had faced death.

"We are here," he declared, "to see how the situation which has been brought about by indiscreet, impulsive ,thoughtless men can be so handled that Great Britain shall not come to any harm by their deeds."

Mr. Lloyd George said he was unable to explain the reasons for the breakdown—that he was perplexed when he tried to find what the differences were.

"They are not to be found in the discussions of the Cabinet," he continued, "and I have looked at the speeches delivered as an indication of the policy of the government, and I am still more perplexed." He thought it hardly worth while breaking up the great national combination that had achieved so much in war and peace in order merely to substitute Lord Salisbury for Lord Balfour as Lord President of the Council.

Mr. Lloyd George asserted that conditions here were tranquil and that he had seen conditions abroad worse than now. The Genoa Pact had been kept in letter and in spirit and peace reigned along the whole disturbed area from the Baltic to the Mediterranean.

Must Be Strong.

The Ex-Premier credited the Coalition with settling the trouble between Turkey and Greece, "by strong and firm action, which showed Great Britain meant to have peace on terms honorable to our country and which would be one of security for the world." To have peace, he said, one must be strong. Great Britain was not going to extend her responsibilities, "but she must not be afraid of her responsibilities. A Britain that goes to the councils of the world afraid of her responsibilities is a Britain that will cease to count from that moment."

After declaring that he stood by his Manchester speech for support of neither revolution nor reaction, but of any party or government working along the lines of peace, economy and steady progress, Mr. Lloyd George said that in order to follow the traditional policy of the country, "we must stand for moderation in the treatment of foreign affairs and work with our allies to the best of our power, but not abandon the great British policy for which this country has always stood. We must not be tied behind the chariot of any other land."

On the question of reparations Mr. Lloyd George said there must be no attempt to impose upon Germany any payment beyond her capacity. "And what is within her capacity," he added, "she should pay. . . .

"I do not stand for a policy that would say Great Britain must pay America all her debt, but that she must not exact any payment from Germany, from France, or from anybody else. . . I am for fair play, but we must have it for our own citizens too."

Negotiations For New Trade Treaty

OTTAWA, October 26 (Canadian Press). — Negotiations for a new trade treaty between France and Canada are to be resumed in Paris by the Hon. W. S. Fielding this week, it was learned here last night.

Mr. Fielding, who has just finished his work in London on the cattle embargo question, was expected to leave to-day for Paris to begin his trade treaty negotiations with the French Government.

Value of the Franc Reaches The Lowest Mark of Year

Drop in Exchange is Attributed to British Banks Who Are Using Francs in Their Possession to Purchase American Dollars to Pay Interest on War Debt.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(Canadian Press).—French francs were quoted in this market yesterday at 7.05 cents, a new low record for the year. The par value of the franc is 19.3 cents each.

The recent depreciation in Paris exchange is a reflection of the huge deficit which France will face when its new budget is undertaken by the Chamber of Deputies. The economic crisis in Germany, which has given rise to reports of possible bankruptcy and default in its reparations payments, also has been a contributing factor.

PARIS, Oct. 26. — (Canadian Press).—The buying of dollars by British banks with French francs in their possession is said by French financiers to be the principal cause of the present weakness of the franc. The dollars were used by the British to pay the interest on their war debt to the United States.

Bankers and the financial authorities on the Government appear undisturbed by the rise of the dollar and the Pound.

"It is rarely possible to put one's finger on the actual circumstances affecting exchange," said a high official of the Bank of France to the Associatied Press yesterday, "but this time we can locate the colored gentleman in the woodpile."

"The British banks and the British Treasury, which have long been accumulating French francs, have used them, as was their right to do, to buy the dollars they needed, instead of using Pounds," he continued. "The consequence was that the payment of the big sum of interest to the United States had no bad effects on the Pound. On the contrary British business profited by the substantial depreciation of the franc."

The British banks, having disposed of their francs, cannot repeat such an operation easily again, it was pointed out. There are other factors in the situation, which also are regarded as temporary, such as the large purchases of wool and cotton in the United States by French manufacturers.

CANADIAN BLUENOSE WON SECOND RACE WITH EASE

Running True to Form the Canadian Demonstrated Her Superiority in Anything Above a Drifting Match.

A GOOD WIND.

ON BOARD H.M.C.S. PATRIOT, RACE COURSE, GLOUCESTER, Mass, October 26 (Canadian Press). — With conditions more nearly approaching fishermen's weather than any experienced in this year's series, the Bluenose, the Canadian defender of the International Fishermen's Trophy, Captain Angus Walters, yesterday decisively defeated the American challenger, Henry Ford, Captain Morrissey.

Booming from the south-west at a twenty-knot clip one hour before the start, the wind dropped to eight and then when half the course had been covered, returned to eighteen, sending both of the schooners along with all sails set in a smother of foam.

The Canadian vessel wrested the weather berth from the American at the start on the broad reach to the first mark, lost it a few minutes later as the result of clever handling on the part of the American skipper, and then regained it four hundred yards off the buoy, blanketing the challenger and coming about on the ten-mile stretch to windward for the second mark with half a minute lead to the good.

Running true to form, it was here that the Canadian demonstrated her superiority over the American in anything above a drifting match, gaining upwards of eight minutes on this section of the course.

Walters lost three minutes of his lead on the next leg, a broad reach to the outer mark, by misjudging the buoy, and again lost slightly on the next leg, which was also off the wind.

Though a somewhat closer reach on the beat to the finish, Bluenose more than held her advantage, and tore across the line, the undoubted superior of the Henry Ford in moderate weather.

A DEFICIT FROM PLOUGHING EVENT.

Directors Will Have to Dig Up Three Hundred Dollars.

LINDSAY, October 25. — The chairman of the different committees which handled all the details in connection with the recent Provincial ploughing match, met here for the purpose of settling accounts.

It was found that a deficit of $300 stared them in the face.

The event from the standpoint of attendance was a failure. The committee had been assured by members of the Provincial Executive that fully 50,000 would take in the event. Arrangements were made accordingly. Citizens were asked to provide accommodation, and a great many went to considerable expense.

Only seventeen sought accommodation in private houses. What some of the citizens say about the executive would not look well in print.

FIX RENTAL FOR MATTRESS PLANT

Mr. James Ellis Occupies Lot For $18 a Month.

The ground rent on the property occupied by the Peterborough Mattress Company on the Riverside Park area now owned by the city was reduced from $25 to $18 a month by the Committee of the Whole Council last night on a motion by Ald. M. McIntyre, seconded by Ald. Gainey. Mr. James Ellis, the proprietor of the business, has been notified that the rent would be $25 a month, otherwise he was to have the building removed by September 1st.

"Why should we reduce the rental now?" Ald. Holloway asked.

Ald. Hamilton replied that Mr. Ellis did not think the property was worth that much.

"The building will blow away one of these days," was Ald. Phelan's remark.

"It's well protected by the new bridge," said Ald. Stocker.

And then some one suggested that Mr. Ellis should be charged for the aforesaid protection the bridge affords his factory.

Street Car Lights.

Ald. Phelan moved, seconded by Ald. Hamilton, that the Hydro-electric Commission be requested to order that the street car headlights be not turned off as they are now in the central part of the city.

Ald. Phelan said that the practice of switching off the lights at Bethune street on Charlotte on all cars going east and on northbound George street cars at the C.P.R. was positively dangerous, especially on rainy nights.

It seems that the Council some time ago objected to the long, bright beams of the strong lights the street cars have always been equipped with, and requested the management to abate the danger. Accordingly, the lights have been generally turned off as the cars approached the central part of the city, but Ald. Phelan's criticism affirmed that the last state is as bad, if not worse, than the first.

Meeting Changed.

Because the first Monday of November is Thanksgiving Day, the date of the regular meeting for the month has been moved forward to Thursday, November 2nd.

STATISTICS SHOW DRUG TRAFFIC IS ON THE DECREASE IN CANADA

Witness Sworn By Liquor Pirce List

MONTREAL, Oct 26.—(Canadian Press).—During the hearing of a charge here yesterday involving a transaction for the sale of imitation "black and white" whiskey and in which the price list of the Quebec Liquor Commission was produced in evidence, a witness inadvertently placed his hand on the list instead of on the Bible while being sworn. Judge Decarie who was hearing the case comented: "Oh, very many people swear by that too."

Judge Emily Murphy Told Women's Canadian Club of the Ravages of the Drug Traffic in Canada.

MUST BE STOPPED.

OTTAWA, Oct. 26.—(Canadian Press).—Judge Emily Murphy, of Edmonton before the Women's Canadian Club at luncheon yesterday three hundred women being present, told that it has been officially calculated that ninety per cent of the drug addicts in Canada speak English, and that ninety per cent of the peddlers of drugs are foreigners. She asked if that was not stufficiently serious to arouse patriotic Canadians to assist in seeing to it that every step possible be taken to stop the manufacure of drugs.

Her Excellency Lady Byng of Vimy, accompanied by her secretary Miss Rachel Walpole, was present at the head table. Mrs. W. E. Hodgins presided.

"Unless we strangle the drug traffic"i said Mrs. Murphy, "the drug traffic will strangle us."

Mrs. Murphy in the morning visited Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and also had a conference with F. W. Cowan, Chief Narcotic Director with the Department of Health for Canada. Statistics quoted by Mrs. Murphy were mainly from Mr. Cowan's department, or officially from United States government departments.

In Austria, there is used of drugs less than one grain per capita per annum. In Germany the percentage is slightly higher. Other statistics of European countries ran higher while America (not including Canada) was using seventy two grains per capita per annum.

Although the percentage is so high in the United States yet the main springs of the traffic are accred ted to Montreal and the Canadian Pacific Coast. "Why" asked Mrs. Murphy, "should the Anglo Saxon race become drug fiends, while Europe remains sober. She told how in the United States last year five hundred thousands pounds of opium had been used, not including the amount which was smuggled in.

"We in Canada have the drug act, and Manitoba is the only province with a law restricting drugs. Last year Mrs. Murphy stated that Mr. Cowan was her authority for the fact that thirty five people in hospitals in Montreal died last year from narcotic poisoning.

"I'm too good an Anglo Saxon to make a secret of this drug traffic')', said Mrs. Murphy. She was glad to relate that in the past few years the use of drugs in Canada had declined.

Mrs. Murphy stated that every province should have a law to deal drastically with the drug traffic and she expressed the belief that Hon. Mr. Raney will "do good things for you in Ontario along this line." She hoped for another Hague conference when the nations of the world would again co-operate in killing this menace. Another hopeful feature she considered was that England was now taking the matter largely in her hands as the drug manufacture is so great in India and that telling results will soon follow.

A NEW BLOUSE AND NEAT SKIRT

The blouse couldn't be simpler. Just a hint of fullness around the waist, a buckled belt at one's natural waistline, sleeves that are not quite raglan or kimono — and there one has the new blouse.

The skirt is more adanced. It is full of folds. Shirrings on the right-hand side, drapes and folds on the left, and a drooping series of ripples down to the hem.

Velet is sponsored for the skirts as well as very fine broadcloth, satin and twill. The blouses are made of matelasse, blisltered silks or brocades.

Car Ran Into the Ditch When He Attempted to Avoid Hitting a Bicycle Rider.

CONFINED TO BED.

LONDON, October 26 (Canadian Press). — Admiral Lord Beatty was in a painful condition yesterday, following a motor car accident last Saturday, when it was considered that his injuries were very slight.

He was severely shake., though, it is understood, no bones were broken. He is still confined to his bed, however.

Lady Beatty, who was scheduled to open a new school building at Parkstone to-day, telegraphed the school authorities last night saying:

"I greatly regret that owing to my husband having had a nasty motor accident, I cannot leave him to-morrow."

PRICE-FIXING LEGISLATION.

There is in the proposal that legislation should be passed at the next session of the Ontario Legislature to appoint a price-fixing board for the Province a principle to which many people will object.

Government price-fixing has never proved successful in its primary object of protecting the consumer, and, on the other hand, the interference with legitimate business has proved decidedly detrimental.

The Legislature should study the whole situation with unusual care before committing itself to any measure that means tampering with business. Too much meddling on the part of any Government, killing initiative and interfering with competition eventually hurts the consumer as much as the man in business, and accomplishes no good.

There is an old maxim to the effect that business looks after itself better when left alone.

That certainly applies to Government interference.

Canada surely had enough experience along that line during the war to make legislators extremely chary about attempting to enforce something that obviously cannot succeed.

If the proposed price-fixing bill finds its way into the House at the next session the members of Ontario's Legislature would be well advised to go slowly with any legislation of this calibre, which is bound to hurt the merchant and cannot possibly help the consumer.

ON PARTY LINES.

The announcement that the Conservatives of Kingston are proposing to conduct the next municipal elections along political lines is interesting in view of the discussion in these columns as to how the interest of the electors in the selection of their civic boards can be stimulated.

One effective way is suggested by the Kingston plan.

A municipal election carried out on party lines would, of course, arouse more than usual interest, and each side would have the necessary organization to see that the vote was polled.

The result would undoubtedly be a much larger registration of the voting strength of the municipality.

But there is reason to fear that the cure would be worse than the disease.

Community spirit does not thrive lustily upon partizanship, and a Council chosen on party lines is not likely to function smoothly.

It is doubtful if such a method would secure any better results in civic government than are obtained at present, even if half the electors refuse to do their duty.

However, the experiment in Kingston will be worth while watching, especially if the Liberals accept the challenge thrown down.

THE ROYAL COMMISSION.

Although the taking of evidence by the Royal Commission at Ottawa in regard to charges brought by the G.W.V.A. against the Pension Board was completed several weeks ago, it will be some time before the decision of the commission is made public.

The G.W.V.A. had until yesterday to prepare written arguments in support of its charges, and the Pension Board is to have its reply in the hands of the commission by November 4th. The verbal argument of counsel on both sides will be heard on November 13th, and naturally some time will elapse before the Royal Commission will be ready to announce its findings.

The result will be awaited with interest not only by returned soldiers, but by the public generally.

It is to be hoped that whatever other conclusions may be arrived at by the commission that the principle may be laid down that when a soldier was accepted by the army as physically fit was on that account sent into active service, fought on the firing line in France and came home incapacitated, his disability shall be estimated by the Pension Board on the basis that he was in reality a fit man before he enlisted and that any incapacity from which he may be suffering was caused by service, and is therefore pensionable.

It is a travesty of justice that a disabled soldier who saw actual service in France should be refused a pension because doctors now declare that he had his disability before he became a soldier.

If that is true, why was he sent as a fit man to the firing line where only fit men were of service?

The Royal Commission will have done much for the cause of the veterans if such a recommendation should be included in its verdict.

MODERN CITY GOVERNMENT.

The demand in the more progressive cities for "expert" administration is a peculiar sign of the times, says the Montreal Star. It is generally conceded that the commission form of government, and the manager plan, have been successful mainly because they gave increased efficiency.

If the Board of Control system failed in Montreal, a few years ago, it was because electors did not exercise proper care in the selection of Controllers. With the appointment later of the Administrative Commission, by the Legislature, more satisfactory results were achieved; in fact, for the first time in many years business-like methods of administration were very strongly in evidence.

It is freely admitted by those who had long experience in civic affairs, that the supreme need in the government of cities is that each department, as well as the whole administration, shall have experts at its head, and that such experts shall be selected by proper competitive tests.

There are cities in Europe where a corps of men take up civic administration as a life vocation. They begin in one of the smallest cities. If successful they are called to a larger plane, and then to one still more important until they reach the greatest cities—the internal reorganization of which they promptly take up.

In the true sense of the word, there is but little "expert" guidance of cities in Canada. Men are placed in important civic positions largely through influence and precious little heed is given to their qualification.

CASH DONATIONS NEEDED.

It seems necessary to once again emphasize the fact that cash donations towards the relief of the Northern Ontario fire sufferers constitute the most effective form in which assistance can be given.

There is no longer need of second-hand clothing, although the bales of such supplies that were sent north when the first call for assistance was sounded proved of great service.

Mr. A. J. Young, Chairman of the Relief Committee, has made this point clear by asking that the shipments of second-hand clothing should now be discontinued.

What is required now, the Chairman declares, is new clothing, particularly heavy underwear.

In view of this statement, it is clear that those who have not yet made a contribution to the Relief Fund can achieve the best results by making a cash donation.

The efficient committee in charge of the relief work know the requirements of the situation and can be depended upon to see that the money that reaches them is spent to the best advantage and where it will do the most good.

There is no use in sending second-hand wearing apparel when the committee have emphatically declared that no more is required.

It is much better to put sufficient funds at the disposal of the men on the spot who are in a position to guarantee the maximum results from its expenditure.

Cash donations will be gladly accepted, acknowledged and sent foward by the Examiner.

WANTS EQUAL PAY.

In a letter written to this paper by a correspondent with rather pronounced views, it is advocated that we must eventually come to a state of management where there shall be an equal wage. The writer claims that it would do no good to have a sharing-up time, because inside of a week there would be those who had already secured a mortgage on the lot given to his neighbor, and he would be prepared to close on it within a month. So he holds that the equal wage is a step in advance, as in that way people would get what was needed to keep themselves and their families, and no more.

Rather a unique idea. If worked out, we suppose it would mean that we would keep out of trouble, because we would have just enough to get along on, and nothing left over. Therefore, there would be nothing to get into trouble with.

The trouble is, when we come to equalize values, we are almost lost in the task. A person hardly needs to be much of a student in economics to see how we are hopelessly mixed in our appreciation of values. Take two or three homely illustrations and it can be seen.

Begin with two horses. One is a heavy horse and the other a light, lean one. The owner of the heavy one finds that he is fitted for hard work, and he gets it good and plenty all his life. He is put in at the front end of the plow along with another horse, and he is given loads to pull here and there. In fact, whenever there is hard work to be done the heavy horse is called upon. He never gets a word of applause—gets simply his hay and oats, and now and then some mash. But all his life he does real useful work.

The other horse, the light one, has speed in him. His owner tries him out a good many times with a saddle and finds that he can run faster than any horse in the country. He is taken in hand by trainers, and is schooled and conditioned to run certain distances. Away he goes at the sound of the trumpet when the barrier lifts. People pay thousands of dollars to see that horse run, and yet in actual performance he is not doing as useful work as his heavier brother who performs with the plow. The latter, though, couldn't draw a crowd of fifty at ten cents each.

Take two girls. One marries and starts keeping house. She does the best she can for her children, and tries to train them in what she knows to be right and proper ways. She is performing a work that is really the backbone of our national fabric. Take away the mothers and what have we left? Our boys and girls would lack the guidance and direction that they can secure in no other way. By way of reward, what does she get in actual dollars and cents? She shares with her husband what he gets, and no more. Another girl goes into the movies, and succeeds. People pay thousands of dollars to see the pictures where she appears. And yet from point of actual service to the country and to the life of the nation there can be no comparison between the contribution made by mothers and moving-picture actresses.

When there was war thousands of our young men put the musket on their shoulder and took their lives in their hands. We rewarded them with $1.10 per day, with rations and clothing. For this they took all the chances of war, and many of those who returned were maimed and unable to work. When two prize-fighters get up in a ring the same public that handed its soldiers $1.10 per day puts its hand in its pocket and gets out its hundreds of thousands to see two men fight when there is small chance of either one getting anything more than a black eye and a battered jaw. The soldier was fighting for the life of his country, and the two pugilists were fighting for the benefit of their own pockets, and yet we place the seal of financial approval on the ringside bout.

These illustrations could be continued indefinitely, but to no good purpose once the point is established. Talk of equal remuneration regardless of what a person is engaged at is nonsense unless we are first to have a revolution that will take from every person the last copper he possesses and reduce us all to the point of starvation. Then it might be possible to deal with the few survivors on the basis of a dollar a day per man, woman and child, but please wait until we're through before you start the experiment.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The official organ of the G.W.V.A. continues to protest that returned soldiers are being discriminated against in the matter of appointments in several Federal departments. The charges should be answered by those responsible.

The odds are that the Toronto Star will point out that Andrew Bonar Law is a Labour man because he belongs to the Cabinetmakers' Union.

With a Henry Ford as one of the contestants, it is not to be wondered at that the international fishermen's race threatened to prove a "flivver."

Mr. A. J. Young's renewed suggestion that the great needs in the north are warm, new clothes and heavy underclothes indicates that some people have been contributing under the impression that Haileybury is in the banana belt, points out the Globe. It is a point that should be remembered in Peterborough.

Toronto telephone operators now say "Thank you" instead of repeating the number given or one that sounds something like it. Then they proceed to connect you with the wrong number in the same old way.

CUT LICENSE FEE ON THE CITY'S 59 POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES

Reduction of $5 Recommended By Committee of Whole Council—Cigarette Tax Unchanged — Pool Table Charge Highest in Ontario.

GAMBLING REPORTED

Pool and billiard licenses will be reduced to $35 a table on and after November 1, according to the resolution passed by the Committee of the Whole Council last night in response to the petition received from pool-room proprietors a short time ago. Provision is also made in the recommendation for a proportionate refund to those who have paid their licenses prior to the date on which the reduction takes effect.

Peterborough's tax per table has been $40, and the Ontario Government made a further assessment of $15 a table, bringing the total tax to $55 a table, which the pool-room interests complained were the highest in the Province. The Government's tax was apparently the "last straw," and probably, under the conviction that it was futile to apply to the Government, the pool-room owners presented their plea for redress to the Council.

"The trouble is, there are too many licenses," remarked Ald. Gainey.

"We have the granting of licenses in our hands, and if we know anything about any of the pool-rooms they should be discussed," said Ald. Hamilton.

Gamble on "Snooker."

Ald. Holloway referred to the "snooker" tables and intimated that they invited gambling. "You won't let a man play poker, but you let boys in some pool-rooms spend a dollar or two a night, and the mothers of some of these boys are taking in washing. If their mothers asked them for that money there would be a row."

Ald. Holloway suggested that some of the pool-room licenses should be withheld and the benefit given to the hotels which were providing various accomodation for the public and deserved assistance.

Ald. Stocker denied any knowledge of conditions in the pool-rooms, but he understood that on "snooker" tables one might make a "five dollar shot in five minutes." He moved that action be deferred until it was learned what proposals the Hotel Commission brought in for the relief of the hotel industry in Ontario From some reports of the meetings of the commission in different parts of the Province he believed that the hotels might receive some advantage in regard to pool-room privileges.

The motion reducing the license fee from $40 to $35 a table was proposed by Ald. Holloway and seconded by Ald. Morrison.

Fifty-Nine Tables.

The information before Mayor Taylor showed that there were 59 pool and billiard tables licensed at present in this city. Of these the hotels had thirteen—two at the Empress, seven at the Munro House and four at King's Hotel. The larger resorts were the Yeotes rooms with twenty tables, Finnie & Leach with eight and Tascha Lazaroff in the Royal Theatre basement with five. In Ashburnham G. Spencer has two and Welsh one.

Cigarettes Unchanged.

The committee perused the whole list of licenses, and while considering the sale fees for cigarettes reached the stage at which several resolutions were outlined, but finally withdrawn on Ald. Gainey's suggestion that no action be taken, but that this matter be left to the tobacconists who could present to the Council any request upon which they were agreed.

The license fee for selling cigarettes is $20, but there is no municipal tax upon the sale of other tobaccos. This discrimination had been designed to discourage the use of cigarettes, it was stated, but experience was proving that many men were buying tobacco and papers and "rolling their own."

Ald. Gainey said that all tobacco stores in Toronto were licensed. A report last week intimated that the revenue from cigarettes had dropped one-third, he said.

"I would rather see the tax lifted entirely," he continued. "But some dealers prefer a heavier tax of say $50. This would have the tendency to shut out some of the smaller dealers. Personally I can't see why cigarettes are singled out for a tax and tobaccos may be sold without any charge. If you licensed tobacco it might cut out some of the smaller grocers around the city, and I don't want to injure the business of any of them."

Ald. Holloway: "How would it be to tax everybody who sells tobacco $10 a year?"

Ald. Hamilton: "And $10 extra for selling cigarettes."

Ald. Morrison moved that the cigarettes tax be "split in two."

Ald. Hamilton: "In spite of all the women's organizations?"

Ald. Morrison: "I never use tobacco myself. They couldn't find fault with that."

Ice Cream "Tents."

Finally deciding to let the tobacconists prepare their own case, if they so desired, the committee turned their attentions to the "eating house" license of $5, and especially to the roadside development of recent summers, the tents where ice cream and soft drinks are sold. They are temporary boo's, coinciding with the period of fine weather.

Members of the committee said that it was an oversight to have granted licenses for these booths because of their opposition to merchants who are in business the year round. It was suggested that the fee for these stalls might be increased, but Mayor Tayl reminded the committee that no discrimination could be made between businesses that properly belonged to this class. However, it was understood that licenses could be withheld, and this may be the policy for next summer.

Ald. Holloway also mentioned the practice of opening a retail fruit business in a tent, and asserted that this was not fair to merchants in the same line of trade who occupied stores.

The answer was that no discrimination could be made. There is no tax on the sale of foods produced in this Province.

The members present were Aldermen Phelan, Stocker, Hamilton, Holloway, Goiney and Morrison, with Mayor Taylor in the chair.

THE MYSTERY MIND

Arthur B. Reeve and John W. Grey

"The Strangler meets his death as a sacrifice to the Devil God," he muttered, "and I guess he deserves it. At least we can't afford to try to save him. But"—he lowered his voice unconsciously and became excited—"there's some poor devil up ahead of here, a missionary or a prospector or something, and Evil Eye is telling them that he, too, must be a sacrifice. He's unprotected, and they're going after him before dawn.

"You mean——" Randolph caught the fever of Dupont's excitement.

"I mean we ought to go to his rescue; that is, if Violet—"

She rose. "Of course Come on Hurry"

It was necessary to make a wide circuit, away from the stream, through the virgin forest, in absolute darkness. Randolph took the lead as the better woodsman, guiding their course in a semicircle around the dim glow from the distant camp fire.

After half an hour they heard sudden cries in a deep male voice, unrestrained cries of terror and pain. Gradually the pitch of the man's voice mounted until it became a shrill scream. Then there was silence, deep and somehow terrifying. After fifteen minutes brought them back to the little waterway, making their further course comparatively easy and comfortable.

As they reached the banks of the creek the faint wind brought a terrible stench up the surface of the water. Violet coughed.

"What—what's that awful smell?" she asked.

Dupont nudged Randolph so that the adventurer would not tell her. The hypnotist did not wish the incident to linger in her memory. He hoped that she would not guess. It was the odor of burning flesh, however. It told of the fate of the Strangler, the fate from which they must rescue the unknown farther ahead of them in the foothills of the mountains.

By the luminous hands of Randolph's watch it was just past midnight. This was Port of Spain time. The adventurer decided that their destination would be not more than a three hours' journey through the blackness of the night; that they should attempt to cover ground at somewhat faster rate than the head hunters, who would follow them.

The strain was hardest on Randolph because of his bare feet. Violet stumbled forward with the greatest of difficulty. Dupont felt an overmastering fatigue grasping at his muscles, at his brain, at his very purpose. Yet the three kept on. There was a man's life to save; at the same time there were the head hunters to fight, their old enemies to capture, a portrait to be regained.

After something over two hours an open space broke before them unexpectedly. Randolph made the discovery that it had been cleared by the hand of man; that a rude log cabin hovered in the impenetrable shadow of the forest. They rushed to the door, and Dupont, with the butt of his revolver, pounded upon the panels vigorously.

Finally a light sprang up within. They heard a voice, somewhat apprehensive, in Spanish.

"Yes What is it? Who is it?"

Dupont answered. "Friends, senor We come to warn you of danger Open quickly"

The heavy bar within was taken down and the door was opened to reveal, in the light of a lamp, the full-bearded figure of a prospector, stooped, gray, somewhat nervous at this intrusion; a man easily in his fifties. In the cabin was a rude cot, a table and chair hewn from logs, and the mining tools which told Dupont the occupation of their host and his probable purpose in these euexplored wilds.

"Come—come in" he exclaimed, still in Spanish.

Then he looked at his guests. Both Randolph and Dupont were unshaven and grimy with dirt. Yet their skin was white, with only the tan of the sportsman. Their clothes, despite the adventurer's bare and bloody feet, were of obviously good qua'ity, not meant for roughing it for months at a time in the open, not showing signs of the almost impossible journey up from the coast.

Violet made an even more incomprehensible figure. Her hair was hopelessly matted upon her head, a disgrace to the coiffure of an aboringine. She was burned black in the sun. Her skin was hard from exposure and dirt. The leather boots of the aviator were in strange contrast with the torn, shrunken remnants of the sailor suit, barely covering her. At first glance she might have been a savage youth. All her soft, feminine curves, had disappeared in the long weeks behind her; even her mouth had developed a superficial masculine firmness.

The prospector studied the men first, dismissing Violet from his thoughts in the initial casual glance. After some hesitation he smiled, addressing Dupont.

"You appear English to me," he remarked, dropping into that language.

The groom's niece, little four-year-old Leonora Kennedy, served as flower girl. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Rufus Payne sang "Until" and at the close of the ceremony Mrs. Hamblin played Mendelssohn's Wedding March. The bride wore a suit of navy blue and carried a corsage boquet of sunset roses. The church was prettily decorated with Autumn leaves.

Mr. and Mrs. Thurston left directly for Peterboro, where they and friends, 22 in all, took dinner at Hoopers. The bride and groom are enjoying a three weeks' honeymoon at Greenhurst, Sturgeon Lake.

CROP REPORTS

Following is a summary of the reports made by the agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Farmers, with the large grain, corn and rot yields, have never had a busier late summer and fall. They have been hard put to it for help in many quarters, although Prince Edward says that more men than usual are expressing a desire to work on the farm.

The root crops are now being taken up, and the favourable weather so far prevailing has been much appreciated and utilised.

Speaking of sugar beets, Kent says: "Sugar beets are running an average of around 7½ to 8 tons per acre. Some as high as 10 and 11 tons. The sugar percentage will be from 12 to 16 per cent., with an average of 14.5 or 15 per cent."

Reports come from counties in the different parts of the Province regarding rot in potatoes, its appearance in some cases being serious.

A good deal of fall ploughing has been done during the week by both horses and tractors, although the land was somewhat dry.

Fall wheat has developed a nice head in most cases, is looking as if it would be in good shape for the winter.

Following are references to the apple crop in some of the Western counties:

Middlesex—Apples are bringing $5.00 a barrel for No. 1's. Buyers are holding back, due to Western firms desiring to buy so they can sell at 5.00. This leaves orchardists very little for handling, and much of the poorer grade fruit is not being picked. Entire orchards will be unthought-ched, and no doubt later on there will be a shortage.

Brant—No. 1 Spies have been selling loially at as high as $7.00 per barrel. There is a strong demand for this class of fruit, but very little to sell. The most of the better sprayed orchards have been sold early in the season, and will be shipped out, leaving the poorer quality for the local people."

Live stock are in excellent condition, generally speaking, and an abundance of all kinds of fodder is the rule.

Brant says: Feeding cattle are being locally at as high as $7.00 per pound during the past week. One car of 26 good cattle were bought at 5½c by a local farmer. These were steers, heifers having been placed at about ½c a pound cheaper. At a recent sale in the vicinity of Brantford grade cows ran from $80.00 to $120.00—this was exceptional, the more general price being $70.00 to $75.00. Very few little pigs have been offered lately, farmers are asking from $14.00 to $15.00 per pair. Lambs have been sold during the past week at prices ranging from 10c to 11c per pound.

Bruce states: A considerable number of heavy cattle were loaded dur the week at various points. Two car loads of Western stockers and feeders were shipped in a week ago, but were not picked up readily, and consequently sold at a sacrifice price. A number of car loads of hogs have been shipped during the week. They are over finished, and consequently not over 10 to 25 per cent. of them will grade selects.

South Simcoe says: Considerably larger shipments of hogs were made this week than for some weeks previous, and $9.75 per cwt. was paid locally. A number of feeder steers are changing hands. Some are being bought at the shipping points by the farmers at from $4.50 to $4.75 per cwt. for first-class ones, while the rather inferior stockers are bringing .03c a pound.

Kent says that a number of feeding steers have been brought in from the West.

North Simcoe reports that a good team of Clydesdale mares sold for $205.00 at a recent sale, a cow at $27.00, and two sows at $29.00 each.

Manitoulin reports: Quite a number of cattle are being shipped. Fairly good steers are selling from 4c to 5c per pound, two-year-old feeders running from $30.00 to $40.00. Good ones are rather scarce, as there seems to be a good demand and a number of outside buyers are shipping to Eastern points.

Algoma says: Cattle are in very good condition, but the local market for stock is very dull. A number of shipments have been made to Toronto by clubs and drovers. Two-year-olds bring from $30.00 to $40.00 locally.

TORONTO, October 26. Canadian Press. — A verdict will probably be returned to-day in the case of Robt. The defence placed three medical men in the witness box yesterday in an effort to show that Stevenson was insane at the time of the murder. Dr. Harvey Clare, however, for the Crown, testified that Stevenson never had been a victim of Mental disease.

THERE is such a simple easy way of washing rompers, school ginghams, play clothes etc., that you won't mind how many there are—thanks to Rinso.

WOMEN AND HOME

Conducted by JEANNETTE

STOLID YORKSHIRE PEOPLE INSPIRED.

At the convention held here last week of the Ontario Provincial Command of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the G.W.V.A., an interesting account was given by one of the Toronto delegates of the placing of the colours worked by the ladies of Toronto District in the cathedral at Wakefield, England.

Far from being a minor event of little importance, the people of Wakefield made this a memorable and colourful ceremony, the correspondent who described the affair saying: "It was clear that for once the stolid Yorkshire people were touched and inspired by this noble gesture from overseas," which he considered a manifestation of loyalty and affection from one section to another of an Empire that fought and suffered for the same ideals and the same ends.

With the cathedral bells pealing, the bands playing, with the streets lined for blocks with attentive and cheering citizens; with the Mayor accompanied by his mace-bearer, the aldermen and councillors in full regalia; with a squad of police and a thousand of the officers and men of the King's Own in attendance, the colours were triumphantly borne to the cathedral. Here, where, the writer notes, the hacking cough of many a sick soldier sounded in the intervals of the splendid music by the choir and the bugler's band, the flags were offered by Canon Scott, the popular padre of the overseas boys, and accepted by Canon McLeod, and hung with solemn ceremonial in the south transept, directly over the marble tomb of the first Bishop of Wakefield Cathedral, Dr. W. W. How. "Many who had forgotten or neglected friends in Canada," says the narrator, "suddenly decided to renew old relations. All seemed to be drawn together by some indefinable influence.

Canon Scott, in his address on this occasion, "lashed out in reproach and admonition to those responsible for the plight of the neglected or forgotten soldier whose situation in Canada in some respects is as bad as it is here." Denouncing the "systematic inhumanity and neglect which is the lot of the ex-soldier today" the speaker asserted that their welfare and the responsibility of their country towards them was not a matter of charity but of national obligation."

THIS CONCERT IS FOR WORTHY CAUSE.

The concert to be given in aid of the Well Babies' Clinic in the Conservatory of Music Hall on Friday evening of this week should be sure of a large patronage. Arranged by Mrs. M. H. Park, with the entire proceeds to be turned over to the Clinic, the programme shows an interesting variety of song and dance solos, with violin, piano and cornet selections, readings, and numbers given by the Imperial Male Quartette. The Major Bennett chapter, which, with the Peter Robinson Chapter of the I.O.D.E., has always taken great interest in the good work of the Babies' Clinic, will provide ushers for the occasion, and the Heintzman Company is providing programmes and piano.

It is unnecessary to speak of the good that is being done, has been done, and will continue to be done, by this Clinic. Mothers who bring their babies here to be examined and to receive free advice in regard to their feeding and general care, are unanimous in their expressions of gratitude for the practical knowledge gained here and the invaluable advice received. If "A nation's greatest asset lies in its children," it behooves that nation to look after its children as carefully as possible. That is merely common sense.

If the school curriculum of the present day contained compulsory courses in home-making, hygiene and the care of infants, such places as the Well Babies' Clinic would not be necessary. But appalling ignorance of these things is the experience of social welfare workers when brought in contact with the young mothers of the present generation, and such a means has been devised to bridge the gap between the mother's inability to care for her offspring properly, and the inability of that offspring to care for itself.

Pre-natal instruction and attention is the present aim of the Clinic, hampered, although the demands are many and imperative, by lack of funds. Willing workers have for years given much attention and time to voluntary service in the work, but there are cases where more than time and attention are needed. The gratuitous service of the Clinic doctors, the scanty pay accorded to the secretary and the Clinic nurse, which is a small return for the whole-hearted devotion they bring to their work, the assistance rendered by societies in the matter of donations and babies' clothing, are proving inadequate as time brings constantly-increasing numbers of mothers seeking for advice and guidance, and of that most imperative of all little creatures in the world, because the most helpless, the baby.

LOT OF POOR MAN BECOMING HARDER.

The lot of the average male citizen is becoming harder and harder. Probably in years to come, if things go on as they appear to be progressing at present, we will have prophets arising to denounce the arbitrary woman, and appeal for justice and right for the man, just as they did in year gone by for the suffering ladies. Here and now we have men whose old friends of politics and business have been invaded by the female of the species. There is no longer anything sacred from the woman. She goes everywhere and attempts nearly everything that a man can do. In a recent issue of a current magazine, the heroine is described as a beautiful young creature who smokes and swears, who holds her liquor as well as any man, and who would never be accused under any circumstances of being a prude. And then the ladies who are not busy with the special prerogatives of the male are equally busy in seeing that his special privileges of old are curtailed as much as possible. The very latest thing they have devised to add to his discomfort is the law that says he cannot leave his wife and home and fly with a fairer affinity to foregn parts, not at least, on the same continent. If a man weary of domestic trials, should elect to take a little trip to the U.S. for instance, with a lady who is somewhat younger and more amiable than his wife, just to procure a little vacation from the family circle and his more or less large family, he is now liable to extradition and an ignominious return. And yet, a firm advocate of the persecuted man of the present generation makes the assertion that wife-desertion is increasing annually in Canada, and that the primary cause is the attention now given by women to matters directly outside the circle of the domestic hearth. Presumably, therefore, the woman who takes an interest in other things besides her duties which are supposed to be peculiarly hers from time immemorial, is in constant danger of losing her husband, but, on the other hand, her influence has widened sufficiently to permit her to force legislation that will bring him back to her. The consideration, loyalty and faithfulness that was supposedly hers by inclination in the olden days she can now demand and enforce as a right, which may have somthing to do with the contention made by novelists and others that Romance, with a capital R, is rapidly vanishing from the affairs of life.

It is said of the Amazons, that race of heroic women who lived and had their being in the historic past, that, when the finally accomplished their purpose of entire subjugation of their male companions, the two opposing factions made an agreement to live entirely separate, and to meet only once a year, for advice with regard to business matters. After several years of such separation, they finally decided that life was dull under such circumstances, but the more or less veracious historian remarks that it was the ladies who made the first overtures for a resumption of friendly relations.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY

For a Hallowe'en party, decorate your home with a few yards of red and yellow scrim or cheese-cloth, with jack-o'-lanterns, fall leaves and bunches of corn, and with witch-like cut-outs from black paper.

On your menu, don't neglect the Fortune Cake. It contains a ring, a thimble and a dime. Whoever gets the ring will be married soon; the thimble means celibacy; the dime, wealth.

Everybody knows the game of backing down a stairway, a candle in one hand; in the other a mirror, he'd before the face. In the mirror you'll see a reflection of your future spouse—if you've imagination enough.

Then have each guest throw an apple paring over his head—or hers. Falling, it will take the shape of a letter, the initial of the person the experimenter is to wed.

Next let them try pouring melted lead, through a ring, into a dish of water. The shape the lead takes will suggest something or other. If it looks like a torch, that guest will achieve fame; like a horn of plenty, riches; a bottle a career as a bootlegger perhaps; and so on.

Bobbing for apples always is popular. Tie the contestants' hands behind them and set them to fishing apples from a tubful of water with their teeth. Give the winner a prize.

An apple dangled by a string from the ceiling is hard to catch between the teeth, too. Have your guests try this, for a prize.

Thread a raisin on a string a yard long and start two guests on a race for it, by chewing the string one at each end. The winner gets the raisin as a prize.

Seat your guests, one after another, on a round bottle laid lengthwise on the floor, the task being to thread a needle in this position. There's a prize for this, too.

Name two chestnuts, one after an engaged girl, the other after the man she's to marry, and put them on a fire. If one sizzles and steams it signifies bad temper; if both, strife; if they bounce apart, separation; if they burn quickly to ashes together, a long, happy married life.

Have your guests cut open an apple apiece, and count the seeds. Two mean early marriage; three, a legacy; four, great wealth; five, a sea voyage; six, fame, seven fulfillment of any wish that guest may make.

Provide a number of little boats—one for each guest—from halves of walnut shells, with a bit of lighted Christmas candle in each. Set them afloat in a tub. The boat's owners will behave as the boats behave. Some will glide away together. Some may be wrecked. The one whose candle goes out first will never wed.

The guests after returning home, must place, each one, a glass of water, containing a sliver of wood, beside his bed or hers. During the night, the sleeper will dream of falling into a stream and being rescued by the man or woman the slumberer is to wed. "Last Hallow Eve" wrote the poet Gay, "I looked my love to see, and tried a spell to call her up to me; with wood and water standing by my side, I dreamed a dream, and saw my own sweet bride."

ADJUST THEMSELVES TO CIRCUMSTANCES.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Storey of Sarnia were visitors to Peterboro last summer on a unique honeymoon trip when, in their 18 foot canoe, with their dog, "Happy", they covered some 1,500 miles by water, down through Lake Erie and Huron and St. Clair.

This week, we had Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Saunders of London with us, with their companion, A. P. Griffin of Oshawa, on a hiking tour from coast to coast that would take them some 3,600 miles by foot before its completion. Never accepting a ride, the little Mrs. Saunders faced the prospect of a winter spent in walking without the slightest discomposure. A dainty, pretty little lady, with pink cheeks and dark eyes, she had become quite accustomed, she said, to walking thirty and more miles a day with her two companions, carrying a load as they did, wearing knickers and light clothing, and stopping at stray farmhouses for a night's shelter, sometimes grudgingly, sometimes heartily, given.

Anyone who doubts the ability of the lady of today to adjust herself to any circumstances whatsoever should have an opportunity of seeing these women. Mrs. Storey and Mrs. Saunders both seemed to be perfectly healthy and much more happy than the average woman whose thought are taken up with domestic and household cares. Perhaps it was the absence of these worries that made them both so contented with their lot, but, at any rate, they were two pleased and cheerful women, both attired in the plainest and most comfortable of clothing, both looking quite attractive, nevertheless, and both real normal specimens of young womanhood. The description given of their nights later on, when, lacking an available farmhouse, they may be obliged to make their beds in a snowbank and cover themselves with blankets and snow, "with just a peephole for air" merely elicited a smile from Mrs. Saunders, whose slender little feet have already covered some 1,500 miles without any visible signs of discomfort.

Household Hints

NAVY BLUE.

Despite the fact that brown is the leading shade, some very beautiful three-piece costumes are in navy blue with jackets covered with embroidery in coarse silk floss.

WOODEN BEADS.

Wooden beads are used extensively on this season's garments—one of the most original uses is on winter coats, where they are arranged with mathematical precision abou one inch apart over the entire surface.

COIFFURES.

The smartest earrings are of antique metal and semi - precious stones rather than brilliant materials and costly gems. With the very learge earrings the proper coiffure is the one which draws the hair back plainly and reveals the lobe of the ear.

PROTECTION.

Wear gloves when you clean silver, not only to protect your hands but to prevent them from touching the cleaned surface. The warmth of your hands causes fingermarks to appear.

SMART COATS.

Very straight, slender looking coats of black broadcloth have wide sleeves and wide crush collars heavily embroidered in silver braid.

DECORATIVE.

Smart costume blouses for summer wear are of gold or silver lace over light foundations of metal cloth. Usually a few French ribbon flowers are added to advantage.

The elephants of Ceylon are valued for their superior strength and docility.

The Mother's Dream That Ended a Daughter's Love-Mad Romance

Visions of Fire and a Skyscraper Falling to Crush Pretty Rose, Halted Grandpa Tondra's Elopement With His Favorite Pupil and Ended Their Infatuation

"It was," said the girl as she described that moment, "like the famous painting I have seen called 'The Kreutzer Sonata.' He kissed me and I returned his kiss. Then I tore myself from him and rushed out of the studio, my face burning, my heart on fire."

A SKYSCRAPER was falling. Its top crumbled. Its walls split. One huge side swayed outward and downward. Nothing could save the little girl on the sidewalk from being crushed like a bug.

Mrs. John Beszedes tried to scream to the little girl. Her voice choked in her throat. She tried to catch the falling wall, to hold up the building with her two hands. But the wall came on—falling—falling—until it fanned the little girl—touched her——

Mrs. Beszedes sat up in bed, whimpering. In her fancy she could still see the skyscraper crushing her daughter, Rosie. But it was only a dream. Mrs. Beszedes turned over and went to sleep again.

Now she dreamed of a fire. It was in her own home. It was raging in Rosie's room. It was burning through the door of Rosie's closet. It was licking at Rosie's pretty frocks—burning them up—burning them up——

Mrs. Beszedes started awake again. This time she didn't go back to sleep. Without arousing her husband she slid out of bed and pattered across the hall. There was nobody in Rosie's room because Rosie was spending the night with a girl friend in Newark. Mrs. Beszedes opened the door of Rosie's closet. It was stripped bare as an empty house!

"John!" shrieked Mrs. Beszedes. "John! John!" And when her husband came running and shouting to know what was the matter, Mrs. Beszedes cried, "Call the police! Call the police! Rosie's run away with Professor Tondra!"

A few hours later telegrams to the Albany, N. Y., police stopped Rosie and Professor Albert B. Tondra, music teacher and married man, on their way to Canada. At the very outset of their flight their love-mad elopement was halted by the strange dream of Rosie's mother. Tondra was brought back under arrest, Rosie was restored to her parents, and an investigation revealed the details of one of the most amazing romances the city of Yonkers had ever known.

Professor Tondra, a man in his late forties, had lived in Yonkers since he was a boy of ten. For twenty-eight years he had taught music there. He was a celebrity, the spokesman of the arts, the trainer of youth, the town Chopin, the local Liszt. To be a pupil of Tondra was to be everything Yonkers offered musically. His fellow citizens respected him, honored him, liked him.

Tondra was married. He was a father and a grandfather. Two children had left the family nest to make their own homes. A boy of seventeen was the only child left to Mr. and Mrs. Tondra. They were known as a happy household.

But when Tondra was forty-five this quiet happiness of his was terrifically shaken. He himself is bewildered to account for the thing that suddenly happened to him. He had always loved Mrs. Tondra. He still loved her, he says, in the serene way that had become their habit. But now, in his Indian Summer, there bloomed a second love—a love that seized him and swept him with a strange, unreasoning rapture.

The spark flamed when he first saw Rosie Beszedes. She was only fifteen—young enough to be his daughter—but she was beautiful—a slender, vivid child, whose brown eyes were lustrous with the love of music that was so big a part of her.

Rosie was the daughter of well-to-do parents. They cherished her as the apple of their eye. They encouraged her talent. They dreamed of a future for her as a great pianist. They sent her to Professor Tondra, the famous teacher.

That was last January. It was not long before Rosie was Professor Tondra's star pupil. She gave a recital at which she was hailed as a prodigy. So impressed was Professor Tondra by her proficiency that he engaged her as his assistant. She taught his junior pupils and acted as his secretary.

Just when the acquaintance between teacher and pupil passed beyond the line of mere friendship and burst into ardent love, neither Rosie nor Professor Tondra is certain. But that transition did take place, they admit, one Spring afternoon in Professor Tondra's studio.

There, in an atmosphere of soft dusk and the throbbing music of Wagner and Beethoven and other masters, the flame of love unmanned the teacher so that he could no longer control his emotions. Married man, father and grandfather though he was, he reached down and took Rosie in his arms where she sat at the piano.

"It was," said the girl, as she described that moment, "like that famous painting I have seen called 'The Kreutzer Sonata.' He kissed me and I returned his kiss. Then I tore myself from him and rushed out of the studio, my face burning, my heart on fire."

That day marked the beginning of a dual love struggle—a battle on Tondra's part to fight down his feeling for the girl which he felt was winning him away from his wife and family and all the fruit of his twenty-eight years of labor; on the part of the girl to resist the attraction of a man so much older than herself, married to another woman, yet fascinating.

Rose M. Beszedes, the Professor's Musical Prodigy Pupil for Love of Whom He Was Forsaking Wife, Children and Grandchildren, When the Police Overtook the Runaways.

"It was not the girl's fault," said Tondra afterward. "I do not see where it was my fault. All my life I had been a good husband and a good father. I had worked hard in my art. I had made a reputation as a good teacher and a good citizen. I was not unhappy at home. I asked nothing else of life. But without my asking life put this problem and this temptation across my path. Before heaven, I did my utmost to crush my feeling for the girl. But I failed. I could not kill it!"

And said Rosie: "I thought it was wonderful when I began to take lessons from Professor Tondra—even more wonderful when he liked my playing and gave me the position as his assistant. I loved music, I loved teaching. Is it any wonder that I began to love him, too? When he would speak to me, touch my hand, I felt powerless to resist him. And then he made open love to me—kissed me. Away from the studio I was frightened, uncertain. But with him, I knew I loved him."

In this state of affairs neither Rosie nor Tondra knew where they were drifting. People were beginning to talk. Their families were getting suspicious. Mrs. Tondra had told her husband she did not think it quite right for him to be shut up in the studio with the young girl for such long hours. Rosie's mother was troubled. She went to Tondra, spurred by intuition more than anything else, and told him Rosie was very young and she was anxious about her. And Tondra could only reassure her that his interest in Rosie was simply professional.

Tondra says he was half crazed—wanting to deal justly by the girl, yet powerless to throw off her witchery. He wrote to several towns in Canada, inquiring about the prospects for a music teacher. He had several favorable replies. He and Rosie talked it over. They decided to act—"all for love and the world well lost."

Tondra had two trunks at his studio. Piece by piece, Rosie removed her clothes from her home and took them to Tondra's studio. Between them they had only a few hundred dollars, for Tondra was not a rich man. But it was enough to pay their railroad fare to Niagara Falls, thence across the border, and to keep them until they were established.

Forty-eight hours' start was all they needed. Tondra informed his wife he was going on a vacation. He left one Saturday morning. That same day Rosie asked her mother if she might go to Newark to spend the night and Sunday with her friend Helen. Permission was readily granted. Rosie went to Newark and spent the night with Helen. But early Sunday morning she met Tondra in New York and the elopement began.

Their well-laid plans might not have miscarried in the slightest particular—Rosie and Tondra might now be embowered in some little cottage in an obscure Canadian town, Mrs. Beszedes might be mourning the loss of a daughter and Mrs. Tondra the loss of a husband—had it not been for the dream Mrs. Beszedes dreamed the night Rosie left for Newark.

Or, rather, the two dreams—the one where disaster, in the form of that toppling skyscraper, threatened her little girl; the second, where fire was eating up all Rosie's pretty frocks. Mrs. Beszedes is not a superstitious woman, but she firmly believes that Providence woke her from sleep and led her to the closet, where the empty rows of hooks told her what she had long feared—that Rosie had eloped with Tondra.

Mr. Beszedes' first action, when his wife cried her suspicions at him, was to telephone Mrs. Tondra. The wife of the music teacher laughed at them. She was certain Tondra was on his vacation. It was ridiculous to imagine he and Rosie were running away together. But Mr. and Mrs. Beszedes were so sure in their suspicions that they went to the police. A telephone call to Newark followed. And telegrams to the Albany police did the rest.

Tondra was held under $5,000 bail on a charge of abduction. He told the court that his relations with the girl had been entirely proper, but confessed the full details of their elopement. He appeared to be crushed, declaring he could never live down the wreck of his name, his family and his art.

Mrs. Tondra forgave him. Weeping bitterly, she said he had always been the best of husbands to her. He was the victim of an infatuation, she declared, yet she did not have it in her heart to hate the girl.

Rosie was placed in care of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. When she is sixteen she will go back to her parents. Her ill-starred romance she will not allow to spoil her life, she says. She is young yet. There is music—hope—ambition.

As for Mrs. Beszedes, she sobbed heartbrokenly as her daughter clung in her arms. But through her grief shone one thankful ray—she thanked God for the dream that came to her in time to save her daughter from that final irrevocable step.

WHAT WOMEN WEAR ON FIFTH AVENUE

As the fall season really opens, Fifth avenue, New York, is as good a place as another to watch the new styles come out of their boxes.

Dark Blue Poiret twill frocks are showing trimmings of blue and red Paisley as well as whole blouses of this same material.

Seal brown is the popular color for the popular Canton crepe frocks and for street wear these are usually quite plain—some of the smartest all-over patterns of chenille dots.

Suits are already making a showing of tailored smartness. They are tan and gray and navy—mostly navy.

All black is still preferred by older women, brown and navy by those more interested in style changes.

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief For Acid Indigestion.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomach-ache, and inability to retain food are in probably nine cases out of ten, simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or whenever gas, sourness, or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments, and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use.

An antiacid, such as Bisurated Magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial digestents. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bisurated Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purpose.

STRONG APPEAL FOR NORTHERN SUFFERERS.

That unless a continuous supply of money and supplies was forthcoming keen hardships would be endured by the people who lost everything in the Northern Ontario fire zone, is the report brought back by Dr. C. A. Hodgetts, honorary secretary of the Northern Ontario Relief Committee who went up to investigate and make a report. Dr. Hodgetts reports that relief arrangements have been well systematized in the north. Peterborough is expected to give her share in contributing to the relief fund. LATER STORY OF THE GREAT RACE

Ford's Topmast Broke Off Half Way Up and Settled Contest.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 26.—(Canadian Press.)— In the International fisherman's schooner race, the boats were sent away at 11 o'clock to-day, with the Bluenose leading by 37 seconds and going very fast.

Captain Walters won all the honors at the start. Ten minutes before he berthed the Bluenose to the weather side of the Ford and both boats came down from West Gloucester shore before the wind. Five minutes before the start, the Ford, instead of giving over and heading for the wind, tacked ship and lost nearly two minutes while in stay stails.

Nothing very interesting occurred in sailing of the boats for ninety minutes; then a little breeze sprang up. At this time the Ford was about a hundred yards behind the Bluenose.

The Ford caught the Bluenose at the second mark, but could not get between her and the buoy. The Ford's crew was slow in shifting their staysail and the Bluenose gained 20 yards on this account.

At 2 o'clock the Ford was nearly a mile astern, but seemed to be picking up. The breeze had increased to twenty knots. The Ford was so far astern, however, that it seemed she had little chance of winning. The Bluenose had covered about half of the distance to the fourth mark when she tacked to starboard.

The Ford's fore topmast broke off half way up, and the jib topsail fluttered into the water. Disablement of the Ford apparently settled the race.

MANIFESTO ISSUED BY NEW PREMIER

Bonar Law Says Stability at Home and Abroad is Needed.

LONDON, Oct. 26. — (Canadian Press.) — Premier Bonar Law, as leader of the Unionists, to-day issued a manifesto, in the course of which he declared that the "crying" need of the nation at this moment is that we should have tranquility, and stability both at home and abroad "With this view, I think it is of the utmost importance that we should return as quickly as possible and as completely as possible, to that normal procedure which existed before the war."

One of the tasks of the Unionist party, if it was returned to power, will be to make good the Anglo-Irish treaty both in letter and spirit, and to co-operate with the Irish government.

THRIFT CAMPAIGN BY THE WOMEN OF OHIO

MRS. EDITH McCLURE-PATTERSON.

BY MARIAN HALE.

Eighty-five per cent. of the money in circulation passes through women's hands.

Statistics show that they get about 33 1-3 per cent. value for every dollar they spend.

Common-sense shows there is a big leak somewhere.

To locate this and remedy it, the women of Dayton, O., are undertaking a thrift campaign for three months, which will include a systematic study of buying, budgeting and saving.

Mrs. Edith McClure-Patterson, who is organizing the work in Dayton and is chairman of thrift for the federated women's clubs of the State of Ohio, explained the plan to me.

Every Home on Budget.

"We aim to put every home on a budget," she announced, "but by budgeting we don't mean an elaborate system of bookkeeping or the keeping of a slavish record of every cent that is spent.

"We mean a systematic reconciliation of the income and the expenses, in order to gain the greatest happiness and pleasure as well as to get the utmost value for every cent expended.

"Different incomes and living conditions require individual budgeting, but here is a good division with which to start. Out of every dollar spend:

25 per cent. for food.
20 per cent. for clothing.
20 per cent. for shelter.
10 per cent. for upkeep.
15 per cent. for self-advancement and pleasure.
10 per cent. for saving.

"A housekeeper may adjust these proportions until they fit her needs most comfortably.

Must Be "Business."

"When women will regard the management of a home as just as important an item as the management of a factory they will get the thrill from housekeeping men get from business.

"In Dayton we are carrying on the campaign through the women's clubs, banks, merchants and the press. The banks are co-operating by making out budgets, and giving us their speakers to tell us about various financial problems. Stores have offered their buyers to tell us about the value of produce and the time and conditions under which to buy most advantageously. Schools, churches and papers are promoting our propaganda of saving.

"We will carry our plan throughout the state by means of the women's clubs and we hope to make it nationwide."

Mrs. Patterson is a niece of the late John H. Patterson, and it was through his influence that she undertook welfare and social work.

AURORA MAN FREED FOR KILLING PEEPER AT WINDOW

AURORA, Ill., Oct. 26.—A coroner's jury held that Harry Lowe, 26, unmarried, was hasty when he shot and fatally wounded Stephen Santo, 39, for peeping into his bedroom, but freed him. Santo, in a statement, said the peeping Tom charge was untrue. He claimed that Lowe had invited him into the house to have a drink as he was passing by. The police told the coroner's jury, however, that there was little evidence on which to base a conviction of Lowe.

KILLED IN CALGARY, ALTA., WELL-KNOWN IN ONTARIO.

CALGARY, Alta., Oct. 26.—(Canadian Press).—Rev. George Cobbledick, who was killed in an automobile accident Wednesday night, was born in McGillivray Township, about twenty-five miles from London, Ont., 69 years ago. He graduated from Toronto University in 1885. His first pastorate was a small country church. Later he held pastorates at Guelph, Brussels, Glencoe, Chatham and Woodstock in Ontario.

GOLOSH'S SUCCESSOR

The new radio boot has just been turned out from fashion's laboratories. This novel bit of footwear, exhibited at the Nation Shoe Exhibition of Chicago, has a number of virtues to recommend it.

First, it will make the flapper flapless, because it has no buckles to swish about after the fashion of the well remembered golosh.

Then, too, it is very chic, being a hybrid cross between an old-fashioned rubber and a pair of trout-fishing leggings, with a layer of lamb's wool about the top to heighten the Russian effect and make for durability.

Though the fashion calls for the dress being worn outside, the wearer may, if she prefers, tuck in her petticoat around the boot tops and be ready for any weather.

One mystery remains—why radio boots?

—"Perhaps they'll SOS hubby's pocketbook all over the country," was the explanation of one matron who was buying a pair.

OXO promotes a healthy race

OXO AND MILK
An Oxo Cube mixed with a cupful of hot milk creates a splendid strength-building, and easily digested, food for children and invalids.

OXO SANDWICHES
Excellent for School luncheons.
Spread a spoonful or so of Oxo, moistened with a little butter, on thin slices of bread or toast.

OXO BROTH.
Put some beef-bones, with a little rice, barley, carrot, and piece of celery, chopped small, into a saucepan with 1 pint water and boil till rice and barley are soft. Add 2 Oxo Cubes and serve with toast.

Give your children every day the strength building nutriment of prime beef, in the easily assimilable form of Oxo, and see how much sturdier they will grow.

A cup of steaming hot Oxo, with a biscuit or two, makes a perfect meal,—it keeps the warmth in and the cold out.

An OXO a day keeps illness at bay

Silhouettes Variable

Someone (Mr. Kipling?) once said that there were "four and forty wayse of writing tribal lays; and every single one of them was right."

He will, perhaps, forgive the more deadly of the species for adopting this slogan to the fashions.

There is the basque silhouette with the full skirt. It has been edging into popularity for the past three or four seasons. The women to whom it is becoming insist upon it.

Then there is the slightest fitted bodice with the long, straight skirt varied with drooping panels or side drapes.

And by way of a little more variety there is the up-and-down silhouette with the bloused bodice. This usualy exaggerates its sleeves for fashionable effect.

Last of all—if you wish, you may buy a gunny sack, cut a hole for your head and tie a girdle about your waist. It's all, all right! Just carry it off with an air and you'll find precedents aplenty.

CIRCULAR CAP

Circular capes of tweed, in plain subdued tones or with shepherd's checks or large conspicuous plaids, are liked for sports wear. They have turnover collars and no gathers, the fullness being provided for by the gored cut.

WIDE SLEEVES

Sleeves on the new fall coats are very wide. Often they are very heavily fur trimmed.

RECIPES

For this recipe you need:—
Eight small apples
Two cups flour
One-half teaspoon salt
One teaspoon baking powder
Three-fourths cup thick, sweet cream
Butter
Sugar

Nothing will add more zest to an evening or holiday meal than good old-fashioned grandmother's apple dumplings.

Here's how to make them—in the real old-fashioned way:

Sift flour, salt and baking powder into mixing bowl. Cut in cream with a knife. This dough should be as stiff as pie dough.

Roll about one-fourth inch thick. Cut in squares. In the center of each square pile apples which have been pared, cored and cut in quarters.

Sprinkle lightly with sugar, dot with bits of butter and bring the four corners of the square together over the top of the apples.

Bake in moderate oven 45 minutes. The oven should be hot when the dumplings are put in and the heat reduced slightly as the crust bakes.

After the first 15 minutes of baking baste with one-quarter cup boiling water and one tablespoon melted butter. Just before dumplings are done take from oven and baste with melted butter. Return to oven for five minutes.

Serve warm with sugar and cream.

The covering for the apples may be of pie dough not quite as short as for pie.

To make this crust use two cups flour, one-half cup lard, one-half teaspoon salt and enough cold water to make a dough. Roll and use as in preceding rule. Apple dumplings make a hearty dessert and should follow a light meal.

SMALL FROSTED CAKES

By Bertha E. Shapleigh

¼ cup butter	½ cup milk
1 cup sugar	1½ cups flour
2 eggs	2 tablespoons baking
½ teaspoon vanilla	powder

Work butter and sugar together until creamy. Add the eggs well beaten. Sift flour and baking powder and add to the butter and egg mixture alternately with milk. Add vanilla and beat well. Bake in small buttered patty pans or muffin tins 20 minutes in a moderately hot oven.

This recipe will make 18 patty pan size cakes or 24 of the two-inch muffin tin.

All small cakes must be baked in an oven having it hotter at first than for larger cakes. Decrease the heat after the cakes have risen to the top of the pans and become slightly brown.

MELON AND PEAR SALAD

By Bertha E. Shapleigh
Of Columbia University

Just now there are plenty of melons and pears. Each may be served in many ways and combined they make a most excellent salad.

2 cups melon cubes
2 cups pears cut in the same shape
1 head lettuce or romaine
1 pimiento cut in strips
½ cup French dressing, made with lemon juice instead of vinegar, seasoned with paprika, salt, pepper and a tiny bit of currie powder.

Pare and cut the melon and pears into cubes—mix with the pimiento and part of the dressing. Chill, serve on lettuce or romaine, and pour the remainder of dressing over whole salad.

FALL SKIRTS

Many of the smart skirts for fall have borders woven in the hem of the skirt. Fringed models continue to be stylish.

SALESMEN!

Here is an opportunity for a salesman of character, aggressiveness, ability and good references to represent our Company in Peterboro in surrounding territory. Our line is mechanics', automobile and household tools. We eliminate the wholesale distributor, and go direct to the retail hardware stores and garages. Preference will be given to a man who has an established connection with this class of trade, and who wants an additional line to handle. One covering territory by automobile would be more efficient with our line. Exclusive territory will be given the right man. State age, territory regularly covered, lines now handling, and references.

FOWL SUPPER AN ENJOYABLE AFFAIR

Peterborough Talent Contributed to Good Program at Centreville.

CENTREVILLE, Oct. 26. — On Tuesday night a fowl supper was held in connection with the anniversary of the Presbyterian church. The weather man favored the gathering, and the event proved, as always, a great success.

The programme was sustained by Mrs. Dodds of Cheltenham, as elocutionist, John J. Ball, baritone soloist and Leslie Unitt, as solo pianist. Mrs. Dodds showed undoubted talent in her rendering of various items sentimental and gay. Mr. Ball was a newcomer to Centreville. His numbers included some high-class pieces and in all of them he displayed great power and careful training. He is an old Peterborough boy who returned but recently to his native city. It is safe to say that he will be heard of increasingly in Peterborough as a musician of considerable talent. Mr. Unitt gave every satisfaction as accompanist and solo pianist. This anniversary occasion as a whole, has proved one of the most successful in the history of the church.

The amount taken in was $256.

Miss Viola White and Mrs. Jas. Long also contributed to the programme.

LESSENS DARKNESS FOR THE SIGHTLESS.

Because he himself is blind, J. Robert Atkinson resolved to do all in his power to lessen the darkness of his sightless comrades. This he is now accomplishing as a publisher for the blind in a chalet-type house situated in a pretty part of Los Angeles' residential section. This establishment, known as the Universal Braille Press, has already supplied many of this country's 75,000 blind people with literature that serves to free them from constant contemplation of their affliction.

At present, Mr. Atkinson is chiefly concerned with the publication of the Bible in the newly adopted revised Braille. This Bible will contain 20 volumes, the first of which, while it contains only "The Acts," "Romans," and the two epistles of the "Corinthians," is greater in size than Webster's New International Dictionary, has 135 pages, each thirteen and a half inches square, weighs five and one half pounds, and is three inches thick.

There will be 2,600 pages in the completed Bible, with 4 volumes in the New Testament and 16 in the Old Testament, each volume varying from 80 to 150 pages in length and all being thirteen and a half inches square. While the cost will be about $50 for the 20 volumes, it will be given away free or loaned to those who cannot pay all or a portion of the cost price. At no time will price be placed on the Eible above the actual cost of printing and binding, the brass plates having been provided for by a fund contributed for that purpose.

The chapter and verse on each Brailled Bible page are placed at the bottom, allowing a reference to be found by merely opening the volume. This means an elimination of much of the wear on the raised lettering as the arm of the reader moves across it. Another convenience conceived by the blind embosser is the placing of the verse numbers in the right-hand margin at the end of the Braille lines wherein the verses begin. This, in comparison to the old method, will amount to a conservation of 125 pages in the completed series of Braille Bible volumes.

Mr. Atkinson discovered, when he undertook the task of printing the Bible for the blind, that the Braille stereotype plate-making machines on the market were wholly inadequate for the work, so he applied his own inventiveness to evolving a machine which answers his purpose satisfactorily. Owing to poor facilities, the sheets of paper before receiving the embossed lettering must be wet down, six sheets at a time, until many thousands are dampened with the garden hose in the back yard. After remaining overnight these must be placed in the press and upon being taken out each newly Brailled sheet is carefully dried.

The Federal Government of the U.S.A. made a grant of $50,000 yearly, this sum to be used exclusively for text books in the existent 56 schools for the blind. This appropriation divided among all the blind would average 67 cents a person, an insignificant sum in the costly production of books in Braille. For instance, an ordinary ink-print pamphlet sells at a profit of 10 cents, the same item embossed for the sightless ones to read, must be sold at a dollar or more to obtain actual cost of production.

Anyone who has ever seen a blind person, with sensitive fingers laboriously spelling out the words of the raised Braille, on pages that look to the uninitiated like Chinese puzzles of the first water, while the patient face lights up and a smile creeps over the sad mouth, as the seeing finger-tips transmit to the brain the passing humour of a chance phrase, will remember what a pleasure and a joy seemed to be experienced by this outlook into a mental world all their own. They will tell you about their reading with great pride, how they are getting through Dickens and Scott and Hawthorne, the everyday volumes that rest on dusty shelves in ordinary households proving veritable havens of consolation for the dwellers in the dark.

Nights of restful sleep are assured if, on retiring, you take a cup of delicious

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK AND BEAUTIFUL

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

HOME CIRCLE

BLIGHTING WORDS

If the merely idle word is one day to be accounted for and judged, what of the untrue, impure, the profane, the malignant and cruel words with which this earthly air is continually charged? Only a movement of the lips, a moment's stirring to the air, and all is silent, as though the word had never been spoken; yet a fellow-creature's happiness has been blighted; a heavy burden has been made still heavier to bear; a heart has been robbed of its guilelessness and trust; the seed has been sown of a career that ends in ruin and death. Those words are not dead. Though they seem to be buried in everlasting oblivion, yet, when the judgment throne is set and earth's myriads are gathered together to be by their words justified or by their words condemned, they will return with solemn reverberating echo out of the darkness of the past, and fall with dismay and shame on the ears of those who spoke them. And those words—faithful, pure, begin—passing to and fro among men like white-winged angles, carrying messages of love and hope and healing from heaven; words almost divine in their ennobling influence, helping us ever onward and upward along life's journey—those, too, will awake from their sacred slumber, and amid the grateful murmur of the multitudes whom they have gladdened, comforted and saved, their blessed sound will be heard on earth once more.

Keep watch of your words, my darlings,
For words are wonderful things;
They are sweet like bees' fresh honey
Like bees, they have terrible stings.
They can bless, like the warm, glad sunshine,
And brighten a lonely life;
They can cut in the bitter contest,
Like an open, two-edged knife.

Young man, have you a purpose in life? What do you intend to be or to do? The question strikes you with something of novelty. Yet it is the great one on which your future place in the world depend. If no life-purpose is yet formed in your mind, it is full time that you sat down and spent a season in grave reflection. Without an earnest purpose nothing worth accomplishing can be done in this world. Thought, will, energy, work—these are the elements of all success. These are the materials out of which men construct their fortunes; and if you are dreaming of wealth, honor of position in the future, and have not these to build on, with advancing years, you will see the beautiful structure that now rises pleasantly in your fancy, fading away like the baseless fabric of a vision. Gird up your loins, and in good earnest, seek to acquire the highest ability in your art, calling or profession. Let each day see you advancing in skill and knowledge; and as certain as the sun shines, or the water runs, you will rise, above the common mass. And just in the degree that your motives are honorable and unselfish, will you add happiness to success in life.

There are few young men nowadays who show habits of thrift and economy. There is a disposition to spend rather than save, and through love of personal adornment, expensive habits, and a lack of that desire to lay aside funds for a rainy day, our young men are not acquiring a reputation for forehandness, which might prove of inestimable value to them in the future. We would not desire them to be mean or selfish, but there is a happy medium between a spendthrift and a miser. Gay companions, pool playing and fine livery tournouts will never enrich any young man.

Never cast aside your friends if by any possibility you can retain them. We are the weakest of spendthrifts if we let one friend drop off through inattention, or let one push away another, or if we hold aloof from one for petty jealousy, or heedless slights or roughness. Would you throw away a diamond because it pricked you? One good friend is not weighed against the jewels of the earth. If there is coolness or unkindness between us, let us come face to face and have it out. Quick before the love grows cold. Life is too short to quarrel in, or carry evil or unkind thoughts of friends. It is easy to lose a friend, but a new one will not come for the calling, nor make up for the old one when he comes.

Bee-stings, as a cure for rheumatism, are having quite a vogue.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, October 26 (Canadian Press). — Some storage egg extras are reported rolling seaboard for export on consignment. The opinion seems to hold that the reason British exporters are not making inquiries on this side for eggs is that they prefer to fill their requirements from those eggs that have been previously shipped on consignment. As a result of this the export demand at the present time is practically nil.

PROF. STODDARD IS RIGHT, SAYS THIS TOT

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 26.—Elizabeth Benson, aged 8 years by family birth register, 18 by accredited mental tests smoothed her short skirt and nodded her head gravely.

"I agree with Professor Lothrop Stoddard," she replied to a question "Parentage has everything to do with the offspring's mental caliber. Environment has little to do with it The environmentalists have been proved wrong".

Elizabeth is the daughter of Willie Reamy Benson, former editior of a Fort Worth, Tex., newspaper. Her mother writes under the name of Anne Austin. Elizabeth aspires to write, too.

(The child sees no reason to be vain in starting to school at 4, and then skipping two grades.

"Study simply comes easy," she explains. "I really enjoy arithmetic. I like French. I love to read."

Elizabeth reads Edgar Allan Poe with relish but their's nothing morbid about her. She is jolly and plump.

Just a student? Elizabeth is proud that she is as good a cook and housewife as she is a scholar She boasts of her muffins with the pardonable pride of any good house wife.

And as to dolls——

"They haven't interested me since I was 3 years old", avers Elizabeth.

Dizzy Spells

Are Usually Due to Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus replaces it.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative — so cannot gripe. Try it today.

Nujol

A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

Why Catch Cold?

There is no sure way of avoiding colds, but you give yourself a much better chance of safety if you are well nourished and avoid "that shivery feeling" by taking Bovril regularly. Bovril builds up the defensive forces of the body, gives a better circulation, and thus lessens the risk of taking chill.

Five O'clock Magic Hour For Modes This Season

At this time of the year it's 5 o'clock that's the witching hour for women. Gathering in the smart hotels and tea shops one may see all the newest styles for fall in all the newest fabrics and trimmings.

Chiffon is very good just now—accordion pleated or embroidered and beaded. Chiffon velvet is extremely smart, especially if it be embroidered in silver.

Laces of all kinds are worn. Other frocks of crepe Roma or similar stuffs are quite tailored with only a jeweled buckle at the waist for ornament

Brown is the color oftenest seen and frequently in combination with tan. Among the velvets black is the preferred shade and many navy blues are worn.

Great emphasis is being put on the careful matching of colors for a costume —shoes, hat, gloves and stockings as well as jewelry must match or harmonize.

BASQUE FROCKS.

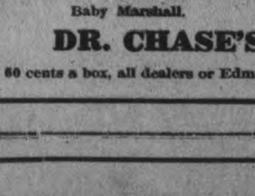
Basque frocks are new this season and are naturally adapted for wear with the long, full skirts. Frequently a lace ruffle, which falls from the throat to the waistline, entirely obliterates any feeling of severity or close fitting.

HEADDRESSES.

Many very lovely headdresses for winter have a strong oriental influence, being made very much like turbans of richly brocaded materials, but entirely lacking as to crown. Earrings, which grow longer hourly, are a necessary accessory to complete the picture.

Eczema Covered Arms of This Healthy Child

Mrs. Alex. Marshall, Sprucedale, Ont., writes:—



Baby Marshall.

"When my little son was three months old he broke out in sores on his chest and arms. We did all we could to heal those terrible sores, but nothing did him much good. Finally I ventured on a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment and kept on using it. At last we were rewarded by the steady healing of the sores, and finally he was completely relieved of them. He is now three years old, and has had no return of the trouble since."

ADMITTED KILLING JURY FREES HIM

Judge Says Acquittal Sanctions Special Kind of Lynch Law.

NELSON, B. C., Oct. 26.—(Canadian Press).—In rejecting the application for the return of the weapon with which Charles Beguin admitted killing Henry Denoreaz at Argenta, Chief Justice Hunter yesterday severely scored the jury which acquitted Beguin. He declared that the jury's action had sanctioned a special kind of lynch law in Canada. It made no difference whether a man was slain by a mob or by an assassin who lurked for him in ambush.

According to Mrs. Beguin's evidence at the trial, Denoreaz had been carrying on improper relations with her for five years.

STORY OF BIBLE

VI.—Before the Invention of Printing

Christianity is sometimes called the religion of a book. One of the early stages of the work of the missionary is to give the people the Bible, or some vital part of it, in their own tongue. For some time after Christianity was introduced into Britain there were probably only the Latin versions in use, and these would be found chiefly in the monasteries. But English translations soon began to appear.

The name of Caedmon, a quaint Saxon monk of the seventh century, is sometimes said to be entitled to first mention. However, he only made free poetical paraphrases of certain passages. One of the earliest actual translations was that of the Gospel of John by Venerable Bede. On the morning of his last day on earth one chapted remained untranslated. All that day he painfully labored on, interrupted by the saying of farewells, and by nightfall had completed his task, finishing the last verse almost with his last breath, on the evening of Ascension Day.

In the ninth century King Alfred translated part of the Psalms and portions of Exodus, placing the Ten Commandments at the head of the laws of his country. During the next two centuries there were considerable translations by Bishop Aelfric and other scholars, while in the fourteenth century came two of the most important pieces of work that had yet been done, two prose translations of the Psalter by William of Shoreham and Richard Rolle.

The great achievement of this period, however, was that by John Wycliffe, who, in the last quarter of the fourteenth century attained the distinction of being the first to give the English people the whole Bible in their common tongue and is, therefore, entitled to be called the Father of the English Bible. As the only authority he had for his opposition to the existing corruptions of the church for which he was attacked and persecuted was the Bible, he saw the value of a version in language that all could read, and he addressed himself assiduously to his task.

The excellence of the work of Wycliffe and his associates is witnessed by the fact that this Bible was not superseded until after the invention of printing. For nearly a century and a half it ran its course alone. It proved to be very popular, large numbers assembling to hear it read. It is consdered a fine specimen of fourteenth century English. A large edition was issued of which over one hundred and fifty copies are still in existence. These are considered very valuable, one having been offered for sale some time ago for one thousand pounds.

LARGE SQUARE COLLAR.

The very wide square collar is seen competing with the large, round Bertha. Since this has the tendency to give a wide shoulder line, it is recommended only for the slender girl.

SHIRRED SILVER CLOTH.

Shirred silver cloth makes very lovely evening coats. Usually the lining is vividcoloured velvet or brocade and the collar a dark, fluffy fur.

SLEEVE TRIMMING.

Unique sleeve trimming is seen on a coat of black marvella — strips of monkey fur mounted on taffeta folds reaching from the wrist to the shoulder, the fur being placed in a backward position.

YELLOW AND SILVER.

Silver lace is effectively combined with yellow lace in a stunning negligee that has a satin over-bodice and a straight lace tunic and many graceful wing draperies.

Helpful Hints

Faulty adjustment of brakes causes more accidents than anything else. Car owners should adopt a fixed habit of testing the foot brakes every time they take out the car and watch carefully for signs of slipping every time the emergency brake is used on a hill. Then the linkage should be inspected at least once a week to make sure that none of the connections are in danger of coming loose.

Complaints have been coming in that some filling stations give short measures on gasoline. Watch for this carefully as you are not only paying for something you don't get but it will apparently make a difference in your mileage. You will then blame the engine or the carbureter for faults they do not possess. Measure the gasoline before and after filling and avoid those stations that try to make two profits out of you.

Try these on your car:

A drop of water, now and then.
Is counselled by the battery men
Some grease every day
Keeps friction away.
A brake in time
Saves nine.
In oil we trust
Without, we rust.
Then lubricate—or bust!

RIBBON BOWS.

Ribbon bows are in great favor, in all sizes. Very small ones decorate a blouse on the middy plan and hold in the fullness about the hips. Three, arranged horizontally, make a Windsor tie quite unnecessary.

Miss Ruth Zartman, of Los Angeles, Calif., is believed to be the only woman cement worker in the United States.

An old man comes limping up the hill to the relief car at Charlton. He must be all of seventy. His overcoat is six sizes too large for him. A boy's cap perches on top of his old grey head. His broken shoes are sodden with slush. He seeks each spot he sets his foot. He winces with each step.

As he approaches the little group huddled about the door of the lone express car, a woman sitting on a box rises to give the old man her place.

"Sit down, woman," says the old man. "A fine day, everybody?"

It isn't. But they all agree it is.

He rests against the car. Presently his turn comes to stand before the opulent open door.

"Now, dad, what?" says the constable dishing out supplies.

"Somethin' warm for an old woman and an old man," says the old fellow.

"Well, you've got a coat," begins the constable.

"Oh, 'tain't for me," says the old man. "It's for an old couple, neighbors of mine. They are too old to come, so I come for them. They . . . ."

"Were you burned out?" queries the constable.

"Me and them and the whole concession," says the old man. "We are all starting over again in W——'s barn. Now, the old woman, she needs a cloak. . . ."

"How far have you come?"

"Oh, three, four mile."

Out come priceless things from the express car— coats, sweaters, stockings, heavy wool underclothes. The old man's arms heap up. A boy steps over and says——

"I'll help you carry them, mister."

"You go help your own father," says the old man, sternly.

And down the hill he goes limping, under a large bundle tied in a sheet.

A neighbor.

* * * *

A big, mustached man is standing at a cross-roads, his back to the driving rain.

Every party that comes trudging up the road has women and children in it. The big fellow halts them all.

"Where are you heading?"

"Englehart," they answer.

"It'll be dark in an hour. Never make it to-night. My place is half a mile up the side road here. Something to eat and room for the woman and kids in the house if you'll share the barn with me."

"Thanks, mister."

The heavy-hearted little parties turn off the lonely road up the muddy side road.

And the neighbor stands with his big back to the spinning rain, watching up the desolate highroad.

A middle-aged man sits in the shelter of a big ruined brick wall. In his arms is cuddled a baby in a piece of soiled white blanket.

"A pretty baby," I say to him. "Is it your only child?"

He blushes with the violence of the northerner.

"This ain't mine," he says. "Mine is all growed up. This one belongs to a young woman that took sick and they took her out to New Liskeard in a buggy. I'm carrying her baby in."

"Why, it's miles!" I exclaim.

"Well, I've come miles. But I'll meet a car pretty soon, I figure. Anyway, it don't matter—he's nice and warm."

* * * *

Amid the ruins of what once was a house, a barn and a cow stable, a broad young man is toiling with an axe and some long nails and blackened remnants of timber.

Both his hands are swathed in dirty bandages. Above the bandages his wrists show scarlet and raw. He handles his axe gingerly clumsily.

He proudly surveys the pitiful little lean-to he has made out of brittle charred boards.

"What's this you're making?" I ask.

"Well," says he, retsing gratefully, "it's a sort of cow shed. If my hands weren't burned I could cut some logs out of that bit of swale over yonder that escaped the barn. But this'll do fine, for a while."

"Was this your homestead?"

"No, it belonged to a fellow I worked for, summer before last. He got all messed up saving his own kids and his neighbors, so I says to him I'll fix up a shelter for his cows."

AUTOMOBILES ARE PUT TO IMPROPER USES

OTTAWA, Oct. 26. — (Canadian Press.)— Addressing convention of the Women's Institutions of Eastern Ontario here last, night, Dr. Margaret Patterson, police magistrate of Toronto, spoke seriously of lack of development of sense of anything worth while in the young people of to-day. She maintained that the old cry of prophet would have to be changed to, "mothers what of the night." She criticized uses to which automobiles were being put, and emphasized the danger she saw in them for young girls who were tempted to take rides with strange men and to continue until after disaster occurred. She believed there was an element among taxi-cab drivers who constituted the greatest social menace.

P.C.I. AT FULL STRENGTH FOR LINDSAY GAME

Return Game With Rugby Team From the Scugog Town at Riverside Park on Saturday.

A FAST TEAM.

The Collegiate squad are working hard this week getting ready for the return game with Lindsay Collegiate at Riverside Park next Saturday. Although they won in Lindsay on Saturday the game was a close one and the boys are not going to give the visitors a chance to tie up the round.

With Ernie Legon at flying wing the local team will be at full strength for the first time this fall.

Their half line is one of the best that has ever represented the P.C.I. Jack Fanning is a beautiful line plunger. He is big and fast, runs well and handles the ball faultlessly. He works in well with his team mates "Pete" Mulholland and Lionel Browne. Their running and passing plays were great ground gainers last Saturday.

The wing line was weak but Coach Browne has moved Bookhout back to middle wing and will use Graham Eastwood to strengthen the defence. However, it is likely the Collegiate will open the game up on Saturday to take advantage of the superiority of their half line.

The open game is certainly the best from a spectators stand point and those who find their way over to Riverside on Saturday will be well repaid.

After the O.R.F.U. Interscholastic fixture the Belmonts and Crescents will clash in a City League game.

MADE TWENTY-NINE RUNS IN ONE INNING

Cecil Hann, who started to pitch for the Bankers against the Piano Tuners last night, succeeded in doing what he attempted to do. He delivered the ball to the opposing batters just to their liking, and what they did to his offerings was shown by the score, Charlie Peacock's clan gathering 29 runs in a single frame.

Lucan Trimmed C.G.E. To Tie Up The Series

Local Intermediate Championship Candidates Struck a Big Snag in Suburbs of London.

SCORE WAS 6 TO 3.

LUCAN, Oct. 26.—The Lucan Irish nine defeated the Peterboro Canadian General Electric team here yesterday afternoon before a big crowd by the score of 6 to 3, tieing up the series for the Intermediate Amateur Baseball Championship of Ontario. Peterboro won the first game at home 5 to 3. It will now be necessary for the O.B.A.A. to take immediate steps to order the final game for next Saturday. The Lucan management tried to prevail upon the C.G.E. leader to rest a day here and then play off in London on Friday but the Lift Lock City aggregation left town after the game perfectly willing to allow Secretary Dulmage to shape their destines.

Weather yesterday was much more suitable to baseball than when Hamilton Beaver Trucks played here a week ago and outside of a high wind was tolerable for the summer pastime despite the lateness of the season.

Lucan batters slugged Rose at the opportune moments, O'Neill coupling a hit with four free trips during Rose's temporary fit of wildness in the second inning for two runs while every one of Peterboro's runs with the exception of Rose's homer to right field in the fourth which tied the score, were due to errors behind O'Neill.

Karl O'Neill took up the mound duties as Chester Weir was hardly fit, being under the weather with a sore arm and a cold. O'Neill had the Electrics baffled with a deceptive underhand delivery, which was most effective when men occupied bases.

Rose struck out eight batters, but seemed to waver with the runaways populated. Clean hitting gave the Irishmen four of their runs but Ross's error on Frost's throw gave Lucan two unearned runs in the eighth after George and O'Neill had singled.

The timely hitting of Catcher Crawley behind Karl O'Neill's almost perfect day at bat with four hits in five trips to the plate spelled victory for the locals. This battery worked wonderfully well in both departments, while Alfred George "spectacles and all" dished up a sepectacular game at short for the locals. Weir, who has been absent from beneath the spreading chestnut tree, played third base but had little work to do.

McCarney singled in the first inning after Jackson had struck out. He went to third when Bradley let the ball trickle through him. McCarney then scored while Ross was thrown out.

Rose bounced a double off the road over the fence in right field for a home run in the fourth.

Peterboro batsmen secured but two widely scattered hits until the ninth, when McElroy batting for Jackson, singled to Weir, who stopped the ball with one hand but was unable to get the runner at first. McCarney doubled to Gibson but McElroy was much surprised when Gibson's relay to Weir was ahead of him by a yard at third base. O'Neill's wild pitch to Ross let McCarney down to third and he scored on Frost's single; but Helson's low drive to Hindmarsh ended the game.

Rose walked Weir and Barnes in the second inning. Duncan popped out and Bradley filled the bases when he was hit by a pitched ball. Rose also walked George, forcing in the tieing run. Earl O'Neill then got his second hit driving Barnes in with the second run.

Barnes walked to start the sixth Ross whiffed and Barnes pulled up at third on Bradley's double. George bunted but Barnes was out at the plate. O'Neill and Crawley came through with hits that sent two more runs across.

ANOTHER OFFER FOR THE GREAT WILLIAMS

Lindsay baseball men had a call yesterday from M. F. E. Ryder of Brockville, who follows the occupation of a commercial traveller during the fall and winter but is playing manager of the Brockville baseball team in the summer months. This year Brockville apparently had a classy team and succeeded in winning the Grenville-Leeds League. Next season the League hope to join the O.B.A.A. and have the winners play off with the Central Ontario winners. Mr. Ryder intimated that Brockville hoped to line up Jack Williams, the Indian pitcher of Belleville, for next season.

INTRODUCING UMPIRE QUIGLEY.

Umpire Ernest Quigley.

Ernest C. Quigley of St. Marys, Kas., just about takes first place among the busy sport officials of the country.

Any man who officiates in more athletic events than Quigley would pretty near have to work in the mornings to do it.

Quigley is known to the baseball fans from one end of the country to the other as a National League umpire. In this capacity he ranks with the best in the game.

Although not one of the real old-timers among major league umpires Quigley has officiated in the world series three times.

Once the National League curtain is rung down in the fall Quigley immediately turns to football, a game on the rules of which he is one of the leading authorities in the country. And when the football season ends he takes up basketball, officiating almost nightly until the next baseball season opens.

Last fall after working through out the National League baseball season and in the world series Quigley officiated in about 20 football games and then followed that up by refereeing 76 basketball games.

This fall he is booked up for 26 football games and had to turn down at least as many more.

He refereed the Harvard-Centre game at Cambridge October 21 and is scheduled to act as umpire of this year's Yale-Harvard game at New Haven Nov. 25. The rest of his officiating will be done in the west and southwest, Quigley preferring to stay as close to his home as possible.

Among his basketball bookings for 1922-23 are 49 games in the Missouri Valley Conference.

Quigley's income from officiating games probably exceeds that of any other man in the country in a like capacity. He demands and receives a rather stiff fee for all the college games he works in, but since capable officials in football and basketball are rather rare he has no trouble getting his price.

Despite all this officiating he finds time for other things.

Towards the close of the 1922 National League race he obtained a leave of absence for a week to rush home and oversee the harvesting of the wheat crop on his farm in Kansas.

BRINTON CARPET FIVE-PIN LEAGUE

Last night at Solomon's alleys, in the Brinton Carpet Factory League, the Carltons won two out of the three games from the Ardebils. The game was witnessed by a large crowd. The way the carpet boys are hitting the rubber bands, some good scores will be put up, as some of the boys are newcomers in the bowling game. For the winners, Joe Marsden was the king pin for the evening with the score of 581. For the losers, Dave Leether was high with 484. Following are the scores:

Must Develop Speed in Action and Thought

By AERRY DEVINE

All-America 1921, Captain Iowa 1921 "Big Ten" Champions

In preparing himself to make the college team, the high school star must first of all fit himself physically and mentally for the stress and strain of collegiate football.

Physical and mental fitness come first, and with these, as a rule, you may expect to find confidence. In fact, confidence in himself may be said to be included in the player's fitness.

Having laid this foundation, the player must develop greater speed than was ever demanded of him in his most strenous high school combats. He must develop speed not only in action, but in thinking as well, and above all he must school himself to keep his head in the game every minute, during practice as well as in regular games.

The newcomer from high school must remember that the coaches tell him. At college he will find that there are too many men on the squad to allow the coaches time to go around amongst the men night after night, telling each individual the same thing over and over again.

Coaches are looking for the men who remember to do as they are told. And right in this connection is where the player's natural aptitude for football, or what is sometimes called "football sense" reveals itself. If he has it, the instructions of the coaches will bring it out.

Assuming that the high school player has met all the requirements above laid down, there yet remain certain other requirements which he must meet before he can expect to make the college team.

The first is weight. A high school star of the first magnitude may be hopelessly barred from success in college football, simply because he lacks the weight necessary to fight on anything like even terms with the men he is thrown with on the college squad.

I might cite the case of several men who have come under my personal observation, who have gone to college after making all-state high school teams, and have failed to make good in college through no fault of their own, but simply because they lacked the required weight.

And right here let me say that superior weight is an asset only when the man can handle it. A clumsy big man may be less formidable than a skillful little fellow, but that fact doesn't help the little fellow much because it is not the clumsy big men who make the varsity, but rather the big men who know how to handle themselves.

FOUR STRAIGHT OR NOT FOUR STRAIGHT

Billy Evans Gives His Idea on Whether the Giants Took Four in a Row or Not.

Did the Giants win four straight games in the world series?

That question has been put to me time and again since the close of the series. It seems there is a slight difference of opinion on that point.

Back is 1907 the Chicago Cubs played the Detroit Tigers. The first game resulted in a tie. Then the Cubs proceeded to take four in a row. At the close of the series there was some discussion as to whether or not the Cubs won in four straight.

The consensus was that the Cubs had beaten the Tigers in four straight games. It was easy to argue the point because after the first game endedin a tie, the Cubs did go out and win four straight.

When the point is raised about a team winning four straight games in a world series, the inference is that one team will capture four straight before the other club wins a game.

A tie is not a victory, of course, as a matter of fact, since no decision is reached in such a game, it is really regarded in the light of no contest.

There are those who argue that the Giants did not win four straight. They insist the Giants won the first game, that the second was a tie, breaking the winning streak, and that the Giants then proceeded to win three in a row.

There is really little logic and on sportsmanship to such an argument. A club wins until it loses. The fact that the second game was a tie does not enter into the discussion. The Giants won four games in the series, and the Yankees didn't win a single game, hence the Giants must have won four in a row.

In order to break a winning streak a team or individual must suffer defeat. The closest the Yanks came to winning a game was a 3 to 3 tie.

Of course, those desirous to hang an argument on a thread technicality, will insist that the Giants did not win four straight since five games were played. However, such an argument lacks any reasonable foundation.

LAWN BOWLERS TEN-PIN LEAGUE.

The Lawn Bowlers were all on hand for the big night at the Water street alleys last Tuesday night, when six teams rolled their first league games. Thos. Curvin took three straights from R. Ross. P. King took two out of three from G. Cairns; A. Gilliam took two out of the three from J. Gillespie's team. The ones that rolled over the 500 mark: P. King led with the total of 551, Routly 532 and high single of 217. Cairns 520, Curvin 503, and most of the other bowlers found the alleys too long and were asking to have the kitty placed closer the foul line. Following are the scores:

FAILURE TO HIT SAVED $10,000

If Statz Had Batted .300 Instead of .297 the Cubs Would Have Been Out Some Money.

CHICAGO, October 26 (Canadian Press). — The failure of Arnold Statz, star outfielder of the Chicago Nationals, to keep up his hitting in the last four games of the 1922 season, saved his club $10,000, it was revealed yesterday.

The Chicago had agreed to pay the Los Angeles Club of the Pacific Coast League this amount in addition to the cash and players already given for Statz, if the star should finish the season with a batting average of .300 or better. Statz knew nothing of this agreement.

Statz finished the season with an average of .297, according to the unofficial figures compiled here. Four days before the season closed, the little outfield star was travelling along with a mark of .301. In his last four games he made only three hits in sixteen times at bat.

Big Jeff Pfeffer, of the St. Louis Cardinals, was the hoodoo that stood between Statz and the coveted mark, which the Los Angeles Club owners had hoped he would attain at the season's close. Pfeffer went to the hill in the first game of the fare-well series between th St. Louis and Chicago Clubs here on 20th September, and held Statz hitless in four times to bat. His batting average immediately fell below .300. The next day the Cardinals and Cubs engaged in a double-header. The first game was a slugging match, in which four St. Louis pitchers — Sherdel, North, Sell and Doak—were pounded for 15 hits. Statz, however, was at bat five times and failed to get one safe blow.

The second game of the twin bill was called on account of darkness at the end of the fifth inning. Statz knocked out one safe hit in three times at bat, esse Haines being on the mound for the Cardinals.

Statz got back into his hitting stride in the final game on Sunday, with Pfeffer staging a come-back, and cracked out two hits in four times at bat, but this was not enough to reach the coveted goal, which would have enriched the Los Angeles Club by $10,000.

CARPENTIER TOLD TO WAIT HIS TIME FOR SIKI BATTLE

The Black Has All to Lose and Nothing to Gain By Meeting Carpentier Now — Joe Beckett Comes First.

DOLLARS LOOK GOOD.

PARIS, October 26 (Canadian Press). — Battling Siki, the conqueror of Georges Carpentier, received the latter's challenge for a return match with undisturbed calm.

M. Hellers, his manager, coolly informed the fallen French idol that he would have to get in line and take his turn.

M. Hellers considers that the Battler would have nothing to gain and all to lose by meeting Carpentier. The managers present plans are for Sikis match against Joe Beckett, the English heavyweight, on 7th December. If successful in this bout, he will go to America.

"Dollars look particularly good just now," he said.

Siki himself displays no special desire to undertake the American trip. He prefers to fight in Europe.

Some unpleasant experiences in Paris cafes with Americans led him to this decision. The Americans left the cafes as soon as Siki entered.

MULLIGAN GOES WEST.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 26 (Canadian Press). — Eddie Mulligan, third baseman of the Chicago American League baseball team, has been purchased by the San Francisco Club of the Pacific Coast League, and will report next season, it was announced yesterday.

The purchase is a part of the deal whereby Willie Kamm, San Francisco third haseman, goes to Chicago. The White Sox paid $100,000 for Kamm.

GALT TERRIERS WIN O. B. A. A. HONORS FROM BELLEVILLE

Jack Williams, the Redskin Wonder Weakened in the Seventh and Galt Scored Five Times

FINAL SCORE 6 TO 1

GUELPH, Oct. 26.—The Galt Terriers invariably call upon the "lucky seventh" to pull them out of any hole they happen to get into and that inning proved their lucky number yesterday in the final game with the Belleville Grand Trunks for the Senior Ontario Baseball championship. After battling for six innings before 7,000 cheering, enthusiastic fans at the Exhibition grounds, with the score 1 to 0 against them, the Manchester City team went into the seventh frame with a "do or die" determination, and before the side was retired they had succeeded in annexing five runs, which, with another they obtained in the eighth, was the score by which they won the championship and put Belleville out. The Grand Trunks were only able to put one run across during the nine innings, and that with another tally came in the second completed their scoring.

Teams Evenly Matched

So evenly were the teams balanced that had it not been for the blow-up in the seventh inning, it is possible that the result might have been a tie There was practically nothing to choose between the two teams, and the work of "Jacky" Williams, the great Belleville redskin hurler, was a wonder to behold. Up to the seventh inning he prevented the hard-hitting Terries driving a ball to the outfield. But Friendly Graham's safe bunt of the first ball pitched in the seventh inning appeared to momentarily unsettle the Indian, and before he got into his stride again the damage was done. Friendly Graham also put up a great game in the pitcher's box, and while he was not as effective in strikeouts as Williams he managed to keep the game well in hand at all times. The work of both teams was very good and while Guelph fans believe that the Maple Leafs are a snappier team than either of the finalists it was a good game to watch

Belleville Score First

Belleville took the lead in the second inning when J. K. Williams drove to deep centre for three bases. Meagher's infield out gave the baserunner a chance to score.

From then on it was a procession of cyphers for the Grand Trunks. They were never afterwards dangerous though they got men on second and third base several times.

In the "lucky seventh" Friendly Graham bunted safely, but was forced by Evans. Grove hit a grounder to short, the ball taking a bad bound and going for a hit, Evans going to second on the play. G. Himes singled, scoring Evans and putting Grove on second base, and Himes on third. Watt sent a grounder to Meagher and Grove crossed the plate Then N. Himes swatted a home run sending Watts in ahead of him and putting the game on ice. That ended the scoring in that inning. But the Terriers added another for luck in the eighth on singles by Grove and G. Himes.

Galt Fans Went Wild.

Though Guelph has won two championships this season — the Junior baseball and the Western Ontario football championship—it has seen nothing like the victory-crazed crowd which cheered the Terriers all through and after the game. There were thousands of visitors here to see the contest, a contingent coming through from Belleville, and all day autos poured in from Galt, Preston, Hespeler, Kitchener and the surrounding district. Two special trains came in from Galt.

The victors were good - natured throughout, and everything passed off very nicely, though there was naturally much jollification down street until the trains bearing the victorious and defeated visitors pulled out. In addition to the usual baseball fans, there were a number of leading baseball men present from various points, including Bob Emslie, Major League umpire, and an ex-Guelphite. The box score:

GET READY FOR THE CHASE.

Special Train For Hunters.

The open season for hunting deer and Moose in Northern Ontario is rapidly approaching. South of the French and Mattawa Rivers, Nov. 5th to Nov. 20th inclusive; north and west of these rivers, Oct. 25th to Nov. 30th inclusive. North of the Transcontimental Railway line the season is from Sept. 15th to Nov. 15th inclusive.

The Canadian National Railways traverse the finest hunting territory in this country. This fact with their special and regular train service makes "The National Way" the premier line for the hunter. The hunting grounds are so vast there is game for everyone.

The selection of grounds is a most important matter and one which requires careful study. The territory reached by the Canadian National lines north of Parry Sound is already a favorite one, but the new country east and west of Capreol is as yet comparatively little known to the hunter and should, therefore, be highly attractive to the follower of the deer and moose.

The Canadian National Railways are providing special train service, which, with regular trains, will meet all demands. Special trains will be operated as follows: Leave Toronto Union Station 11.15 p.m. Oct. 31st for Capreol and intermediate points, and 11.15 p.m. Nov. 2nd, 3rd and 4th for Key Jct. and intermediate points. The usual ample accommodation of sleeping cars, baggage cars and coaches will be provided.

The Annual Hunters' Leaflet issued by the Canadian National Railways is now ready for distribution, and may be obtained on application to any agent of the Company, or write General Passenger Department, Room 607, Royal Bank Bldg., Toronto. 5d-18-21-25-23-30

PLANS MADE FOR FALL AND WINTER

Plans for fall and winter activities will be considered at a meeting of the P.A.A.A. Executive at the Chamber of Commerce tonight. Representatives from several sporting associations will be heard.

Prospects are bright for a successful season, and the P.A.A.A. should make big strides this fall and coming winter.

Boxing classes will shortly be resumed, with Wilfred Jones again acting as instructor.

DEVELOP RESOURCES OF BRITISH EMPIRE

Economic Conference to This End is Suggested.

OTTAWA, Oct. 26. — (Canadian Press.) — While Hon. George P. Graham, Acting Minister of Railways and Canals, will place recommendations made to him yesterday by officers of the railway for an economic conference in an effort to discover how the vast trade which the resources of the Empire make possible, may best be developed by mutual co-operation of railways and unions, before the Canadian National Board of Management in a sympathetic manner, he will not interfere with the decision of the Board, it was stated here to-day.

Union chiefs protested against the letting of contracts for Canadian National rolling stock to outside firms. They also charged that the Canadian National Railways were being used, perhaps unconsciously, to assist in breaking the railway strike in the United States, inasmuch as Grand Trunk engines were some times run on the Central Vermont railway beyond St. Albans, the Grand Trunk terminal.

WILL RECOVER.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Oct. 26.—(Canadian Press.)—Reports received from St. Joseph's Hospital, Thetford Mines, this morning, state that Rev. Father Fernand Balleau, who was shot twice by 18 year old Bolduc, passed a satisfactory night, and medical authorities believe that unless complications set in he will recover.

ROBBERS AT LARGE.

TORONTO, Oct. 26.— (Canadian Press.)—Officials of Toronto Police Department reported this afternoon that there were no developments in the robbery at Ontario Diamond Company's store yesterday. Provincial police have not yet obtained a clue in the robbery of the Standard Bank branch at Stouffville.

PREMIERS TO MEET.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 26.—(Canadian Press). — Premier Bracken stated last night that representatives of the Manitoba Government would be glad to meet Prime Minister King and representatives of other provinces at any time, but he thought it would have been better to arrange for a conference on November 15, in view of the fact that the conference on the Lake of Woods Levels had been called for November 15.

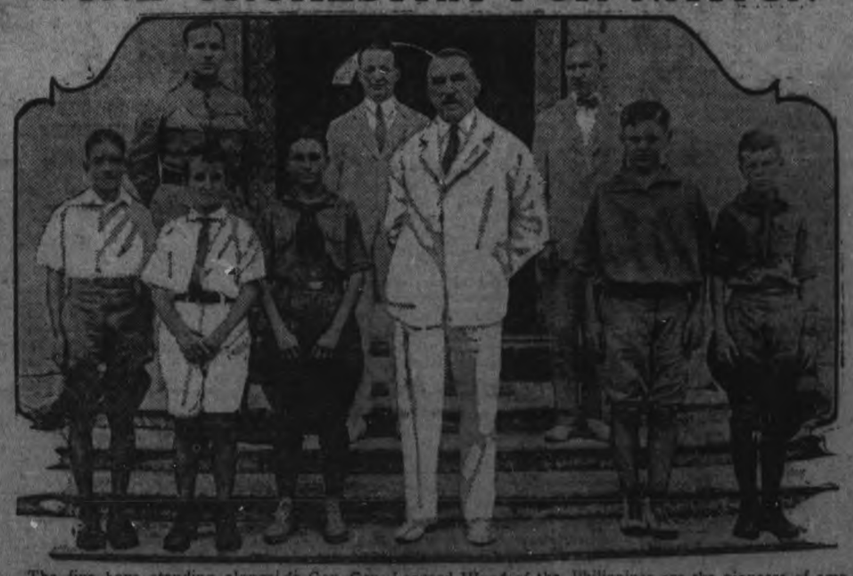
JUMPED OVER FALLS.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Oct. 26. —(Canadian Press).—A taxi driver reported to the police yesterday that he saw a woman, dressed in black, leap from Goat Island Bridge into the Niagara River Tuesday night. The State Reservation officers and the city police were unable to find anything to confirm the reported suicide.

TOWN WENT WILD.

LUNENBURG, N. S. Oct. 26.—(Canadian Press.) — Bells rang, whistles blew and the town generally, went wild with excitement when the victory of the schooner Bluenose in the International schooner race was announced last evening. Everybody is praying for wind today.

ONE ORCHESTRA FOR NATION



The five boys standing alongside Gov. Gen. Leonard Wood of the Philippines are the pioneers of amateur radio in those islands. They made their own radio sets and are helping others with theirs. General Wood is encouraging the use of radio among the boys of his territory.

NEW YORK.—One orchestra may yet supply music to the whole nation!

This is the prediction of Joseph O'Brien, president of the Dancing Masters' Association. It follows installation of a radio receiving set in the ball-room of the Hotel Commodore, here, for the reception of dancing music from a central broadcasting station.

The installation at the Commodore includes a loud speaking telephone outfit with the receiver. Projectors have been placed at various points in the ball-room and connected to the set. The equipment is similar, on a smaller scale, to that used at Madison Square Garden last Armistice Day when 38,000 people in and about the building were able to take part in the service.

Establishment of a central broadcasting system for dance music, O'Brien believes, would bring the world's best orchestra into every ball-room in the country.

"If such a station is established," he says, "it could readily afford the best orchestra in the world. Yet the cost to each subscribing academy would be less than its present payroll.

"First class music for dancing is essential if we are to please our patrons and this kind of music costs us real money. It is an obvious waste for a hundred academies to employ a hundred orchestras if they can connect by radio with a central station which transmits dance music."

LLOYD IN COMEDY OF THE UNDER DOG.

Harold Lloyd in "Grandma's Boy" his newest comedy in five parts, plays the part of a country boy who was afraid. He had no more spirit than a jack rabbit. The other kids had knocked enough chips off his shoulders to start a lumber yard. As a baby he was afraid to call his cradle his own. At school he wore great holes in his stockings, where his knees shook together. At nineteen he was meek, modest and retiring.

The Boy's most precious possession was his old-fashioned Grandma. When the Girl came into his life, and then a Rival was a big bully, the Boy's days were made miserable. Then came realization of his weakness and cowardice. How he goes out and conquers his fear, captures a desperate criminal that has terrorized the community, thrashes the Bully and wins the Girl provides "Grandma's Boy" with a real, dramatic story and a host of opportunities for hilarious situation and "gags" and some great thrills.

The Capitol Theatre will present Harold Lloyd in "Grandma's Boy" for a three day run commencing today. Fred Newmeyer directed it from the story by Hal Roach, Sam Taylor and Jean Ravez and the cast includes Mildred Davis, Mrs. Anna Townsend, Dick Sutherland, Charles Stevenson and Noah Young.

AT THE GRAND.

"THE BAT" IS FLYING THIS WAY!

"It certainly is a grand show."

That was the way the dramatic critic for "Life" summed up his review of "The Bat" by Mary Roberts Rinehart, and Avery Hopwood which Wagenhals and Kemper present at the Grand Opera House on Friday and Saturday, October 27 and 28 and Saturday matinee. And if subsequent records may be accepted as proof, the critic was certainly right in his judgment.

"The Bat" has broken every theatrical record of New York and Chicago for popularity and success, as measured by the standards of the box office. Incidentally it is in a fair way to do the same in London. And there is on one to deny that that after all, is the test of a play. If the public likes it, it is good and if the public doesn't all the arguments in the world cannot make it stand as a good play.

"The Bat" is a thrilling mystery play through which there runs a vein of comedy that is irrestibly funny. One moment you are thrilled until your hair fairly stands on end and the next, you are plunged in a perfect paroxysm of laughter.

"The Bat" played for more than two years in New York, In Chicago, "The Bat scored a run of over one solid year, something no other play has ever done in the history of that city. Morever, in both cities, week after week, the play was seen by audiences that taxed the absolute capacity of the theatres in which it was being given.

"The Bat" is presented under the management of Wagenhals and Kemper, known for years in the theatrical world for their success in producing success. It has been handsomely staged and is acted with consummate skill by an excellent company.

AT THE ROYAL.

Tully Marshall, the elongated screen and stage star, has upset some of the most cherished traditions of his profession. After years of playing character and heavy roles he has blossomed forth as a comedian—something that doesn't happen often in the acting profession, once a player gets a reputation for doing a certain line of parts of an opposite nature.

Mr. Marshall first became famous in "dope fiend" roles such as he played in "Paid in Full." When the films claimed him as it has most of the talented stage stars, he became a "villain" and a villain he stayed for some five years.

But when Jess Robbins was casting "Too Much Business" and adaptation of the Saturday Evening Post story, "John Henry and the Restless Sex," there was a part for which Mr. Marshall was an ideal type, and in spite of tradition and perhaps some misgivings he was engaged for the role.

The result was that Mr. Marshall playing a grouchy business man in "Too Much Business" put over the principal comedy role of a picture that is as full of laughs as a porcupine is of quills in a way that would make Will Rogers green with envy.

"Too Much Business" comes to the Royal Theatre as the principal film attraction soon. Besides Mr. Marshall, other players of note are Ethel Grey Terry and Edward Horton.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE

In parts of Central America marriage and superstition are closely interwoven. The night before her marriage a girl builds a fire, using a certain kind of twigs, gathered after nightfall.

Then she concoets a fluid which is said to exercise a certain charm over marriage She pours this on the fire. If it extinguishes the flame her marriage will be unhappy, she believes, but if it burns to ashes, that augurs a happy future.

HELD A JAM SHOWER FOR PROTESTANT HOME

The jam shower held at the Peterborough Protestant Home yesterday afternoon was very successful, with a large attendance of ladies. A goodly number of jars of jams, preserves and pickles were sent in. Tea was served in the living room, the tea table, arranged with chrysanthemums and ferns, in charge of Mrs. Duncan Walker and Miss Sara Robinson ,assisted by the lady members of the Board of Management.

GOSPEL HALL NOTES.

Mr. Sam Taylor, the Scottish evangelist, of Haileybury, spoke last night on the resurrection of Lazarus, giving many helpful and practical lessons. Mr. Taylor will remain in the city over Sunday, and will be heard again on Sunday evening. He has just come from the North, and reports tht a continual flow of food and money will have to be kept up if the destitute are to live over the long, hard winter.

"Y" CAMP RE-UNION.

Around the big open fire-place at the Y.W.C.A. about 40 girls gathered last night and pretended they were once again at the 'Y' Camp. Camp snaps were exchanged and happy days recalled and "do you remember" was the beginning of many an interesting tale of experience. Games and contests were enjoyed and then cocoa and cake. As one of the girls said, "It wouldn't be camp without the eats.

Now camping days are over for this year the girls are turning right to work and are helping with the big autumn fete and bazaar on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd of November, by taking charge of the August Booth, which will be an Outing Booth.

SKIRTS GROWING LONGER

Two ways to cheat a hem out of its newly fashionable inches are shown on the two models sketched.

One is the new godet—a circularly cut piece of material that is set in to give an extra fullness and the suggestion of a dip in the hemline. Many of the new frocks use not one but two or more of them.

The other way is equally popular. It is the application, as required, of pleated panels that will hang below the bottom of the skirt.

When they are set on at an angle as in the sketch they are considered especially clever.

These are subterfuges for the woman who is regretting the passing of short skirts and wants to lengthen hers only by degrees. They're both very fashionable just now.

By Stuart P. West)

NEW YORK October 26 (Special to The Examiner). — Further heavy selling of United States Government bonds softness in the investment bond list generally another sharp decline followed later by recovery in the foreign exchanges and a series of very irregular price changes in stocks — these were the main incidents in the markets to-day.

It is easier to understand the weakness in Liberty bonds than the decline in the new United States 4¼'s, which at one time to-day were down more than a half point. The selling of Liberties by banks and corporations is plainly due to the larger need for credit and working capital in industry. It is by no means, therefore, an unfavourable sign. But it is quite inconceivable, however, that investment institutions and corporations that may have subsided to the new bonds less than a month ago should be re-selling them because they had suddenly found a more profitable use for their funds in other directions. Apparently the new Government loan is in the first place adjusting itself to the lower levels of the Liberty group and in the second place, is preparing itself for future large issues of the same security.

At the extreme low touched this morning, French francs were off nearly a cent from their recent high little more than a month ago were down two and a half cents from their top of the year, and were selling at the lowest since February, 1921. Italian lire have not sold as low since October, nor have Belgian francs since the first week of last December.

The partial rally in the afternoon in all these rates was undoubtedly nothing more than the buying in of contracts for the decline which regularly happens in any speculative market after such a rapid break as that of the past week.

Some reason, however, may have been found for the slight turn for the better in franc exchange, in the improvement disclosed in the weekly statement of the Bank of France. This showed a further contraction of 430,000,000 francs in paper note issue thereby in conjunction with the decrease of the previous week undoing the greater part of the billion franc inflation of September. This last week's note retirement was again made possible by repayment of 400,000,000 francs by the Government.

HEAVY RAIL TRAFFIC.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.— Partial explanation for recent strength of rails was furnished by figures showing loadings for week ended October 14 of 986,470 cars, increase 15,301 over preceding week. Central, Reading, B. and O. scored fractional gains. Industrials were irregular. Gas receded to 141 5-8 in ordinary trading against high 144 Thursday reflecting belief that no step would be taken regarding capital readjustment at to-ady's meeting.

INDUSTRIALS WEAK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. — Industrials were again subjected to heavy pressure in the first hour and steel, Baldwin, Studebaker, and Mexican Pete broke to new lows on reaction, but even while this section was distinctly weak, rails continued strong. Central advanced to around year's high 11 ,and other active carriers reflected good buying. Steel was also well supported around 106 on expectation that optimistic predictions would be plentiful when close to 1,500 steel manufacturers gather for annual meeting at American Steel Institute to-morrow. It is well known Chairman Gray is confident the steel industry is headed for big things. Meeting comes at a time when U. S. Steel is forced to purchase semi-finished steel from outsiders in order to make deliveries on specified time.

Interests closely identified with U. S. Steel are said to hold more steel common than at any time in the past several years.

STEEL SHARES WEAK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Persistent pressure was exerted against industrial leaders throughout morning hours but this condition showed a better tone this afternoon. However special weakness was evidenced by independent steels like Crucible, which broke to 78. In connection with weakness in independent steels there has been a great deal of talk of lower prices for steel products. So far this has been confined to removal of premiums which independent makers exacted for prompt delivery during fuel and car shortage. Bankers are confident market will turn before end of the week. There is good buying of stocks and offerings are well absorbed. A good sized short interest has been created in certain of active issues and technical position of market seems stronger than at any time this week. Call money advanced to six per cent. during early afternoon compared with renewal rate of 4 1-2. This development added to general bearishness prevailing in Wall Street and stocks were still heavy around 2 p.m. Sentiment was not helped by break in new government issue, which broke to 99.20. Selling continued among speculative leaders.

Make Your Money Work!

If you can earn $6.00 per day, would you work for $3.00? It would be foolish, and it is the same way with money. Why be content with $3.00 per year on a $100.00, when with ABSOLUTE SECURITY that $100.00 will make you $12.00 interest with the good probability of the stock doubling in value? We refer to HOLLINGER GOLD MINES, the BEST GOLD MINE IN THE WORLD. We will buy the stock outright for you or on margin.

Policy of British Premier Vague to Point of Blankness

LONDON, Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press).—The latest development in the electoral campaign is an understanding reported to have been reached in some districts under which the Conservatives have agreed not to oppose Coalition Liberal candidates under Lloyd George's banner who will pledge themselves to give Bonar Law general support.

At Dundee, the Unionist Association decided to support Hon. Winston Churchill and J. A. Macdonald, another Coalition Liberal.

The comment on the manifesto and speech delivered yesterday by Premier Bonar Law is rather evenly divided in the morning papers. The Times commends them to public approval, while the Westminster Gazette regards the Premier's policy as "vague to the point of blankness — a caricature of incapacity."

MAY PROVIDE CLINIC HERE

For Treatment of Venereal Diseases—Report Made to Department.

Representatives of the Provincial Department of Health completed a survey of conditions in Peterborough with a view to establishing here a veneral clinic. Their report will be considered at once, and it is regarded as highly probable that Peterborough will be provided with a local office in the near future. There are already twelve established throughout the province, including six in Toronto, one in Ottawa, one in London, North Bay and other centres.

Dr. Young, Medical Officer of Health, who met the department's officials, and conducted them in their examination of prospective locations, told the Examiner that a venereal clinic would not cost the city anything. It would serve not only the needs of this city but of the whole district in combatting the so-called social disease. One location that will probably receive most consideration is part of the suite of the rooms on the top floor at the city hall through the entrance to the present laboratory. There is pronounced opinion among those who are acquainted with the conditions here and elsewhere that a clinic of this kind is needed as much in this city as in other centres where they have been in operation for some time.

Community singing led by Cyril Devey, and violin solos by Mrs. Daniels, were thoroughly enjoyed. Short addresses of welcome to the guest of the evening were given by Dr. Blagrave, and R. J. Devey, suitably replied to by Rev. Mr. Lloyd. Refreshments were served and a pleasant hour concluded with the benediction, and God Save the King.

STRONG APPEAL FOR NORTHERN SUFFERERS

That unless a continuous supply of money and supplies was forthcoming keen hardships would be endured by the people who lost everything in the Northern Ontario fire zone, is the report brought back by Dr. C. A. Hodgetts, honorary secretary of the Northern Ontario Relief Committee who went up to investigate and make a report. Dr. Hodgetts reports that relief arrangements have been well systematized in the north. Peterborough is expected to give her share in contributing to the relief fund. The Examiner acknowledges subscriptions. Please send them to this office.

NO PESSIMISM EXISTS TODAY IN HAILEYBURY

An Optimistic Spirit, Redolent of Pioneer Days, Pervades the Whole Devastated Town.

BUILDERS BUSY

cial.)—An optimistic spirit, redolent of the old pioneering days, pervades this town ,now that the first shock of the Northern Ontario disaster of October 4th has passed into history. It is not an optimism with a chimerical basis, but rather one founded in community spirit and enterprise.

Indicating thae nature of this optimism are several facts. For instance, up to noon to-day more than 300 building permits had been applied for and as yet the disaster is only three weeks old. Secondly, and probably most important, in the konwledge of prominnet citizens not one resident has left the city permanently as a result of the fire. Still again every one is feverishly engaged in the task of reconstruction as ,with winter so close, the task of providing shelters for the homeless is one demanding immediate attention.

Other indications of this optimism are observable, as, for instance, the absence of pessimistis. Even among those who lost everything there is a marked tendency to face the future with a smile rather than to sit around the ruins all day bewailing the terrible disaster. There appears to be only one complaint — that there are not sufficient hours in the day to do what is desired.

The tasks of rehabitation are multifarious ,and from the smallest boy to the oldest boy all are lending a vigorous hand. Each day the sound of hammers resounds through the town from daylight to dark; each hour wagons may be seen on the street carting rubbish from the ruins to enable owners to build on the old foundations; at any hour of the day can be seen loads of lumber or materials necessary for houses being drawn through the streets and all the time persons are thinking of the future.

THE TWO CAPTAINS TIRED OF PROTEST

Skipper of Bluenose Declines to Race the Mayflower.

GLOUCESTER, Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press). — While the protest against the Lunenburg schooner Bluenose was being considered today by the International Race Committee, Captain Angus Walters, skipper of the Bluenose, announced finally that he would not meet the Gloucester schooner Mayflower.

Captain Walters' announcement followed the decision last night to have the Bluenose and Mayflower meet in the long projected contest between the Boston boat and the winner of the international races, from which the Mayflower had been barred.

"I'll leave the old cup and everything unless they finish it all pretty soon," remarked Captain Angus.

The Race Committee had under consideration for more than two hours this forenoon the protest filed late last night by Chairman Wm. J. MacInnes, of the United States Race Committee. To the signature of Chairman MacInnes was added today the formal endorsement of Captain Clayton Morrissey, skipper of the defated Gloucesterman, Henry Ford, who explained that he was "tired of it all," and was willing to call it off, relinquishing any claim to the cup, although he believed his Henry Ford the better boat.

The American committee is protesting against the conditions under which the Bluenose won yesterday's race.

LUNENBURG WILD.

LUNENBURG, N.S., Oct. 27. — (Canadian Press).—Lunenburg may be described as having "gone wild" over the final victory of their vessel Bluenose. Flags went up last night, bells rang, fog horns bellowed and fishing vessels, which had been lying silent in the harbor since their last trip to the Banks, boomed forth their jubilation from small canon. There was a monster parade with bands and floats.

The nergy value of the avacado or alligator pear, is more than twice that of most other fruits.

SUGGEST MANAGER FOR LINDSAY FAIR

Officials Report This Fall's Attendance as 55,000

LINDSAY, Octoer 27. — At a meeting of the directors of Lindsay Fair, President ohn Carew expressed his belief that the Fair should engage a practical manager, who would supervise the entire event, look after all arrangements, etc. This would relieve many directors of responsibility, and said manager would have a check on the Fair.

Mr. Butler thought the idea a capital one, and the only one by which the Fair could be made a big success financially.

The resignation of A. E. Taylor as a director was received with regret.

One director is authority for the report that the turnstiles showed a paid admission of 35,000 in the three days of last Fair.

It is estimated that at least 20,000 additional people passed through the gates during the three days, who travelled on complimentaries, were exhibitors, judges, attendants, etc., at the Fair.

This makes a total estimate of 55,000 at the Fair in three days, which is an increase over the attendance of last year.

The band of the 57th Regiment under the direction of Lieut. W. H. Peryer will give a concert in the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening at 8.30 in aid of the Northern Ontario Fire Relief Fund. This will be a splendid opportunity for the general public to contribute to the fine cause as a collection will be taken at the door. The result should be a hand some sum realized for the Relief Fund. The band has prepared a splendid programme for the occasion and a treat is assured to all who attend. The programme will be published to-morrow.

A LECTURE ON RADIO REALLY WORTH WHILE

G. M. Middleton Gave Practical Demonstrations Before Local Engineers Last Night.

CONCERT FROM AFAR

Last evening, in the Assembly-Room of the Collegiate Institute, G. M. Middleton, E.E., Mem. A.I.E.E., of Toronto, gave an interesting and practical address on vacuum tubes for radio work, with suitable demonstration for some of their more remarkable characteristics.

Mr. Middleton was the electrical engineer of the Toronto and Niagara Power Co., and the Toronto Railway Company in 1919. He now represents the Mullard Radio Valve Company of London, England. During the recent world war he engaged in special work, producing gas for war balloons.

The meeting last night was held under the auspices of the Peterborough Branch of the Engineering Institute. P. P. Westbye, M.E.I.C., occupied the chair. The proceeds from a silver collection taken at the door will be donated to the Northern Ontario fire relief fund.

About fifteen of the local Engineers welcomed Mr. Middleton yesterday at the Empress Hotel, where they entertained him at dinner before his lecture.

All possible assistance was cheerfully furnished Mr. Middleton in installing his radio instruments and wires in the Collegiate building. He opened his address with a talk on the vacuum tube which he fully described, using a large tube for that purpose. The principle of the vacuum tube was first recognized by Thomas Edison, he said, when he discovered that an electric current can pass through a vacuum. The vacuum tube is a glass vessel containing an approximately pure vacuum, in which is a small plat and wire filament, separated sufficiently to allow the electric current to pass from one to the other. As the electric waves pass through this tube, the little plat flies to and fro from the filament, creating a vibration, and when sound waves are united with electric waves, the vibration of the little plat is changed according to the character of the sound waves. The phenomenon of the electric current passing through a vacuum was intelligently explained. The filaments, he stated, become heated when the current is passed through, the heat in turn generates little electrons in the vacuum, and the heat also speeds them up to an excessive rate of thirty-five miles per second. There are millions of these little invisible electrons, which are all conductive; thus the electric current is able to pass through the vacuum.

Mr. Middleton further explained this by a picture film, showing electric and sound waves combined being broadcasted and received by a radio apparatus, and showing the little plats in the vacuum tube vibrating in unison with the nature of the waves. The real purpose of the vacuum tube in the radio instruments is to encrease the sound volume that it will be audible to the human ear.

Transmitting and receiving apparatus were exhibted by the lecturer, who gave practical demonstrations of the use of wireless for varied purposes.

A musical concert, broadcasted from Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, was picked up by Mr. Middleton, who, through his instrument, transmitted a perfectly delightful programme to his audience in fitting conclusion of an illuminating address on one of the world's greatest marvels.

ETON COLLEGE HAS A LONG WAITING LIST.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—(Associated Press).—Eton College will open this year with 1,130 pupils, the largest number which has been allowed to attend at one time. Last term 1,124 pupils were enroiled, which is nearly double the 700 pupils allowed in prewar days.

During the last ten years the numbers applying for admittance to Eton have been so great that the faculty took steps to increase the entrance requirements and the cost of tuition, but these measures failed to bring about the desired results. The college still has a long waiting list of applicants, and is filled for many years to come. The practice is to enter a boy as soon as he is born to make sure of his gaining admittance at the qualifying age.

THRICE MARRIED, SHE PINES FOR HUSBAND NO. 2 AGAIN

DETROIT, Oct. 27.—Mrs. Margaret Doan Gordon Bischoff, 41 years old, has changed her mind three times with regard to husbands.

Now she has changed her mind again, and amid her sobs and tears of explanation she declared that it is husband No. 2 she loves now, and she wants him back.

"I guess he's the only true friend I have," cried the woman whom Gordon caused to be arrested on a charge of bigamy when she was married to Emil Bischoff of Grand Rapids on Sept. 2.

"He was a fine pal and husband," Mrs. Doan-Gordon-Bischoff added.

Mrs. Doan, as she is registered at the County Jail, first tried matrimony 20 years ago with John Doan. They lived together for 10 years and then separated. Then in 1916 Mrs. Doan met Frederick Gordon, a painter. Mrs. Doan declared he persuaded her to marry him regardless of husband No. 1 .The second venture took place in Toledo in 1910. Since then the pair lived in Detroit happily. In June, Mrs. Gordon decided to go to Grnad Rapids and obtain a divorce from husband No. 1.

"I didn't realize I had done anything wrong in marrying Gordon, since he knew of Doan's existence, and told me it didn't matter," Mrs. Doan explained. "Then one day he explained how serious it was, and I decided to get a divorce."

Mrs. Gordon arrived in Grand Rapids, obtained her divorce ,and met an old sweetheart, Emil Bischoff, she knew when she was 16 years old.

"I thought I was tired of Gordon," she continued. Bischoff suggested, since we were all alone in the world, we get married. Gordon had already told me our marriage was not legal, so I married things if I went back to Mr. Gormistake. I wonder if I could fix things if I went back to Mr. oGrdon?"

The perplexed woman was told to accomplishe this she must divorce Eischoff and marry Gordon again.

"I guess I better do that then," she said, "for he's the only man I ever really loved."

Mrs. Doan-Gordon-Bischoff told Judge William H. Heston that Bischoff neld the only place in her heart. At that time Gordon told the judge she would change her mind. She has.

IS RUMORED THAT AUCKLAND GEDDES WILL SOON RETIRE

British Ambassador to Visit Ottawa Sunday Next—Probable Changes in Embassy.

OTTAWA, October 27 Special to The Examiner). — In view of the rumours regarding the probable changes in the British Embassy at Washington, considerable interest attaches to the forthcoming visit of Sir Auckland Geddes to Ottawa on Sunday next.

It is customary for the British Ambassador to confer with the Canadian authorities once a year, but there may perhaps be a more than usual significance attached to the present visit.

It has been rumoured from Washington that Sir Auckland Geddes will shortly retire from his Ambassadorial position. On top of this rumour comes the further report that Lord Shaughnessy may be appointed Canadian plenipotentiary to the United States capital.

At the present time neither story is capable of verification at Ottawa.

Several sessions ago the Canadian Parliament made provision for the appointment of a Minister Plenipotentiary to Washington who ,would have most of the powers of an Ambassador, and who, in the absence of the British Ambassador at any time, would have charge of the British Embassy.

The sum of $60,000 was appropriated for the maintenance of the office. The idea originated with the Borden Government. The Meighen Government succeeded that Minister, but nothing was done.

Last session the King Government held the reins of office, but the appropriation is still untouched, and no appointment has been made.

Lord Shaughnessy is an American by birth, British by naturalisation, and Canadian in interests. He is a member of the British House of Lords, and in all respects might be calculated to fill the position of Minister Plenipotentiary at Washington with satisfaction to all concerned, even to the extent of acting for Great Britain. But it is not regarded here that his health would permit of his acceptance of such an onerous if honourable post, even should he be asked to do so.

The need of Canadian representation at Washington grows with time, but there are few here who believe that Lord Shaughnessy will accept the post.

It may be that this will be Sir Aucklands farewell visit. In the meantime, however, he will no doubt confer with the Canadian Premier regarding the proposed new Treaty on Armaments on the Great Lakes.

This Treaty was to all intents and purposes negotiated direct between Canada and the United States. But it has been submitted to the Imperial authorities, and while approved in a general sense, there are certain suggested changes of a minor character.

Order Vegetables By the Pound Only Under the New Act

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press).—That it was the intention to do away with gallon and other measures when the new "Root Vegetables Act" came into force, was the statement of Captain L. F. Burrows, of the Department of Agriculture, before the Retail Grocers' Association here last night.

The Act could only be successfully operated, he said, when the system of measures in force was forgotten and people got used to ordering vegetables by the pound.

SHAUGHNESSY MAY REPRESENT CANADA

His Name Mentioned as Ambassador to United States.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.— (Canadian Press.)— A report that Baron Shaughnessy of Montreal would be offered the post of Canadian Ambassador to the United States was circulating in Washington last night, according to the New York Times. British Embassy officials, however, said that they were without official confirmation of the report.

The Times say: "The Canadian Government has been desirous of having direct diplomatic representatives in Washington and the probability is that this will come in the near future. But it is not believed the Canadian representative will have the rank of an Ambasador, or even that of a minister, but rather that of High Commissioner.

There has been a report that Sir Charles Fitzpatrick of Ottawa, was to be offered the post of High Commissioner."

U. S. PAYS HOMAGE TO SEA FORCES

Also Commemorate Birthday of Theodore Rosevelt

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.— (Canadian Press.)—The United States today in one celebration paid homage to its sea forces and commemorated the birthday of one of its most illustrous sons — Theodore Roosevelt.

The North Atlantic fleet, anchored in the Hudson, and New Yorkers flocked to the scene to celebrate Navy Day. Elsewhere city services were being held to observe the anniversary of Roosevelt's birth.

DOESN'T GOLF ON SUNDAY LIKE OTHER LAWYERS.

(From Toronto Telegram).

At the Baptist Convention Mr. Joseph Wearing, of Peterborough, said he was the only lawyer in Peterborough doing active Christian work. He attributed that to his having graduated from McMaster instead of from Toronto University. Had that not been so he would be found Sunday afternoon on the golf links instead of in the Sunday school.

KIWANIS CLUB LADIES' NIGHT IS BIG EVENT

The Programme Runs From Grave to Gay—Prizes for the Ladies—Interesting Travel Talk

FINES NUMEROUS

Last night was "Ladies Night" with the Kiwanians of Peterboro with the result that the regular weekly session of the Kiwanis club, not only had a change of time, from noon until evening, but also had an augmented roll call that took some time to dispose of. Members to the number of about sixty were on hand for one of the best meetings of the year, and under the watchful eye of their wives, it is needless to say, they behaved themselves. President Frank Whitehouse was in the chair and his handling of the gavel was a marvel to behold. At the other end of the Empress hotel dining hall, Kiwanian Billy Philips held sway as musical director while Kiwanian J. Johns as Sergeant At Arms ran a close third as the busiest man on the floor. The latter was kept busy collecting fines from jovial husbands whose flippancies were frowned upon by the master of ceremonies in the chair.

Prizes for Ladies

During the serving of the vitamines the Club members sang a Kiwanis song for the benefit of the ladies after which Kiwanians E. H. Wood and Wesley Dodds were announced as boosters for the evening. Kiwanians Jack Dewart ad W. E. Conway were delegated to tell the gathering what they knew about Kiwanians Wood and Dodds and the result was a revelation. Several of the ladies secured prizes which ran all the way from a railway ticket to Kendry, wrapped up in a box large enough to contain a fur coat, to a suspicious looking bottle that was brought to the meeting by Kiwanian Wood. However, the contents failed to excite any interest, when according to the directions on the bottle. they were described as a sure cure for all the ills of mankind and many others not enumerated in the medical lexicon.

Miss Marjorie Ingall delighted the audience with a recitation and was heartily encored. Mr. Vern Morphet contributed two solos that were appreciated. Mrs. William Philips was the accompanist.

A Travel Talk

The feature of the excellent programme provided was the illustrated travel talk by Rev. R. B. Grobb, rector of All Saints Church, whose recent return from an extended tour to Europe, qualifies him to discuss present day conditions in some of the old lands. Mr. Grobb opened his subject with a picture of the home of Bobbie Burns and after touching on some of the chief points in Scotland, England, France and Holland, concluded with a reference to the financial disruption of the German Empire, where the speaker was able to secure a suitcase full of marks in exchange for a ten dollar bill. While this aviation in exchange may be of some advantage to the traveller who for the small price of fifty-two cents, which includes a ten per cent tip, levied by the waiters union, can get in Germany, the best meal and hotel service, plus a fine orchestra, and other items of hotel service, the people of Germany are

CANADIAN INVENTORS TURN MIND TO IDEAS OF PEACE

But Few Machines of War like Nature Are Being Patented — Subject of Locomotion Pre-eminent

FOREIGN PATENTEES.

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.— (Canadian Press.)—Inventors applying for patents in Canada have turned their attention from machines of a warlike nature to those used in more peaceful pursuits, according to the report of the Commission of Patents for the year ending March 31, 1922, which is just issued. There were few outstanding features in the field of invention during the year, the commissioner reports. The subject of locomotion maintained its pre-eminence.

The land vehicle class was again the largest single class of invention and internal combustion engines was the number of applications for patents filed. Applications relating to aeronautics declined. In railway, rolling stocks and draft appliances there were slight decreases, but there was an increase in the number for railway brakes. There were fewer applications for ships but more for small boats and ships' davits.

Small arms, ammunition, ordnance and other classes of invention relating to warfare were very inactive. The electrical classes as a whole were active. Applications for high tension insulators thermal cutouts and electrical heaters showed substantial gains.

There has also been continued progress in automatic and semi-automatic telephone exchanges and in the development of wireless communication.

During the year 14,274 applications were filed, which was a decrease of 1,172 or eight per cent from the previous year. Patents issued numbered 7,393, a decrease of 3,759 or over 33 per cent. from the previous year's figures. This decrease, it is explained, is due to the change in the manner of payment of fees. Under the amendments to the Patents Act six months was allowed for remittance of the final fee after notice of allowance, and most applicants took advantage of this change.

Registrations of copyright decreased by 264 from the previous year's total to 1,456. Trade mark registrations totalled 2,488, an increment of 360 or nearly 17 per cent.

Total registrations affecting copyrights, trade marks, industrial designs and timber marks were 5,048, a gain of 193 or about four per cent. over the previous year.

Of the grand total of 7,393 inventors who had patents granted during the year, 4,929 were applied for by residents of the United States. This is nearly sixty seven per cent. of the whole issue, but is a two per cent. decrease from last year. Inventors resident in Canada contributed 1,199 or sixteen per cent., an increment of one per cent. Residents of Great Britain, its colonies, and possessions, applied for 838, or over eleven per cent. of the total. This is also an increase of over three per cent. The remaining 427 or over five per cent. came from inventors in twenty-seven other countries.

A "TIP" WAS GIVEN BUT THE ROBBERS MADE A GETAWAY

The Manitoba Attorney-General Is Preparing to Probe Alleged Blunder at Pipestone — Citizens Organize Patrol.

BURGLARS ESCAPED.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press.) —A complete investigation into alleged blunders at Pipestone, Man., which permitted bank robbers to escape, in the face of advance information will be undertaken by the Attorney General's Department, Hon. R. W. Craig, Provincial Attorney General announced yesterday. He declared blame for the escape will be fixed before the Department relinquishes its probe.

Neither Col. Rattray, Commissioner of Provincial Police, nor Col. Knight of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, was aware of the "tip" which was communicated to the provincial police Tuesday night, Mr. Craig stated. The information, it has been established, was received by Inspector James Bain, who, unable to locate Col. Rattary at his home, despatched it to District Officers.

"I do not want to make a report on any police officer," Mr. Craig said, "until in possession of the full facts. It is certainly a matter of great disappointment and aggravation that such a thing could be possible."

Fearing a recurrence of the visit of bandits who made the unsuccessful attempt to rob the Royal Bank early Wednesday morning, a night patrol of citizens of Pipestone has been organized to guard the town.

FIREMEN'S DANCE HELD IN LAKEFIELD

Annual Affair Was a Big Success—Cup Presented to the Baseball Club.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 27.—The annual Firemen's dance was held last evening under the auspices of the Lakefield Volunteer Fire Brigade. The affair was held in the town hall and an excellent crowd was present including many visitors from Peterboro, Young's Point, Warsaw and other nearby places. The great success of the occasion was due to a large extent to the untiring efforts of Fire Chief W. L. Webster.

The patronesses present were: Mrs. P. D. Marling, Mrs. S. J. Gibson and Mrs. G. G. Connell. In addition to the usual dances three special dances were presented which caused a good deal of merriment. They were the baloon dance, the streamer dance and the moon dance. Excellent music was furnished by a five piece orchestra.

During the supper hour Miss Annie Logan, of Peterboro, gave an entertainment of Scotch dancing including the sword dance, the Highland fling and several others. Tom McManus also gave a few steps of a lively Irish jig.

Captain John Dewart of Peterboro was among the guests present and took advantage of the occasion to present the Dewart cup to the Lakefield Baseball Club. This cup was won by the team when the defeated the Keene nine at the Liberal Rally which was held here on September 12. O. A. Langley introduced Captain Dewart and E. M. Greer, president of the Lakefield baseball club made a very appropriate reply after the presentation.

CANADIAN VIOLINIST RETURNED TO JAPAN

TOYKO, Oct. 27.— (Canadian Press)—Kathleen Parlow, the Canadian violinist has returned to Japan from Java, where she had the distinction of being presented to the Soehunan, the ancient ruler of the island.

The Soehunan, who held undisputed sway over the whole of Java before the Rutch came, is still an absolute monarch, but he rules over a smalled walled domain set aside by Holland, called Solo. There he entertains visitors and receives their presents. When Miss Parlow was introduced to the old chieftain; he was surrounded by his forty-four wives and fifty-eight children.

"He is a fat old man with watery eyes and he loves decorations", said Miss Parlow. "As a result he is loaded with every sort of medal and when he is in formal attire he is literally covered with decorations."

"He wore and old frock and seemed especially proud of his green stockings. When he spoke his voice could be easily heard above the orchestra that played incessantly and the combined voices of the others.

Miss Parlow will make a concert tour through China in November and will spend the winter in Europe, returning to Canada and the United States the following season.

In order to protect her violin from the hot, damp climate of the Far Eastern tropics, Miss Parlow had it assembled with a Russian glue that is impervious to the weakening effect of heat and humidity.

The country is now without a parliament, but has plenty of candidates for the next one.

STRICTLY ENFORCE LORD'S DAY ACT.

Even the Sale of Milk in Manitoba on Sunday Prohibited.

WINNIPEG, Oct 27.—(Canadian Press).—Strict enforcement of the Lord's Day act, recently inaugurated by city and provincial authorities in Manitoba, has brought loud protests from many sections of the community and it will probably be a subject of much discussion at the next session of the provincial legislature as amendments to the act will be sought by Labor members.

With rigid enforcement of the act, the sale of everything except meals in restaurants is prohibited on Sundays. Not even a loaf of bread or a bottle of milk can be sold nor can ice cream be bought for the Sunday apple-pie. Emergency supplies—in case of unexpected company—will have to be kept by the housewife, and even father will be affected for he will have to purchase sufficient supplies of tobacco, cigarettes or cigars, which ever he is a devotee of, Saturday night.

Since 1906, following a conference between the department of the attorney-general, the city police and the Lord's Day Alliance sales of fruits, soft drinks, bread, milk, cigars tobacco and cigarettes were permissible.

That policy has been followed ever since. Recently, however, the police department and the attorney-general were requested to strictly enforce the act and that policy is now being followed. The inaugurating of the new policy, which is stated to be the result of an application of the Lord's Day Alliance, resulted in twenty-one city storekeepers appearing in court for infraction of the act.

Confectionery and other small stores will be compelled to close on Sundays now and G. L. Paterson, president of the Small Stores Association, announces strong opposition on the part of his Associaiton to the new order. Mr. Paterson said a deputation will be sent to the provincial government to file a formal protest.

Labor members will seek to have amendments made to the act to permit the selling of the necessities of life, such as bread and milk, and similar goods on Sundays. John Queen, Labor member for Winnipeg declares the strict enforcefent of the act will work on unwarranted hardship upon the people.

The Lord's Day act while a Federal enactment is subject to provincial government amendments.

ENTIRE CABINET OF ITALIAN GOVT. HAS GIVEN RESIGNATION

Hostile Attitude of the Fascisti and Ordering of a General Mobilization Caused Cabinet to Give Up Power.

KING TO RETURN.

ROME, Oct. 27. Canadian Press.— Premier Facta, and his entire ministry resigned last evening, following the hostile attitude of the Fascisti against it and the ordering by the Fascisti of a general mobilization of its forces throughout the country if the Cabinet declined to give up power.

The expectation in Rome last night was that King Victor Emmanuel would return to the capital to-day for a conference with the political leaders prior to the formation of the new government. The situation was regarded hopefully in Rome. The belief prevailed in some quarters that either Vittorie Orlando or Giovanni Giolitti, both former Premiers, would be requested to organize a new cabinet.

The impression was advanced in political circles that the Facta Ministry decided to retire chiefly for the purpose of bringing about the formation of a strong administration, which at the approaching reopening of the Chamber of Deputies, would be capable of facing the Fascisti.

There was some speculation as to whether the Fascisti would yield to offers of portfolios in a cabinet headed by Giolitti or Orlando or decide to precipitate matters by carrying out their threats to seize the government.

Seven other occupants of the house escaped without injury.

Foretopmast of Henry Ford Carried Away in the Gale — Capt. Walters Shortened Sail to Same Proportions.

WON WITH EASE.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., October 27 (Canadian Press). — Canada yesterday retained her hold on the International Fishermen's Trophy, emblematic of the sailing championship of the North Atlantic seaboard, when her W. J. Roue-designed, Lunenburg-built schooner Bluenose(Captain Angus Walters, defeated the United States flyer, Henry Ford (Captain 'Clayte" Morrissey) for the second time in two consecutive days' racing.

The trophy will be awarded today.

The Canadian's lead at the finish line of 7 minutes 51 seconds won after five hours of strenuous racing, in a wind ranging from 10 to 28 knots, could have been considerably increased had not Captain Walters reduced his canvas to the proportions carried by the American after her foretonmast had carried away, shortly after the schooners had squared away on the ten-mile thresh to windward from the third to the fourth marks.

After the race, Captain "Clayte" estimated that Angus would have beaten him by twenty minutes in the weather of the day had he wished to take advantage of the American's misfortune.

At the same time he expressed the belief that the Ford had sailed better under shortened sail, and insisted that in his opinion he could defeat Angus, if limited to four lowers.

Certainly the Ford carried all she could lug throughout the latter half of the course. With her decks awash to her cabin house and above, she tore through the water like a hydroplane, gained perceptibly on Bluenose during the latter half of the thresh, and charged down the last five-mile leg to the finish line at a thirteen-knot clip.

Her performance was only surpassed by that of the fast climbing and fast reaching Bluenose, which reduced to the same canvas as that carried by the Ford, gained six minutes fiftythree seconds on her rival over the last two legs.

Walters frankly admitted after the race that while he wished most of all to defeat the American in a fair field and without favours, this was not his sole reason in shortening sail, he had established a commanding lead at the time the challenger's top stick went ,and under the circumstances it would have been folly for him, he said, to have risked losing his own gear.

He added that he would rather be beaten by Clayton Morrissey than any skipper he knew, and said he was ready to race him any time the expatriated Nova Scotian said the word.

CHEAPER FREIGHT RATES ARE ASKED ON WESTERN COAL

Present Tariff of $12.70 Per Ton From Alberta to Ontario Is Considered Much Too High.

NATIONAL SERVICE.

EDMONTON, October 27. Canadian Press. — Cheaper freight rates on coal as a form of national service have been suggested to the management of the Canadian National Railway by A. Chard, freight and traffic supervisor for the Alberta government.

The present tariff of $12.70 per ton from the Alberta mines to points in Ontario are shown to be working seriously against the development of the eastern market. A request is therefore made that a very substantial reduction in the ton rate be put into effect on the Government road, in order to give an opportunity for east and west to connect on the fuel question.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press)—A revolver found under the seat of a car, after it had been sent to a garage at 1139 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx, to be cleaned, resulted in the arrest of three men yesterday who are said to have admitted to the police that they stole the car from in front of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, Montreal, October 9.

WOULD THIS PLAN HELP?

As another help in arousing public interest in municipal elections, the suggestion is advanced that candidates who intend to offer themselves for the various civic boards should not wait until the official nomination day to announce their candidature.

The idea is that if the names of many of those who are aspiring for office were before the public for three or four weeks before polling day, there would naturally be a much greater interest in the campaign.

In this connection it is pointed out that in political fights the battle is nearly over before nomination day, or, at least, the candidates have been in the field for some time, the issues have been discussed and laid before the electorate, and the campaign is in full swing before the various standard-bearers are legally nominated.

There is much truth in the contention. Obviously much of the interest is taken out of the municipal contests by reason of the fact that the list of candidates is not known until the last few days.

Possibly if the nominations were to be staged two weeks before election day, an improvement might be found.

In the meanwhile, however, there is nothing to prevent citizens who have decided to accept nomination from informing the public of that fact well in advance. If their minds are made up they should have no objection to announcing their intentions in time to create a much-needed interest in the municipal campaign.

POOL TABLE LICENSES.

Excepting from the pool-room proprietors themselves there has been no demand for a reduction in the municipal licenses on pool tables, and it is to be imagined that there will be no loud outburst of popular approval at the action of the Committee of the Whole Council in deciding upon a reduction of $5.00 a table.

In the first place, it means a direct loss in revenue of about $300.00 a year.

The fact that pool-room proprietors have been willing to pay a total tax of $55.00 per table upon 59 tables indicates that there was no need of the Council sacrificing $300.00 worth of taxes.

As a matter of fact, there are too many pool tables in operation in Peterborough at the present time; and it would have been a better stroke of business on the part of the city fathers if they had raised the tax high enough to eliminate some of them rather than lowering the present license fee.

There would not be so much objection to a lower tax in the case of pool tables in the city hotels which provide much accommodation for the public from which no revenue is obtained. The hotels are a community asset which deserve a measure of assistance, but the same plea can hardly be advanced to bolster up the claim of the ordinary pool-rooms for a lower license rate.

THE REVOLVER AGAIN.

Another crime wave is finding a prominent place on the front pages of Canadian newspapers these days.

The Western Provinces have had an epidemic of robberies.

Here in Ontario a Stouffville bank has been looted, a Toronto jewellery store is robbed in broad daylight, and London men have bene held up by footpads armed with revolvers.

In two of these cases the revolver played a leading part, and in the Stouffville robbery there is no doubt that the crooks were similarly armed, and would have used their weapons if there had been any need of so doing.

How are revolvers to be kept out of the hands of the burglars and hold-up men?

The existing machinery has fallen down. Apparently crooks have no more difficulty in securing firearms in Ontario than the people in Quebec have in securing liquor.

The surest remedy is to forbid not only the possession but the manufacture of revolvers for general use.

No one needs a revolver in Ontario—or at least no one would need one were it not for the fact that the lawless element are using them for unlawful purposes.

So long as fire arms of this kind are available for the use of crooks there is bound to be crimes of violence.

THE CHAMPION BLUENOSE.

Hail to the Bluenose and to Captain Angus Walters and his crew of Canadian fishermen!

For the second year in succession the Lunenburg schooner has shown herself the champion of the Atlantic fishing boats, and Canadians not only on the coast but in the hinterland will rejoice at the success of their representative.

It was felt that the Bluenose would show her heels to her rival in anything but a drifting match, and that confidence was vindicated by the result of the last two races in which the Canadian boat won handily.

That there should have been any confusion or misunderstanding over this year's race is to be regretted.

The fisher folk are renowned for their sportsmanship, and they have a natural dislike for anything that savours of red tape.

At the same time, if international contests are to be held, there must necessarily be a code of rules laid down, they must be observed, and a committee to see that they are carried out connot be dispensed with.

The Bluenose has complied with all the regulations and has won her honours fairly and squarely, and Captain Walters and his gallant crew deserve the plaudits of their fellow-countrymen everywhere on their successful defence of the Cup.

Incidentally it speaks volumes for the skill of Canadian fishermen that the skipper of the losing Ford is also a Canadian.

THE ENTENTE SAGS.

After the Near East, the nearer Europe. There is yet no settlement of the reparations muddle and experienced observers are now declaring that procrastination nurses catastrophe, says the Ottawa Journal. Adding to the difficulties and, indeed, making them crucial, is the breaking point to which the Entente has been brought within the past few days. The moratorium recently granted to Germany for the rest of this year is a moratorium only against a partial moratorium already in force. When the main scheme of reparation payments was shelved at the beginning of the year, Germany was presented with a provisional scheme of reduced payments for the duration of the year. It was against this partial moratorium that a further moratorium was recently granted. The London conference of last month failed to reach the main problem of reparations and inter-Allied debts. The only value of the Bank of England's salvation of the Reparation Commission's subsequent decision lay in the chance it gave to the Allies to meet again and settle the main problem. That will in any event have to be done before the end of the present year. The longer it is postponed, the more doubtful become the prospects, and the more certain that confidence will again ebb, and Europe be plunged more fitfully in its economic fever.

Meanwhile, to the regret of all, and more particularly, perhaps, of England, the Entente Cordiale becomes more and more feeble. Mr. Lloyd George's speech, indeed, made perfectly plain what was only beginning to be apparent, that England and France, despite their common sacrifices of the last eight years, are upon the point of taking separate paths. What the reaction of this will be upon the Allied Conference when it next comes to deal with the problem of German reparations is not quite clear, although enough is evident to warrant pessimism in the settlement of a difficulty which continues to menace the stability of the world.

THE QUESTION OF SUICIDES.

The question of suicides, despite the marvellous progress of medicine and psychology is said to be little better understood than it was two centuries ago It is astonishing to find that in the United States, where education is generally diffused, where religious influences are almost universally felt, and where the science of social service is so highly developed, the number of suicides is half as high again as in Great Britain. The proportion of suicides to the population is also considerably higher in the cities, where the refinements and advantages of life abound, than in the rural sections. Even in geographical distribution of suicide throughout the country is at variance with the general ideas on the subject.

The highest rate of suicides is on the Pacific Coast and the lowest in the South. In New England and the Northern Central states, the proportion is about the same, while the Rocky Mountain States have a much higher rate. Even the effect of alcohol on suicide is generally misunderstood. It has been found that alcohol leads to suicide only by producing acute hallucinations. Hysteria is a less common cause of suicide than is supposed. In analysing the causes of suicide, the specialists agree that mere intelligence has little to do with it.

More than three times as many men commit suicide as women. For several years past there has been an alarming increase in the number of suicides among children and young people. Children of from 10 to 14 years figure prominently in these tables. The highest rate comes between the yars of 45 and 54, after which it falls off. The total number of suicides for the entire country is on the increase. Twenty years ago the rate was about 11 per 100,000, while to-day it is about 40 per cent. greater.

The fact that the largest number of suicides takes place at night shows that the exciting causes are disturbed mental conditions. The most frequent cause is mental depressions and the unwillingness to endure it. In every 100 suicides 22 are attributed to this cause. The next commonest cause is physical suffering, which accounts for about the same number of self-inflicted deaths. Domestic troubles are the cause of 11 per cent. Next in turn comes misconduct and then poverty, each with less than 10 per cent. It is surprising to find that but 5 per cent. of all suicides are due to drunkenness. Those who kill themselves because of financial losses would seem to be very common, but as a rule only about 2 per cent. of suicides are traceable to this cause. It will be seen that most of these causes are likely to be common in a highly civilised society. It is significant that there are few suicides among savages.

It is also a noticeable fact that spring and summer are the more hopeful sesaons and that when fall and winter set in the number of suicides result largely from depressed mental states shows the wisdom of cultivating mental calmness and self-control from the earliest periods of life. The neglect to learn self-control in youth is a fruitful cause of trouble. As the wise man says: He that hath no rule over his own spirit is like a city broken down and without walls," which becomes a prey to all disturbing attacks. The peace of the untroubled heart is one of the greatest acquisitions in life.—Brantford Expositor.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENTS.

One thing is certain. The new British Cabinet cannot truthfully be described as a peerless one.

With 101 murders in the first nine months of this year, Philadelphia can scarcely be called "the city of brotherly love" any longer.

The Provincial Fuel Controller has fixed the price of anthracite coal in Kingston at $16.50 per ton. There is not much of it being sold at that price in Peterborough.

"Loose Nut Wrecks Car," reads a newspaper heading. It is presumed that he was driving.

It is evident that to have a look-in in Lucan, you must have luck in Lucan.

According to a contemporary, the real answer is that the people in South-east Toronto did seem to give a hoot how the election went.

Despatches from the scene of the fishermen's races indicate that temperament is not confined to actors or opera singers.

Wine and beer propaganda is evidently more popular in Southeast Toronto than it is in Russell.

The Duke of Devonshire becomes Secretary for the Colonies in the new Cabinet. His service in Canada should help him in his new position.

There is a lot of truth in a contemporary's remark that when Greek meets Greek they start either a restaurant or a revolution.

THE MYSTERY MIND

Arthur B. Reeve and John W. Grey

"I am" The hypnotist grinned. "My name is Robert Dupont, Dr. Robert Dupont. I am a physician in the United States, in New York, specializing in the new science of the mind; hypnotism, you know. I—I have travelled considerably in tropical America and Africa, studying the negro superstitions. This is my friend, Chester Randolph, who has been with me on some of my trips."

A certain barely perceptible eagerness disturbed the calm of the old man as he barred the door behind them. "Did you—did you ever become acquainted with Dr. James Sutton of New York?"

"Doctor Sutton?" Dupont beamed. "Why, I owe everything to him. He practically gave me my career. He"—pausing—"Why do you ask?"

"I knew him," the prospector stated, simply. There was a certain puzzling reticence about him. As yet he had not reciprocated Dupont's introduction, nor acknowledged the friendly nod of Randolph. He turned to Violet, gazing at her as if unable to fathom something vaguely familiar about this slim companion of the men. "Are you a boy or a girl?" he asked, finally.

"Girl" She attempted to courtesy, in a sudden impulse of impishness encouraged by his decidedly frank scrutiny, but her trousers were too tight.

He walked over to her slowly, taking her by the arms and leading her to the light. She felt a sense of resentment, but at the same time her intuition held her breathless, trembling, unable to understand a deep, wonderful thrill which went through and through her at his touch.

"What—what is your name?" he demanded.

"Violet Bronson"

He swept her to his arms with bearlike strength. She could not protest, could not analyze a surge of fright—or was it joy—sweeping over her. In just an instant he half released her, the tears springing to his eyes. He looked at her almost in disbelief.

"Violet Violet" he murmured. "I—I am your father I am Richard Bronson"

HASTINGS CAR STRUCK A DOG, TURNED TURTLE

Narrow Escape of Two Prominent Citizens, Who Were Pinned Beneath Auto—Hastings News.

HASTINGS, October 27. — Dr. J. H. and Clifford Hess motored to Oshawa on Wednesday. On the return journey, the car, with Clifford at the wheel, struck a dog which suddenly rushed out from the bushes by the road side. The car skidded and made for the ditch, where it turned turtle, pinning the occupants beneath. They were, however, quickly rescued from their perilous position, much the worse for their mishap. The automobile was damaged to such an extent that it had to be left behind for repairs.

Mr. Gale McMaster was in Oshawa on Wednesday.

NEWS PARAGRAPHS

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 27.—The Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church packed on Tuesday four large boxes for the fire sufferers in the Northern Ontario district. These were consigned for distribution to a lady, who is well known here, being a sister of Mrs. L. A. Denike, and Mr. John Gay. The shipment included 19 quilts, several blankets pillows, underwear, coats, mufflers, socks, and warm outer garments. The W.M.S. is considering the sending of fruit, jam, etc., in the near future.

"Bobbie Burns"

A rare treat was in store for those who on Tuesday evening were privileged to go to Burnbrae, to hear the able lecture given by Dr. James L. Hughes, L.L.D. of Toronto, his subject being "Bobbie Burns". To say that he carried his hearers in rept attention is putting it mildly for Dr. Hughes spoke with his usual eloquence, and with a thorough knowledge of his subject, quoting at length from many of his poems. The audience as well as Dr. Hughes, were delighted when Miss Hilda Bonnycastle sang in her usual sweet voice two selections composed by Dr. Hughes himself and set to music by her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Bonnycastle.

Rev. Robert Fry who is supplying at Burnbrae during the absence of the pastor Rev. J. J. Black in Chirago rendered most acceptably a couple of Scotch songs, "Ye Braes and Banks of Bonnie Doon" and "Bonny Mary of Argyle" which were quite in keeping with the subject. The choir contributed a very pleasing number. Some of those from Campbellford who attended were:—Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Payne, Miss Grace Payne, Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Hay, Mrs. William Hume, Miss Hilda Bonnycastle, Jessie Neill, Ruth Taylor, Eileen Loucks, Rose Holonde, Miss Davis, Mr. T. J. Craighead.

Missed the Papers.

Owing to a freight train rolling off the track near Peterborough and blocking the main line, no Toronto papers arrived in Campbellford on Wednesday afternoon, but they were not missed as the "Examiner" arrived as usual and gave them all the late news.

Social Evening.

The ladies of St. Andrew's Church whose surnames begin with the following letters, H., I., J., K. and L., are surely to be congratulated upon the grand success of their social evening, held in the School-Room last night. From the standpoint of attendance, excellence of program, abundance of dainty refreshments, and general hospitality, nothing could have been improved upon, as the ladies had spared no pains or labor to make this tea, one long to be remembered in the minds of those who were fortunate enough to attend. The room was prettily decorated in red, white and blue, and the guest tables, with their snowy coverings, were centred with a bouquet of red. Mr. C. L. Owen, ex-M.P., in his usual capable manner, occupied the chair, and interspersed bits of humor between the various numbers. The opening number was a male chorus, composed of Major Bygott, Messrs. Edwin and Walter Henson, John Storie, T. Burkett, Ward Archer, Harry Anderson, Raymond Connor, who rendered the "Marseillaise Hymn" most acceptably, and which was heartily encored. An instrumental duet, entitled "Song Fantasia," by Miss Lila Ballantyne and Mr. H. Hinds (piano and guitar) merited most hearty applause, to which they kindly responded, quite as charmingly. Rev. Robert Fry, of Burnbrae, in fine tenor voice, rendered in a very pleasing manner two solos, responding graciously with encores. Mrs. D. A. Montgomery delighted the audwith her readings, "The School Marm's Courtship" and "Just By the Side of Her," and upon hearty applause, gave a humorous little encore. Miss Helen Bygott's sweet voice was heard to advantage in the solo, "In a Monastery Garden," which was thoroughly appreciated. Mrs. (Rev.) J. E. Glover and Miss E. Meiklejohn, whose voices always blend so sweetly, contributed the number, "O, that we were Maying," and replied to the hearty encore by a pleasing encore. Mrs. Glover also rendered very sweetly the solo, "Two Eyes of Blue Come Smilin' Through at Me," and was again heartily applauded. "Tosti's Goodbye" was charmingly sung by Miss Hilda Bonnycastle, and was also heartily encored. "Sailing" was splendidly rendered by the Male Chorus, and the concluding number, "The Lute," by the Choir, was a splendid climax to a programme which was not only lengthy but altogether of a very high order. Dainty refreshments were then served in abundance, to which all did ample justice, bringing to a close a most pleasant evening for all present. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

The proceeds of the evening, which amounted to over $54, is surely most gratifying to all the ladies in charge.

This cream removes every particle of dirt after a dusty trip

FOR THOROUGH CLEANSING
—a special cream

Your skin pays for every dusty ride you take. Dust and fine particles of dirt bore into your pores and ordinary washing cannot remove them. Your skin becomes dull. It loses its clear, fresh look.

If you wish your skin to keep its youthful freshness you must give it a thorough cleansing after every dusty trip. For this you need a cleansing cream with just enough oil to remove every bit of dirt from the pores and never stay to overload them—Pond's Cold Cream.

This cream is soft and light and will not stretch the pores as stiff creams do.

Smooth it on with the finger tips. Let it stay a minute and it brings out all the dirt. Now gently wipe off both cream and dirt with a soft cloth. Notice how soft and refreshed your skin feels after this. Regular use of this delicate cleansing cream will keep your skin soft and white.

Use this special cream after every dusty trip and regularly for the nightly cleansing. It contains nothing to promote the growth of hair. The Pond's Extract Co., 123A Brock Avenue, Toronto, Can.

To complete the care of your skin another cream is necessary. Pond's Vanishing Cream protects the skin against exposure and holds the powder on for hours. Always smooth it on before going out and before powdering.

TO STOP PROFITEERING IN TOYKO CITY, JAPAN

League of Noodle Shopkeepers Must Soon Mend Their Ways

TOYKO, Oct. 27.— (Canadian Press)—The man who sells noodles on the streets of Toyko and who, incidentally plays on a horn the original "Japanese Sandman" while doing it, will soon have to find a different vocation if the present plans of the municipal authorities here are carried out.

The League of Noodle Shopkeepers have been accused of heartless profiteering. The league is made up of men who pull about the streets little covered steam table wagons with oil lamps pitched high one one end and who at all hours of the night blow familiar calls on their stubby, flute-like horns.

The noodle shopkeepers have been selling noodles for ten sens, which leaves them a profit of 4-4 sens, the officials say. In future they must only charge eight sens or get off the streets.

HELP TO FARMERS

Radio may be a means of helping the farmer keep his hired man and other servants down on the farm. Large corporations are adopting this method to provide entertainment to their employees in isolated places.

GERMAN RADIO HAMPERED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—High prices and government control hinder the growth of radio among the people of Germany.

These are the chief reasons why radio is unpopular there, writes Vice Consul Nathaniel B. Davis in a report to the Department of Commerce. The demand for supplies has been kept down, and manufacturers have not been encouraged to produce instruments even for export.

There is only one private broadcasting station in the whole country says Davis, and that transmits only market and exchange quotations. It is sent from Berlin to subscribers who pay from 1000 to 75000 marks a month for the service.

All radio communication is under the control of the Federal Postoffice Department, which operates the commercial stations and makes private installations. The license fee for such installation runs up to 2000 marks a year. That, beside the cost of actual installation.

Subscribers to the private broadcasting station, who do not care to build their own sets, may rent one from the Postoffice Department at a monthly cost of 2500 marks.

WHISTLE BETWEEN ACTS.

Broadcasting station WGY at Schenectady, N. Y., has adopted a novel way to keep amateurs tuned in on their programs. Between numbers, in the interval of quiet, a whistling note is sent out so that the members of the radio audience may know their sets are still in tune. Otherwise some may begin to fuss with the knobs and lose contact with the broadcasting station.

LION ROARS SELF TO DEATH

Animal Seen Scrambling Up an Elm Tree in the Wilds of Michigan — This Was No Tom Cat.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Oct. 27.—After scrambling up an elm tree at the Lakeside cross roads shortly before 1 o'clock yesterday morning to escape from the path of an asthmatic flivver, Berrien county's lion left Michigan forever and ever. One report was that he kept on climbing. Another rumor was that, completely disgraced by all the accounts of his recent conduct, he did the only thing any self-respecting lion could do—plunged into the lake and oblivion. He just naturally was kidded to death.

And so Chicago's most enthusiastic and experienced big game hunters, Attorney Herbert E. Bradley and his wife, Mary Hasting Bradley, the novelist, were compelled to return without any trophies of this hunt. They both enjoyed a good outing in Michigan's full tinted woods and a test of marksmanship with their big game rifles on the beach at Lakeside, but, as for lions, they didn't even obtain a view of a first class footprint.

Story of the Debacle.

All of which leaves the lion still up the tree where "Ernie" Perham, a mechanic at the Lakeside garage, chased him shortly after midnight And the world will tell you he's not in the tree now.

"It must have been shortly before 1 o'clock yesterday morning that Ernie got me out of bed," said Deputy Sheriff John S. Morley. "If I ever saw an excited and scared man it was Ernie. He said he saw the lion climbing the tree just as he was turning the corner. It was full in the glare of the lights of his machine. He said it was big enough to reach around the whole tree and went up like lightning. I said I thought it was a cat. I dressed and went down there, but there was not onything in the tree when I got there.

This Was No Tom Cat.

"I've seen cats and I know cats," protested Ernie. "This wasn't any cat. If it was a cat, I'm a lion.

"I seen a red squirrel once" said John, the taxi driver, "and it kept gettin' bigger an' bigger until it looked like a woodchuck. It scared me so I thought it was about time I was goin' home. When you're scared like that things look twice as big."

"No African lions climbs trees," Mrs. Bradley explained.

"No, that's true," her husband agreed.

But there was Mrs. Bruce Glossinger, who saw the lion lying in a road a week ago Monday.

"Our cow started runnin' and that's what drew my attention," she said. "She was draggin' a forty foot chain and that chain is heavy. She can hardly drag it."

Even Nig Reneged.

"Was the cow staked and did she pull up the stake?" Mrs. Bradley inquired.

"No," she wasn't staked, but I never saw her run like that before. I went out in the road and about 200 yards away was that animal, lying half under the fence. I tried to set old Nig, the dog on it but Nig wouldn't set. That's the first time I ever saw him refuse to go after anything. He just cringed and growled and showed his teeth, And that animal never moved.

"Cows do become terror sticken when lions are in the vicinity" Mrs. Bradley mused. "Lions just drag them down."

Mrs. Glossinger told about old man Oast. He had seen fresh lion tracks no longer ago than last Saturday in a handy stretch of road near where he was digging a drain. Over to Frederick Oast's home went the Bradleys' but the rain of Saturday night had washed the tracks away until it was difficult to tell whether they had been made by a centipede or a city hall expert.

Deputy Clark's Solution.

Then came Deputy Sheriff Albert Clark from New Buffalo with his solution of the mystery.

"Here's the lion" he said, exhibiting a large police dog owned by C. H. Channell, millionaire mop manufacturer, and kept on his large estate at Grand Beach. "Mr. Channell's got two dogs like this and they roam around quite a bit. I'll bet those footprints measure up to this dog.

"Well, my dog makes tracks almost as big as those when he's running", said Morley, "and nobody has ever heard this lion roar. Mrs. Merritt Pickney heard it whine, sort of like a baby, and Old Man Oast heard a wild cry in the woods, but nothing like a good healthy roar."

"Well, if this police dog ever growls that dog o' your'n will run around the corner of the house" Deputy Clark boasted.

Dogs Go Into a Clinch.

The police dog was pulled from the car. Immediately it and the Airedale were clinched in snarling combat. After much belaboring with sticks and ropes, the dogs were separated and the Airedale took a flying leap for a final snap. The police dog took to the woods with tail lowered and had to be coaxed back.

"Well, he didn't run around the house, anyway" chuckled Morley, leading the victorious Airedale into the house.

The police dog was weighed and tipped the scales at 73 pounds. Not heavy enough for a lion, but possibly heavy enough for lion hunting, was the verdict.

Bob Goner and Roy Peters two of the men who had seen the lion a Lakeside vineyard, viewed the police dog and admitted that might have been the animal they saw. Lee Hutchinson wasn't so sure. State Representative Herbert W. Gowdy charged all three had been drinking hard cider at the time, anyway. Even Mrs. Glossinger said it might have been the police dog she saw on the road.

Another Dog Theory.

But Gabriel Lee, state game warden and several others contend the lion tracks were made by a huge tawny dog, part mastiff, owned by Adolph Whitmeyer. The dog's tracks and some of those found possessed identical measurements. Roy E. Wire, who lost several sheep and claims to have found their bones declared it didn't make any difference which dog it was, the state owes him a bounty.

So Mrs. Bradley wearing the same hunting suit and leggins which she wore on her African hunt last winter, spent the rest of the morning on the Lakeside beach potting at a target with a specially remodeled Springfield army rifle.

Some of the villagers wanted to know if they were going down to the lake to look for sea lions.

Mrs. Bradley Speculates.

"I really don't know what to think about this lion hunt," said Mrs. Bradley. "These prints that have been seen appear to have been made by dogs, but surely a dog wouldn't frighten these people who say they have seen it. The people all seem so sencere about it. It may be there is some animal roaming this part of the country, but no lion. The theory however, that a lion would make for a warmer climate is not altogether a sound one. We have shot lions in Africa at an altitude of between 2,000 and 3,000 feet above sea level where we had to sleep under heavy blankets at night. It was just about as cold as it is here in these Michigan woods now."

Mrs. Bradley gave up the hunt and returned to Chicago at noon, but Mr. Bradley remained to investigate some "lion" tracks which had been found in the vicinity of the Michigan City pumping station. The tracks has been preserved under buckets to prevent partial erasure. They found to be the prints of the rare female aquavis which lurks around pumping stations and waits for the water to meter.

"I'm sure this entire region may feel entirely safe from lions until the next circus arrives" was Mr. Bradley's parting. "I hoped we should have some good sport and that was the only reason we came out. I have seen nothing to convince me of the recent presence of a lion. It gave us a chance to try out the sights on our rifles, anway."

BEFORE BABY COMES

Watchful Care Necessary

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine and should be taken by the expectant mother. It will assist her in keeping well and strong. This is very necessary, not only for her own comfort but for the future.

Read the experience of Mrs. Barton of New Brunswick, and please bear in mind that every letter published recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is genuine and unsolicited. They are expressions of gratitude from women.

Cumberland Bay, N. B.—"I was troubled with weak feelings, headache, all the time, a cough, fainting spells and pains in my back and side. I could not do a single bit of work and had to be helped out to the hammock where I lay in the fresh air from morning until night and I had to be carried up and down stairs. After other medicines had failed a friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she said it was excellent for anyone in the family way. Before the first bottle was taken I could walk alone and as I kept on with it I got stronger, until I was able to do all my work. My baby is now six weeks old and is a big fat healthy fellow. I am sure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done wonders for me and I recommend it."—Mrs. Murray J. Barton, R. R. No. 1, Cumberland Bay, N. B.

PROTEST AGAINST MIXED DANCING

Baptists in Convention Resolve For Its Discontinuance in High Schools.

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press.)—Vigorous attacks on race track gambling and cigarette smoking, commendation of the Ontario Temperance Act and advocacy of fair wages for workers, were the outstanding actions of the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec in their closing session yesterday.

The convention placed itself on record as being out for Dominion-wide prohibition and enactment of the laws against importation and transportation of liquor. An attack was made on the system of Government control in Quebec on the ground that it "perpetuates evil and makes us all partners in it."

A motion was also adopted against continuance of mixed dancing in High schools. A strong appeal against war was made, in which the statement was sent forth that a "militaristic spirit is all too prevalent amongst us."

repugnant to Sir Wilfrid, and often have I seen him get restive when a suggestion would arise in the House looking to the suppression of the liberty of the subject. The subject, he would say, gives up when he joins the state a certain measure of his liberties to a common cause but no more. It would be hard to imagine him acquiescing in the revolution that has taken place in Ontario. In Quebec such a situation could not arise. And yet we have the Orangemen in Ontario, and few of them in Quebec. There, then, is another mystery for the thoughtful inquirer. This sensitiveness to the cherished principle of liberty explains much of Quebec's politics and of Quebec's attitude in Canadian politics. The dominating force in Quebec life is Norman-French and in Britain likewise, and as a matter of fact Quebec and Great Briain are more of one mind and closer together than Ontario and Great Britain. At any rate, it was from this resistance to old-time Toryism, and the severe rule of some of the Bishops that gave rise to the Liberal party in Quebec. Ontario was Tory; and when the Liberals who continued the fight in Quebec broke away from the Liberals of Quebec, who leaned the other way, the latter joined the Tories of Ontario, and gave rise to the Liberal Conservative party, while from the more radical Liberals of Quebec rose the Liberal party of Canada, which in due course comprised such men as Dorion and George Brown, Laurier and Mackenzie, Huntington and David Mills. Time has modified the situation considerably but the strength of Liberalism was the fact that it was rooted in the people, and it has grown in spite of every obstacle, while Conservatism has not been able to continue.

Toryism in due time became an impossibility and it was succeeded by Consevatism, but while the latter wiped out Toryism, it has not shaken off its old Tory-Liberal attributes, its reactionary Bourbonism, and it is this failure to consult the party and the people, as Liberalism has done, that has brought on the pitiable mix-up in Conservative circles to-day. The best men and the best minds in Conservatism would not, and will not, stand for the old Bourbon Tory-Liberal way of doing things, and until great popular conventions are held, and the people more generally consulted, neither the policy of Protection, nor any other policy, will rescue the party from its collapse.

At present the Conservative party is where Sir John found it, and lifted it up, and put it on its feet. It has gone back to its original hopeless Bourbon condition, and awaits another Sir John. People are not ruled in that Bourbon fashion nowadays, and unless a new Sir John, or some one like him, puts the self-elected leaders gently but firmly to one side, they and their docile following will go down and out, and they will not have far to go. Is the strength needed to rescue it left in the party, or is its remote Bourbon origin telling against it, just as the origin of the Liberal party is now telling in its favour?

But let us get on with Sir Wilfrid. For years I watched him closely in the House and out of it, and I believe him to have been a very noble type of man. The most interesting part of Skelton's biography of him is that which deals with Laurier's conflict with Bishop Bourget and Bishop Lafleche. How it was that Laurier remained a Catholic in good standing it is interesting to note. It was due to the fact that those clerics who opposed him went too far and lost the support of the Pope. No more difficult and delicate situation could well arise for any man, but Sir Wilfrid was equal to it, and yet remained true to his faith. Sir John Macdonald was at heart sincere, but he saw that it was not principles that concerned his leading followers so much as other things. He played upon their weaknesses and yet remained true to the innate greatness of his own manhood. He had no Mackenzies, Browns or Blakes to deal with. That is where the weaknesses are now prevailing. The fierce apostles of "rep by pop." and democratic control, drove or dragged the Liberal coach into many a mud-hole from which it was hard to extract it. The Laurier tradition pulled it out in 1921, and kept it going.

Sir John, with all his greatness (and Skelton does him full justice) had a he left orders for his party to stick to principles that party would now be up and doing. Principles will carry a party far. They will tide over many a crisis. But what principles have we now? In Ontario we have Bourbonism in ethics and politics of the worst type. Sir John used to laugh at the weaknesses of mankind, but had he lived it would have been to regret them. Tradition after all is a good thing. At any rate it is infinitely better than much that we have. Sir Wilfrid stood for liberty, not the type of liberty that compels people to forego the liberty of the individual, but that liberty which is the basis of all liberty and allows people to work out their own salvation. It is the only kind. That is after all the tradition that he has left to Canada, and if it does not exist in Ontario it yet lives elsewhere in Canada, and we must salute his memory accordingly.

Space will not allow me to say more. Read the book (2 vos.) and you will find it and the subject of which it treats well worth the time.

This Laxative Works Fine on Old People

Thousands have kept themselves healthy with Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin

ADVANCING age with its subdued ambitions and strivings could be made very happy if only good health accompanied it, and the basis of good health, as everyone learns upon reaching the age of 60, is the regular daily movement of the bowels. If it can be effected through the food you eat, the water you drink and the exercise you take, so much the better. But if nature will not operate it must be assisted or sickness will follow. Neglected constipation causes the blood pressure to go up 28 per cent, and that is the forerunner of hardening of the arteries. It makes rheumatism and gout worse, too.

The ideal constipation remedy for people of advancing years is Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics. It is gentle and mild, and does not cramp or gripe. It is a mistake to think you need a violent salt or powder or pill, calomel, coal-tar drugs and such things. They purge and weaken you, and their reaction tends to make you more constipated than before.

Now try the milder method. Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin does not lose its good effect with repeated use, and increased doses are unnecessary. Mrs. Ellen Laira of Pictou, N. S. who is 87, keeps herself in good health with it, and Mr. Chas. N. Nicholas of Winnipeg, Man., finds it both helpful and beneficial, and everything that can be desired from a laxative standpoint.

Use Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin yourself the next time you suffer from constipation, biliousness, headache, sleeplessness, indigestion, piles or night cramps.

Many thousands of elderly people use nothing else, and it costs them less than a cent a dose. Druggists have sold it successfully for 30 years, and it is the most widely bought family laxative in the world.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try my Laxative Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 23 Caldwell Building, Toronto, Ont. Do it now!

1087 THE PRO

DEVICE TO SAVE FUEL CONSUMERS.

Minimize Waste and Render Country Independent of Imported Coal.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press)—After two years of experimenting, local men have found a device that can be installed in any furnace at a low cost and which, it is claimed, will save fuel consumers of Canada millions of dollars by minimizing coal, according to an animizing coal waste and rendering the country independent of imported coal, according to an announcement of Mr. M. B. Murphy, superintendent of terminals, Canadian National Railway. With this new device poorer grades of bituminous coal and lignite will produce a greater heat-efficiency in proportion to cost than can be obtained from anthracite.

For several years, Mr. Murphy states his department has been striving to find a way to make greater and more economical use of Western Canada coal in place of the more expensive eastern and imported coal. Western coal and even the better grades of lignite were relatively low in ash and high in carbon content, their total carbon content being higher than that of anthracite, but owing to the fact that in all bituminous coal this carbon content was lost in smoke and unconsumed gases they had hitherto been unable to obtain from western coal the actual efficiency obtained from the more expensive imported coal.

Recently Mr. Murphy and his colleaugues were informed that one of the ablest United States authorities on the subject of coal combustion had been successful in obtaining complete combustion of these volatile elements of bituminous coal as well as the fixed carbon elements. Hitherto only the fixed carbon has been utilized and that only partially. The volatile elements were capable of developing three times as much heat, per unit of weight, as the fixed carbon, so the economy effected was even greater than appeared at first glance. With the perfection of the appliance, Mr. Murphy states this is now possible and western coal can be used in place of imported fuel.

An organization is being formed here to obtain the rights to manufacture and use the device in Canada and its manufacture, it is stated will be commenced shortly.

Life of Sir Wilfrid Laurier

J. H. BURNHAM.

Skelton's "Life and Letters of Sir Wilfrid Laurier," is a work that should be on the shelves of every Canadian library. Notwithstanding the number of biographies of Canadians and of histories of Canada that have appeared, very few give the reader an insight into the complicated conditions of which they purport to treat. For instance, the average reader is utterly at a loss to understand how men like Blake could be so prominent in provincial politics, and in federal politics, at apparently the same time, until he learns that a man might in those days be a member of both Houses at the same time. This, however, was done away with about 1871. Yet it explains the apparently inexplicable fact that Sir John A. Macdonald, Alexander Mackenzie, Edward Blake and many other prominent men, were now in one House and then in the other, helping and fighting each other in the same years, if not at exactly the same moments. Then, too, Skelton analyses the careers and motives of the leaders of political thought (always quoting his authorities) in such a way as to rescue them from the inconsistencies and absurdities which otherwise leave them in impenetrable fog.

Why, too, for instance, did the western half-breeds rebel, and the English-speaking settlers with them? Because, as Skelton points out, while everything was given, including the Pacific Railway, to B. C. to induce it to come into Confederation, the settlers of the great plains were ignored.

Eastern Canadians on that occasion, in bargaining for the control of the middle west, dealt wholly with the Hudson's Bay Company, and the Imperial authorities actually leaving out of all consideration the settlers themselves. The use of political parties is treated clearly and fairly. Whenever necessary Sir Wilfrid's letters are quoted to show what his own private opinions were of such questions as the conflict with the Church, the rivalry of Blake and Mackenzie, and many other notable incidents. Blake, for example, has hitherto been a mystery. But Skelton shows that the reason he appears to be a mystery is that he was a mystery.

The wonderful advance in Canadian nationhood, however, dates from Blake's occupation of the portfolio of Justice. Up to that time the Governor-General was not responsible to his Canadian advisers. But Blake, with his profound grasp of constitutional law, forced issue after issue to the conclusion that Canada must have in practice the rights to which she was entitled in theory. It will be a surprise to many to know that Blake did more while Minister of Justice under Mackenzie to establish the autonomy of Canada than all those who went before and have come after him put together. But as a continuous political force he was an impossibility. He and George Brown were rivals and The Globe was a power in the land in those days. Perhaps that accounts for some of it. But it does not account for all of it, and much of it will remain unaccountable. In all histories, epochs and crises can be treated clearly by a master-painter of the times, but yet how few are treated so. It seems to be especially so heretofore with Canada.

Of Laurier, the author gives an uncommonly lucid account. Laurier was of old-French extraction, but it was Norman-French, not Breton-French. The Norman was the conqueror and ruler of England, and that is why apparently Sir Wilfrid was almost more English than French, and it was certainly the reason that he built his political theories upon British models. The Norman strain was a dominant strain. It brooked no compromise of freedom on any pretense. Compulsory voting or any other form of forcing the normal individual, the free member of a free state, was utterly

To Produce Great Natural Nerve Strength, Yeast Should Be Ironized and Not Merely Mixed With Iron. There is Only One Ironized Yeast in the World

Now, Mr. Man, tighten your fist and clamp your jaws. Tighter. Now still tighter. As tight as you can. Notice how weak is the tightest you can go? Vitamines and iron in your body made it possible for you to do these two things. If you had still more vitamines, ironized, you could tighten your fist and your jaws almost as tight as a vise. Ironized Yeast will enable you to do it, because ironized yeast combines concentrated vitamines with natural organic iron, in such strength that it gives nazing power to nerves and organs in half the usual time. It is the most powerful reconstructive in the world today for tired, exhausted men and women. It is not a mere mixture of yeast and iron, but is yeast ironized, which is a substance all by itself. Give your nerves the natural food-strength they lack. They do not need stimulation, they need natural force. Here it is, Ironized Yeast! This will give you great blood power, great nerve power, an avalanche of energy, brain clearness, stronger muscle, firmer flesh, a clear eye and memory,—and you'll smile the smile of health and power. Ironized Yeast is sold at all drug stores, at $1.00 a package. Each package contains 60 tablets, each tablet is sealed. They never lose their power. Harold F. Useful Wedding Gift? One Bride Gets a Play

KATHERINE CORNELL

By Marian Hale

Wedding gifts are always a problem.

There are, of course, silver, linens laces and china to select from, but when the desire to be original manifests itself trouble begins.

And usually, after a week of frantic searching for something different, one lands triumphantly upon the very object 14 other people decided to give.

A decidedly original wedding gift was received by Katherine Cornell when she married Gutherie McClintic. It came from Winthrop Ames, the theatrical producer. He gave the bride a play, stipulating that her husband should have the sole rights of production.

And it was no inconsequential play It was one by A. A. Milne, one that a number of producers would have been glad to buy at a fat figure—"The Dover Road."

They became so excited over the gift they decided not to take a wedding trip, but to start production at once.

By summer the play was coming along beautifully and had earned so much money that they could take an extended honeymoon trip in Europe, and then have enough left to buy two new plays to be produced on their return.

And after eight months on Broadway, the original play is about to go on tour and make more money on the road. All of which causes Miss Cornell to say:

"I shall never again give gifts that are not useful. When I think of the fun we've had with this play, and the splendid start it has given us, I am convinced that it is foolish to give gifts, people have to keep in a safe or spend a lot of time keeping in order.

"To be sure, there are few people who could give plays for gifts, and possibly few who would want them but how many there are who could give young people a start rather than a responsibility.

"I've known couples whose marriage was practically doomed from the start, all because their well-meaning relatives and friends gave them such expensive wedding gifts. They couldn't take them to the sort of a home they could afford, and couldn't afford the sort of a home they ought to go to, and trouble began.

"From now on, every gift I ever give is going to be a useful one, no matter how small it is."

Katherine Cornell is a Buffalo girl who formerly taught dramatic art in the Buffolo high school. Now she's making a name for herself on Broadway.

PREMIER DRURY GOES AFTER G. H. FERGUSON

Calls Him the Champion Blusterer and Swashbuckler of the Political Arena.

PORT ARTHUR, Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press.) —Premier Drury here last night in a speech wherein he made reference to nearness of Provincial general election, declared the Conservative leader, Hon. G. H. Ferguson, to be the champion blusterer and swashbuckler of the political arena. He compared the government's transaction with E. W. Backus, which he said was highly profitable to the province, with that of Hon. Mr. Ferguson with the Shevlin-Clarke Company of Fort Frances, and went on to say that Mr. Ferguson's utterances regarding timber administration were nothing but "brazen effrontery."

Mr. Drury also paid some attention to Col. Currie, member-elect for South-east Toronto, and said that if his memory served him right that gentleman went to war in 1914 but was back in 1915.

VALUABLE WORK OF ART BEING SHOWN

Exhibit Opened Yesterday at 379 Park Street, Worth While.

The exhibit of work by the pupils of Miss Mamie L. McCarthy, which opened yesterday at 379 Park Street, and will continue to-day and to-morrow, contains some interesting and valuable works of art. There are over a hundred examples of hand-painted china, and also as many of work in oils, water-colors, pen and ink and charcoal mediums.

The oils include several portraits, with many scenes from still life and from nature; the water-colors show numerous examples of the sepia work which evokes favorable comment from all spectators, the soft brown of this coloring being especially effective in the woodland scenes and sheep pictures. There is a particularly good example of this work in the two figures portrayed in "Love and Art," and the portraits of the parents of one of Miss McCarthy's pupils. There are a few impressionistic sketches in gay colors; a black-haired girl with a pink poppy in her hair, a gypsy with knife in hand, and the colored magazine covers, the work of another young pupil, are bright spots of vivid color and life. Christmas cards, in delicate cover designs in water-color, are shown, with a collection of splendid pencil sketches, portraying old English buildings, with one of the popular subject, Jackson Park. This park appears in several of the sepia subjects, and attracts much pleased comment.

"Her First and econd Sermons," after Sir John Millais' famous painting, are colorful bits of light, the scarlet cloak of the small girl's figure standing out in relief against a sombre background, there is a large snow scene and a figure of "Solitude" that are excellent examples of the work of the artist and her mother; and "The Yellow Sofa" is another brilliant picture.

In the hand-painted china, dainty and delicate specimens are on view, with massive things like the tall vase done in mauve and yellow mums; the large piece with its conventionalized peacocks, and jardinieres with full-blown red roses. Flowers and fruit in natural and conventialized patterns appear on plates and cups and small ornaments, with exquisite little bits of the popular lustre work in various tints, and a complete set of gold-initialled china. A pair of iris candlesticks; flying robins against a misty sky on a large pitcher; the lovely figure of Eve accepting the apple from the serpent, on a rounded vase; small acorn pepper and salts; an intricate design of peacocks on a large plate; little dainty things of pink roses and forget-me-nots; grapes on a gorgeous fruit-bowl; geraniums in a Pompeian red effect; little Dutch figures in soft blue making love on a plate; a conventionalized butterfly with outspread wings against a background of purplish lustre; these catch the eye amongst the many pretty and delicate wares in the china exhibit.

TAR HOLLOW FOLKS DEFY THE COUNTRY.

CHILLICOTHE, O., October 26. —When the Scioto River took a few extra twists near Columbus, it started a real problem for the educational heads of a county 50 miles away.

The twists made possible the squalid conditions in Tar Hollow, north of here which health and school authorities of this county cannot break up.

Because the river cut off part of a school district west of Columbus, the state awarded the district the Tar Hollow strip in this county, and because of this, Tar Hollow defies all clean-up efforts and lives happily in dirt, poverty, and ignorance.

Tar Hollow, in a glen deep in the hills of north-eastern Ross County, is five miles from a passable road. Its residents live in miserable shacks and cabins, in dugouts and in "lean-to" sheds.

Many have never been out of the Hollow in their lives—even to go to Hallsville, a village five miles away.

Like tribes, families live in squalid huts, hardly fit for cattle, say the county officials. Marriage laws are disregarded school laws are flagrantly repudiated. Raggedness and filth complete the picture officers paint. Corn shocks are used for beds, dirt is the only flooring.

W. A. Yaple county school attendance officer, and Dr. G. E. Robbins, county health commissioner, went to Tar Hollow, found these conditions existing—

But they can do nothing.

Because the land belongs to a school district in a county 50 miles away local authorities cannot force these people to send their children to Ross County schools.

Tar Hollow folks, squatters on the land, became aware that the work of county school and health officers had been hampered some way. Since then, they have flatly refused either to send their children to school or to clean up their unsanitary habitations.

In desperation, the matter has been upt up to the state officials. Some contend that it may be necessary to pass special legislation before the conditions can be straightened out.

One man in Tar Hollow agreed to send his six children to school, but did so only after long argument.

One woman deserted by her husband, said none of her nine children ever seen a schoolhouse.

Drinking a Glass of Hot Water is a Splendid Habit

Cleanse and sweeten the system each morning and wash away poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise; splitting headache, stuffy from cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before eating more food.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a fine appetite for breakfast. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store, but is enough to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism an enthusiast on internal sanitation.

SILK AND FISH SEAL JAPANESE ROYAL BETROTHAL.

Prince Regent of Japan Also Presents Future Consort With Historic Sword.

TOKYO, Oct 27.—(Canadian Press).—On the day of the announcement of his engagement to Princess Magako the Prince Regent of Japan presented his future consort with the historic sword of betrothal, and to finally seal the contract the Emperor and Empress donated five rolls of silk, a cask of sake and a box containing two tai, a variety of fish.

That, however, was only a very small part of the ceremony. Very early on the morning of the betroth al day Count Tokugawa, the grand chamberlain to the Emperor, through Viscount Makino, minister to the Imperial Household told the Prince Regent that Prince Kuni, father of Princess Nagako had given his consent to the match.

The young Prince Regent wore the yellowish brown court costume that for centuries has been the form al regalia of Japanese royalty. He received the minister in the famous Chysanthemum Hall of the Imperial palace and, having heard his message, he accompanied Prince Kujo, the chief spiritualist to the imperial shrine. There he announced his engagement to the spirits of his ancestors.

After that, the Prince Regent formally thanked the Emperor and Empress and returned to his own palace, where he received the congratulations of the most prominent personages in Japan. A banquet followed and the Prince Regent was invested with the First Class Order of the Crown, one of the high est of Japanese decorations. Then came the presentation of the betroth al sword to the Princess. The sword is a simple instrument about one foot long, but made by the best swordmaker in all Japan On its handle is carved a chrysanthemum the crest of the imperial house.

The presentation of the bales of silk, the wine and the fish came later, but that did not terminate the ceremony. As an essential part of the bethrothal service Tokyo representatives of the royal house visited the great shrine of Ise, the Sun god dess and mythical ancestor of all Japan; the grave of Jummu Tenno, the first emperor, and the Monoyama mausolea, where great men of old Japan lie buried To the spirits of these departed giants it was announc ed that the future ruler of the king dom had chosen the girl who some day would be the first lady of the land.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

RESPECT FOR LAW.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: The spirit of law-breaking on this continent has done away with all respect for law. An oppressive law is the worst thing in the world. It breeds the disease of hatred. The O.T.A. oppresses the respectable man and woman. No other law has ever tried to do that before. This lack of consideration for respectable model citizens is turning these citizens into rebels. Anything else would be too much to expect. But if the prohibitionist principle was adopted by everybody, in everything, then respectable people could and would start in to compel other respectable people to do their will.

An election is at hand. Instead of considering the respectable people as entitled to the rights of freemen, let us unite under the prohibitionist banner and just compel them. What is good in one case is good in another. We must not expect to make fish of one and gooseflesh of another.

The Methodist conference just closed passed a resolution in favor of schools for Methodists. The Catholics want that too. Here is our chance. Let us apply the O.T.A., which, of course, is not confined to liquor. We can apply it to everything we don't want. It is a great advance in civilization and Christiantiy.

First Woman Radio Broadcaster

VINTON, Ia.—"Hello, hello, hello —this is radio broadcasting station WIAE, Vinton, Ia."

That's the way Mrs. Robert E. Zimmerman, believed to be the first woman radio broadcaster in the United States, starts her programs, which have been heard as far as Brunswick, Ga., on the south, and Honeoye, N.Y., on the east. Women have invaded men's fields in many things but Mrs. Zimmerman is believed to be the first to show the rest of them what a woman can do in radio.

She is not a professional electrician, to answer the skeptic's first question. She never attended a technical school and is strictly an amateur as far as her experiments and the construction and operation of her radio station are concerned.

She studies the subject, she is an enthusiast, she admits that she accepts advice (on this subject only) from her husband, who is city electrician of Vinton, and judging from the numerous replies she has received from those who have heard station WIAE, she is one of the most successful broadcasters in the middle west.

Hubby's Brother a "Bug"

Mrs. Zimmerman explains her interest in radio as due to a visit from Mr. Zimmerman's brother, Carroll E. Zimmerman, of Taylorville, Ill., in 1920.

"He has been a radio bug for several years then and he got me so interested that we went to work on a set, resulting in an equipment that is now used by many radio receivers It was a type 2 varo-meters and varo-coupler.

"Then later, hearing phone stations, I thought it would be amusing for both the listeners-in and myself if I owned a broadcasting station.

"The first one I used was a 10-watt transmitter. This one did not give very good satisfaction, so when I was on my vacation in Illinois this summer I purchased a De Forest O. T. 3 radiophone, which has given good results. Then the maintenance man at my station, who is my husband, conceived the idea of enlarging this set. We started to work on it and are now testing on a 25-watt transmitter which is proving even better.

MRS. ROBERT ZIMMERMAN, VINTON, IA., REPORTED TO BE FIRST WOMAN RADIO BROADCASTER. SHE TAKES HUBBY'S ADVICE—ON RADIO MATTERS AT LEAST. HE'S AN ELECTRICIAN.

Entertains the Kiddies

In addition to the broadcasting apparatus, Mrs. Zimmerman has a receiving set consisting of a Westinghouse reconstructed set with four-stage amplifier and a magnavox.

Mrs. Zimmerman has been broadcasting since in June and in that time WIAE has been heard in New York, Illinois, Missouri, Georgia, Ohio and, of course, all over Iowa.

The broadcasting station is in a separate building designed, constructed and equipped for the purpose with operating room, power room and studio, the latter equipped with a piano and a phonograph and designed to insure the correct accoustics.

Programs are broadcasted every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 9 p.m. and at 2.30 p.m. on Sunday. Beginning in a few days, Mrs. Zimmerman is going to start a feature in a morning concert given between 7.15 and 7.45 for the benefit of school children, as many school houses in this state are being equipped with radio receiving apparatus. In this she is again a pioneer, she believes.

Organized Orchestra

Although varied programs are given, Mrs. Zimmerman features a five-piece orchestra, which she has organized and which has proved popular. The instrumentation is piano, saxaphone, trombone, cornet and drums, she believing that this carries best over the ether.

Mrs. Zimmerman lived on a farm near Independence, Ia., until her marriage a few years ago. But though on a farm, she did not confine her interests to it. During the war she took an active share in Red Cross and community work and was known as one of the most progressive spirits of the community. She is a native of Iowa, born at Independence 26 years ago.

Radio is more than a mere passing fad with her. She is enthusiastically interested in it. She realizes its big future and delights in working out with her husband new features which will make her station more efficient. She sees no reason why the average woman can not do something like this in addition to her home duties.

GOOD WORK BY THE RED CROSS

Shown in Report of Activities for Relief of Fire Victims.

The completed report of the work done to date by the Red Cross Society and its affiliated societies, brings up Peterborough's contribution towards the relief of the fire sufferers in the Haileybury disaster up to a very considerable amount. The Red Cross Society, which supplied the material for the work done by the various workers in different societies, figures that the cost of the material supplied would average almost one thousand dollars. The goods were made up into all sorts of articles needed for the fire victims, including quilts, comforters, layettes, children's garments of all kinds, women's and children's underwear, night-gowns, towelling, dresses, sleepers, bloomers, rompers, woollen scarves, toques, hose, bonnets, wash-cloths, sweaters, combinations, etc. The shipment of new clothing filled twelve large boxes, while much good second-hand clothing, totalling six boxes, was sent also, including overcoats, caps, mufflers, dresses, boots and shoes, bedding, blankets and quilts.

Those Who Contributed.

The societies contributing their share of time and work to the cause were: the Ashburnham Patriotic League, ladies of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, All Saints' Women's Association, the Teachers of the Central School, the 57th Chapter I. O. D. E., the Peterborough Branch Auxiliary to the G.W.V.A., the Ladies' Aid of George Street Methodist Church, the Queen Mary Home and School Association, Knox Church Ladies' Aid, Murray Street Baptist Church Ladies' Aid, the Pupils of the Public Schools under the direction of Miss Hazel Moffat (towelling was made by the children), the Catholic Women's League, the Young Ladies' Sodality of St. Peter's Cathedral, the Park Street Baptist Church Ladies' Aid Society, St. Luke's W. A., the Ladies of the Sacred Heart Church, St. Andrew's Church Ladies' Aid, the Christian Mothers of St. Peter's Cathedral, the Teachers and Senior Pupils of St. Peter's High School, St. Paul's Church Ladies' Aid, St. John's Friendly Bible Class, St. James' Methodist Church Ladies' Aid, Trinity Church Ladies' Aid, the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association, the Thursday Club, the Big Sisterhood. The employees of the Bon Marche Company gave two evenings of their time also to this work, making in that period twelve and one-quarter dozen bloomers, eighteen dozen children's bloomers, two and one-third dozen children sleepers, which they sorted, packed and sent away. Miss A. McGiverin gave a large box of new hats, and many private individuals gave time and attention to the making of various garments.

Sincere Gratitude.

The Red Cross Society wishes to express its sincere gratitude to the cheerful workers who rallied so valiantly to the call for assistance, and accomplished so much in such a short space of time. Their generous and energetic response to the appeal for help made possible the splendid total of achievement recorded above, and upheld the reputation of their city in this way. The society hopes that further appeals, if made, will meet with the same whole-hearted encouragement. The packing committee also, composed of representatives from different societies, deserves special and grateful mention.

The following telegram from Red Cross headquarters in Toronto has been received by the local secretary, Miss Laura Davidson:

"Do not at present ship second-hand clothing. Considerable shortage of warehouse accommodation in fire zone. New warm woollen underwear and footwear for all ages, and infants' layettes, pneumonia jackets and hospital garments should be sent by express to Dr. Routley, Red Cross, Cobalt, advising him of shipment."

PROTECT THE YOUTH.

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—(Canadian Press.)—Plea for fuller recognition of the importance of the adolescent period in a youth's life as a sowing ground for religion, and an assertion that religion was a real and vital thing even to young children, was made by Prof. T. G. Soares, of Chicago University, at the afternoon session of the Ontario Religious Education Convention yesterday.

JAPS LOSE TO GERMANS IN MARKETS OF INDIA

SIMLA, Oct. 27. — (Canadian Press)— German merchandise is rapidly replacing Japanese wares in the markets of India, according to the reports of trade investigators, made public here.

During the war, with the supply of German and other European goods cut off, Japanese manufacturers found India a profitable sales territory and shipped huge quantities of all sorts of merchandise to the Hindu, Moslem and Parsee shops. These stores are now practically barren of Japanese goods and German merchandise is again flooding the market.

German salesmen are now penetrating Tibet by the Younghusand route.

OLD PETERBOROUGH BOY PREACHED AT COBOURG.

Rev. H. T. Lewis Now Pastor at Oxboro, Sask.

COBOURG, Oct. 27.—Rev. H. T. Lewis, and old Peterboro boy, now pastor of a Union church at Oxbow Saskatchewan, and former pastor of Cobourg Methodist church, and of Simcoe street Methodist church, Oshawa, preached here on Sunday last. In referring to the heroic work of the pioneers of this country in laying the foundation of our civilization and national prosperity, he alluded to the arrival in Peterboro County of his grandparents in the forties, when they took up land in Dummer township. His grandfather made the trip first, sending later for his wife and family, who were many weeks making the voyage and were then held for some time in quarantine at Quebec because of illness amongst the children. In order to help a countryman in distress, his grandmother was forced to part with some of her precious Irish linen. Then she came on to Ontario, and with her husband, settled in Dummer, where the wolves nightly surrounded their dwelling.

Such Mr. Lewis opined, was the mettle of the pioneer settlers, which places a tremendous responsibility of parallel achievement on the shoulders of the men and women of today with all the helps afforded them whic hmodern civilization offers.

Laid at Rest.

The funeral takes place here tomorrow of Mrs. David Callahan of Belleville, who died at Rochester, Minn., after an operation. Mrs. Callahan was formerly Alice Lawler and is survived by three sons: Leo. J., Wilfred and Belleville, all residing in Belleville.

Thomas Moore Wood, a namesake and distant relative of the Irish poet, Thomas Moore, died here this week. Mr. Wood used to lecture on Ethymology before the Public and High schools of this district, and possessed some wonderful collections of insects, which unfortunately were destroyed when his home in Baltimore was burned three years ago.

DIED AT 101.

WINGHAM, Ont., Oct. 27. — (Canadian Press.)— Arthur Knox, who died here yesterday, aged 101 years and 9 months. He was quite active up to a few years ago.

Nerves So Bad That She Would Sit and Cry

Mrs. Mary Hocking, Madoc, Ont., writes:—

"Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has done me a wonderful lot of good. I suffered from general weakness and was so run down and my heart and nerves were in such bad shape that I would sit down and cry and not know what I was crying about. I also used to have weak spells. Thanks to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, however, I am real well now. I shall always keep a box of the Nerve Food in the house, and recommend them to my friends; they are a wonderful medicine."

(Mr. J. W. Vince, Druggist, of Madoc, Ont., says: "I have sold Mrs. Hocking your Nerve Food, and the medicine has done her much good.")

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Sterling—4.46¾.
Francs—6.95½.
Lires—3.92.
Marks—.02½.

Call Money—5½ per cent.

(By Stuart P. West.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 27. — (Special)—To-day's developments bearing upon the Wall Street situation were conflicting.

On the other hand there was a further sharp recovery in the foreign exchanges, which, in view of the uneasiness over the European outlook, was re-assuring. On the other hand, the heavy selling of United States' Government bonds, both old and new, continued and the September traffic reports kept bearing witness to the unusual expense to which the railroads of the country were put during the shopmens strike.

Sterling exchange crossing $4.46 around noon was up nearly three cents in the pound from Thursday's low. French francs, which had touched 6.8, were back above the seven cent level. Even German marks were a shade better. This recovery may have meant that the recent decline had gone far enough to discount the uncertainties of the French budget and the threat of German bankruptcy, or it may have meant simply that speculators for the fall were taking their profits in the exchange market the same as they do any speculative market after a particularly rapid downward turn. But at all events it had for the time being a favorable influence.

The drop in our government bonds was due to causes already pointed out, that are perfectly clear and have nothing to do with the situation on the stock exchange. Still the new treasury 4 1-4's sinking below 99 and the various Liberty Bonds off another 20 to 30 points, was not an inspiring spectacle, for the investment or the speculative markets. Some of the selling of Liberty Bonds had been coming from corporations needing more working capital and some of it had been coming from banks.

CANADIAN MINES.

MONTREAL, Oct. 27—The Mines have been lagging behind for some weeks, ever since the great conflagration in the north, but there are evidences that the dullness in these shares will soon be over. Yesterday Atlas moved up for the first time in some weeks, closing around 34½, while Davidson, which has been a great disappointment, rose to 24½, the highest for several days. Algonquin has been fulfilling the prediction that it was going higher, by selling at 16½, with the ear-mark of going much higher. In fact some good brokers are advising their clients to buy it at the market price. There will be several new ones on the market next week, and the rule has been that the new stocks have been purchases lately, therefore keep a lookout for those that will make their appearance next week. Don't overlook Clifton and Porcupine. Of course Teck Hughes will be one of the real mines, and you cannot go wrong in buying it. Dome has uncovered some extremely rich ore that will run into thousands of dollars to the ton. Can you overlook such rich mines right at our very doors? If these same mines were in Africa, Brazil or India, and such tales wired broadcast as to phenominal strikes, you would all be jumping over each other to reach the first broker's office to place your orders. It is now conceded that our Northern Ontario contains the richest gold in the world, at least up to the present time. Buy and help make Ontario what it has a right to be—the greatest mining camp in the world.

Canadian stocks were a little weaker to-day in sympathy with the other stocks of New York, which showed signs of profit - taking. Brazil was off 1 point from the previous close, selling at 40, while Steamers Preferred closed at 60, being a loss of 1 point. Breweries were off two points, while Spanish Preferred was weak at 101. Toronto Rails sold around 92, closing at 91⅞. The sentiment is mixed regarding the immediate future of the market, although there is a unanimous feeling that the real rise has not yet begun.

A PROFESSIONAL MOVE.

A stock market critic says:

"Will the market move upward or is the bull market over? Some weeks ago I tried to impress upon you that no bull market could change over night into a bear market and that statement holds good to-day. Is it reasonable to suppose that the financial men are unloading at the present prices, in view of the fact that they hold stocks at very much higher levels, which they bought and held through the war. Why did they do that? Simply because if panics were to be prevalent they knew perfectly well that the public would never come into the market and relieve them of those stocks which they bought and got stuck with. Of course they were holding mostly dividend paying shares therefore they haven't suffered. However it is well to note that large bankers and insurance houses bought stocks freely when the market was much lower than even the present one is and it might be such that some of these stocks have been thrown over during the last few days, but I am of the opinion that the present setback is more of a professional character than otherwise. It looks to me as though those responsible for the week's decline are only laying plans for a very decided upward movement before the N. Y. State election which will take place before long. The market should have a smart advance before then. There have been really no exceptions to the set-back which shows clearly that dividend paying stocks were not considered any more than those which are distinctly speculative. For instance take Mex Pete which had a considerable rise, but why shouldn't it when it is earning over 44 p.c. and only paying 12 p.c.? Why shouldn't it be selling more in keeping with its earning powers, say around 265.00? At the market close Thursday at 221 3-4 it looks cheap. In market purchases, like in any other market it is the wisest plan to buy those articles that have real value ,although you may have to pay a higher price. Mexican Pete is one stock at least which should advance. Its corresponding stock, Pan-American, is somewhat in the same category and I wouldn't be surprised to see it sell around $107 instead of at $90.00. These two stocks will, in my opinion, be amongst the leaders. The dividend meeting of the both companies is due Nov. 3d."

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Trading proceeded at considerably slower pace toward 11 a.m. but recovery noticeable in early dealings was sustained.

Steel rallied to 106 1-2 while Baldwin regained two points and Studebaker 1 3-8.

Big priced Oils such as Mexican Pete and the Standards continued under pressure. Houston however, advanced to 82. Houston has acted relatively well during recent selling in the oils, reflecting the fact that no reduction in price of gold coast crude has been found necessary. Speculators for the decline are advising everybody to get out of stocks on the theory that bull market is over. They say rise has discounted everything favorable and future as well. If this is the case then industry should be warned another period of depression is not far off. As a matter of fact industry is just emerging from period of depression that has extended over a span of two years. Earnings of steel, equipment and many other branches of business were still in red ink on third quarter. It would be remarkable if industry again slumped into depression before it had fully recovered from severest trade reaction experienced in years.

MINES WERE QUIET.

TORONTO, October 27. — Noon trading in mines was conducted in a quiet and steady way.

Atlas was the most active issue and gained 1-2 point at 35 1-2 bid.

Hollinger at $12.70 was up 10c.

Dome was inactive at 39.10 bid. Throughout the recent reactionary period this issue has been persistently accumulated.

With marvellously rich ore being mined at deep levels and the market bare of stock this issue is in position to feature the market with a spectacular upward movement.

Teck Hughes, Baldwin and Wasapika were steady at yesterday's prices.

BELIEVE BEAR MOVE OVER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Many experienced operators believe heavy selling Thursday afternoon marked the culmination of period of correction through which the market had been passing over the last ten days. Leading commission-houses advised the purchase of stocks on the theory that prices were due for a quick rally. Stocks in general list were higher at opening.

Mining Shares Will Advance

DOME, Hollinger, Lake Shore, Teck Hughes, Baldwin, West Tree, Clifton, etc., will rise to higher levels. Northern Ontario holds the BEST GOLD MINES IN THE WORLD. Buy some shares in any of the PROVED Mines, and share in the profits of Wonderful Mines in a Wonderful Country.

We have good facilities for buying and selling ALL Stocks (Listed) for CASH, or will buy same on margin.

ONE OF HARVEY'S MINSTRELS SHOT

"Duke" Anderson, Featured Comedian Killed While Hunting Near Campbellford.

CAMPBELLFORD, October 27.—"Duke" Anderson, one of the end-men of Harvey's minstrels, was accidentally shot and killed while rabbit hunting with five other members of the company near here this afternoon.

The company are in town to-day for to-night's engagement at the Opera House, and after dinner, Anderson, who was one of Harvey's leading commedians, formed one of the party who went shooting, in Stevens' woods, opposite the Hydro-Electric Commission's power house above town. Details of the accident are lacking this afternoon. Anderson is a married man, and his wife has been travelling with him and also filling an engagement with the company.

DIVISION COURT CLERK APPOINTED

Mr. Chas. Seymour Succeeds Col. J. W. Miller Who Quits Saturday.

Mr. Charles Seymour, formerly on the staff of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, has been appointed Clerk of the Division Court here, succeeding Colonel W. J. Miller. To the Examiner this afternoon Mr. Seymour said he had been away from Peterboro for about two years and a half. The appointment was made by Attorney-General Raney, and the position is vacated by Colonel Miller to-morrow. Mr. Seymour will probably be sworn in next week.

Ordinarily the recommendations for positions at the bestowal of the Government are made by the sitting member. Mr. Seymour is a brother-in-law of Mr. Thomas Tooms, M.L.A.

The court fees are said to average about $1500 a year.

MOTHER WHO ATTACKED TEACHER STILL MISSING.

DETROIT, October 27. — Police are still looking for Mrs. Laura Paulsat, 1216 High street west, who is alleged to have assaulted Florence Fitzgibbons, the teacher in calisthenics, at the Benjamin Franklin school on Monday afternoon, because the teacher had reprimanded her daughter, Mildred Paulsat, 15 years old. A warrant for the arrest of the mother was issued by Judge Harry B. Keldan.

ODD SLEEVES, BELTS, BERTHA COLLARS

The actual changes in the fashionable silhouette are not startling. Paris has made few radical alterations.

All the more reason, then, for the insistence this season on trimming materials, detail of every kind.

One of these minor newnesses is the bertha collar. Another is the high collar—seen on the jacquette blouse and day-time dress—which is stiffly frilled or boned to give the proper height and flare.

Another is the continued extravagance of sleeves. Still another is the importance of the waistline and of belts.

The newest belt, by the way, is the "bolster" belt—rolls of the material as thick as one's finger twisted together to make a heavy cord about one's waist.

Give Even If It Hurts So Long as It Gets to Those Who Need It Most

Several more subscriptions have been received for the Northern Ontario fire sufferers, and the fund is now beginning to assume worthwhile proportions. The following extract from a letter received to-day speaks for itself:

"I see that there is still great need in Northern Ontario. It seems unthinkable that folk, some at least, should still be wearing light clothing, considering the cold which we have had here. I have felt the need sometimes of two stoves and lots of bed clothes. It hurts me to have so little to give, but perhaps that is no fault of mine, but my misfortune, to live in days when everyone is grabbing for a poor man's wages. Here is the landlord, he grabs over one-fifth; the coal man, a fourth; the church cries Give, Give; we have a big mortgage on the church; the salary of a fine organist to pay; and a few other items.

Sir, I am tired of this old world and of the fight I have put up against wrong practices, or, as Paul said, spiritual wickedness in high places. Lots of folk—or shall I say the majority—think they know the blessedness of getting, but they do not know, for they have never practised it to know. It is more blessed to give than to receive. I covet no earthly praise for any little thing it is my privilege to do—the joy I get from it is my reward. Yet there is one other thing I covet, that when I pass beyond this earth and kneel at Jesus' feet, He may put his hands on my head and say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

I am enclosing another $1.00 for the fire sufferers, for while I may not be able to give much at one time, yet, while the need lasts, I hope from time to time to help a little.

God bless you in your work of mercy and labour of love.

BACK TO DAYS OF THE DRUIDS AND OLD ROME.

Hallowe'en, Hallowe'en or All Hallow Even is the eve or virgil of All Hallows or All Saints' Day, Nov. 1.

But it antedates Christian times.

On Nov. 1 the Romans had a feast to Pomona, goddess of fruits and seeds.

Thanks for Harvest.

On the same date, or thereabouts, the Druids held their autumn festival of the sun, giving thanks for the season's harvest.

And they taught that, the night before, Saman, lord of death, called together the wicked souls he had condemned to occupy animals' bodies during the year. It was then that by gifts and incantations, he might be induced to release these captives.

November, too, was one of the times for these same Druids to rekindle their supposedly sacred fires.

However, the superstitions of pagans and Christians alike agreed that the night of October 31, of all nights in the year, was the time when super-natural influences were strongest.

Weird Powers Abroad.

Wraiths of the dead, it was long believed, wandered abroad on this night, together with witches, devils and mischief-making sprites and elves, and in some cases the spirits of living persons were able to leave their bodies temporarily, to join this ghostly company.

Hence, of all nights, it was the night of divination, and particularly for unmarried young people to learn whom their future husbands or wives were to be.

The fashion of plucking the eyebrows has long been popular with the Araucanian Indian women of South America.

A TALL WITCH IN SABLE DRAPERIES

Greeted the Guests at Charming Hallowe'en Tea.

A charming Hallowe'en tea was held in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum yesterday, under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Sodality of St. Peter's Cathedral. A tall witch in sable draperies, with the conventional pointed hat and broom, greeted the arrivals at the door; the large hall was arranged throughout with orange and black and yellow crepe paper that decorated the windows and the stage, where a striking arrangement of black paper and orange crepe streamers, with cut-outs of pumpkins, made an effective background for the musical artists. The small individual tables were crossed with orange paper and centred with candle-lit pumpkins, while the waitresses wore pointed caps and dress rosettes and streamers of black and orange. Black cats, bats and witches in silhouette adorned the various hangings in the hall, and the tall pillars were entwined with long corn stalks.

The convenor for the occasion was Miss Marion Hayes; the Misses Frances Carveth, Aileen Ahern, Margaret O'Brien and Kathleen Clancy, were in charge of the decorations; Miss Clara Fontaine of the tea; Miss Kitty Sharp, of the salads; and Miss Eileen McCabe of the music. The Misses Aileen Ahern, Nora Shevlin and Margaret O'Brien received the large crowd of people who patronized the tea during the afternoon, and the different tables were in charge of the Misses Loraine Archambault, Frances Carveth, Clothilde Collins, Marita Grisdale, Mary Doris, Olive Bacon, Rita Maher, Mary Galvin, Eleanor Garden, Catherine McDonald, Hilda Lane, Genevieve Kelly, the Misses Collins and the Misses Murray.

An entertaining programme consisted of selections by the orchestra, composed of J. Nazimok, violin, E. McCarthy, drums, the Misses D. Garden and L. Delaire, at the piano.

Recently, when the ancient walls of Canton, China, were razed to make room for a street railway, contractors offered to do the work for whatever treasure the walls might contain. The worw was divided among several applicants, every one of whom discovered such quantities of anciet coin and ornaments hidden away in the walls, that the work, though done without other payment, was profitable to him.

Mrs. Mabel Francis

"Tanlac helped me back to good health two years ago and I am still feeling fine," recently said Mrs. Mabel I. Francis, highly esteemed resident of 628 S. Linwood Ave., Baltimore, Maryland.

"Before taking the medicine I suffered from a nervous breakdown and was in an awful condition. I scarcely had strength and energy to handle a broom and my housework was drudgery to me.

"The first bottle of Tanlac made such a wonderful improvement in my condition that I was both surprised and delighted. So I stuck to it and a few bottles built me up ten pounds and made me feel as if I had never had a sick day. My health has been fine ever since."

NOTE—The International Proprietaries Co., distributors of Tanlac, have on file in their offices at Atlanta, Georgia, over fifty thousand signed statements from representative men and women from every State in the Union and every Province of Canada. Many of these are from prominent people in this city and section and have been previously published in this paper.

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

LARRY SEMON

At the Royal To-night and To-morrow.

The segregation of the sexes among certain barbarian peoples goes so far in many cases that each sex has practically a different language.

At The Theatres

GRAND—"The Bat," by the same company as playing in Toronto. Has broken theatrical records in every State in the Union—world's greatest mystery play.

CAPITOL — Harold Lloyd in "Grandma's Boy," his first five-part feature; also balance of Capitol high-class programme.

ROYAL—High-class feature comedy "Too Much Business," also Larry Semon in "The Stage Hand," and a great Western feature drama.

Capitol Entertainment

Harold Lloyd does some of the best work of his career in "Grandma's Boy," the five-part comedy now being featured at the Capitol Theatre. In the role of "Sonny," who is a good-natured weakling, he goes through some hilarious adventures in his ecorts to find himself. There is a dear old lady in this pictures in his efforts to find himself. on the screen, and she devises a wise little plot to fit Sonny's case. Armed with the magic charm of Juni, which later develops into one of the most laughable incidents of the picture, he develops new courage and vigor and goes forth to do doughty deeds in the real nonchalant Harold Lloyd manner.

He has a lady love, a charming little thing of ruffles and curls, and he goes to call on her in a wonderful get-up that belonged to his grandfather. But the little lady sees nothing wrong about it, and they are having a wonderful time at the organ, when the Rival appears. Sonny has been having some difficulty with a family of cats that persist in licking the thick cream that has been used to polish up his boots, also there is a little mix-up with regard to camphor balls in the chocolate box. The Rival's entry, and the visit of the sheriff on a hunt for a wandering tramp, start events moving swiftly. Thereafter, Sonny becomes entangled in a mad chase through a quiet barn at midnight, and, later, armed with the magic charm, goes forth to capture the miscreant tramp. The charm does excellent service in helping him capture the villain in a series of adventures that kept the audience laughing constantly, with the hero finally bringing in his prize in a wheelbarrow, stunned and peacable. Then follows a ferocious fight with the Rival, the little grandmother in the rear clapping her hands for Sonny, and his cave-man capture of the heroine, with a final little bit of absurdity in which a small pig is connected, to finish a likeable, laughable production.

A one-reel comedy, featuring a bride, and the usual run of short reels, complete a good programme.

AT THE ROYAL.

"Too Much Business" is a Vitagraph seven reel comedy adapted from the "Saturday Evening Post" story, "John Henry and the Restless Sex," by Earl Derr Biggers. The picture was directed by Jess Robbins. The scenario was prepared by Ford I. Beebee.

In the cast is Tully Marshall, Ethel Gray Terry, Edward Horton, John Stepling, Carl Gerard, Elso Lorimer and other well known players.

"Too Much Business" is offered as one of the comedy hits of the season, at fair prices, and with every exploitation aid that Vitagraph can evolve; that the exhibitor playing it may be fully insured of adequate financial success. At the Royal to-day and to-morrow.

AT THE GRAND.

"The Bat," far and away the sensation of the year in the theatre from point of popularity, will be presented by Wagenhals and Kemper at the Grand Opera House on Friday and Saturday, October 27 and 28 with a matinee Saturday.

"The Bat" is the joint work of Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood, reason sufficient in itself for its tremendous success.

"The Bat" is every bit of the dramatic smash one critic called it. One climax after another, follows in rapid sequence and the suspense literally holds the audience breathless from curtain to curtain. Nor is that all, for running through their story the authors have succeeded in introducing one of the funniest characters seen on the stage. Lizzie, the servant of the household accounts for shrieks of laughter.

"The Bat" played in New York for over two years. Simultaneously another company of "The Bat" achieved a run of over one solid year in Chicago, breaking all theatrical records for that city by a matter of many months. This is a record that is positively unique in the annals of the theatre.

The story of "The Bat"—that is a secret. It is the request of the authors and the management that no one tell the secret of "The Bat" and there has yet to be a critic or a theatregoer, so far as is known, who has broken faith.

When "The Bat" comes home, the same request will be made of local theatregoers. For the present then, know that "The Bat" is the hit of hits in the theatre and that it comes here, presented exactly as it is being played in New York and with a cast of unusual excellence which includes: Kate Blancke, Marietta Craig, Antoinette Crawford, Rodney Ranous, Albert Lawrence, Clay Cody, Frederick M. Conklin, Ralph Theodore, Stanley DeWolf, Tori Maltese.

Because of her work among Norwegians in the United States, Dr. Ingerborg Rasmussen, a physician in Chicago, Ill. has been awarded King Haakon's gold medal of merit.

Examiner Road Race Thanksgiving Day--C.G.E. to Play at Galt

Annual Examiner Road Race Thanksgiving Day

Junior Runners Will Get Away at 10 O'clock and the Senior Half an Hour Later—Finish at the Examiner Office.

Peterboro's racing classic, the Examiner Road Race, will be held again this year on Thanksgiving Day, November 6. As on previous occasions two race will be run. The first starting at 10 o'clock from in front of the Y.M.C.A. will be for the junior entries while the second will be for seniors and will get under was at 10.30 from the same starting point.

Owing to the fact that some of the out of town runners may not be thoroughly familiar with the plan of the city streets it was decided to not hold the race entirely inside the city. The course this year will be: Start at the Y.M.C.A., south on George to Charlotte street, west on Charlotte street to the Monaghan road and from there straight out the Gravel road to a point two and a half miles from the start for the juniors and five miles for the seniors. Point men will be stationed at these places and the runners will turn here and make their way back covering the same course to the finishing point in front of the Examiner office.

The junior class will be for boys seventeen year old or under while the senior will be for those eighteen and over. Age will be as from the last birthday. Junior entries will be required to furnish some proof of their age but a certificate signed by reputable citizen will suffice for this.

No entry fee will be charged and the only requirement is that the entrant must be a resident of Peterboro county.

Good prizes will be awarded for both races and the prizes will be placed on display during this week.

Battle For Intermediate Championship at Galt

Arrangements have been made for the final game between the C.G.E. and the Lucan Irish nine for the Intermediate O.B.A.A. championship to be played at Galt tomorrow afternoon. The local Electrical nine left this afternoon for the home of the senior champions. This will be the third and last game of the series and the winner will be the sure-enough champions for the next twelve months.

When the Irish lads paid their isit to Peterboro last Saturday the local boys climbed aboard and handed them a nice little trimming but when the local boys returned the visit they got the same medicine and a play off became necessary.

The O.B.A.A. officials announced yesterday that the final game should be played in Galt so an hegira of Lift Lock fans is expected to wend its way to the Canadian Manchester today and early tomorrow, to see if Peterboro can bring another championship scalp on her belt.

P.C.I. RUGBY BOYS IN STIFF WORKOUT

Collegiate Players Tuned Up For Scrap With the Scugog Boys To-Morrow

The coach put the Collegiate through a lively workout at Riverside Park last evening. The second team players turned out in good numbers and the regulars were all there.

For fifteen minutes the first were permitted to maul the seconds. Then the half lines were interchanged and the regular half line given the ball and the task of making yards against the first line. The latter were coached in defensive tactics.

A surprise is in store for the Lindsay crowd if they are counting on gaining yards through the line in tomorrow's game.

The Lindsay Collegiate are not a team to underestimate. Art Carew has been coaching the Scugog boys. Last year Art was a regular middle wing on the University of Toronto Intercollegiate champions, and the game last week shows that he has the ability to impart his knowledge to the team.

However, with Ernie Legon playing the brand of rugby he has been showing in practice the local boys do not see how they can lose.

Oshawa High School had little difficulty defeating the Belleville entry at Oshawa last Saturday. The score was 41 to 7. It is likely they will repeat in Belleville tomorrow. If P.C.I. and Oshawa H.S. meet in the play off for the group the fans will see some good rugby this fall yet.

RAYBESTOS SKIM SEPARATOR GANG

De Laval Crushed By the Brake Makers, Who Now Lead the Manufacturers' Section.

The DeLaval fell before the Raybestos in a snappy game in the Soft Ball League last evening. Angy McLeod was on the rubber for the winners and again turned in a great game. He struck out eight of the DeLaval batters, allowed seven hits and fielded his position in fine style. Perks for the DeLaval also pitched nice ball striking out six, but there was a bagful of errors made behind him.

McIntyre turned in the fielding feature of the game when he pulled down a hard drive and turned it into a fast double play.

In the first innings the DeLaval got a man around to third but failed to score. The Raybestos, in their half sent Irvin across for the first run. Neat fielding and good pitching kept both teams from scoring in the second. The third was the big innings for the Raybestos three hits, one going for a double, giving them five runs. The DeLaval opened their scoring with three runs in the fourth and the Raybestos got two more. The Raybestos scored again in the sixth making the score nine to three. The DeLaval walloped across in the seventh, but weakened in the eighth, a bunch of errors giving the Raybestos four more. The De Laval in the ninth had the bases full but let their chance slip only getting one making the final score thirteen to six.

The teams:

DeLaval—Bell, 2b; Fitzgerald, lf; Perks, p; Doughty, 3b; Prick, 1b; McIntyre, ss Marchen, ss; McGee, c; Murray, rf.

Raybestos—Ranger, c; Irvin, ss; McLeod, p; Russell, ss; Coursey, 1b; Abbot, lf; Kay, 2b; Byers, 3b; Van Peer, rf; subs, J. Russell, King.

Score by innings:

DeLaval .....000300201— 6
Raybestos ..... 10520104x—13

The second game went to the Firemen the Gunners failing to have a full team out.

Progress of Men's Soft Ball League

The Peterboro Men's Soft Ball League is greater now than ever before in its history. There are now participating in its games about two hundred and forty men divided into sixteen teams and in three different sections the Club, Mercantile and Manufacturing. The Rotarians are leading the Club section. The Raybestos as a result of last night's victory hold honors in the Manufacturing section, and the Mercantile section has but lately been formed. Games will be played three nights a week beginning next week.

The schedule for next week is:

Monday—Gunners vs Kiwanis and Woolens vs Engineers.

Thursday—Quakers vs Brintons and Rotary vs K. of C.

Friday—Kiwanis vs Rotary and De Laval vs Engineers.

The first game starts at 7 o'clock and the second at 8.30 sharp.

Coach Stagg is Banking on Jimmy Pyott

JIMMY PYOTT

Coach Stagg of the University of Chicago has great faith in his back field. If the Chicago line holds and Stagg is confident that it will, he feels sure his back field stars will pile up enough points to make a Maroon victory certain.

Jimmy Pyott is one of the back field candidates who has been playing a fine game this year. Pyott is one of the best punters in the Chicago line and spends much time daily keeping his educated toe in shape for a grueling battle with the Princeton Tiger.

Pyott can do other things besides punt and is considered by Stagg as one of the most valuable players in the Chicago lineup.

Tigers Intend to Invade Chicago in Regal State.

Princeton may not have the greatest football team in its history but when the Tigers establish a new precedent this week-end by going out into the West to meet the University of Chicago they are going to travel in regal state. A special train, consisting of twelve sleepers and two diners, will leave New York at 3:55 o'clock this afternoon as a second section of the Pennsylvania's crack train, the Broadway Limited. Many Princeton graduates residing in New York will board the train at the Pennsylvania station and the Old Nassau contingent will be picked up at Princeton Junction. Coach Roper will give his men their final drill in the Palmer Stadium early this afternoon and then rush them to the alumni special, due to leave Tigerdom at 4:59. The squad will consist of thirty-five player, fourteen coaches and three managers. The Princetonians will make their headquarters in Chicago at the Chicago Beach Hotel. Returning the train will leave Chicago at 11 o'clock Saturday night.

Three Stars Were Missed

Yale is trying to get some comfort out of the Iowa defeat by pointing to the fact that three star regulars were missing.

No doubt the absence of three great players like Jordan, O'Hearn and Beckett did greaty weaken Yale. The statistics of the game, however, show that the Blue was outplayed in every department by the westerners.

In the Iowa game Yale's attack lacked speed, versatility, deception and cohesion. Yale showed little or nothing that was new. Practically all the gains were made by straight football.

Sandy Gives Some Advice to Brockville.

In commenting on the report that Brockville was after pitcher Jack Williams of the Belleville team, the Port Hope Guide says:

How would it be if Brockville trained a pitcher of their own instead of stealing from their neighbors. The great Freddie Goyer learned to curve the ball down in Belleville and when the news was flashed across the wires that Goyer has signed with Guelph, every person sighed and predicted baseball days over in Belleville. But the Belleville crew instead of lamenting the loss of Goyer went out into the wilds of Verona and returned with the young Indian, John Williams. He had a good arm and a keen eye and with a little training developed into a wonderful pitcher. Now Brockville wants to steal him. Shame on you, Brockville. Take the green timber the same as Belleville and develop it into the smooth product.

FOOTBALL

The C.G.E. and Quakers will meet in a league game at King Edward Park tomorrow afternoon. The kick off will be at 3.30 o'clock. A good game is looked for as the Quakers are in the finals for the Gordon Cup and the C.G.E. are after points to win the league championship.

The Canadian Woolens and Owls will meet in a league fixture tomorrow afternoon tat the Oval. The Woolens are in the finals for the Gordon Cup and if they win this game will we well in the running for the league honors as well. The game will start at 3:30.

The Woolens and DeLaval juniors will meet in a Yeotes Cup game at King Edward Park at 1.30 tomorrow afternoon. This will be the last game for the DeLavals who are tipped as the likely winners of this league.

The C.P.C. and Comrades will meet at the Oval Saturday afternoon for a game that is expected to be a battle royal. The C.P.C. team will be selected from the following players: Killenbeck, Davidson, Curtis, Downer, T. Ball, Hopgood, F. Ball, Mitchell, Anderson, Haw Chambers, Edwards, Lynch, Bradley and McDonald.

TIGERS EXPECT NEW BY TO STAR AGAINST CHICAGO.

Fullback Newby.

If Princeton is to get revenge for the defeat suffered at the hands of Chicago last season Fullback Newby of the Tigers must do much of the work.

Coach Bill Roper is strong for Newby, regards him as one of the best back field men in the east, and has built much of the Princeton offense around him.

Newby is adept at hurling the forward pass and will have to carry the Tiger burden in that respect. Last year Don Lourie hurled the Tiger passes, but Lourie graduated in June.

REAL GRID STARS LIKE TO PLAY THE GAME

By AUBREY DEVINE

All-America 1921, Captain Iowa 1921 "Big Ten" Champions

A genuine liking for football is a most necessary quality if a player hopes to be a star.

True, some football players reach stardom who are not crazy about the strenous game. Unusual natural ability makes it possible. However ,such players would be of far greater value to their team if they really liked the sport.

With the liking for the game goes the determination or will to do. Some will call it nerve, others will use the trifle vulgar yet very appropriate word, "guts."

Success in college football rests upon the same broad foundation as does success in any other line of endeavor. If a man does not enjoy playing football for its own sake and is not possessd of the will power to perfect himself in the game to the very limit of his capacity to do so, he can no more expect to reap the rewards of a successfull football career than he could expect to be successful in any other line of work in which he might engage in a half-hearted manner. In other words, he must be willing to pay the price.

Finally, to sum it all up in answer to the question. "Why high school stars do not make good in college" we may say that some never were stars, while other real stars lose their athletic ability before they get to college, either because they were "burned out" in high school by too much work, or because they are just naturally athletic in their teens and ::old" men in their twenties.

Still other high school stars fail in college because the diversified life of college causes them to scatter their attention and energies upon so many and varied interests.

Not the least of these varied interests are girls and "dates." As a result the classroom and the football field are equally neglected, and the erstwhile high school star becomes a mediocre man on the last string of the squad.

In brief, granting that the high school star has the potentialities requisite for him to make the varsity, he must devote his undivided attention to a two-part curriculum of studies and football, at least during the football season, if he would continue his high school success in football on through his college career.

THE MERCANTILE FIVE-PIN LEAGUE

For Gordon Trophy.

All factories and employees of one concern wishing to enter in the Mercantile Five-Pin League for G. N. Gordon Trophy for the coming season should have their teams entered by the 3rd of November at the Water street alleys, as the league will start on November the 6th.

SPORT GOSSIP

Members of the hockey committee reported to the meeting of the P.A.A.A. Executive held last night at the Chamber of Commerce that the hockey situation was receiving attention and that preparations were being made for the coming season. A meeting of the hockey committee will be held within the next few days. A survey of hockey material available gives high hopes for success in the O.H.A. races.

While the winter game was under discussion the suggestion was made that the Association might help in providing outdoor skating and hockey. This could be done by keeping clear of snow, large areas of ice on the river, canal and Little Lake. As good skating is frequently spoiled by a heavy downfall of snow, the suggestion made to the meeting last night, if carried out, would provide means of clearing away the snow after a fall of the beautiful. Skaters and hockeyists, would, it was felt, be glad to see the Association carry out a project such as this.

Trophy For Ladies.

A communication was received from President Gandy of the Ladies' Softball Association, asking assistance in procuring a trophy for competition by the teams interested in the game. Mr. J. P. Bond, a member of the P.A.A.A. Executive, offered to donate a trophy and the offer was accepted. As in the case of the Gordon Cup, the trophy from Mr. Bond will be presented to the P.A.A. ,and there will be a set of rules governing the winning and holding of the silverware. The ladies' team of the Colonial Weaving Co. will have the honor of being the first team to hold the cup.

Boxing Classes.

The boxing committee are arranging to resume boxing classes next Monday night in the band room of the Armouries. Wilfrid Jones will again act as instructor. Private instruction will form part of the boxing programme, particulars as to which may be had from H. A. Cranfield and Ford Turner.

Assist Ball Clubs.

The second membership campaign will open next Monday, and during the week, publicity will be given to the financial side of the Association's activities, and a statement will be made covering the season at Riverside Park, with details as to revenue and expenditure. The P.A.A.A. feel gratified that they have been able to assist, financially and otherwise ,the three ball clubs competing for Ontario championships, and to give similar assistance to other branches of sport. This is what the Association had in mind when the grounds were leased.

Financial statements from the Maple Leafs, Ontario Midget champions and Adanacs, junior semi-finalists were received by the meeting.

REUTHER A HOLD-OUT.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 21.—(Canadian Press)—"Dutch Reuther, pitcher for the Brooklyn Club of the National League, who is visiting here, is probably the first holdout of the 1923 season. Reuther said he had declined to accept a salary of $9,000 and a bonus of $1,000 which Charles Ebbets, owner of the club offered Reuther, "if he proves he is worth it."

Marty Krug, of the Chicago Nationals, here for the winter, says he will not return to the Cubs next Spring.

SMOKE EATERS WON

Defeated Gunners by a Score of 10-6

In an exhibition game of baseball last night the Firemen defeated the ... by a score of 10 to 6. The game was very close. Up to the last inning the score stood 6 to 2, but each of the teams staged a come back with a ninth inning rally.

Dunkerly, for the Firemen, was by far the best pitcher; he always had the game right in his grasp, only allowing 7 hits, while he struck out 9. His opponent had 9 hits against him and only 7 strike outs. He also suffered two walks, against Dunkerly's one.

The feature of the game was when G. Gimblett, Jr., swallowed a nasty fly back of short. The chief of the Smoke Eaters decided to stage a come-back and catch for his team again.

The line-ups were:

Gunners—Taylor, Piercy, Stewart, Hopkins, Wise, Nicholls, Galvin, Taylor and Gavelin.

Firemen—G. Gimblett, Sr., Dunkerly, Carr, G. Gimblett, Jr., Rollo, Mason, McBride, Rose and Johnston.

Score by innings:

Firemen ... ... 000303004—10

Gunners ... ... 10010004— 6
